Captain of Titanic Is Scored.

Master of the Mount Temple Says He Should Have Halted in Ice.

Declares, Also, He Erred in Final Hour in Giving His Location.

Irony Pleased by the Praise of His Conduct by the Stewards.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Failure to give her exact position, a great field of floating ice that dared a barrier to ships hurrying to the rescue, and the mistake of her captain in rushing at top speed through an ice-covered sea, combined to send the Titanic and her 1600 victims to their watery grave in the North Atlantic, according to testimony today before the Senate committee investigating the ocean tragedy.

Capt. James H. Moore of the steamer Mount Temple, which was hurried to the Titanic in response to wireless calls for help, told of the great stretch of field ice which held him fast. Within his view from the bridge he discerned, he said, another steamer, probably a "tramp," and a schooner which was making her way out of the ice. The lights of this schooner he thought probably were those seen by the survivors of the Titanic and which they were frantically trying to reach.

Capt. Moore denounced as "most unwise" the action of the Titanic's commander in rushing at twenty-one knots through the night when he had been advised of the proximity of ice. The Mount Temple's commander testified that he had spent twenty-seven years on the North Atlantic. Whenever ice was around, he said, he doubled his watch and reduced speed and if he happened to get caught in an ice pack he stopped his engines and drifted until he was clear.

The witness also was emphatic in his declaration that the position sent out by the Titanic was wrong. He said the ship was eight miles farther eastward than its operators reported. This, he declared, he proved by observations taken the first thing on the day following the disaster.

With what virtually was a fleet of steamers within a radius of fifty miles of the Titanic, the officers said that this mistake in fixing accurately the position of the doomed ship was a fatal one. With icebergs and floating ice covering the northern sea, a ship of even the size of the Titanic might well be overlooked through such a variance.

SUCK LEMON AFTER KISS.

Colorado Board of Health Oracle Has Citrus Cure for Osculatory Dangers.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.] DENVER, April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] When you start out to see your best girl take a lemon along in your pocket. This is the advice of the State Board of Health delivered through its oracle, Dr. Paul S. Hunter. "While a lemon cannot be named in the class of disinfectants, yet it is recognized as being more or less of a disinfectant. Therefor, if the girl and her fellow each would suck a lemon after each kiss it might help some."

Mother Finances Another Effort to Release Him on Habeas Corpus.

Million Dollars Estimated to Have Been Spent in His Behalf.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW ROCHELLE (N. Y.) April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Looking as if his immurement in the State Hospital for the criminal insane in Matteawan had agreed with him since his commitment there four years ago, Harry K. Thaw, slayer of Stanford White, appeared before Judge Keogh of the Supreme Court today in his fourth effort to win freedom.

Today's proceeding was on a writ of habeas corpus and no evidence of any kind was offered. Thaw was taken back to Matteawan after Judge Keogh had set May 6 as the date for the resumption of the hearing. The records in the case are very voluminous and it was the desire of counsel for the State that time should be granted to review the testimony at the trials and the facts of the previous attempts to procure Thaw's release.

Clarence J. Shearn represents Mrs. Mary C. Thaw and her son as attorney in the case. Mrs. Thaw was the petitioner for the writ which brought the young man into court today. Under the law the Thaw family is at liberty to bring proceedings for release as often as the members thereof are willing to provide the money.

The question to be decided is a scientific, rather than a criminal one, but instead of being determined by scientific machinery it is up to the judiciary, although the adjudication is expected to be made on the testimony of experts as to whether Thaw should be released or continued under restraint.

Just what steps the State will take in this instance has not been disclosed by the Attorney-General. Previously that official has had the guidance and assistance of former Dist.-Atty. Jerome, who is more familiar than any other person with the evidence adduced at the trials and with the former attempts to release Thaw.

HIS MENTAL CONDITION.

In the hearing before Justice Mills Mr. Jerome was successful in demonstrating that Thaw's mental condition had not improved since his commitment, but that, on the contrary, he was still the same sort of paranoiac he was on the night he shot the architect six years ago.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw is said to have expressed the fear that if her husband is released her life will be in danger. Thaw is reticent about his plans in the event of his liberation. It is not known whether or not he would take steps to procure a divorce.

It has been estimated that Mrs. Thaw has spent $500,000 to $1,000,000 of her fortune to restore her son to the ordinary rights of citizenship. The greatest item, said to be $150,000, was for the defense of the prisoner in the original trial for murder.

Repeated efforts since then to procure the release of Thaw from the hospital for the criminal insane have brought the cost well up to the half-million mark. The present movement to free the prisoner from the hospital on the ground that his mental faculties are no longer impaired has been carefully planned and Mrs. Thaw and her counsel believe it will be successful.

THAW IN CONFINEMENT.

During the last two years Thaw has been examined periodically by some of the most distinguished alienists in the country. Physicians of great repute in New York have questioned the prisoner exhaustively and have made all the known tests employed in determining the mental condition of a patient.

Eminent authorities on diseases of the nervous system and on the brain at Johns Hopkins University and in the government service in Washington have made like diagnoses of Thaw's case and it is said they are prepared to declare their expert judgment in a court of justice or elsewhere that the man in Matteawan is of sound mind and fit to be abroad among his fellows.

Counsel for Thaw is relying on the judgment of these men to bring about the release of his client. The attorney makes the charge that for some reason which he does not care to comment upon unless put to it, powerful influences have been exerted to keep Thaw in durance. It is his expressed opinion that if these influences had not been at work his client would have been released long before.

The State authorities, he says, have no right to restrain a patient whose mental soundness has been well established by men who are best qualified to pass upon his present condition.

GREAT BRITAIN WILL AID HER SUBJECTS IN MEXICO.

Will Provide Means of Getting Them from Troubled West Coast Region, So Washington Learns — American Transport Buford Will Probably Bring Some Foreigners—Coal Is Declared Contraband of War.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Confirmation has reached the State Department through unofficial channels that Great Britain will send to the West Coast of Mexico to aid such British subjects as may be anxious to leave the country. The American transport Buford, about ready to depart from San Francisco for Mexico, may bring back some foreigners if there is room after the Americans have been cared for.

News from Mexico to the State Department is more encouraging today. The Consul at Hermosillo reports that no Americans are in danger of their lives, either at Los Mochis or in Esperanza. Train service is running, there are no political troubles in that district, and no Americans have been molested. Reports say the Yaquis have not troubled Americans. All the foreigners at Lluvia de Oro are reported under date of April 20 as safe and well. Saltillo is reported quiet. A rumor of the taking by the rebels of Cuatro Cienegas has not been confirmed.

Criticising the American policy toward Mexico as weak and ineffectual, H. D. Slater, editor of the El Paso Herald, tonight gave an illustrated lecture at the National Press Club. He spoke in the friendliest terms of the Mexican people, of whom five-sixths are Indians, speaking fifty-three different languages.

"Mexico's worst troubles are economic, rather than political. It is to a large extent the upsetting the old basis of employment of labor that is prolonging and will prolong for many years the widespread popular discontent," said Mr. Slater. "Any sort of armed demonstration by the United States toward Mexico is the very last thing that the majority of Americans on the border, or in the interior, desire, but it cannot be too strongly emphasized that if the Washington government has adopted, and would adopt, a policy consistent with the fundamental rights of its citizens, and with the elemental requirements of national self-respect and international prestige, there would be no need and no talk, of more drastic action."

Mr. Slater declared the United States government should keep its thoughts to itself, write fewer "notes," press American claims with all vigor, back up the Consuls in all reasonable ways, and "cease making bluffs that it cannot make good."

COAL IS DECLARED COUNTRABAND OF WAR

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EL PASO (Tex.) April 27.—An order declaring coal contraband of war, and which may seriously affect all industries of Northern Mexico, was issued by President Madero today. The order, which was served on General Manager Ferris of the Mexico Northwestern Railway, demands that the railroad decline to handle a "single lump." It is understood that the government in Washington was notified by Madero.

The Mexico Northwestern is the only line now operating through Chihuahua which has a terminus in El Paso.

The Mexican Central is under rebel control and its northern terminus is in Juarez. Most of the coal brought in for the use of smelters and other industries is said to have fallen into the hands of the rebels, who have used it to run trains. It is said that many of the largest industries of the State of Chihuahua will have to close within two weeks if fuel is not forthcoming.

OROZCO APPEALS FOR RECRUITS TO CAUSE.

EL PASO (Tex.) April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Through the rebel junta here, Gen. Orozco issued a long manifesto today calling on all Mexicans to rally to the Liberal cause. In no other way, says the proclamation, can peace be restored in Mexico. Orozco calls attention to the millions of foreign capital invested in Mexico and says that it must be protected. On the subject of intervention, he says:

"We do not want intervention; we must not have intervention. We should not permit, therefore, conditions to prevail which are in any sense a just cause for intervention. The idea of intervention on the part of any foreign government to me is appalling. It means our ultimate loss of independence, the downfall of our republic as well as hundreds of thousands of lives sacrificed and hundreds of millions of dollars of property destroyed."

A deal was completed today between representatives of the Liberal government and the Terrazas ranches in the State of Chihuahua by which BAY STATE IS GROUND FOR CRITICAL BATTLE.

Taft and Roosevelt to Make Great Fight in Massachusetts Tomorrow.

Third-Termer Threatens to Bolt Party if President Is Nominated in Chicago—His Managers Spend Fifty Thousand Dollars for Newspaper Advertising Alone. Doesn't Dare Call Crane "Boss" in Latter's State.

BY SUMNER CURTIS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BOSTON, April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Southeastern Massachusetts was the Republican battle ground today with Col. Roosevelt in the saddle from morning till evening, winding up his fourteen hours' dash at the Boston Arena tonight.

Meanwhile both sides were busy at the respective Boston headquarters arranging for the final splurge on Monday when both President Taft and former President Roosevelt will cover territory that holds the key to the nomination at Chicago in June.

In the course of his speech tonight Roosevelt said:

"I will say that I will support any man so long as he serves the people of the United States and when he ceases to do so I will not support him."

This remark was construed as a threat to bolt the Republican Presidential ticket if President Taft is nominated.

"Social and industrial freedom" was Col. Roosevelt's topic in the mill towns he visited today. In his speeches at Brockton, Fall River, Taunton, New Bedford and other manufacturing communities he studiously avoided mentioning the name of President Taft, whom he attacked personally in every paragraph of his address at Worcester last night.

At Boston tonight he gave renewed attention to some of the charges hurled at him by the President on Thursday; dwelt at some length on the "third term tradition," defending his present candidacy and sought to impress his auditors with the fact that he still stands solidly on the principles he announced at Columbus in February.

When Col. Roosevelt entered the Arena tonight, he found instead of the regulation platform for distinguished guests, a 24-foot ring, properly roped off in pugilistic style. His enthusiastic Harvard friends had provided this setting. The floor of the raised, roped platform was canvased and the only articles of furniture on it was a chair and a table. When the colonel appeared he climbed through the ropes, a few feet behind a black slouch hat which had been shied in by a Harvard man.

CATERS TO MILL WORKERS.

At Brockton he told the mill workers that he had enforced the eight-hour law in government circles, where it previously had been a farce. He declared that he favored a tariff that would go beyond the counting-room and into the pay envelopes of the workers.

Everywhere, too, he hammered on boss rule and declared that as soon as the bosses were driven out it would be possible to secure laws limiting the hours of labor of women and children.

On Monday President Taft will be telling the mill workers what he has done in favor of labor and recite facts concerning his tariff record and the vetoes that he interposed to prevent ill-considered legislation which would have struck at the industries of New England.

In the opinion of all observers here the settlement of the issue of candidacy that has been raised between Taft and Col. Roosevelt will be determined by the workers in the factory towns. It has been impossible to get an exact line on how they will vote taken as a whole. Both sides are doing an immense amount of work under the surface with respect to getting out the factory vote and controlling it at the polls. It is a battle not only of sentiment, but of organization.

The mildness with which Col. Roosevelt has referred to Senator Murray Crane since he returned to Massachusetts for his whirlwind finish is a significant feature of the situation. While elsewhere the colonel has listed the Massachusetts Senator with the "bosses" who, he declares, ought to be overthrown, in order to restore the "rule of the people," on the Massachusetts field he has to take cognizance of Crane's great popularity. President Taft's cause here is linked with the political fortunes of Senator Crane to a considerable extent and Mr. Crane's political future is involved in the success of Taft's candidacy.

INTEREST IS KEEN.

Never since the Electoral College conflict of 1876 has there been aroused a national interest as keen as that pertaining to the present battle royal in Massachusetts. Boiled down to a spoonful, the question now is whether the Roosevelt enthusiasm of twelve years' standing can be made to appear a form of dementia due to bumbuzzery or stamped as a genuine article which the rest of the country again will ratify.

It is that question which Massachusetts expects to settle next Tuesday. The eyes of the country are upon the State. What it says will influence not only delegates still to be chosen in other States, but the wobbly, self-interest loving politicians who control affairs in States that have already acted. Before this the country has read of the Taft onslaught and the Roosevelt response to the attack. Let it be suggested in passing that it is the first real hard unadulterated, bigman political fight Col. Roosevelt ever has had on his hands.

Senator Crane is bearing the brunt of the fight in Taft's behalf. A terrific fight is being made against him, but he is a strong man in the State. He knows politics—especially does he know Massachusetts politics. In a way, he has more at stake than even President Taft himself, for if he goes down with the President it will be a blow to his pride, as well as to his political fortunes, from which he never may recover.

Knowing this, he has within the last week aroused to action every available man who is for him from one end of the State to the other. Never has so much been done. In one district there, that of Representative Weeks, who is the real, though not the titular Taft field marshal, no less than 200 are devoting at least a part of their time to the Taft cause.

ROOSEVELT SPENDS $50,000.

Gen. Edgar R. Champlin, who is now the chief of the Taft bureau in Massachusetts, four years ago was in charge of the anti-Taft campaign—that is, the campaign for uninstructed delegates to the national convention. This serves as another illustration of the right-about-face situation that prevails here this year with respect to the great national fight. More might be told but enough has been said to depict the general situation.

The present Roosevelt strength is due in part to the attitude of the young Republicans; in part to the vigorous campaign the colonel's forces are making in the way of advertising in the newspapers; in part to social and religious complications that are declared by Taftites to have been brought about by insidious and reprehensible methods, but the public influence of which is fully realized and by the sympathetic effect of the results already shown in other States.

That the issue of progressiveness as against reaction cuts some figure also is undeniable, but of the other matters were not involved it would not be so difficult for Taft's supporters to meet the charge that he is not a bona fide progressive.

The advertising feature of the campaign is most noticeable. It is estimated that to date the Roosevelt managers have bought upward of $50,000 worth of advertising space in Boston and other leading newspapers of the State.

"WE WANT TAFT," CRIES CROWD AT T. R. MEETING.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BOSTON (Mass.) April 27.—Boston gave Col. Roosevelt tonight the most demonstrative welcome he has seen since the beginning of his campaign for the Presidential nomination. Speaking in the Arena before a tumultuous throng, the former President again criticised Mr. Taft. He did not repeat, however, the severe denunciations which marked his speech in Worcester last night.

"I am more fortunate than Mr. Taft in my friends," he said. "When Mr. Taft came here Thursday he came here having lost Illinois. I came having lost New Hampshire. In Illinois, Mr. Taft's chief lieutenant had been Mr. Lorimer. In New Hampshire my chief lieutenant was Gov. Bass. Mr. Taft came here to explain that he did not like Mr. Lorimer, having kept his dislike private and confidential until after he had lost Illinois. I came here and was won or lose. I am with Gov. Bass."

Holding up a sheet of paper, Col. Roosevelt said:

"I've got two parallel columns here, in one are my chief supporters, in the other, Mr. Taft's."

Among his own supporters the colonel mentioned the western Governors who asked him to run, and Gifford Pinchot. "Where's Perkins?" some one in the crowd shouted.

"He's for me!" the colonel called back. "You can't put a question to me that will embarass me for a moment."

As respecting Mr. Taft's supporters, the colonel named amid hisses from the crowd Senators Lorimer, Penrose, Guggenheim and Gallinger. "You can judge for yourself on whose side the bosses are," he went on. "Mr. Taft says I have accepted the support of bosses. So I have when they went my way. But they had to go my way or we parted company.

"That's all I have to say of personalities in this campaign. I will say that I will support any man so long as he serves the people of the United States, and when he ceases to do so, I will not support him."

Mr. Roosevelt then turned to a defense of his position in regards to the courts, repeating the arguments which he has made throughout the campaign.

The scene within the Arena was a tumultuous one. Before Col. Roosevelt arrived a body of men in the middle of the hall began to chant "We Want Taft! We Want Taft!" The people rose to their feet with a shout and for a few moments the hall was in confusion.

TAFT FEELING GROWS STRONG.

California Outlook for the President Flattering.

Various Clubs in State Are Expanding Vigorously.

Sacramento Members Number Twenty-seven Hundred.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Taft publicity bureau today issued the following statement bearing on the political situation in California as it affects the President's fight for renomination:

"The fight for President Taft's renomination, so far as California is concerned, is in a most satisfactory condition. The outlook is better today than it has been at any time since the campaign started and if all the remaining States were as sure for the President as California, he would be nominated by a big majority.

"Reports daily are being received from clubs and workers throughout the State and these are encouraging in the extreme. They show that effective work is being done. The voters are aroused to the danger that the nomination of Col. Roosevelt would inflict on the nation, and this is stirring them to activity. They are aware that Roosevelt's nomination would be a serious blow to California, and that it would be to the everlasting disgrace of the State should he be voted the California delegation to the Chicago convention.

"The campaign of speech-making that is being conducted throughout the State is beginning to bear fruit. Wherever Taft orators have spoken they have been enthusiastically received and have been given the assurance, after the issues of the campaign have been intelligently expounded, that the people are with the President for a square deal.

"Clubs to promote the President's candidacy are being daily organized. Usually a club is formed at the conclusion of each Taft meeting. Clubs that have been in existence for some time report a great growth in membership. The Taft Club at Sacramento now has a membership in excess of 2700 and there is no diminution in the efforts to secure a greater membership. At Eureka the membership of the Taft club is reaching the thousand mark. Humboldt county will be strong for Taft at the Presidential primary. Monterey also has one of the crack Taft clubs of the State, its membership exceeding 1000 at this time.

"That California is safe for President Taft is admitted by all who have toured the State and made close and impartial observations of the situation. The statements of the Roosevelt managers, issued with intention to deceive the electorate, are not based on fact. They are on a par with the statement that bets are being made at two to one that Roosevelt will carry the State—a statement that is a figment of the imagination, as it will not bear analysis."

Father McQuaide, one of the most enthusiastic supporters the President has in California, returned this morning from Martinez, where he last night addressed a meeting in the interest of Taft's nomination. He states that the gathering was a large and earnest one, and that every mention of the President's name evoked applause.

KILLED BY AN AUTO.

Machine Los Angeles Folks Were Contemplating to Buy Causes Fatality in Pittsburgh.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PITTSBURGH, April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Stripe of Los Angeles were testing, today, a new automobile, which Mr. Stripe was about to purchase when the machine ran over Charles Turner of South Avenue, North Side. He died of his injuries.

C. H. Martin of the Premier Auto Company was the chauffeur and he was arrested.

The Stripes picked the injured man up in the automobile and took him to the Homeopathic Hospital.

Mrs. Stripe said it was the first time she and her husband had ridden in the automobile.

TAX MEN ORGANIZING.

CHICAGO, April 27.—A national organization to be known as the Railway Taxmen's Association, composed of a membership of tax officers and attorneys of twenty-five railroads entering Chicago has been formed here. The object is to consider the various taxing problems that arise in different States with a view to devising accurate and adequate methods of determining the assessable value of railway property. In the case of the Interstate roads, methods for apportioning the ascertained value of railway property to the different States and lesser taxing bodies will be devised.

LOOK FOR MONEY TRUST.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 27.—As the first step in the money trust investigation, the Committee on Banking and Currency announced today that it had sent to more than 30,000 banks a request for detailed information on all phases of their business and their relations with other institutions. The committee has embraced national, State, private and savings banks in its inquiry, as well as loan and trust companies. Reports are asked for showing conditions at the close of business April 30.

TAFT LEADS ALL RIVALS IN FIGHT FOR DELEGATES.

New York Herald's Impartial Poll Shows that President Will Have a Majority of the Delegates to the Chicago Convention—Clark Making Gains and Woodrow Wilson Losing Some of the Big Lead He Once Had.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mr. Roosevelt making gains in many parts of the country. President Taft losing in some sections, gaining in others, and practically certain to have a majority of the delegates in the Chicago convention.

Speaker Champ Clark gaining steadily and Gov. Woodrow Wilson losing some of the big lead he had two and three weeks ago. Other Democratic aspirants for the nomination far in the rear.

That is the situation in the two great battles for Presidential nominations now being waged throughout the nation as indicated by the Herald's impartial country-wide poll.

THE PRESIDENT LEADS.

In the number of delegates gathered in during the week the President easily led his rivals. He obtained thirty-two as against eight for Mr. Roosevelt and four for Mr. Cummins.

The fight for delegates on each side is becoming one of the most spectacular contests of its kind ever witnessed in the country. Especially is this true on the Republican side with President Taft and Theodore Roosevelt both making speeches in debatable sections.

Up to the present 672 of the 1078 delegates who will sit in the Republican convention have been elected. Of these 415 are either instructed for President Taft or have announced they will vote for him. Mr. Roosevelt has 207 delegates which is 332 short of a majority. There are 406 delegates yet to be elected and the best judgment at the present time is that President Taft will obtain from the 406 the 125 needed to give him a majority.

WEEK'S CHIEF EVENT.

The chief event of the coming week will be the primary elections in Massachusetts for the selection of delegates to the national convention. The Herald's information is that at present the President stands the better chance of winning, but by a scant margin. Massachusetts has thirty-six delegates and the contest there will be watched with the keenest interest throughout the country.

From South Carolina comes the first suggestion of a possible break from the Taft ranks of southern delegates. Two delegates-at-large, who bear instructions for the President and four others who had pledged their word to vote for him announced that conditions have greatly changed since they were elected and that now they are for Mr. Roosevelt. The Herald's correspondent says that if Roosevelt looms up as a likely winner the black and tan delegates from South Carolina will climb on his band wagon.

From Virginia also came another rumor of delegates leaving the Taft ranks. It is said that the delegates in the Fifth District were talking of "flopping." They are uninstructed, but wired the President soon after the election that they would be for him.

Roosevelt managers say that these rumors are the forerunner of a wholesale desertion from the Taft ranks of delegates from the south. The Taft managers assert that there is no fear whatever that there will be desertions.

In Maryland the Taft cause has suffered somewhat through the action of Gist Blair and a few other prominent Republicans. They have gone from the Taft to the Roosevelt camp. It is probable that two of the six districts in the State will go for Mr. Roosevelt. The Taft managers practically concede one.

In Massachusetts, according to the Herald's correspondent, the President is gaining as a result of his speaking trip.

In Minnesota the organization appears to be slipping away from the President. There is talk of "getting on the Roosevelt band wagon," but there have been no desertions.

TAFT MEN NOT VOTING.

Primary Elections Held in King County, Wash., for Roosevelt, La Follette and Wilson.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) April 27.—A primary election was held today in King county under the direction of county committees for the purpose of obtaining an expression of Presidential preference and electing delegates to county conventions, which will choose delegates to the State conventions.

The primary did not arouse much interest. It is estimated that 1500 votes were cast, of which more than 1000 were Republican. The Taft, Harmon and Clark men had been advised not to vote, and the Republican ballots were divided between Roosevelt and La Follette, and the Democratic vote was practically unanimous for Wilson.

LAND DEAL PENDING.

Hill and the Rockefellers May Lock Horns Over a Vast Estate in Oregon.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.) April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Purchase of 350,000 acres of fine timber land in Central Oregon with the evident intention ultimately of connecting the property with the main line of the Milwaukee Railroad system is the probable cause for the approaching visit of a group of eastern capitalists, including A. J. Earling, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road; William Rockefeller, John D. Ryan and others.

A portion of the land is held by the Oregon and Western Colonization Company, controlled by Louis W. Hill, president of the Great Northern Railroad, and it is said that Hill, now that his has learned that the Rockefellers and the interests back of the Milwaukee system are about to acquire it, will make every effort possible to prevent he sale.

Negotiations for this transaction have been conducted in New York, which is believed practically completed.

HISTORIAN'S BODY BURIED.

LONDON, April 27.—The body of Justin McCarthy, the novelist and historian and for many years a member of Parliament, who died at Folkestone Wednesday, was buried in Hampstead cemetery today. The procession to the grave was a long one. The American Ambassador, Mr. Reid, sent a floral piece.

WOMAN LAUDS TAFT'S RECORD.

An Ideal Executive, Says Convention Candidate.

Right Man in Right Place at All Times.

Vital Reasons Why Women Should Aid President.

A woman willing to do a man's work and to play the game a man's way, asking no favors of anyone, and always on the job.

A woman equally cheerful if the day's grind is all play, or the reverse.

A woman who never puts aside her womanliness, but who, while at all times full of sympathy for others of her sex, never expects favors for herself because of her presumed weakness.

A gentlewoman in the very best sense of the term; and, withal, a real working woman in all that implies, with a grasp of politics and public questions, that has forced the workers and others at Taft headquarters in the Citizens' National Bank building, to sit up and take notice.

Such is Ella M. Westland of Upland, Orange county, a candidate for delegate-at-large on the Taft ticket, who, if indications count for anything, promises to lead all of her associates in the Presidential primary to be held throughout California May 14.

Mrs. Westland has been active in the cause of suffrage for her sex for years and while she did not participate actively as a leader in the California campaign last year on this subject, her efforts in behalf of securing suffrage for members of her sex were extraordinarily effective in this section of the State.

Yesterday Mrs. Westland gave some reasons to a reporter for the Times as to why California women, and, especially, those living in Southern California, should support William Howard Taft in the Presidential primary to be held May 14. Mrs. Westland said:

"To say the least so far as Theodore Roosevelt is concerned, we women, who have studied his record, know full well that he was only lukewarm in our constitutional amendment campaign last year. He declined absolutely to take a definite stand, apparently for the reason that it was a campaign issue here, still to be decided. On the contrary, when he reached the confines of the State of Washington where suffrage was then in effect, he displayed most remarkable enthusiasm for the cause.

"The home life of President Taft should particularly appeal to the women. First because of its simplicity and tenderness, its exceptionally temperate habits and scrupulous cleanliness. Ever since his marriage he has been the ideal head of an ideal American family. He has set an example that every father throughout the land should be proud to follow.

"Women who go through the world asking no odds from men in the game of life, must realize the importance of protection to the American home. While this question in the past has always been a men's issue the time has now arrived when we women in California, exercising all of the privileges of citizenship, must investigate these various phases of life for ourselves in order that we may give them our best judgment."

"I am convinced through casual study that with free trade all of the industries of this section are certain to suffer and most of them possibly may be totally ruined."

"We know something of pauper labor conditions in Europe. We know something of the standard of living in the countries across the seas. We realize that it has been protection to our industries here that has created in this end of our great country, surroundings of home life, probably the most ideal on the face of the earth.

"These are some of the reasons why California women should support William Howard Taft. President Taft stands for the material ideals to which I have referred as well as for other ideals which I shall enumerate.

"California women, and especially those in Southern California, should be grateful to the President because of what he has done for us in his extraordinary efforts to secure for San Francisco what is undoubtedly to prove the most important and extensive international exposition in the world's history.

"Those of us who have studied the matter even in part realize the difficulties that confronted the President when this fiercely contested issue was pending before the two houses of Congress. On the one side was the power and prestige of a much more densely populated and much more politically important section of the United States as against us out here in the extreme West where we seemed to have just about time begun chasing the false gods in politics.

"In the face of a number of advantages that were certain to accrue to the President because of his affection for us out here, he swept aside all opposition that was against us. The fair in San Francisco is certain to prove of untold material benefit to us down here in Southern California.

"The President was Secretary of War during the San Francisco earthquake and fire and even before the Washington authorities had been appealed to for assistance in that great calamity he came to the front with his great big, kindly heart and what was accomplished by the government in that instance will remain for years one of the bright spots in American history. It was William Howard Taft alone who wrote the particular pages in that volume, exceeding his presumed official authority.

"Women of Southern California I take it, should be, and undoubtedly are, interested in having this remain a free government by the majority, conducted in an orderly manner and under the provisions of the Constitution of the fathers.

"We hold, as do sensible men, for the reverence of the courts and the judiciary system. We should be, and I take it the majority of us are, like the men, opposed to the dangers that undoubtedly lurk in a third Presidential term for any person, no matter how great, how powerful or how impulsively enthusiastic. We know that such an idea was abhorrent to George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln, and we realize that even U. S. Grant, illustrious patroit as he was, was unable to surmount the obstacles in this particular.

"We women realize of course the same as do the men that William Howard Taft in his public life, covering a period of twenty years or more, always proved himself the right man in the right place. This fact was most emphatically impressed upon us first through Taft's predecessor, who, when he wanted confidential results accomplished, whether it was in the United States, in Europe or in far away Asia, always placed President Taft on the job.

"We know as a judge, Taft has rendered innumerable decisions which have become classics in American jurisprudence. As Governor-General of the Philippines he handled the Friar lands question in a manner characterized by the then President of the United States as one of the most wonderful achievements of the time.

"It was Taft who really started the work going on the Panama Canal as head of the War Department. There are so many instances of a similar kind that it would be idle to continue an argument along this line.

"We women of Southern California realize as do the women elsewhere who have investigated, that President Taft because of his earnest interest in the welfare of the child has been more responsible for national legislation on this subject than any other President. Taft also as President has been working night and day since he became head of the government in the interest of employer's liability bills which must of necessity affect every woman in the nation.

"The President by his calm and judicial manner of weighing all questions submitted to him has held in check more than one crisis, and a certain mob spirit that had it not been so handled must have led to but one result. It is this practical idea that appeals to me most strongly and that should appeal to every woman, because with civic disorder and all that it implies, there may come an end to our government, which would mean the most misery to the women and to the children of our land.

"In conclusion I wish to call the attention of one somewhat noisy opponent of Mr. Taft in this State, who recently saw fit to sneer at the Constitution of the United States, to the following from the lips of William E. Gladstone, who was among the greatest living Englishmen, who in discussing this same Constitution said: "As far as I can see, the American Constitution is the most wonderful work ever struck off at one time by the brain and purpose of man."

The oldest author now living is probably W. A. Gordon Hake, a cousin of Gen. Gordon; he is also the oldest English barrister-at-law. Mr. Hake, who has just celebrated his one hundred and first birthday, published his first book in 1840. This was entitled "Society Organized.—An Allegory."

PITTSBURGH (Pa.) April 27.—That Gen. U. S. Grant was dragooned into allowing the use of his name for a third term by party leaders, and that the Chicago convention of 1880 clearly established the attitude of the United States people toward the tradition of the fathers, was the declaration of the Vice-President of the United States, James S. Sherman, who was the principal speaker tonight at the Grant Day banquet of the American Republican Club.

Besides the Vice-President, other speakers were Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas, whose topic was "The American Republic;" Representative William Nye of Minnesota, who spoke on "The Republican Leaders," and Representative E. The daily paper is the "market place of the world." Whether you be a merchant prince with a thousand clerks at your beck and call, or an humble backlotter with a sitting of eggs to sell, the newspaper is the market place to which you must come to cry your wares if you would dispose of them.

All persons are buyers or sellers either of some commodity or of their services, and as the newspaper is a part of the daily life of practically every man and woman, it follows that its columns afford the quickest and surest means of obtaining intelligent public consideration of any proposition.

Mere distribution of a newspaper, however, does not obtain for advertisers the desired results. It is the quality of circulation and the responsiveness of a paper's readers that make it valuable as a publicity agency.

That The Times has a "productive circulation," due to the fact that it is read more extensively and kept longer in the home than any other local newspaper, and that the use of its advertising space is the most direct and profitable way of reaching all the people all the time, is demonstrated by the extraordinary preference for it as a publicity medium by local business men and experienced advertisers. Year after year The Times publishes more advertising than any other newspaper in the world, and twice as many legitimate "Want Ads" as its nearest local contemporary.

If you have any doubts of the purchasing power of The Times circulation—of its influence with the buying classes in this splendid field—weigh the following figures:

STOCKHOLDERS ARE IN A RO

Owner in Radium Oil S... Injunction in Court.

Would Enjoin Sale of L... by the Directors.

Says It Is Being Sold Less Than It's Worth.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The dove of peace has flown from among the stockholders of the Radium Oil Company, a $250,000 corporation owning valuable lands in the southern part of the State.

In the Superior Court today Grossmayer, one of the heavy stockholders, petitioned for an injunction to restrain Charles Sutro, J. Atkinson, E. R. Lillienthal, Sam Schwartz and George Lowenberg comprising the board of directors from selling acreage owned by the corporation in Santa Barbara county valued at $100,000. It is asserted by Grossmayer that a plan is now on foot to dispose of the property at a ridiculously low price, which, he contends, will render the stock holdings practically valueless. In 1910 Grossmayer obtained a lease on certain lands from Samuel M. Hopkins and his wife, Martha. Later he secured an option to buy. Subsequent to the execution of these contracts he transferred his interest in them to T. H. Spiers, who on the same day transferred the lease and option to the Radium Oil Company.

For the transfer Grossmayer was given 31,500 shares of stock in the Radium Oil Company, on which the assessment was to be levied until after the first well had been completed and was in operation.

He claims that the lease he transferred was worth $25,000 in cash and that the land itself, which the company recently purchased, has a value of $1,000,000.

No attempt has been made to sink a well, he claims, and now the directors propose to sell to someone unknown to Grossmayer for a price, he asserts, far less than the real value.

SAFE-BLOWER IS WOUNDED.

Is Perhaps Fatally Shot by Postmaster After Breaking Safe at Farmington Postoffice.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STOCKTON, April 27.—After having blown the safe at the Farmington Postoffice, seventeen miles east of Stockton, shortly after 3 o'clock this morning, W. A. Hartman, a professional safeblower, was shot and perhaps fatally wounded by Assistant Postmaster W. H. Williamson.

Williamson, who resides next door to the postoffice, was awakened by the explosion which wrecked the safe. Seizing a shotgun, he hastened into the street, arriving in time to see Hartman run from the building. Williamson called on the burglar to throw up his hands and when he refused to comply, fired at him, the full charge taking effect in his back. Hartman begged the assistant postmaster not to shoot again, declaring that he was unarmed and was a poor man, badly in need of funds. The Sheriff's office here was notified and deputies, accompanied by County Health Officer Friedsberger, hastened to the scene in an automobile. Hartman was brought to the Emergency Hospital, where he is being closely guarded. He has even chances to recover.

STATE PREPARES SUITS.

Will Start Actions Against Many Corporations Which Failed to Pay Last Year's Taxes.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, April 27.—Acting upon the advice of the Attorney-General, the State is preparing several hundred suits which will be filed against corporations, which refused, or failed to pay their taxes for last year, for the purpose of compelling them to pay. State Controller Nye announced today that all these suits would be filed on or before May 1, and they would be vigorously prosecuted through the courts.

Under the new tax law, the State has power to bring action for the recovery of delinquent taxes and thereby heads off the former method of the corporations allowing them to go to the board and causing the State to sell their property for taxes.

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) April 27.—After consulting with attorneys for receivers for the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient Railway yesterday, Judge Pollock of the Federal Court in Kansas City, Kan., today announced he would not decide their application for receivers' certificates until he had given the matter consideration. He said he desired further information himself concerning affairs of the road. The application for receivers' certificates is for the amount of $2,250,000 for further improvement of the line was made April 22, at which time Judge Pollock took the matter under advisement. He said he probably would reach a decision next week.

Arming himself with a shotgun, he hastened into the street, arriving in time to see Hartman run from the building. Williamson called on the burglar to throw up his hands and when he refused to do so, fired at him, the full charge taking effect in his back. Hartman warned the assistant postmaster not to shoot again, declaring that he was unarmed and was a poor man, badly in need of funds. The Sheriff's office was notified and deputies, accompanied by County Health Officer Bellenger, hastened to the scene in automobiles. Hartman was brought to the Emergency Hospital, where he is being closely guarded. He has even begun to recover.

SUIT PREPARES SUITS.

Will Start Actions Against Many Corporations Which Failed to Pay Last Year's Taxes.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]
SACRAMENTO, April 27.—Acting on the advice of the Attorney-General, the State is preparing several friendly suits which will be filed against corporations, which refused, failed to pay their taxes for last year for the purpose of compelling them to pay. State Controller Nye announced today that all these suits would be filed on or before May 1 and they would be vigorously prosecuted through the courts.
Under the new tax law, the State Controller to bring action for the recovery of delinquent taxes and thereby break off the former method of corporations allowing them to go into default and causing the State to sell their property for taxes.

WOMEN UNDER ADVISEMENT.

JUDGE REFUSES APPEAL TO COURT.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]
KANSAS CITY (Mo.) April 27.—After consulting with attorneys for over for the Kansas City, Mexico Gulf Railway yesterday, Judge Pollock of the Federal Court in Kansas City, Kan., today announced he would not decide their application for receivers' certificates until he had given the matter consideration. He declined further information concerning affairs of the road. Petition for receivers' certificates in the amount of $2,250,000 for further improvement of the line was filed April 22, at which time Judge Pollock took the matter under advisement. He said he probably would render a decision next week.

GOES MANY SALOONS.

ANTI ELEMENT SUCCESSFUL.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]
SAN JOSE (Cal.) April 27.—Complete returns from the Fifth Supervisorial District, which yesterday voted on the saloon question, give the "drys" a majority of 1075, being more than three to one in favor of closing the saloons. The incorporated towns in the district are already "dry," and the others that must close their saloons are Old Mountain View, Santa Clara, Alma, Wrights and Los Gatos, and all the roadhouses will be closed.

SUIT TO SMELTER GAS.

COURTS REFUSE AN OFFER.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]
HARRISON (Cal.) April 27.—The Calaveras County Farmers' Protective Union, in session here today, declined to accept the offer of the Calaveras Copper Company to establish a smelter at Corsna, depositing $100,000 indemnity against injury to crops. The fund was to have been distributed by a committee consisting of one farmer, one company man and one man appointed by the court, the committee to pay all damages proven to have resulted from smelter smoke. The farmers declared, by a rising vote, that the smelter of the Mammoth Copper Company at Kennet was injuring crops and a majority of those in attendance voted in favor of appealing to the courts against the smelter company. The president of the association declared no such action would be instituted until there was sufficient money in the reserve fund of the association to pay for the prosecution.

TELL TALE IN CHINOOK

Indian Couple, Both Far Above the Century Mark, Out After Camas, Relate Their Early Romance.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]
TACOMA, April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Leading her aged blind husband by a rope tied around his waist, Annie Schu-Wa-Kin, 123 years old, yesterday rode into Ellensburg from the Wenatchie Mountains on her annual pilgrimage to Kittitas Valley to gather camas roots, with which to make camas bread for their winter's food supply.
T. W. Farrell, who speaks Chinook fluently, was told a romance in the life of Schu-Wa-Kin, who, although old, blind and feeble, is treated with every kindness by his wife, who provides for his welfare.
Schu-Wa-Kin said that when he was 25 years old his father, then chief of a now extinct tribe, forced him to marry a girl he did not like. He had grown up with Annie, but was not allowed to take her as mate. After living with the wife selected by his father for three-quarters of a century and always thinking of his first love, the Indian finally decided to change, and the couple separated.
Schu-Wa-Kin recently married his Annie, who, though wrinkled, was still as attractive to him as when they first loved before the coming of the white men. The old Indians told Mr. Farrell they hoped to make their annual trips to Ellensburg Valley for many years to come. They live on the Columbia River in summer, having several horses and many dogs.

VOTERS ARE ENUMERATED.

San Francisco Registrar Announces Total Registration in that City With the Divisions.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]
SAN FRANCISCO, April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Registrar Zemansky today completed the official count of the vote registered, both men and women, for the presidental primaries on May 14. The total figures are 136,490, within a thousand of the estimate made by Zemansky early in the year.
Of the vote the women number 26,570, leaving a total of male registration of 109,920.
The total registration by Republican and Democratic parties, the only parties that will have a place on the presidential preference primary ballot, is: Republican 86,653, Democratic 20,291.
Of the total registered vote of 136,490, there were 29,546 voters who declined to state their party affiliations and who are consequently barred form voting at the primary, bringing the total of voters eligible to vote on May 14 to 106,944.
The count of the vote by parties is made on the new districting, there being thirteen assembly districts now where there were eighteen before. The vote on May 14 will be cast under the new plan of districts.

HURT IN AUTO SMASH.

WOMAN SUFFERS SEVERELY.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]
OAKLAND, April 27.—Mrs. Thomas Mein, widow of the famous mining expert, who was an associate of the Rothschilds and other capitalists in developing the mines of South Africa, was injured yesterday when her automobile collided with another machine driven by H. F. Meyer, a local business man. She sustained a broken rib, but no serious injuries. The machine was smashed. Her chauffeur and the driver of the other car escaped with slight bruises.

STOCK BROKER CONVICTED.

SHARES ARE NOT DELIVERED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]
STOCKTON, April 27.—Edward C. Brecker, mining stock broker and land speculator, was convicted this afternoon in Judge C. W. Norton's court of obtaining money under false pretenses. Brecker sold Fred Giottonini, a hotel proprietor, a number of shares of mining stock, collected the money for the same, but failed to deliver the stock.

SLOPE BRIEFS.

Woman Develops Pellagra.

SACRAMENTO, April 27.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] Secretary W. F. Snow of the State Board of Health, received a report today that a woman patient at the Napa State Hospital had developed a case of pellagra and orders were issued to have the case investigated for the purpose of ascertaining its origin. In all cases heretofore reported in California, investigation has proven that the disease originated in other States.

Building Mammoth Drydock.

SEATTLE, April 27.—[By A. P. Day Wire.] The last stone in the largest drydock ever built in the United States was set in place today at the Puget Sound Navy Yard. Many months of work will be required to install the pumping plant and clear the entrance to the huge basin. The dock, when completed, will have cost $2,300,000. It is 863 feet long, 143 feet wide and forty-seven feet deep.

Jury Fails to Agree.

OAKLAND, April 27.—[By A. P. Day Wire.] The jury that tried Harry G. Prescott, accused of having slain Ralph F. Thompson, February 28 last, after he found him in company with Mrs. Prescott, was discharged today without having reached a verdict. The jury retired at 4:30 o'clock p.m. yesterday and came into court at 10:10 stood ten to 2 for acquittal.

LETS RIVER CONTRACTS.

Government Officer Makes Awards of Nearly Half Million Dollars Along the Missouri.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]
KANSAS CITY, April 27.—Maj. E. H. Schultz, in charge of the government's Missouri River improvement work, announced today that he had begun to award contracts amounting to approximately $400,000 for the improvement of the river between Kansas City and St. Louis.
The contracts include 32,000 feet of revetment along the banks at three of the most troublesome bends in the river below the city.

EDITOR OF "THE TIMES" WIRES OF THE PASSING SHOW.

Great Concert Arranged for Benefit of the Titanic Sufferers—Compliment Paid by Bonci to a Young Los Angeles Singer—"The Same Medicine."

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]
NEW YORK, April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The benefit performance arranged for next Monday evening at the Metropolitan Operahouse, with the object of swelling the fund for the relief of Titanic sufferers, promises to be an enormously successful affair financially. Besides it will be a distinguished musical event, and I cannot deny myself the pleasure of staying over to attend. Of Caruso, the Sun of this evening says:
"Having sung his last opera in Atlanta two nights hence, Enrico Caruso was returning to the North today for a farewell that wasn't on the programme when he left New York two weeks ago. It was on the day the tenor opened the tour in Boston, that the whole civilized world was shocked by word of the sinking of the Titanic. As already told, Caruso will aid the largest of the benefit performances that have been arranged here for the families that suffered loss through the disaster. The performance will take place on Monday night at the Metropolitan Operahouse. Caruso has volunteered to sing in English the famous song of Arthur Sullivan, 'The Lost Chord.' It is possible that both Farrar and Gadski will appear if they can reach New York in time. Mary Garden and Lillian Nordica will sing, and the Oratorio Society will complete the programme with Brahms's 'German Requiem.' Frank Damrosch and Alfred Hertz will conduct an orchestra recruited from the already scattered Philharmonic, the Symphony and the Metropolitan forces."
The same paper also prints this paragraph in its musical news:
"Many New Yorkers next week will hear Mary Garden and Alessandro Bonci for the last time, at the three days' concerts of the Tenth Annual Music Festival; to be held in Paterson, N. J. Bonci sings on Thursday night, Miss Garden on Friday, while on Saturday afternoon, Augusta Cottlow plays. A local festival chorus is reinforced at the evening concerts by the Metropolitan orchestra."

A DISTINCTION.

While in Los Angeles recently, Bonci conferred distinction upon a Los Angeles young lady, Miss Lillian Rand, by inviting her to sing in his hearing and for his criticism. The outcome was unequivocal praise by the eminent artist for the young singer's voice; and in proof of his sincerity Bonci invited Miss Rand to sing with him in New York at some convenient time later on.
The Paterson Symphony Orchestra will play at the closing matinee and among other assisting vocalists are Paul Morenzo, Namara Toye, Mildred Potter and Louis Schenk.

A SPORTING ITEM.

I make no pretenses to being a "sport," but I claim to be able to recognize a sporting item when I see it coming down the middle of the column in a sporting newspaper. Here is one from the Sun of this evening, printed under the caption of "The Same Medicine:"
"It is a common thing to notice in private life that he who is unscrupulous in argument, who is most inclined to drop logic and fall back upon personalities will be the first to cry out when his own feelings are hurt. In the same way a roughhouse fighter of politics, accustomed as he may be to the use of any tactics, will complain bitterly that he has been hit below the belt when he has received only a straight jolt on the chin. It was said that the colonel looked hurt yesterday. Why not? He found that there was in the ring in addition to his hat another man who was stripped to the waist and fighting. The affair had ceased to be a mock circus prize fight with a solitary performer between the ropes. Nothing has braced up the regular Republicans fighting line like the late, perhaps too late, entrance of the masterful President into the thick of the combat. The word now is 'Forward the Old Guard!'"

CHINA'S FAMINE GROWS.

Eleven Hundred Thousand People Face Death by Starvation Within Relatively Small Area.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]
SEATTLE, April 27.—The Shanghai News of April 2 just received by steamer says of the famine:
Eight hundred thousand people face death from starvation in the northern part of Kiangsu Province, a few hundred miles from Shanghai, and 300,000 more are in the same pitiful condition in North Anhui, according to a report issued by the Central China famine relief committee.
The revolution, while it increased the distress, probably decreased the attention bestowed upon it, and some have believed that the establishment of the new government had made external assistance unnecessary.
The financial condition in which the Chinese government finds itself at present however, makes adequate help almost impossible. Only about ten per cent of the suffering, according to the estimates of workers in the famine area, is now being relieved and the need for more money is therefore urgent.

Chicago, Ill., April 8, 1896.
Mr. W. F. McBurney,
Los Angeles, California.
Dear Sir: It affords me pleasure to testify to the efficacy of your Kidney and Bladder Cure. I have been troubled with my kidneys and bladder for over four years. I have been treated by the best physicians of this city during that time. (I mention two who stand at the head of the profession, viz.: Dr. C. A. Purdy and Dr. Frank Walls, the latter being my son.) I regret to say they did me no good. I was advised to spend the winter in your glorious climate and try the ocean baths. I visited San Diego, Santa Monica and Santa Barbara, but received only temporarily relief from the baths. On the night I left home I got a bottle of your medicine. The first dose did me good, and I can say in conclusion that I am grateful to you. If this letter is of any use to you, use it. THOS. WALLS.

To Kill.

CRIPPLE'S AIM DEADLY TRUE.

Shoots Bartender Because Drink Is Refused.

Hobbles Away on Crutches and Eludes Police.

Witnesses Assert Mendicant Was Intoxicated.

George Cobienz, 34 years old and a bartender employed at the Hyman Theater bar, No. 216 West Eighth street, was shot and instantly killed at 10 o'clock last night by a onelegged mendicant known only to the police under the name of Emmet Boyle, alias Doyle.

The man was arrested at 1 o'clock by detectives at his room, No. 734½ East Ninth street. When taken to the Police Station he was not intoxicated. He refused to make any statement.

Although police headquarters promptly was notified of the murder, the report was considered a joke on the part of some self-important tipster and much valuable time was lost before the fact that a murder had been committed finally reached the station.

According to the testimony of witnesses who were in the saloon at the time, the cripple staggered into the place on his crutches and after balancing himself in front of the bar demanded a drink.

As the visitor already gave evidence of having drunk more than was good for him, Cobienz refused his request and ordered him to leave the place.

Almost without warning Boyle drew his revolver and fired point-blank at the man on the other side of the bar, inflicting a wound that penetrated the brain and caused instant death.

Still flourishing the weapon in his right hand the slayer threatened to kill the first man that interfered with him and before the spectators recovered from their surprise the fugitive was seen to disappear in the alley between Main and Spring streets leading north from Eighth street.

By the time the alarm was given Boyle had disappeared, but later he was heard from in a saloon at Fourth and Los Angeles streets, where he is known to have ordered a number of drinks before leaving the place.

Among the witnesses to the shooting, as rounded up by the officers, were Chester Walsh, a bartender employed in the same saloon, who was on duty at the time the mendicant fired the fatal shot.

In his statement to the officers Walsh declared that the cripple had threatened his companion earlier in the evening because the former refused to give him whisky.

T. H. Cox, a barber, and W. H. Dozier, a bootblack, occupying the adjoining store, declared that "Bob" had threatened to kill someone before he entered the saloon, but that no one took his remark seriously.

The body was ordered sent to Pierce Bros. morgue to await the action of the Coroner. He was known as the "Frenchman," and lived alone at No. 818 South Spring street, and is survived by a sister, Jennie Iwonsky, No. 550 The Boulevard, Houston, Tex.

The slayer is well known to the police and was in the habit of seating himself on the sidewalk on Broadway between Seventh and Eighth streets, where he conducted an ostensible trade in pencils.

THE GIFT OF FRANCE.

Men Who Brought Over a Bust by Rodin for America Call on Mayor Gaynor.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 27.—The members of the delegation which has come to the United States to present as a gift from the people of France to the people of the United States the bust of "La France" by Auguste Rodin, to be placed at the foot of the Champlain Memorial lighthouse at Crown Point, Lake Champlain, visited the City Hall today to pay their respects to Mayor Gaynor. All the members of the delegation were present with the exception of Baron d'Estournelles de Constant. Gabriel Hanolaux explained the object of the delegation in coming to America and expressed the great pleasure it gave him personally to be permitted to bring the French nation's gift to the American nation.

THINK MEDIATION WILL WIN.

Federal Authorities Are Hopeful They Will Obviate a Strike of the Railway Engineers.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 27.—United States Commission of Labor Charles P. Neill and Judge Martin A. Knapp, of the United States Commerce Court believe their negotiations with the representatives of fifty railroads in the eastern territory and the engineers over the question of increased pay will not prove unproductive, but decline to discuss the situation except to say progress is being made. The two mediators conferred this morning with the sub-committee of railway managers and Monday will meet the committee of engineers.

Judge Knapp departed today for Washington to be absent until Monday. After a brief conference with the managers, Neill said there would be no more conferences until Judge Knapp's return.

In the meantime, Warren S. Stone, grand chief of the engineers and chairman of their sub-committee, is expected to make known to Mr. Neill what procedure would meet the engineers' approval.

Toot! Toot!

SAN FERNANDO TROLLEY BUT SIXTY DAYS OFF.

WHERE the meek and gentle monks of San Fernando Mission toiled and gave up their lives, more than a century ago, in order to convert the nomad Indian tribes of Southern California, workmen were busy yesterday making preparations for the entrance of the Pacific Electric line, which will link the old mission and San Fernando with Van Nuys, the "yearling city" and through it with Los Angeles.

Already trolley wires have been strung almost into Van Nuys and the historic spot now occupied by the bustling litle town of San Fernando will soon be connected with this city by fast cars, whose swiftness and unseen power would have been regarded by the monks as miracles of another world.

The railway line being built to connect with the Pacific Electric at Van Nuys will be finished by July 1, under the terms of the agreement entered into by the officials of the Pacific Electric and the San Fernando Mission Land Company.

The route stretches through a country that is as level as a billiard table. Therefore, there will be no grades or cuts to retard the work, and the beginning of July, it is predicted, will see the line in full running order.

With the coming of the railroad, San Fernando, which lies in a region among the most fertile in California, has taken on the airs of a city and forces of men are at work improving the streets. Beside this, gangs of men are busy excavating for buildings, which are soon to be reared. One of the principal buildings will be an $80,000 hotel to be built by the land company.

One of the main entrances of this new hostelry will be on Brand avenue. This is being improved until it will be a broad thoroughfare, well paved and lighted, pierced in the center by the tracks of the Pacific Electric. Brand avenue will be 130 feet wide and there will be plenty of room for the big cars and all other traffic.

San Fernando already boasts of three packing-houses, and is located in a good fruit belt, where oranges and lemons can be grown about as well as anywhere else. Near the town, in course of construction, is the Los Angeles aqueduct dam, and when this dam is completed there will be plenty of water for the irrigation of orchard and alfalfa lands. The land company owns 16,500 acres. Half of this land is adaptable to orchards, while the rest is to be used for the growing of alfalfa.

There will be six miles of track laid between San Fernando and Van Nuys before the old mission town is connected with Los Angeles by trolley. At first this six miles was to have been constructed by the Los Angeles and San Fernando Electric Railway Company, a subsidiary corporation of the land company. However, an agreement was entered into by the Pacific Electric and the other electric company whereby the Pacific electric will build the line. It is understood the Pacific Electric received the right of way and a bonus of $55,000, a bargain regarded as beneficial to both corporations.

George T. Holman, who is connected with the San Fernando Mission Land Company, said yesterday that the finishing of the Los Angeles aqueduct and the bringing of plenty of water into the valley will attract hundreds of settlers to that part of the country.

TORNADO KILLS TWENTY PERSONS IN OKLAHOMA.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

OKLAHOMA CITY (Okla.) April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The toll of the tornado, which swept Southwestern Oklahoma this afternoon, will be in the neighborhood of twenty dead, scores injured and property loss amounting up into thousands of dollars.

The town of Lugert suffered worst. Fifteen are dead there. Four are reported dead at El Dorado.

Ten or a dozen towns suffered more or less storm damages. Little is known of what occurred in the rural districts. It is known that the damage was severe. An early report that twenty were killed and four hurt when a K. C. M. and O. train was blown off the track is denied. The train encountered the storm and was blown over, but no lives were lost.

A family of seven was injured at Yukon. One, Mrs. Jerry Brown, is thought to be dying.

Half a dozen towns were demolished, and besides the dead, probably a hundred or more are injured, as in the four Southwestern Oklahoma counties.

There is no estimating the amount of property damage. At Lugert, in Kiowa county, the wind blew an Oriental combination passenger and freight train off the track. A relief train was made up at Altus, the nearest division point and started for Lugert, carrying physicians and nurses.

The twister formed somewhere near El Dorado, in Jackson county, where three or four houses were blown and one woman and three children killed. The town of Warren, population about 400, is reported to have been blown away, but no communication can be had with that place, and it cannot be definitely stated if this is true.

Several persons were hurt and several buildings destroyed at Martha, a small town north of Altus. Three or four houses in the outskirts of Altus are reported to have been blown down and upwards of a dozen persons injured, none seriously.

The little town of Blair was also struck. Two persons were injured and a couple of buildings were wrecked. Continuing northward the worst damage seems to have been done at Lugert, where the greatest loss of life occurred.

Only meagre details can be learned from any of these points. Continuing into Washita county, the wind struck Rocky, a town of probably a hundred families. Half the town was blown away and a dozen or more people injured. A special telegram to an Oklahoma City paper states no one was killed at Rocky.

Lone Wolf, a small village, was damaged. Four houses were blown down at Yukon, fourteen miles west of Oklahoma City, and it is reported that much damage was done between Yukon and El Reno. Calumet, ten miles west of El Reno, was hit hard. Several persons were hurt there. Early reports stated that three persons had been killed. This now is denied. There is no telling how much damage nor how extensive the loss of life in the country between these points. The telegraphic and telephone service is badly impaired and only meagre reports can be obtained.

COMMERCIALIZATION OF THE DISASTER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—The exhibition here of moving pictures depicting the sinking of the Titanic has been forbidden by Mayor Blankenburg in an order issued today. In his order the Mayor said:

"I think it is about the limit for the proprietor of moving picture houses to commercialize such a terrible disaster."

BABIES UPSET COURT'S DIGNITY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

KANSAS CITY, April 27.—Eleven babies at the preliminary hearing of Mrs. Sophia Kleiman, charged with killing W. C. Hassel, a bill collector, on March 28, here today gave the courtroom more the appearance of a day nursery than a temple of justice. The testimony of witnesses frequently was drowned out by wailing infants and the judge attempted with more indignation than success to maintain the court's dignity. After the babies had cried and tumbled about through sixty distracting minutes, the court discharged the defendant. Mrs. Kleiman killed Hassel after he pursued a stranger into her husband's store and started a fight, ignoring the storekeeper's protests.

GALENA CELEBRATES.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

GALENA (Ill.) April 27.—The ninetieth anniversary of the birthday of Gen. U. S. Grant was celebrated here today. Archbishop John Ireland of St. Paul delivered an address. The occasion served as a reunion for survivors of the Forty-fifth Illinois Volunteer Infantry.

GALE HITS LAKE SUPERIOR.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAULT STE. MARIE, April 27.—A fifty-mile gale accompanied by snow and freezing temperature swept Lake Superior last night and considerable anxiety is felt for the safety of steamers that passed yesterday. The gale has driven much ice down, filling the passage above the Soo Canal.

MERCY! TOO MUCH BOOZE!

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LOUISVILLE, April 27.—Overproduction of Kentucky whisky, similar to that during the four years from 1890 to 1893, inclusive, which was followed by several years of depression, is feared by local distillers, who have agreed that curtailment in the output is imperative. The trade has produced about 90,000,000 gallons in the last two years, more than 70,000,000 in excess of the demand. Distillers say a tremendous impetus was given the production of Kentucky bourbon by the pure food rulings as to what constitutes real whisky, and many increased the capacity of their plants in anticipation of a big demand. The overthrow of Dr. Wiley's conclusions later cut into the consumption of aging whisky. Jobbers over the country, they say, practically have ceased buying anything younger than 1910's and when they buy goods of older inspection, the purchases are altogether for immediate wants.

OHIO SENATOR SENTENCED.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

COLUMBUS (O.) April 27.—State Senator L. R. Andrews of Ironton, convicted of accepting a bribe for his vote, was sentenced today to nine months in the penitentiary by Judge Dillon in the criminal court. Andrews, in a personal plea for leniency, charged that the jury which convicted him had been influenced by public sentiment rather than by evidence presented. Rodney Diegel, former sergeant-at-arms of the Senate, now is serving a penitentiary term for participating in the offense.

PREACHERS FIGHT FIRE.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) April 27.—Ministers attending the German Evangelical conference stopped debating missionary and church subjects today to fight a fire. Unmindful of the frock coats and white ties, they pulled a garden hose across the yard of the parsonage and played a stream on a fire in Zion Church in Kansas City, Kan., where they were meeting. The fire was out when the engines arrived. The fire is believed to have started from a cigar stub.

American Insurance Ag Crosses Frontier.

Says Foreigners Are Arm for Emergencies.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TUCSON (Ariz.) April 27.—Exclusive Dispatch.] That looting, burning, slaughter of men and outrages against both sexes are rife throughout the entire Mexican nation is declaration of A. O. Weill, inspector in Mexico for the Mutual Life Insurance Company, who is here from Mexico City, having quit the country stating that his company has refused to write any more insurance there until order is restored.

Conditions are much worse, he says, in the southern States than in the northern and western, with hundreds of Americans in the outlying districts in jeopardy, although Weill says there is not so much danger in the larger cities because the Americans there have been armed and are banded together for their own protection in the event of an attack.

"But if intervention comes—then will be a different story," he says. "The Americans in Mexico City are fully armed and have taken over the C.A. building in Mexico City as a fort to protect their lives in the event of an outbreak. The Y.M.C.A. building in Mexico City is fortified and looks like an armory. Members of the American colony are divided into military detachments, each under the command of a sergeant and their plans, prepared some time ago, when their situation was considered alarming, provide for a certain defense by each detachment.

"The English, French, German and Spanish residents in Mexico City are also well armed and organized for defense.

"The State of Morelos is practically devastated. Scores of public and private buildings have been looted and burned. Big sugar cane crops have been destroyed, either by fire or trampled under the hoofs of the raiders' horses. Throughout the State of Oaxaca and other southern States like conditions prevail, and ongoing through that country is confronted by habitual scenes of desolation, rapine and bloodshed.

"The greatest danger to Americans and other foreigners in Mexico is at the hands of the looters, in many instances residents of the towns and villages, who, in their orgies, burn, pillage and commit outrages of all kinds against men and women before those towns are occupied by either Federal or rebel commands, whichever the case may be."

Weill said he knew of many instances where looters had been executed by rebel commands when they entered cities after a Federal evacuation.

American Subject Sees His Drug Store Despoiled and Flees Country by Way of Guatemala.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MOBILE (Ala.) April 27.—"If the United States intervenes in Mexico every person of white skin—irrespective of his nationality—will be killed or tortured," declared J. Hromadko, an American citizen who arrived here from Chapa Chala, on the Guatemala border, by way of Livingstone, Guatemala.

Hromadko said he was operating a drug store in Chapa Chala. He asserted that when Mexican bandits found he was an American subject they threw his goods into the street and broke up his store. He lost $1000.

The American Consul advised him and other Americans to leave the country, but to go by way of Guatemala. He made the trip in an ox-cart.

The refugee said that frequently the bandits operate on negroes who claim American citizenship. He said he saw one black hung by the head and tortured until he gave the bandits money.

CITY OF CULIACAN WRECKED BY LOOTERS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TUCSON, April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Looters have practically wrecked Culiacan and kept up their work of pillage today; "according to advices received by the Southern Pacific officials here, although the rebels have placed guards at all railroad property.

Twenty sacks of sugar were stolen from one of the company's cars, but the rebels in their anxiety to keep peace with American interests returned nineteen of the stolen sacks. Advices state that practically all the business houses and many private residences have been ransacked. San Blas, Culiacan and Mazatlan were all reported free of actual warfare between the Federals and rebels. The Federal gunboat Guerrero arrived at the port of Mazatlan from Guaymas today. All wire communication with Tepic is cut off, wires being down at Presidio and the fate of that city is unknown. Reports from Mazatlan today confirm earlier reports that both Morales and Guerro, commanders in the battle before Tepic, were seriously wounded.

American Subject Sees His Drug Store Despoiled and Flees Country by Way of Guatemala.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MOBILE (Ala.) April 27.—"If the United States intervenes in Mexico every person of white skin—irrespective of his nationality—will be killed on sight unless tortured," declared J. Hromadko, an American citizen who arrived here from Chapa Chala, on the Guatemala border, by way of Livingstone, Guatemala.

Hromadko said he was operating a drug store in Chapa Chala. He asserted that when Mexican bandits came he was an American subject and threw his goods into the street and broke up his store. He lost $5000.

The American Consul advised him and other Americans to leave the country, but to go by way of Guatemala. He made the trip in an ox-cart.

The refugee said that frequently the bandits operate on negroes who claim American citizenship. He said a new one black hung by the head and tortured until he gave the bandits money.

CITY OF CULIACAN WRECKED BY LOOTERS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TUCSON, April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Looters have practically wrecked Culiacan and kept up their work of pillage today, according to reports received by the Southern Pacific officials here, although the rebels have placed guards at all railroad depots.

Twenty sacks of sugar were stolen from one of the company's cars, but the rebels in their anxiety to keep on good with American interests returned fifteen of the stolen sacks.

Advices state that practically all the business houses and many private residences have been ransacked. Culiacan and Mazatlan are still reported free of actual warfare between the Federals and rebels. The Federal gunboat Guerrero is lying at the port of Mazatlan from which, today. All wire communication with Topic is cut off, wires being down at Presidio and the fate of that city is unknown. Reports from Mazatlan today confirm earlier reports that both Morales and Guerrero, commanders in the battle before Topic, were seriously wounded.

PROTECTION OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA'S INDUSTRIES.

Hon. James N. Gillett, former Governor of California, will address Republicans of all shades of opinion at Temple Auditorium, Fifth street, between Hill and Olive, Tuesday, at 8 p.m.

The real issues of the Presidential Primary Campaign are.

1. Continuance of the present era of Republican prosperity.
2. No third term in the White House.
3. Southern California must have a continuance of William Howard Taft as President of United States.

All voters are cordially invited to attend this meeting.

REPULSED BY AMERICANS.

Two Chicago Men Who Save Eight Women and Children in Mexico Write of Appalling Conditions.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 27.—Two of the five Americans who recently repulsed an attack made by bandits on the American hacienda Quimichio on the Sinaloa-Tepic border in Mexico, saving eight women and children by walking twenty miles and escaping in canoes to Teacapan, were Chicagoans.

They were Killian Stimpson, 20 years old, and Guy L. Jones, 31 years old. Stimpson left Chicago for Mexico last October and Jones has been employed there as a superintendent for two years. The last letter received by the families of the men was posted at Quimichio April 12.

In the letter Jones said the form of government was everywhere present, but the substance was lacking.

"The sacking of a ranch will be reported to the local magistrate," he wrote. "The magistrate will go through all the form of getting a description of marauders, file complaints against them, report it to the next town and go through all the red tape, but when it came down to the hunting of the men the police would look every place but where the men are likely to be found."

Jones, who is a Harvard graduate, wrote "that there is no authority anywhere to enforce the laws."

In the Madero revolution about 500 of the 2000 peons on the hacienda joined the revolutionary forces and told of weapons and horses which had been secreted. The revolutionists returned after one visit to the place and seized the weapons and drove off the horses. The hacienda contains 90,000 acres and is owned by a Los Angeles syndicate.

REBELS COMPEL HIM TO VACATE.

LOS ANGELES MAN IS DRIVEN FROM CHIHUAHUA RANCH.

At Point of Rifles He Delivers to Them His Home and Sets Out for Nearest Station With Comparatively no Money, to Await First Train to El Paso.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EL PASO (Tex.) April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] H. R. Burt, manager of the Finestad ranch in Chihuahua, twelve miles east of Diaz Station, about half-way between Jimenez and Santa Rosalia, is in El Paso and tells a thrilling story of how he was ejected at the point of rifles from his home, when a marauding band of rebels captured his place.

Burt says the rebels arrived at his ranch headquarters after destroying the home of his nearest neighbor, a well-to-do Mexican owner of the Milagro ranch. With threats of immediate death to him for not complying, and with vile curses for the American, the leader of the rebel band forced Burt to deliver his home and leave immediately for Diaz Station. There he waited, with practically no money nor luggage, until the National passenger train came to carry him to Juarez.

He was obliged to leave without his companion, Lester Pranglin of Pearsall, Tex., foreman of the ranch, and does not know what his fate was.

The Finestad ranch is owned by O. E. Finestad, stepfather of Burt, who, with Mrs. Finestad, resides at No. 927 Lake street, Los Angeles. The ranch comprises 60,270 acres and is stocked with 800 blooded horses and mules. Its value is said to be about $130,000. The Finestads have owned the place eight years.

TO ENLARGE ARMY BY FLOATING BONDS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MEXICO CITY, April 27.—A bill authorizing the flotation of treasury notes to the amount of 20,000,000 pesos to be used to raise the fighting strength of the army to 60,000 men and to arm and pay them during the present campaign, passed the Chamber of Deputies today.

The treasury notes are to be for five years at not over 4½ per cent and are to be floted at 92.

Braulio Hernandez, who until a few days ago was the representative of Orozco in the United States and who is now in prison in El Paso, sent a telegram to President Madero today stating he had abandoned the rebel cause and was sending to Francisco de la Barra a manifesto to the Mexican people calling upon them to rally to the support of the government.

A band of rebels operating in Tamaulipas, near Garcia, has disbanded and is supposed to have crossed into United States territory according to information received by the Interior Department today.

SEALED ORDERS FOR TORPEDO BOATS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN DIEGO, April 27.—From reports deemed trustworthy it is learned tonight that within twenty-four hours two of the torpedo boat destroyers now in port will leave with sealed orders. It is the general belief that they will go to the Mexican coast.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—[By A. P. Day Wire.] An emergency appropriation of $60,000 to repair the banks of the Missouri River in Dakota county, Nebraska, was urged on the House Committee on Rivers and Harbors today at a hearing. It was claimed that the sewerage system of Sioux City, Iowa, is endangered.

UGH! NOT CALOMEL, OIL OR SALTS, BUT DELICIOUS "SYRUP OF FIGS."

Give Your Stomach, Liver and 30 Feet of Bowels a Thorough Cleansing Without Gripe or Nausea. Ends Headache, Biliousness, Indigestion and Constipation.

This wonderful fruit laxative acts as a liver and bowel cleanser—tonic—not as an irritant. Its action is natural and gentle—no griping. It is delicious—no dreading. It is positive and prompt—no waiting.

If your stomach is sour and filled with vile gases, your head aches, or you are bilious, nervous, dizzy, half sick, your tongue coated, your thirty feet of bowels clogged with waste not properly carried off—don't wait. Surely take a teaspoonful of delicious Syrup of Figs tonight, and in the morning all constipated waste, sour bile, gases and poisons will move on and out of the system, gently but thoroughly—no griping—no nausea—no weakness. In the old days people let these matters run until they needed a large dose of physic, then they took something severe, like castor oil, salts or cathartics, that meant abuse to the bowels. These are the days of the gentle and natural—the days of Syrup of Figs. This way you are not drugging yourself. Syrup of Figs being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics cannot cause injury.

Ask your druggist for "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," and look for the name, California Fig Syrup Company on the label. This is the genuine—old reliable. Any other so-called Fig Syrup is an imitation often meant to deceive you. Refuse such with contempt.

GREAT BRITAIN TO AID.

the waning rebel treasury will be enriched $220,000 in gold within the next two weeks. The Terrazas interests are to be allowed to ship 44,000 head of cattle out of Mexico into the United States by way of Juarez and El Paso. The rebels have placed an assessment of $5 on each head that is brought out. This is the biggest shipment of cattle out of Mexico since the Madero revolution began last year.

The Mexican government served notice today on H. C. Ferris, general manager of the Mexican Northwestern Railroad that his road must not carry any more coal from the United States into Mexico. The Pearson people have kept the Northwestern road running between here and Chihuahua under the greatest difficulties during the past month, but admit tonight that unless the coal order is rescinded they will have to cease operations inside of two weeks.

Representatives of the American Smelting and Refining Company and other companies operating in Northern Mexico say tonight that every industry in the State of Chihuahua financed by foreign capital will be paralyzed within a fortnight unless the government order is rescinded.

PIERCE INVADES GOTHAM.

Will Carry Fight Against Standard Oil Company to New York to Avoid Being Absorbed.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS, April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Samuel Untermeyer of New York has been employed by H. Clay Pierce as associatiate counsel to aid him in the fight he is making to prevent the Standard Oil interests from getting control of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, according to Pierce's announcement today. Within two weeks, Pierce and his attorneys will invade New York and take depositions of the leading men in the Standard Oil Company. Pierce is fighting a mandamus suit filed by Standard Oil interests, and he alleges that the Standard is attempting to get control of the Waters-Pierce Company in an effort to perpetuate monopoly.

Frank B. Kellogg, who led the government fight on the Standard, has declined to become associate counsel for Pierce upon the advice, it is said, of Atty.-Gen. Wickersham.

CIVIL WAR IS RESUMED.

Paraguay Is Again in Throes of Strife and Warships Bombard Former President's Forces.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BUENOS AYRES (Argentina) April 27.—Civil war has again broken out in Paraguay. Telegrams from Asuncion today state that four government warships bombarded the revolutionists who are commanded by former President Jara, at Villa Encarnacion, 175 miles southeast of Asuncion.

The fire returned by the revolutionists was so well directed that the warships were compelled to retire in a damaged condition.

NEW WARSHIP LAUNCHED.

Named for Former King of Saxony, The Present Saxon King Makes Speech at the Christening.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DANZIG (Germany) April 27.—The battleship Koenig Albert, named for a former King of Saxony, was launched today. The present Saxon King, Frederich August, was present and made a speech, and his sister, Princess Mathilda, christened the vessel.

The Koenig Albert is practically identical with the battleships Kaiser, Kaiserin and Frederich der Grosse. It has a tonnage of 24,500 and is armed with ten twelve-inch and fourteen six-inch guns. The specifications demand a speed of twenty-one knots. The warship's turbines are adapted for the consumption of either coal or oil fuels. She has five turrets, three of which are in the center line fore and aft and the other two amidships. The cost of construction is nearly $12,000,000.

heroic era of our country. He acted upon an august stage in a conflict of unsurpassed significance to mankind. He rose to the requirements of every and varied tests and shed brilliance on events and results. The foes whom he conquered have become his glowing eulogists. The decades have silenced his bitterest critics. Supreme as he was as a conqueror, as a peacemaker he was no less eminent, and in the combined merits parallels are rare in the records of human glory. Minute analysis of his mind, his deeds, his achievements does not benefit this occasion and would wear away the hours. Beyond compare, in the annals of men, Gen. Grant's attitude at Appomattox is the perfect flower of mercy, generosity and magnanimity. It was this white dove of peace, combined with the eagles of war, which laid the Presidency at his feet.

"Deplorable was the existing condition. Differences between President Johnson and Congress added to the confusion and the peril. No human power could have avoided mistakes or escaped their dire effect in the period during or following reconstruction.

"Yet, because the two-decade task was not accomplished in two years, in 1872 criticism grew rampant. As in 1864, some within as without the party sought to deny Lincoln a well-earned and deserved renomination, so in 1872 a movement, designated the liberal movement, with a zeal creditable to a better cause, sought to overthrow the President and, under the nominal leadership of Horace Greeley and the slogan, 'Anybody to beat Grant,' made rapid progress to sure and merited defeat. American common sense, then as always, was too vital and controlling to yield to reckless agitators or jealous aspirants. The American electors then held firm as they ever will to the magistrate who has served them faithfully and well.

"The Chicago convention of 1880 set forth clearly how strongly the American people cling to the wise traditions of the fathers. Gen. Grant was content with the popular favor accorded him and had no further political ambition. Certain party leaders, however, dragooned him into allowing the use of his name as a candidate for a third Presidential term. Seemingly he was lured into the grievous blunder of his life. The minority of 306 on the convention roll by no means included all the admirers of the warrior-statesman. The safeguard against permanence in executive authority was deemed vital, overrode personal regard and esteem and forbade compliance with individual desire. Devotion to the Republican principle prevailed and the famous hero went to defeat in the home of his friends.

"The opponents of a third term for Grant never charged that he strained or tried to add to the power of the Executive. Congress and the judiciary suffered no assault from him. His loyalty to the Constitution and the laws was absolute; too absolute ever to be questioned. He did not deem himself the sole reliance of the republic. The spirit of a Caesar or a Cromwell was not within him. No greed for despotism led him astray. He raised no irreverent hand against the altar of the national sanctuary, its Constitution and its courts. He aroused no mad confusion or chaos. Inordinate desire for power did not smother in him the high attributes of consistency, constancy and fairness. He was an architect of concord, not discord. He was quiet and content, not boisterous and discordant. Yet, even for him, the precept and example of Washington could not be spurned by the American people.

"Among illustrious Americans whose lives are ended, three shine out in the firmament of history like the brightest stars of heaven. The schoolboy and the sage, the laborer and the prince of finance, with accord, name Washington, Lincoln and Grant. The Union is safe and will endure so long as the citizens follow in their footsteps and take inspiration from their character and teachings.

"Shall we for a moment or two give thought to what all this signifies in the affairs of today? The danger of any approach to permanence in executive authority was emphasized by Washington, and Jefferson repeated the warning. By long-time custom and by almost universal opinion of the thoughtful of the past, wisdom limits Presidential service to eight years. Save only with President Hayes, who forbade consideration of his name for a second term, the Republican party has tendered to its Presidents a renomination. The wisdom of this act has been demonstrated with Lincoln, Grant and McKinley. President Taft has not fallen behind any predecessor in fidelity, efficiency, constancy and force. He has done no juggling, has practiced no deception, has sought no personal advantage. He has enforced the laws, has respected Constitutional government, has been the advocate of stability. His administration has been conspicuous for honesty, economy and real progress. The parallel of his case with Lincoln and Grant is striking and prophetic. And as the harmonious acclaim of the people in 1864 and 1872 sounded above discordant snarling of discontent and disappointed ambition, so in 1912 the discerning American electorate will again call into power, to guard and guide the nation's destinies for another four years, William Howard Taft.

"The forefathers saw that the changing conditions wrought by time might require amendments to the Constitution. The methods to that end were carefully defined.

"Legislation and administration are not the whims of fashion like milliners' bonnets; they cannot be wisely directed by the fickle passion of the passing moment. American history gives assurance that the country of Washington, Lincoln and Grant will not go mad, but will be true to its heritage and to its obligations to the future of humanity."

Lozier has adopted left-hand drive and center control, which is as sure to become standard on all automobiles as have six cylinders on all the best types of motor cars.

A study of the "rules of the road" and traffic conditions will show that left-hand drive is as logical in America as right-hand drive is in Europe.

The first American cars were copied from European models and the builders in adopting foreign design copied the right-hand drive—a feature made necessary by foreign rules of the road which are the reverse of those in this country.

Consider the many advantages of left-hand drive. The driver may step promptly to the sidewalk to open the door for passengers or re-enter the car without walking around into the street. It also makes the other front seat available for a passenger who is not obliged to step into the street to leave or enter the car.

Left-hand drive puts the driver on the proper side to watch passing vehicles. It enables him to see ahead and pick out a clear track when passing to the left around a street car or slow moving vehicle in crowded traffic. It makes it easy and safe to cross the traffic when turning around or going into a side street to the left.

Other innovations in the Type 72, 1913 Lozier, are Center Control, Automatic-Level Oiling System, Double Magneto with Triple Ignition, a motor rated at 51 H. P. which develops over 80 actual horsepower—all important steps in the evolution of the highest type of motor car—all worth your careful investigation.

Although Lozier has led in America in the principal features of design since adopted as standard on high-grade motor cars, the House of Lozier has never marketed a mechanical mistake. Progress in design as exemplified in the 1913 Lozier is no exception. Lozier was among the first to produce six-cylinder motor cars, the Lozier six-cylinder now being in its sixth successful season.

Splendid as have been the Loziers of the past, the 1913, Six-Cylinder, Type 72 presents a marked advance. It is the greatest motor car ever built by the House of Lozier. "Men Who Know" will tell you that means the greatest motor car ever built. See the new model at our salesrooms. Arrange for a demonstration in this remarkable car. Individuality of a Kimball Player Piano Individuality of design in a piano or a player piano is as thoroughly distinctive as individuality in architecture, sculpture, painting.

A magnificent example of individuality is shown in one of the now famous Kimball Player Pianos with a hand-carved mahogany case. It is now being displayed in the player room of Eilers Music House. A Kimball Player Piano in similar design recently carried off the only Gold Medal at the Exposition.

This additional Kimball triumph is merely more tangible evidence of magnificent Kimball individuality and merit.

Every Los Angeles owner of a Kimball Piano or Player Piano—and there are now over 1000—will take a just pride in this superb Kimball Player, worth $1250, in Art Nouveau design, which we are now showing. One of the many proud mansions in Los Angeles should own it. To possess such a masterpiece not only will show the exclusiveness of a home, but lends an air of refined individuality obtainable in no other way. The price is only $776. The value, however, lies not merely in the magnificence of its case. The tone is superb. As a musical instrument it deserves highest rank. The Kimball action is now universally conceded as being in every way the best, and it is for this reason that the Kimball Player Piano has superseded the other makes of player pianos which are now being closed out by the Eilers Music House.

AUTUMN STYLES ADOPTED.

Suit Jackets Will Show Increased Length and Skirts Will Continue on Straight Lines.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TOLEDO, April 27.—Styles for autumn were adopted here today by the National, Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Association. About 100 manufacturers were inattendance. The following are the styles:

Suit jackets will show a gradual rather than a radical increase in length, finger tip length (approximately thirty-two inches) predominating; the length to be based on the varying heights of women.

Skirts will continue on straight lines. The slightly raised waist line with the inner belting will continue in favor.

Separate coats will be full length and cut on straight lines. Some materials will be made in perfectly loose shapes, with or without belts; others will be made in more shapely effects. The feature of separate coats will consist of set-in sleeves, deep arm holes, stooping shoulders, and high buttoning effects.

NOBLES RIDE IN PALACES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.) April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Announcement was made today of the schedule of the palatial special train which will carry the Portland Shriners to the Imperial Council at Los Angeles. The train will leave Portland at 11:45 Thursday night. It will make several stops in Oregon, including one at Ashland, where a car of Nobles of Hillah Temple will be picked up. The train will reach San Francisco at 1 o'clock Sunday morning and will arrive in Los Angeles at 5 o'clock the same afternoon. The excursion party will be one of the most representative ever leaving Portland.

BLAME CAPT. SMITH.

of the International Mercantile Marine Company, was much cheered by the testimony of the afternoon. He listened eagerly to the accounts of his conduct at the lifeboats as told by the stewards and seamen. His eyes fairly beamed when Steward Crawford told how Ismay had called for women to go in one of the boats and had said to a woman who told him she was only a stewardess, "You are a woman! Take your place in the boat."

Ismay listened intently, too, as Steward Bright testified that he had not left the ship until after all the large lifeboats had gone and only one or two collapsible boats were left on deck.

After the session was over the corridor in the Senate building, near the committee room, was crowded with anxious sailors of the Titanic, who had been at the call of the committee since the rescue ship Carpathia brought them to New York. They were a nervous lot. Not being permitted to leave, they faced the prospect of a Saturday night and Sunday without funds.

"If it is too late to get money for the sailormen," Mr. Ismay declared. "I can see that it is advanced."

Finally, they were escorted to the capital in a body and advanced witness fee money. P. A. S. Franklin, vice-president of the Marine Company, left for New York late in the afternoon to return Monday. Mr. Ismay did not leave.

CAPT. MOORE TESTIFIES.

Two steamers and a schooner were only a short distance away from the Titanic when she sank, according to the testimony of Capt. James H. Moore of the Mount Temple. Ice held back vessels hurrying to the rescue and the Mount Temple did not arrive at the spot where the Titanic sank until two hours after she had gone down.

The Mount Temple intercepted the Titanic's call for help. Capt. Moore said, and immediately he turned his ship's course toward the crippled liner.

On his way he raised the lights of a schooner within a few miles of the scene of the tragedy and coming from that direction. When day broke to disclose a great field of ice ahead, the Mount Temple discovered a tramp steamer close by. The identity of neither schooner nor tramp was fixed.

Capt. Moore read a long list of messages from the Titanic intercepted by the Mount Temple's operator. It was virtually a complete record of the wireless appeals sent out by the doomed vessel.

"At 1:10 the Titanic was still calling 'C.Q.D.,'" said Capt Moore. "At 10:20 it raised the Olympic and said: 'Get your boats ready; going down fast by the head.' Frankfurt replied at 1:35: 'Starting for you.' Six minutes later the Titanic flashed 'C.Q.D.' boilers flooded.'

"A message from 'D.F.F.' then followed. 'Are there any boats around you already?' There was no answer."

Other ships then began calling, but could get no answer, the captain said. Later the Birma raised the Olympic and reported, "All quiet now. Titanic has not spoken since 1:47." The Carpathia at 1:20 sent the message, "Are you still there? We are firing rockets."

"Did you see those rockets?" interrupted Senator Smith.

"I saw no rockets at all that night. I thought of sending up rockets myself, but did not do so, because I feared it might divert other ships hurrying to the Titanic."

The witness said the Titanic undoubtedly had not fixed her position properly. He said she must have been eight miles further east than the spot reported.

Second Officer Lightoller of the Titanic was recalled, and testified the man who claimed to be Louis Klein of the Titanic's crew, and who disappeared after being brought here from Cleveland, was not Klein. The real Klein was drowned, Lightoller said.

Passengers on the Mount Temple have declared they saw the Titanic's lights and signals, Wireless Operator Cottam of the Carpathia testified he did not believe the Mount Temple got the Titanic's wireless signals of distress, because the operator of the Mount Temple had given him "good night" shortly after 10 o'clock that night.

The committee has yet to examine a number of the British sailors who survived the Titanic wreck. A. Crawford, one of the stewards, who was examined in New York, also is awaiting recall. J. Bruce Ismay, managing director of the White Star Line, who has been waiting in Washington five days, attending the hearings from beginning to end each day, is still waiting to testify.

Chairman Smith reiterated today that no more passenger survivors would be heard until the officials, members of the crew and crews of other boats have testified. The four surviving officers of the Titanic, who are anxious to return, still are held.

Fifth Officer Lowe is contemplating to demand of Senator Smith, upon what information he based his interrogation of him as to his sobriety. Senator Smith asked Officer Lowe if he was a temperate man, stating he had been informed he had been drinking the night the Titanic sank. This, Lowe indignantly denied, asserting he was a "tee-totaler."

MOORE RESUMES.

Capt. Moore, continuing his testimony, said his observations taken Monday indicated the Titanic's actual position was 50.09½ west.

"The fact you found no evidence of the wreck when you got to the Titanic's position tends to confirm your idea that the ship was eight miles farther east than the position she gave?" said Senator Smith.

"Yes, sir," said Capt. Moore. "And later I sighted the Carpathia on the other side of the ice field, where she picked the Titanic's boats up."

Capt. Moore said he heard from the Carpathia at 8:30 Monday morning that she had picked up the Titanic's boats, and that the Titanic had sunk.

"Up to that time I had not given up hope of sighting the Titanic," said Capt. Moore. "I had been steaming around in the ice all night. After I got the news I stayed around until 9 o'clock and then steamed on my course."

"Were there any other vessels in sight at the point where the Titanic is supposed to have gone down?"

"We saw a tramp steamer and at 8 o'clock in the morning we sighted the Birma. We also sighted the Californian, but the ice was between us."

Capt. Moore read further from the report of Wireless Operator Burrant of the Mt. Temple.

Among the messages picked up by Burrant and communicated to Capt. Moore were:

"At 1:40 a.m.—Birma thinks she hears Titanic and sends 'We are coming to you. Only fifty miles away. Hope you are safe.'

"At 2 a.m.—Carpathia calls Titanic. All quiet.

"At 3:05 a.m.—Birma and Frankfurt working.

"At 3:20 a.m.—We (Mt. Temple) back of the ice. Large bergs all around.

"At 3:25 a.m.—Californian call 'C. Q.' I answer and give her Titanic's position. She had it before.

"At 3:40 a.m. — Californian now working with the Frankfurt. Frankfurt also gives Titanic's position.

"At 4 a.m.—Californian now working with Virginian.

"At 4:25 a.m. — Californian now working with Birma.

"At 5:10 a.m. — Signaled Californian. She wants my position (Mt. Temple.) We are very close together.

"At 6 a.m.—Much jamming in wireless instrument.

"At 6:45 a.m. — Carpathia reports twenty boatloads rescued from the Titanic.

"At 7:30 a.m.—Baltic sends a service message to Californian as follows: "'Stand by. You've been instructed to do so frequently.' This signaled by an inspector.

"At 7:40 a.m. — Californian gets message of no need to stand by as nothing more could be done. Carpathia and Olympic very busy."

LIGHTOLLER RECALLED.

Second Officer Lightoller of the Titanic once more was recalled. Senator Smith asked if he heard the testimony of Capt. Moore of the Mt. Temple relating to suction of a ship going down. Lightoller said he was drawn under by water rushing into the funnels and not by suction.

"I was blown away from the blower of the ship," said Lightoller, "and then was sucked in again by the rushing waters and then blown a second time alongside of an overturned lifeboat."

Lightoller was asked by Senator Smith about the composition of an iceberg.

"One witness," said Senator Smith, "informed me it was composed of ice. What do you think?"

"As far as I understand, icebergs are broken away from glaciers and naturally contain earth and rocks," said Lightoller. "It is a saying among sailors that icebergs to a certain extent have assisted in the formation of the Grand Banks of Newfoundland owing to their bringing down the earth and stone," meeting the gulf stream and melting."

FRANKLIN TESTIFIES AGAIN.

P. A. S. Franklin, vice-president of the International Mercantile Marine, was recalled. He had been examined twice before. Senator Smith again went over the testimony taken with reference to the time the White Star Line had first received authentic news of the sinking of the Titanic. The Senator was the only member of the committee present.

"Our first authentic information came through our agent at Montreal," said Mr. Franklin. "I consider, though, that the first official information was received from Capt. Haddock of the Olympic. We had virtually the same information from the Associated Press."

"The information from Montreal, then, was correct?"

"Marvelously correct, but you must remember we had the news previously from the Associated Press."

The witness then was asked pointedly why the telegram was sent to Representative Hughes of West Virginia, whose daughter was aboard the Titanic, that the ship was being towed to Halifax by the Virginian and that all the passengers were saved. The telegram, timed 8:27 o'clock Monday night, prompted Senator Smith to put a question to the witness which he said was so direct that at the outset he desired to say that it was not asked in a spirit of impertinence.

"Between the time that you received this information from Montreal and the time your company made public the information you received from Montreal did your company reinsure the Titanic and its cargo?" asked Senator Smith.

"No, sir," said Mr. Franklin.

"Did you make any attempt to reinsure?"

"None whatever."

"Was any effort made by any of your company to reinsure with Lloyds in London?"

"The insurance is all handled in New York, and if anything of that kind was done I would have known it," said Mr. Franklin.

"You did, however, at 5 a.m. Monday, April 15, notify your Liverpool agent that the Titanic had met with an accident?" said Senator Smith.

"We sent them all the information we had at that time."

"If your agents in England had reinsured your cargo would you have known of it?"

"Yes, and there was no one in England who had anything to do with our insurance. Furthermore, we do not insure cargo, only the freight money."

The witness said the ship was insured for $5,000,000, while the company insured it itself for $3,000,000.

A STEWARD SUMMONED.

Frederick Ray, a steward, was summoned. He said he was not on duty at the time of the accident, but that he was at work in the main saloon at 9 o'clock.

"Did you see the captain of the Titanic the night of the wreck?" asked Senator Smith.

"No sir, I don't remember that I did."

The witness said the captain had his own waiter, who, Ray added, was drowned.

"He was last seen standing on the bridge beside the captain," he said.

Asked if he remembered having seen J. Bruce Ismay at dinner in the saloon, Ray said he did not observe him.

"Whom did you serve in the saloon?" asked Senator Smith.

"Maj. Butt, Mr. Millet, Clarence Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Clark," said Ray.

"Did you understand from anyone that on that night Mr. and Mrs. Widener gave a dinner to Capt. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Thayer, the junior Widener and Maj. Butt?" the Senator asked.

"No, I did not know who was at that dinner," Ray answered. "It was after I came to Washington and went to see Mrs. Clarence Moore that I learned Maj. Butt dined that night with the Wideners. Mrs. Moore told me of it."

According to Ray, the loading of the lifeboats was not done on the top, or boat deck, as previous witnesses have testified, but from "A" deck, the one just below. The boats, he said, were dropped down level with "A" deck, where they could be boarded without the slightest trouble.

ANOTHER STEWARD CALLED.

When Ray was excused Henry Samuel Etches of Southampton, another steward, was called. Etches had charge of eight staterooms on the "B" deck and No. 36 on "A" deck, which was occupied by Mr. Andrews, who represented the builders of the Titanic. Etches said he saw Andrews about 12:30 o'clock Sunday night.

"Mr. Andrews told me to go with him to 'A' deck," said Etches, "and he told me to see that all the passengers opened their doors and that all had lifebelts."

"Did he ask you to put a lifebelt on him?" Senator Smith asked.

"No, and I never saw him with one."

Etches also was steward to Benjamin Guggenheim. He told of going to Guggenheim's room, where he started to put a lifebelt on the multimillionaire.

"This will hurt," said Guggenheim.

"I told Mr. Guggenheim," said Etches, "to put on some clothes and I would be back in a minute. I went to another room then."

"Did you go back?"

"Yes, and put the lifebelt on Mr. Guggenheim."

PRAISE FOR ISMAY.

The witness said he then went on the boat deck and assisted in launching boat No. 7. Third Officer Pittmann and Mr. Ismay, he said, helped him.

"Mr. Ismay called out: 'Men, form a line and let the ladies pass,'" said Etches.

"How many men went in No. 7?" asked Senator Smith.

"Three to man the boat," said the witness.

"A woman came along," said the witness, "just before the boat was lowered and Mr. Ismay called to her to get in."

"'I'm only a stewardess, sir,' she said, and Mr. Ismay replied: 'It makes no difference; you're a woman! Take your place.'"

Pittmann, said Etches, wanted to go back to the aid of those in the water after the Titanic had gone down and had given orders to do so, when the women pleaded with him not to.

"They said: 'Why should you risk our lives in a hopeless effort to save them?'" declared Etches.

Alfred Crawford, another steward, testified that he assisted in loading No. 5 boat and went to his regular stand at No. 8.

TEARS FOR MRS. STRAUS.

In this boat Mrs. Isidor Straus had placed her maid and had passed a rug to her, he said: "She was about to get in herself, when suddenly she turned, put her arms around her husband's neck and said: 'We've been all these years together; where you go, I will go.' She refused to get in, sir.

There was an impressive pause at this. The women in the audience stirred in sympathy and one or two were moved to tears.

Crawford said he was sure he saw steamer lights as he left the Titanic to row the lifeboat.

"Capt. Smith saw the lights plainly," said Crawford, "and as we left the ship he pointed toward them and told us to pull for them. I am sure they were ship lights."

WANT A CONFERENCE TO SAFEGUARD LIFE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 27.—An international conference to formulate regulations to diminish the likelihood of a repetition of the Titanic disaster was recommended in resolutions adopted today by the American Society of International Law, in session here.

President Taft was re-elected honorary president, and Senator Root, president. All of the present vice-presidents were re-elected, and the members of the executive council, whose terms expired this year, were chosen to serve until 1915.

CO-OPERATION OF ALL.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BRUSSELS, April 27.—The executive bureau of the International Maritime Committee today voted to study anew the international regulations for the protection of life at sea. The bureau, which took this action because of the Titanic disaster, pointed out in its resolution that the desired reforms were not possible unless all countries with shipping interests co-operated.

OWES HIS LIFE TO MRS. ASTOR.

SAYS SHE PLEADED FOR MEN IN THE WATER.

Sailors Demurred at First, but Finally They Hearkened to Her Entreaties, and a Number of Titanic Victims Were Dragged from the Vortex of Disaster.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] How he was saved by Mrs. John Jacob Astor after floating around in the ocean hanging to a thin plank for over an hour after the Titanic sank, was told today by Ernest Person, 26 years old, a Swede, who arrived in Indiana Harbor from New York. Person came with his brother-in-law, William Stron, whose wife and daughter, Thelma, 3 years old, went down with the ship. Stron went to New York in an effort to find his child among the unidentified little ones who were rescued.

"My sister and Thelma arrived on deck just after the last boat had left the vessel," began Person. "In a short time the water was knee keep.

"Suddenly the boat gave a lurch and we were thrown into the sea. I went under, it seems, about ten times, and each time was brought up by the reflex motion caused by the suction of the sinking of the ship. I grasped a plank and looked around for my sister and niece, but they had disappeared.

"In about an hour I saw a lifeboat, overturned, to which men were clinging. I begged them to take me on, but they refused, saying that if they did they would all be hurled off into the water. Finally, we all saw another lifeboat with women and children in it. It wasn't full, however. We called to them, and begged them to take us in. The seaman in charge refused, saying the work of pulling us over the side of the boat would upset it.

"A woman stood up and pleaded with the seamen. Afterward, I learned that this woman was Mrs. John Jacob Astor. After a time the sailors consented, and the men on the overturned boat were first taken off. Then I climbed on the deserted craft and was later taken into the safer one.

"We had one man with black hair with us. He lost his wife and five children. After we were taken on board the Carpathia I saw that his hair had turned snow white. A short time later he died from exposure."

BETTER CONTROL UNDER FULL SPEED.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ITHACA (N. Y.) April 27.—George R. McDermott, professor of naval architecture at Cornell University, has written to Chairman Smith of the Senate committee which is investigating the Titanic disaster, that if any mistake or bad judgment was shown on the part of the officers after observation of the iceberg, it was that the helm was swung to port, instead of driving the vessel head on into the berg. A square blow on the bow would have caused far less damage. Prof. McDermott apparently thinks that the Titanic officers were not unwise in steaming at full speed in the ice region, for he declared that a large ship is ordinarily under better control when going at full speed than when moving slowly.

OUTSTRIPS LOS ANGELES.

Young Women of St. Louis Have a Larger Christian Association than in This City.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS, April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The ten days' campaign by the membership teams of the Y.W.C.A. has increased the membership of the local branch from 4000 to 6500, which is said to make the St. Louis membership the largest of any branch in the world.

The Los Angeles membership is said to be 6100, while Portland, Or., with 5000 members ranks third.

Miss Jennie M. Greenwood, membership secretary, had charge of the campaign. Those working for an increased membership were divided into two teams. Headquarters were established in one of the down-town buildings and passersby were attracted by the sound of a phonograph that all day played popular selections.

BIG BOOSTERS STIR BUSINESS.

Northern Traders Welcomed With Open Arms.

Sectional Friendships Are Cemented Officially.

Visitors Entertained in the Athletic Club Home.

Quietly and unobtrusively, and with the knowledge that they were invading an adjacent but friendly territory, nearly 100 business men of San Francisco arrived in Los Angeles last night in a special Pullman train, via the Southern Pacific.

The special had been jogging along the Coast Line from San Francisco to Los Angeles since Tuesday night. Stops of from one hour to one-half day were made at the various cities between San Francisco and as far north as Oxnard and the merchant princes, who are the heads of the various great mercantile enterprises of the northern city, made themselves known to the business men of each place.

At Oxnard the boundary was reached. Above this line the northern merchants realized that they were in what they call the "northern territory," but when they passed this bustling little city, they immediately found their simple cases, which contained nothing but literature and business cards, and conceded that they were in the land of the "southern territory," which is set aside for the Los Angeles mercantile houses.

Then the special train drew into the Arcade depot a committee of a dozen of members of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, headed by President H. Z. Osborn, greeted the visitors.

Andrew Carrigan, chairman of the northern excursion, headed the delegation as it left the train, and with due formality the visitors were ushered into waiting automobiles and carried to the new Los Angeles Athletic Club, on Seventh street.

WAITING FOR THEM.

The clubhouse was already well filled with members of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce and their friends, who had gathered in the lobby to greet the visitors. Capt. Osborn, supported by Willis Booth and other president of the chamber Hugo Mansen, received them. They had already dined on the train and the first thing on the programme was a tour of the beautiful new clubhouse from top to bottom.

TELLS OF SUCCESS.

Capt. Osborn, who has but recently returned from Washington, where he had been in connection with the furtherance of the bill for the improvement of the Los Angeles harbor at San Pedro, delivered the address of welcome. He dwelt upon the close ties which bind the north and the south of California together and told of how the good of the one section redounded to the benefit of the other. He welcomed the northern merchant princes to Los Angeles and told of the business prosperity of this city.

He also took occasion to state that while in Washington he and the other members of the Los Angeles committee had secured the assurance of the powers that be in the capital that the clause in the Rivers and Harbors Bill setting aside an appropriation for the improvement of the local harbor would be urgently pushed and that within one month a definite answer could be expected. He stated that he fully expected that the answer would mean that Los Angeles would get what it asked for.

Andrew Carrigan, chairman of the visiting organization, responding, told of the cities of bursting opportunity which they had visited en route to Los Angeles. He also told of how his organization had tactically recognized that Oxnard was the southern boundary of their efforts and how they had closed their "war bags" at this point and had come in a friendly spirit to Los Angeles "just to shake hands and say hello."

The northern business men will remain today in Los Angeles and will scatter as they may wish to the various points of interest, gathering again at 4 o'clock at their hotels to prepare for the trip back home, which will begin at 5 o'clock today.

The visitors include:

Leopold Aaron, Grove P. Ayers, Charles R. Beitler, J. C. Berendsen, Chas. Brandenstein, Geo. C. Browne, Andrew Carrigan, Herbert E. Clayburch, H. V. Carter, Horace Coffin, John P. Cleese, C. L. Persistent Effort.

THAW FIGHTS FOUR YEARS TO SECURE HIS LIBERTY.

FEBRUARY 1, 1908, Harry K. Thaw was found not guilty of murdering Stanford White, on the ground that he was insane at the time he killed the architect on June 25, 1906. Justice Dowling, who presided at the trial—the second—committed Thaw to the State Asylum for the Criminal Insane at Matteawan, where he was taken there that day. Here is a partial record of the attempts made by Thaw to obtain his release from the institution and the means employed:

HIS FIGHT FOR FREEDOM.

February 4, 1908—Thaw begins his fight for his freedom by sending William Moore, a detective, whom he interviews to obtain certain evidence.

February 5—Thaw makes insistent demands on his counsel to begin habeas corpus proceedings. Martin W. Littleton, his chief attorney, refuses. So do Daniel O'Reilly and A. Russell Kennedy of counsel.

February 6—Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, mother of the prisoner, demands that something be done to obtain Thaw's release, saying: "Harry will go crazy if they keep him in there much longer."

February 7—Dr. Arthur W. Ferris, alienist of the State Commission in Lunacy, states that he is opposed to Thaw's release.

February 10—Martin W. Littleton declares that Thaw will be released in six months.

February 16—Dr. George W. Jacoby, a noted alienist, examines Thaw in the Matteawan asylum at the instance of Mrs. Thaw.

April 6—Not satisfied with the activities of his attorneys, Thaw engages Delphin G. Graham, formerly secretary to Gov. Odell, and orders him to secure his liberation.

April 11—Mr. Graham obtains from Justice Morschauser in the Supreme Court at White Plains, an order directing the superintendent of Matteawan to permit Thaw to sign an application for a writ of habeas corpus.

WRIT IS GRANTED.

April 22—Thaw makes an application before Justice Morschauser, contending that Justice Dowling committed him without giving him an opportunity to establish his sanity at a hearing. The application is granted.

May 1—Thaw sends a messenger to Sing Sing to beg Warden Flynn of the State Prison, Deputy Warden Wilson, Prison Physician McGuire and others to go to Poughkeepsie when his case is called and testify for him.

May 2—The hearing on the writ of habeas corpus is called at Poughkeepsie and adjourned to May 14. Thaw is sent to the Dutchess county jail in Poughkeepsie until the hearing is concluded.

May 7—Dr. Amos T. Baker, assistant superintendent at Matteawan, in response to the writ, declares Thaw is sane and opposes his release.

May 14—Thaw is brought up before Justice Morschauser. Dr. Austin testifies he is a paranoiac and dangerously insane. Dist.-Atty. Jerome opposes his release. Dr. Frederick W. MacDonald, alienist, supports Dr. Flint. An army of counsel for Thaw appears.

May 17—The hearing is concluded and the court states that it will hand down a decision on May 25.

May 23—Fearing an adverse ruling, Thaw plans to effect his transfer to the insane asylum, and orders counsel to work along those lines.

May 25—Justice Morschauser dismisses the writ, saying that Thaw's condition has not changed and that he has not been unduly deprived of his liberty. He holds that Thaw's discharge "would be dangerous to the public."

SEEKS A TRANSFER.

May 25—Thaw makes an application for a transfer to the State Hospital at Middletown and escapes returning to Matteawan.

June 13—Justice Morschauser hears arguments on the petition and denies it. But he agrees to stay signing the order sending Thaw back to Matteawan until application can be made to Justice Dowling.

June 19—Application for a transfer order is made to Justice Dowling and he takes the matter under advisement.

June 28—Thaw gets a writ of habeas corpus from Supreme Court Justice Mills at White Plains in order to obtain a new hearing.

June 29—Justice Dowling refuses to grant a transfer order on the ground that Thaw is too dangerously insane to be given the special privileges of the Middletown institution. He orders him returned to Matteawan forthwith.

June 29—Thaw's case come up before Justice Mills, and Thaw demands a jury trial that he may prove his sanity. He asks for a transfer from the Dutchess county jail to the Westchester county jail at White Plains and offers to put up a $100,000 bond. He is sent back to Poughkeepsie and Justice Mills takes his petition under advisement.

July 4—Thaw appeals from Justice Morschauser's decision declaring him still insane.

July 12—Justice Mills decides to allow Thaw to argue for a jury trial in September and permits him to remain in the Poughkeepsie jail until then.

September 1—The State Prison Commission issues a protest against Thaw being permitted to stay in the jail, where he is occupying Sheriff "Bob" Chanler's snug quarters.

September 1—Thaw is transferred to the Westchester County Jail in White Plains.

September 16—Justice Mills grants Thaw a trial without a jury and denies him a trial with one. He is sent back to Matteawan.

MORE WRITS.

January 15, 1909—Supreme Court Justice Tompkins issues a writ of habeas corpus returnable at Nyack.

January 4—Thaw appeals from Justice Mills's decision.

June 14—Justice Gaynor issues a writ of habeas corpus returnable before Justice Mills June 17 at White Plains.

July 4—The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court refuses to liberate Thaw on the ground that Justice Dowling erred in committing him to Matteawan.

July 6—Thaw is taken to the jail in White Plains.

July 14—Thaw's hearing is called before Justice Mills.

July 20—Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw publishes a book attacking Dist.-Atty. Jerome and others.

August 2—Thaw takes an appeal from the ruling of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court.

August 12—After a long trial Justice Mills denies Thaw's plea for liberty and orders him returned to Matteawan.

August 26—The Court of Appeals upholds the Appellate Division in its ruling.

December 30—Thaw's application to the United States Supreme Court for a review of judgments of lower courts becomes known when the application is denied by Justice McKenna.

April 15, 1912—Supreme Court Justice Stapleton of Brooklyn issues a writ of habeas corpus returnable before him at noon April 19.

WEST POINT LOSES BARRY.

SUPERINTENDENT SLATED TO SUCCEED GRANT.

Though His Tour of Duty at the Academy Has Still Two Years to Run It Is Known that the New Assignment Makes a Large Appeal to the Major General.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Maj.-Gen. Thomas H Barry, superintendent of the United States Military Academy, West Point, will be the next commander of the Eastern Division of the army with headquarters on Governor's Island.

No official announcement that Gen. Barry has been selected for the New York command has yet been made and Gen. Barry has declined to verify the report. Nevertheless it can be declared on high authority that the selection has been made and that West Point's superintendent will soon be relieved of his duties at the academy and ordered to Governor's Island as the successor of the late Maj.-Gen. Frederick D. Grant.

Gen. Barry's tour of duty at West Point still has more than two years to run, but the fact that he has long been known as one of the officers to whom active command of troops particularly appeals, makes it quite certain that he welcomes the opportunity of assuming the Governor's Island command, which embraces all the army in New York, New England, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, most of the southern States and all the coast artillery, from Portland, Me., to Galveston, Tex., as well as the Panama Canal zone and Porto Rico.

Surgical Forecast.

LIVING TISSUES MAY BE GRAFTED.

UNIVERSITY PROFESSOR MAKES STARTLING ANNOUNCEMENT.

Proposes Use of Live Organs in Body After Death to Effect Repairs in Living Bodies, Much as Burbank Is Able to Do With Dissimilar Plant Life.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Miracles of surgery which involve the dismembering of dead bodies to reconstruct the living are declared to be possibilities of the immediate future by Dr. Roswell Park, professor of surgery of the University of Buffalo. In a scientific article which dealt with his theories with a wealth of detail, Dr. Park told in the current number of the Journal of the American Medical Association how this could be accomplished.

His plan simply is to make practical use of the live organs that remain in the corpse of a dead man or woman. Since death may result from violent injury to one organ—the brain or heart, for instance—Dr. Park says that the remaining live tissues may be grafted upon the body of an injured person, with the same hope of success that Burbank exhibits in grafting a flower upon a tree or bush with which it has not before been associated by nature.

In this manner, according to his statement, practically every part of the body with the exception of a diseased part, may be used with good effect by practical surgeons. Teeth, bone, flesh and muscles, he says, may be used in carrying health and renewed life to at least fifty patients by the use of only one body. Countless operations hitherto looked upon as impossible are declared possible in this way.

SEEKS AID FOR CHINA.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Another urgent appeal for aid for the sufferers from the famine and revolution in China was issued by the American Red Cross here today. A million persons are in need, the relief committee at Shanghai cabled today. The famine, which is now at its worst, will continue through May, the committee says. The message estimates that $200,000 will be needed to carry the sufferers through the troubles.

"I'M SANE," SAYS THAW.

For that reason a writ of habeas corpus was prayed in order that the case might be brought into court for a thorough survey and for a final adjudication in the open.

Among those expected to be heard, or whose opinions will be submitted at the coming hearing, are Dr. George W. Jacoby, Dr. William A. White, Dr Charles K. Hills, Dr. Fred Peterson, Dr. Adolph Meyer and other well-known alienists.

Public opinion is divided on the subject of Thaw's continued incarceration. Strong protests have been made against liberation of the young man on the ground that there would be no assurance against another tragedy like that which occurred in a crowded cafe when the lives of hundreds of persons were endangered.

TO GATHER LABOR DATA.

Publishers' Association Proposes to Tabulate Wages Paid Printers and the Allied Trades.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 27.—A proposal to raise an educational fund of $1,000,000 was discussed at yesterday's meeting here of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association. It was also suggested that this fund be utilized to collect statistics on the wages paid the typographical and allied labor unions throughout the country, their rules and regulations and that the data thus obtained be tabulated and distributed among the publishers.

A committee consisting of W. W. Chapin of Seattle, James Keely of Chicago and Albert H. Baker of Cleveland was appointed to take the proposal under consideration and report.

Elbert H. Baker of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, was unanimously elected president. Other officers were:

Vice-president, Herbert L. Bridgeman of the Brooklyn Standard-Union; secretary, Stewart Bryan, Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch; treasurer, W. J. Pattison, New York Evening Post.

Directors, Milton U. Brown, Indianapolis News; H. L. Rogers, Chicago Daily News; Condee Hamlin, New York Tribune, and F. P. Glass, Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser.

Gen. Harrison G. Otis of the Los Angeles Times delivered an address on "Labor," John Norris gave a talk on "The Ideal Newspaper Workshop."

There was no quorum at the afternoon session and after a short session, final adjournment was taken.

HOMER BEATS VERNON TEAM.

Hitless Wonder Corhan Puts Seals in Front

Hogan Protests Game Owing to Ruling on Balk.

Brown's Error Proves Fatal for His Team.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Roy Corhan, the so-called hitless wonder, whose field work has been so clever and stick-work so weak, made a home run for the Seals this afternoon and pulled them out of a tied game into a 3 to 2 victory. Roy took a vicious forward lunge at the ball, connected with the leather and it sailed over the right field fence.

Incidentally, it was the last run that was scored during the afternoon and meant a lot to the Seals.

Hogan's fire eaters dropped their game not only because of the brand of ball that Frank Miller pitched, but also because Catcher Brown dropped the ball when Bill Jackson came poking in at the plate. Brown had a dead out for Jackson wasn't speeding up fast enough to keep warm. Still for all that, Brown dropped the sphere and not only did Jackson tally but Frank Miller came along right behind him with a two-sacker that sent Corhan scoring homewards.

And that same inning marked with two Seal tallies, was memorable also for a protest that Happicus Hogan filed because of a balk that was called on Dolly Gray. The incident happened with Jackson on first after four wide ones. Gray was preparing to wind-up ready to pitch to the batsman when the ball slipped out of his fingers. Umpire McGreevy called a balk and sent Jackson to second.

Hogan hollered on the ground that a ball should have been called instead of a balk and when McGreevy refused to talk to him, entered a formal protest.

DOLLY FAIRLY GOOD.

Dolly Gray worked almost as well as Miller and with Patterson getting a homer for the Tigers, thus evening up on the score of long distance swats, there wouldn't have been much between the two clubs save for that fatal error by Brown. And as Brown got his from Patterson, who said something to the backstop that must have been nasty, it will hardly do any good to twit the catcher further for what proved to be a San Francisco blessing.

Vernon got to Miller in the very first inning for a run. Carlisle led off with a double that crashed against the right field fence and took third on a passed ball after Bayless had flied to McIver. Patterson grounded to Gedeon but with the hit and run in force there wasn't a chance to get the man at the plate, and Carlisle tallied.

It looked in the second as if the Seals should have scored and there was a deal of mental anguish because they didn't connect. Jackson, hitting safely to left, was advanced a base on an infield out by Gerdeon. Corhan singled through short, which put Jackson on third and with Berry at bat, the signal was given for the squeeze. Dolly Gray or some other Vernonite must have caught the signal. A high ball to Brown as Jackson started for home and the runner was caught between the bags, finally being tagged out by Brashear. Then Berry walked and stole but Miller's out retired the side.

With two out and two on for Vernon in the third, Miller fanned Patterson, who slammed his bat angrily against the grand stand to express his contempt for umpiring that he didn't like.

Long's men got busy in the fourth. Jackson walked, took second on the balk that has already been explained and Gedeon sacrificed to third. Corhan hit to Hosp and with a throw to the plate that was perfect Brown managed to drop the ball, allowing Jackson to score. Berry grounded to Patterson, but Frank Miller hit a long double to center and Corhan made the circuit.

Patterson's right field home run in the sixth was the starter and when Brashear followed with another long drive, it looked as if things might be under way. The next two outs put Brashear as far as third, but Burrell hit one to Altman and was a dead one at first.

Corhan made his over the fence ball in the last of the same inning and what happened to be the last of the scoring.

The score:

ED TUFTS WINS FINALS MATCH.

Beats Cosby in San Gabriel Golf Tournament.

Macbeth and Woodcock Score Highest in Foursomes.

Several Crack Players Off Usual Form.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

Norman Macbeth and H. N. H. Woodcock, Conde Jones and Walter Cosby tied for the first place, with 1 up in the four-ball handicap foursomes against par in the San Gabriel invitation tournament yesterday, the former making the best gross score with 74, as they played on 1 handicap as against 3 handicap of Jones and Cosby, who made a gross 76.

Edward Tufts defeated Walter Cosby by 1 up in the finals for the second flight in the tournament.

The four-ball handicap foursomes proved a most attractive event and most of the star players took part. Norman Macbeth and H. N. H. Woodcock made a very strong combination, their individual scores being so good that the choice of each man's best ball proved a most model score. Woodcock was playing rather the better of the two yesterday, making 39 and 38, 77, to Macbeth's 40 and 41, 81. Had Macbeth been up to his previous day's form their joint score should have been a staggering minimum.

Woodcock's figures:

Out	4	5	3	5	3	6	4	4	5	—39
Home	3	4	6	5	4	4	4	5	3	—38
										77

Partnership score:

4	5	3	4	3	6	3	4	5	—37
3	4	6	5	3	4	4	4	3	—37

It is the general opinion that Woodcock's failure to show off to better advantage earlier in the tournament was due to the fact that he was only able to get down late each day after a rush of business. Several of the best players, including Macbeth, suffered under this disadvantage.

Conde Jones and Walter Cosby were also playing excellently well, their joint score of gross 76 being made up as follows:

Out	4	5	4	4	4	6	4	4	5	—40
Home	3	4	7	3	3	4	4	4	4	—36

Robert Tatum and Percy Bronson made the next best showing with all square on a 3 handicap, making a 77 gross.

E. R. Williams and Armine Brand also made a 77 gross, their two handicap giving them 1 down. They were playing splendidly and had par 4 down at the seventh, but naturally were unable to maintain quite this standard of excellence.

Judge Frederickson and E. N. Wright were also among the patrician 77 gross smart set, their handicap of 1 making them 2 down.

J. Wells Smith and J. K. Urmston were among the aristocracy with 1 down, but they were not to the manner born, as it were, as they had a 7 handicap to help them in. The same may be said of J. A. Keeney and E. C. Millikin, who finished 2 down, net.

J. A. Bell and Lee Stephens, however, cannot be classed among the golf score climbers, for they finished 79 net, which their 4 handicap made 1 down. Mr. Bell was playing better than he ever remembers—to bogey most of the time, and he was exhibiting quite an uncanny genius in holing out long puts. Mr. Stephens returned from Arizona just in time for this tournament and was not playing quite as well as before he went away.

Among the many other players taking part were J. B. Elliott and C. F. Atkinson, who finished 3 down; Geoffrey Purcell and L. W. Farmer, W. W. Bacon (looking well groomed and well clad in his tennis clothes,) and P. A. Coon, who finished 4 down. G. E. Truett, the interesting Eastern G. E. Truett, the interesting eastern Campbell and G. E. Potter of Santa Barbara, S. N. Salisbury and G. W. Whitmore, W. Walton and Victor Kleinberger, T. Jefferson and Mr. Brodie, C. H. Knappe and Martin Case (Riverside's dazzling representative with the satanic smile,) C. A. Perley and R. H. Sanborn, E. H. Parker of the gazelle-like eyes, and F. O. Wood (who is wearing a new pair, the old ones having received a decent burial,). F. S. Wade, who was much missed earlier in the week, and James Parker, J. C. Bannister and F. D. Silverwood, J. D. Smith and Mr. Ainsworth and E. H. Wilkes and A. T. Jergins.

Judge Frederickson was looking very chaste in dove gray, Mr. Bell was clad in a glad radiance, and Mr. Tufts, who had changed to his street attire, looked utterly unapproachable.

Mr. Tufts, you see, had won that handsome cup for the second flight, in the finals against Walter Cosby in the morning. Mr. Tufts says it's the best cup in the tournament, and Mr. Tufts is a connoisseur. In fact, so emphatically, does he re-terate the fact, that we more than half suspected him of qualifying for the second flight with the deliberate intention of winning it. Else how came it that he should have handed in a modest 94 on that surprising day, when yesterday he went out in 40 and returned in 41 with the utmost sangfroid? Yes, and he did No. 2 in 4, too, and it is a par 5! He defeated Mr. Cosby who has been playing to bogey all the week by 1 up. It was something of an effort, it is true, but that the cup was his he never doubted.

Among the interested gallery yesterday was Frank Griffith of the Los Angeles Country Club.

GIROT LOOKS GOOD.

This boy Girot whom McCredie signed has more boosters than you can shake a stick at. Hildebrand was one of the first to talk up his ability, but Heinie Heitmuller and several others were equally impressed by his work. It is said that Heitmuller was trying to keep him away from the Coast League until such time as he was ready for shipment to New York. One booster has tooted him as a left-hander with movements similar to Vean Gregg. He is claimed to have a fine curve and an easy delivery. Another outfielder named Burns is believed to be in Portland and will join the Ducks when they return home.

OUT TODAY

The May issue of SUNSET, the Pacific Monthly, is just out—get a copy today. It's full of good things.

Thomas Grant Springer and Fleta Campbell Springer have just been through the Panama Canal and they tell in the May SUNSET all about the "WATERWAY OF WONDER" of which California is so proud.

Peter B. Kyne, who needs no introduction to Sunset readers, again appears with a crackerjack story, "The Devil Ship." You cannot afford to miss it.

John Fleming Wilson gives us another story of the Gile Reincarnation Agency—Record Three, of Mona Reardon's Second Chance. If you're tired of life, here's your cue.

"Stars in the West," include Tetrazzini in a California Orange Grove, Gail Kane, Edith Helena, scenes from "Overnight," "Bunty Pulls the String," etc.

"Captain of His Soul," the best serial Sunset has ever had, still increases in interest. Don't miss this installment.

Dr. Frederick Skiff, Exposition Expert, Director in Chief of Participation of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, tells how the Panama-Pacific Exposition will represent the best achievements of Peace and illustrate the narrowing of the world into a united community.

REFUGEES ARRIVE WITH STORIES OF LAWLESSNESS.

Twenty English and American Residents of Mexico Escape from that Unhappy Country After Considerable Effort—They Say that the Lives and Property of Foreigners Are in Constant Jeopardy.

SAN PEDRO, April 27.—Forced to flee from Mexico by the mistreatment of brigand bands, who are many hundreds strong, and are said to be pillaging the country along the entire west coast of the republic, leaving wreck and ruin in their path, about twenty American and English refugees arrived here this afternoon from Mazatlan on the German liner Abyssinia, which stopped at that port, en route from Hamburg.

The refugees include men, women and children, and they all related thrilling tales of their experiences in fleeing from the interior towns and mining camps to the seaports, and told startling stories of the condition of affairs in the tumultuous republic affecting American and foreign interests. Everyone who arrived on the Abyssinia had great trouble in getting through. The railroads were all out of commission and the refugees had to resort to horses and mules to get through the country to the port of Mazatlan. Several of them were held up by brigands, roving through the country under the guise of revolutionists, and compelled to hand over all the money and valuables they possessed. Practically every mining camp and industry along the coast, near Mazatlan and for many miles in the interior, has shut down, and many valuable properties have been destroyed by dynamite. A few mining properties are still operated under heavy guard, but these are the exceptions.

When the present revolution started the Bank of Mazatlan had on hand silver coin to the amount of $505,000, and this has been sent on several vessels to San Francisco for safety. Most of it was sent on the steamer City of Panama, several weeks ago, and the Abyssinia is bringing the remainder. The bank is practically suspended operations. Tales of terrible cruelty and outrage were brought by the refugees. So far the lives and property of Americans are constantly in danger is the opinion of those who fled the country. Intervention, they say, will be the only thing that will stay the hand of anarchy and revolt which is flaming across the land. The better class of Mexicans, it is said, are in favor of the United States taking a hand in the situation, while the lower element concentrates in the expression that if the United States intervenes the lives of foreigners will not be worth a peso.

At Mazatlan the American Red Cross Society collected $500, which was used to send destitute people out of the country. According to the passengers arriving today, there are approximately 200 Americans left in and aound Mazatlan, who are straightening up their affairs, preparatory to quitting the country.

A prominent passenger on the Abyssinia was Maj. C. F. Petersdorff of Los Angeles, whose residence is the Sierra Madre Club, and who has extensive mining interests near Mazatlan.

In describing conditions Maj. Petersdorff said: "The situation along the west coast is simply indescribable. It is worse than anarchy. Americans are not safe in the republic under present conditions. I have in my custody sealed papers from William A. Alger, Consul at Mazatlan, to the Secretary of State, which relate to the gravity of the situation. Mr. Alger thinks intervention must come quickly if the lives and property of Americans are to be protected. He has dispatched couriers to all the Americans in the interior in the vicinity of Mazatlan, urging them to come to Mazatlan, arrange their affairs, and leave the country.

"Mexico has never before faced such a crisis as this and the outside world knows little of the horrible conditions that exist. Our properties are located at a little town called Casola, about forty miles from Mazatlan. As an illustration of the terrible condition of affairs the town was looted by several hundred brigands, under the guise of revolutionists, led by Pilar Quintero and Antonio Franco, two of the worst renegades in the entire republic. Stores were looted, the buildings were burned, bombs were thrown into the houses, killing several people, and every native woman and girl over the age of eleven years was outraged by these cut-throats. The situation is horrible, and beggars description. The Mexicans on both sides have been careful not to outwardly disturb Americans, but they are constantly doing things which make life there unsafe. Most of the depredations are being committed by roving bands, who shield themselves with the cloak of being revolutionists in order to have an excuse for accomplishing their dastardly work."

Refugees arriving on the Abyssinia included David Leathers and family, Graciella Krohn, Frank Cook, wife and children, Oskar Wallander, May McPhail and Ernestine and Vivian Thacker. The Thackers are missionaries.

Santa Monica.

GREEDY PLAN TO MAKE VISITORS PAY FOR VIEW.

SANTA MONICA, April 27.—A vigorous howl has been raised in connection with the automobile road race scheduled to be pulled off here next Saturday—and all because in order to guard for gain some person has promoted the idea of renting the vacant lots along the course as parking space for automobiles on that day. It is the allegation that every inch of advantageous space has been seized by speculators and that visitors who come by automobile to witness the speed trials will be compelled to pay tribute to private purses.

Those who have donated to the fund for providing police protection, building bridges and in other ways preparing the course for the race are distressed at the thought that after having invited the tens of thousands of visitors to the beach to witness the races and spend the day here are to be "held up."

Heretofore there has been no thought of profit, the objectors say, in connection with the races, although quite a few dollars were extracted from visiting victims by persons who claimed to have charge of certain lots where were working the game on their own account. Those who submitted to the toll then found space as readily as did those who refused to comply with the request.

STRENGTH IN UNION.

Amusement caterers, concessionaires and all interests centering in the pier at the foot of the Fraser pier, the Ocean Park avenue and the Marine Gardens district are organizing a Boosters' League for the purpose of protecting mutual interests, attracting crowds and entertaining them. The plan is to work harmoniously in the interests of the whole central ocean zone, pulling off big events at intervals during the summer months and arranging big days and nights for special occasions. The organization will be completed at a meeting to be given Tuesday night at the green room in the WATER DOWN HILL.

The address before the Chamber of Commerce banquet last night by Commander of Los Angeles said that Angeles would require that every municipality or outside community which wants Owens River water become a part of Los Angeles, or at least would be compelled to bear a share of the burden of the aqueduct. The thought having been well received at a mass meeting of citizens held last night. This will be held Thursday at the City Hall, when the question will be considered in detail. Mayor Alexander and Fred Valle stated frankly that Los Angeles had undertaken an enormous task and is carrying all the burden of the aqueduct, but said that Los Angeles cannot afford to furnish water to any city or community unless they take its part in the burden. It was intimated that the beach city of Inglewood should become a part of Los Angeles. Mayor Alexander said Los Angeles could furnish water cheaper than any city or community could pump the water, for example, they would have a reservoir within a few miles of Inglewood with 7000-horse-power, while if Santa Monica were to become a part of Los Angeles it would be but a few miles before she would have an ocean front railroad.

Fred Valle explained that Los Angeles had done her part, and said that some of his friends down the coast seemed to realize what a great project the Franklin Canyon reservoir and distributing system was for the benefit of Santa Monica, and invited everybody to investigate and go see for himself.

Carl Schader said he favored a united city and county government for Los Angeles and was also in favor of the annexation of Santa Monica to Los Angeles, under the borough system, provided the beach city could retain its individuality and have self-government. On the water question, he did not presume to go into details of the Owens River. He said if Los Angeles can furnish the water cheaper than we can pump it we want it. If Los Angeles can furnish us light for less cost than we now pay, we want it, and if Los Angeles can furnish us with cheap transportation we want it, but we should not get the horse before the cart. The first thing to get was the distributing systems. City of Santa Monica should own them.

During his remarks he also called attention to the fact that Santa Monica is most fortunate in having a lake of pure water under it. All the water that drains from Los Angeles towards the sea is held back by the pressure of the Pacific Ocean, so that Santa Monica has plenty of water, but if we can get Los Angeles water for less money than we can pump it at home it is only a business proposition to secure it.

In presenting his annual report to the Chamber of Commerce last night, President P. J. Dudley touched upon the demands of the beach for lower trolley fares on the Pacific Electric between Los Angeles and the beach. He said the Railroad Committee had entered into an investigation of the question but had found that a lawsuit would be an expensive experiment. He said but little could be accomplished in figuring the rate on a mileage basis as comparing this beach with other seaside resorts and it had been decided to await the result of the building by Los Angeles of a municipal railroad to San Pedro. This, he argued, would establish a basis which would result in lower fares.

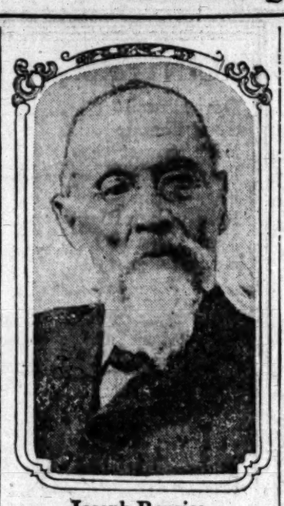
PLEASURE AND POLITICS.

The visit of Senator and Mrs. La Follette to this beach Monday will be one combining political business with pleasure, as during their stay here Mrs. La Follette will be the guest of an old-time friend, Mrs. Harrison Ward of Adeliade drive, in the Palisades, where she will be the dinner guest Monday evening.

The local committee will meet the distinguished guests in Los Angeles bringing them to the beach by automobile Monday afternoon. En route, the Senator will stop at the Home to address the Civil War veterans at 3 o'clock. Mr. Houser will speak at the Majestic Theater at 3:30, holding the crowd until the Presidential candidate arrives, at 4:10. Following the meeting at the Majestic the guests will be given an automobile tour of the beach and the Senator will be dined by a few friends. He will speak at the Starland Theater at 7:30 and at about the same time Mrs. La Follette will address the assembly at the Venice auditorium. At about 8:30 the progressive Wisconsin Senator and his wife will exchange platforms, thus affording the crowds at each place an opportunity of hearing both speakers.

LEMON BECOME WALNUT.

There is no more Lemon. The Southern Pacific Railroad has changed its station name to Walnut, consequently the postoffice station on the Southern Pacific and station on the Salt Lake are all under the one head.



Joseph Revoice,

Monrovia veteran, who died yesterday. He was 95 years old and was a member of the only California regiment which participated in the battles of the Civil War.

CHARTER CITIZEN PASSES.

Monrovia's Oldest and Most Picturesque Character Dies—His Life Was Filled With Dramatic Incidents.

MONROVIA, April 27.—Joseph Revoice, argonaut and charter citizen in 1850 of the newly-admitted State of California, and a member of the five companies of Union volunteers who made the terrible march across the Colorado desert from Yuma to Santa Fe, N. M., in 1862, died at his home here today.

Mr. Revoice was 95 years old and was born in Indiana. He was of French descent and the Gallic perception of the dramatic elements of a situation survived in him to the last. Keeping fully abreast of modern movements, he was yet fond of reviewing with friends the scenes of the long-gone militant days replete with romance and adventure.

About the time of his arrival on the Coast after a long overland journey from St. Joseph, Mo., California was admitted to the Union as a full-grown State, and Revoice played his part in the scheme of the time. Mining up and down the range, now rich but often poor, he reached San Francisco in 1861, when the great shadow of the Civil War stretched across the continent. One and a half million dollars were quickly raised by California Unionists and five companies volunteered for the strenuous march across the desert to Gen. Carlton's command in New Mexico.

Revoice was among the first to enlist and with his comrades went by boat to San Pedro, whence the weary overland march began. Somewhere east of the Colorado River the little advance guard of which Revoice was a member was surrounded by a large band of Apaches. Though the soldiers were outnumbered 100 to one, they prepared to give battle while retreating to the main body of troops. A small mountain howitzer, carried mule-back, was trained on the Indians and great results expected. The shrapnel, however, failed to explode, and the Indians, wondering what the strange sputtering missile was, crowded around it for closer inspection. As Revoice said, "subsequent events interested them no more,' and the story of the "new stone that sang like a swarm of bees and whose sting was death," far spread by the surviving redmen, cleared the hostiles from the trail of the Californians. On February 21, 1862, the Californians joined the New Mexican Union forces in repelling the Texans at the desperately-fought engagement of Val Verde.

Revoice served through the war and then returned to the State of his adoption. He never married and, so far as can be learned, has no surviving relatives. Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Monday from the Reynolds undertaking parlors under the auspices of the G.A.R.

WILD ADVANCE A NOTCH.

Escondido Postoffice to Be Made Second-Class at End of Fiscal Year. Big Taft Rally.

ESCONDIDO, April 27.—Formal announcement is made that the Escondido postoffice will be advanced to the second-class July 1. This will mean an increase in the salary of the postmaster, W. B. McCorkle, and a provision for the employment of two assistants at salaries which will insure competent clerks. It will mean, also, that the office will be entitled to free city delivery and collection service in the near future.

The matter has been taken up by the Chamber of Commerce and an application for the service will be made shortly. Steps have been taken for the grading and sidewalking of five miles of city streets, the numbering of houses, the posting of street signs and other improvements, which will be essential in securing the free delivery service.

VESTAL FUNERAL.

The funeral of George W. Vestal, for twenty-three years a resident of the Escondido country, was held this afternoon, being under direction of Escondido post G.A.R., of which the deceased was a member. Mr. Vestal's death, which was sudden, was due to a stroke of apoplexy, while he was at work in the field. He was a native of Illinois, coming to Southern California from Rockford. During a part of the Civil War he was a member of Company B, Eleventh Illinois Cavalry. He leaves a widow and two sons, Burt E. Vestal of San Diego and Elmer E. Vestal of Chicago; also four brothers, including Freeman Vestal of Bakersfield, and Madison Vestal of Escondido.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Arrangements have been made for a big Taft rally at the auditorium Tuesday evening, when five automobile loads of Taft boosters will be here from San Diego. The speakers will include Senator L. A. Wright, Charles E. Sumner and W. E. Gilbert of Portland, Or. Col. J. C. Dickson, executive committeeman for this section, will preside.

Edward Turner Lockyer, Jr. of Los Angeles, an employee of the Santa Fe railway, and Miss Lillian Alves Lockett, a daughter of Col. and Mrs. H. E. Lockett of this city, were married Wednesday at the Rock Springs farm, home of the bride. Rev. J. C. McReynolds, former pastor of the Christian Church, officiated. Miss Alice Butler was bridesmaid and Richard Lockett, a brother of the bride, was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Lockyer will live at No. 3205 East Third street, Los Angeles.

Dr. H. W. Boone and Mrs. Mae Brown, who have been teaching in China, were the principal speakers at the convention of the union missionary societies this week. Mrs. W. F. Binney and Mrs. Alice E. Larkin of Los Angeles county were also among the speakers. Mrs. Binney presided. Mrs. E. E. Ford was elected president of the local union.

The Escondido High School nine is scheduled to play the San Diego High School team at San Diego, May 4, and the Playgrounds Association team, also at San Diego, May 11. A game has also been arranged at Oceanside, between Escondido and the Fallbrook team, May 18.

COLORS FLYING IN SAN JACINTO

Whole population surprised. Entire business district of San Jacinto aflame with flags, pennants and banners announcing the dawn of the new San Jacinto. Decoration takes place at night after closing hours. One feature of the display is an artistically colored banner, five feet wide and over fifty feet long, strung across the main street, bearing the words, "Welcome, San Jacinto Board of Trade." There are hundreds of pennants and flags fluttering from doorways and windows everywhere.

The recent water discovery and development at the foot of Mt. San Jacinto, near by, has aroused the whole country around. The great beauty and rare fertility of the valley dates back to the Government's first geological survey, but like many other sections of the country in times gone by, the scarcity of water prevented its full development. The new water condition, however, has changed the entire situation. High-class farming in all of its branches is now possible upon every foot of these particularly choice lands.

It is this valley's turn now, and it will be interesting to watch it. If the past few months, with their thrill and flip-flops, are any criterion to go by, San Jacinto will give an account of itself that will not soon be forgotten.

The new resort hotel being erected by Mr. Vosburg, on Central avenue, is going up rapidly. According to contract, it must be completed in one hundred days from date of beginning work.

The new electric light and power system, which circulates through the whole valley, has just been completed. The current will be turned on the first of the coming month.

Mr. Knowlton's foreman says he expects to get two tons of alfalfa per acre at each of the seven cuttings this season from his hundred-acre ranch on Mountain avenue. Two hundred tons per single cutting would mean 1400 tons for the season, or $28,000.00 for the crop, if the present price of $20.00 is maintained. These figures would not doubt make the back East farmer dizzy, but to the California rancher it means only an average production where anything like correct methods are employed.

MAN PLUNGES TO HIS DEATH

Los Angeles Man Falls Three Hundred Feet.

The Tragedy Occurs on Slope of Mount Lowe.

Society Man Haled Before Court for Misdemeanor.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PASADENA, April 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Miss Clara Ruschhaupt, a young Texas woman, who since last Sunday has resided at No. 528 Wall street, Los Angeles, yesterday afternoon stood at a dizzy point on the east trail between Alpine Tavern and the summit of Mt. Lowe and watched her uncle, a man 75 years of age, plunge head foremost to his death, 200 feet down the steep side of the mountain.

The dead man was John Marlau of No. 512 Crocker street, Los Angeles. He was unmarried. Marlau and Miss Ruschhaupt, with several friends, had climbed to the summit, a distance of two miles from the hotel, which is situated at the end of the car line, and were returning to the hotel when the accident happened. While the others lingered to enjoy the view afforded from a shoulder of the peak, a place where the declivity is almost perpendicular, the old man hastened on and had gained a considerable start when they saw him suddenly reel and pitch off of the trail. It is believed that he was overcome by heart failure.

Whatever the cause of his fall, he went head first over the edge and down the side of the mountain, his head striking a stone at the bottom of the canyon.

Miss Ruschhaupt and her companions were so far away that considerable time elapsed before they reached him, and then they took their own lives in their hands when they made the perilous descent. They found Marlau unconscious, but still breathing. He died soon afterward.

The Coroner was notified and the body last night was brought to Pasadena. It is now at the morgue of Turner & Stevens.

COMES TO GRIEF.

Whitlock Johnson, prominent in the younger set of Pasadena society, who is to take one of the principle parts in the "Shogun" that will be presented tomorrow and Tuesday nights as a benefit for the Emergency League, undertook a novel method of advertising the show yesterday, but forgot about the police and got more advertising than he had reckoned on.

He appeared on the downtown streets of the city in a jinricksha drawn by a number of pretty young society women, who are also members of the cast. So intent were all on the fun of parading with the flower-bedecked vehicle that it never entered their heads they were advertising without a license, until Patrolman Farmer appeared upon the scene.

Upon the arrival of the policeman Johnson was deserted by the girls, and had to get out of his seat and accompany the bluecoat to headquarters, where he remained for a time, not knowing that the "arrest" had been made more in fun than in earnest. He was told to appear in Police Court next Monday morning.

Last night the jinricksha, with the advertising sign appended, was safely put behind a piece of thick plate glass in a Colorado-street storeroom window.

DELINQUENT TAXES.

The city of Pasadena derived approximately $10,000 yesterday from the sale of delinquent property. The city is now within one year of acquiring official title to the partially-constructed Wentworth Hotel. The hostelry has been sold to the city for taxes five consecutive years. The delinquency of the Wentworth Hotel property was $4459.02.

ALLEN RESIGNS.

Robert S. Allen, who last fall resigned as secretary to Mayor Thum to become the head, and, in fact, the entire personnel of the city efficiency bureau, yesterday tendered his resignation. Mayor Thum said last night that no successor will be named.

Recently the Mayor appointed an Efficiency and Economy Commission, but he said last night that this board will not take up the work that Allen was engaged in.

DOCTORS TO COME.

Several hundred doctors from different parts of the State are expected to attend the 1912 convention of the Southern California Medical Association, which convenes at the Hotel Maryland, next Tuesday. The meetings will extend through two days.

It is expected that the attendance this year will be larger than ever before, and a number of important questions will be discussed.

CITY BRIEFS.

Mayor Thum, Councilman Rhodes and City Attorney Carr will confer with the County Supervisors upon the subject of the abandonment of pigeries in the county, May 1, next Monday.

The Woodrow Wilson Club is planning a rally at the Board of Trade rooms, next Monday night.

The City Charter Revision Commission announced yesterday that should any organization in the city so desire, it will send speakers to public meetings that may be called to explain the provisions of the proposed charter amendments soon to be voted on.

To the programme of sports planned for visiting Shriners, May 6, has been added a polo match between the Red and White teams of the Pasadena Polo Club. The game will be played at Tournament Park.

The Young Men's Christian Association is receiving donations of food, money and clothing for the Mississippi Valley flood sufferers.

There was a large attendance at a meeting held last night at the rooms of the Board of Trade, under the auspices of the Citizens' Association. The proposed charter amendments, to be voted on at the coming election were discussed.

POMONA BRIEFS.

POMONA, April 27.—About 11:30 o'clock last night, T. J. Parker and W. T. Fleming discovered a fire in the store formerly occupied by F. M. Asher, and prompt action on their part averted a serious fire and one which, if it had gained headway, might have burned the north side of Second street from Main to Thomas streets. The fire was the result of spontaneous combustion originating in oil cleaning rags.

At Trinity Methodist Church last evening a large audience listened to Bishop Oldham, who has recently returned from the Philippines, to attend the general conference in Minneapolis. Bishop Oldham told of the people of the Philippines and the missionary work that is being done there, and a collection of $400 was taken for work in the Far East.

PUBLIC WILL BELIEVE TAFT.

Roosevelt's Insults Will Not Affect Nation's Chief.

Character of the President Is Absolutely Spotless.

Ex-Governor Gillett Arouses Enthusiasm of Voters.

AZUSA, April 27.—"Nearly all the public men in the country have at one time or another been placed by Col. Roosevelt in what has been called the Ananias Club," said former Governor Gillett in his speeches tonight, referring to the wild burst from Roosevelt that followed the dignified speech of President Taft in which the falsity of Roosevelt's statements was clearly proved. Gillett spoke with regret of the ex-President's methods and conduct and deplored the vituperation that he had injected into the campaign. That the Colonel would dare to dispute the word of President Taft, whose truth and loyalty never had been questioned, had not been believed possible even from Roosevelt, but it had been done, said the speaker. It was unpardonable, but the people would never for an instant doubt the President.

Gillett spoke to short meetings tonight here, at Glendora and at Covina, all of which were well-attended, many coming in from their orchards in teams and automobiles to hear him. He was accompanied by R. W. Richardson and traveled in an automobile. The arduous campaign of the previous two days, during which he had made many speeches and visited the country lying between Riverside and the sea, seemed to have had no effect upon the speaker, whose voice was strong and whose sincerity carried conviction to his hearers.

He spoke of his previous two campaigns in this part of the State and said it had not been his intention again to take the platform, but when President Taft as a candidate for re-election, was assailed, he felt that the honor of California was at stake. California owed much to Taft, who had been her friend at all times, he said, and he told how the President had turned the great influence of the White House in favor of the Pacific Coast when it was a question of New Orleans or San Francisco for the Panama exposition. He mentioned other instances of friendship. "I am a candidate for no office at your hands," he went on, "and I believe I have received all the honors from the people to which I am entitled. But I believe it to be my duty at this time to take the platform again in behalf of the candidacy of the best friend California ever had in the White House, William Howard Taft."

The gravity of the situation, should the vote of the Republicans in California not be given to President Taft, the former Governor said was something that could not be emphasized with too forcible words. The insurgents—the so-called "Progressives"—denied that the tariff was an issue, Gillett continued, and would not say a word about it; but their Democratic friends and allies did not say the contrary. Champ Clark, Woodrow Wilson, Judson Harmon and all the candidates for the Democratic nomination make no concealment of their intention to have a tariff for revenue only and to reduce the present tariff by placing all protected commodities on the free list.

"Only a few weeks ago the Democrats in Congress placed lemons on the free list," said Gillett. "It is a fact that olive oil and walnuts are to be placed on the free list by the Democratic party, and you know what is being done with sugar. Every time the question of removing the duty entirely from sugar came up in Congress, 25 or 30 of the so-called 'progressives,' members of the insurgent wing of the Republicans in Congress, voted with the Democrats."

The progressives were now supporting Roosevelt in this State as in other States, the speaker went on, and he showed that they must vote with their fellows in Congress were they successful and Roosevelt would be with them and the free list would be made to include oranges, lemons, sugar, walnuts and all that California has. "It will not take ten minutes," he declared, "to remove every vestige of a duty from every industry that California has." While a representative at Washington, two of the great Republican leaders had told him, Gillett explained, that the Republican party had made California the best protected State in the Union, and it was so. He referred to raisins grown in Fresno and on which the entire prosperity of that community rests, and showed how Chester Rowell, who with Johnson is going up and down the State for Roosevelt, was really seeking to cut the throat of his own people. He spoke of the ridiculous accusations brought against the administration by the insurgent-progressives, and exclaimed indignatly: "It is such talk as theirs that makes Socialists and you have to think about them—there were 52,000 of them voted at the last city election in Los Angeles."

Stripping the mask from Roosevelt's pretensions, he proved that Roosevelt was in this fight because of the suit to dissolve the Steel Trust, begun by the orders of President Taft after Roosevelt, when President, had favored that trust in every way. Roosevelt had written a defense of it, said the speaker, and spoken in defense of it, and now the Colonel foresaw that the Supreme Court was about to declare illegal and against the laws of the United States something that had received the strongest support at Roosevelt's hands. Gillett, amid frequent applause, ridiculed the notion that the President, who since entering into office had caused the dissolution of Standard Oil, the tobacco trust, the meat trust, the harvester trust and others of similar importance, was being supported by the people whom he had caused to be destroyed and he went on to show that the Congress that was now being accused of having been under the control of the corporations, was the very stand-pat Congress that had passed the Sherman law and the Interstate Commerce Act, under which the prosecutions had been carried under the direction of President Taft, to a successful conclusion. The former Governor will spend today in rest.

CHILDREN NEED PASADENA CARS.

WILL BURN CITY GAS.

Los Angeles Corporation Absorb Inglewood Plant and Makes Connections With the Local Plant.

INGLEWOOD, April 27.—The Los Angeles Gas and Electric corporation, which recently purchased the plant and system of the Inglewood Gas Company, has completed the work of laying the mains from the Los Angeles plant to this city and commencing May 1, gas will be supplied here direct from Los Angeles. The Los Angeles rate of 80 cents will go into effect at that time instead of the former rate of $1.50, that prevailed with the Inglewood company.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Mrs. M. Shea, who, for the past two years has been principal of the Inglewood grammar school and who, for the past six years, has taught here, has tendered her resignation to the school board.

The grammar school has been closed for two weeks on account of the prevalence of scarlet fever here. There will be no Sunday-school tomorrow at any of the churches for the same reason. At present there are six cases in the city.

The marriage of Miss Hannah Hall, until recently, a teacher in the grammar schools here, to James Stewart Wells of Delano, Cal., was celebrated last evening in the Holy Trinity Church of Covina.

NEW CLUB HOUSE.

GLENDALE, April 27.—After more than three years of earnest effort the members of the Glendale Tuesday Afternoon Club can now get a faint glimpse of the object of their labors—a new, modern clubhouse. The campaign for dollars has been waged under the direction of the committee on building and lands in a quiet but determined manner, until now the amount in this building and lands treasury foots up to about $450. The club is now considering an offer made this week to the club of a lot on Fifth street between Kenwood and Jackson streets. The lot is 50 by 150 feet and is situated in one of the finest locations in the city. The matter of a site will come up at the next meeting, May 14, when a decision will be reached. At that time a proposition for the benefit of the club will be presented by the buildings and lands committee.

High-O-Me

That's the Proper Way to Pronounce HYOMEI, the Famous Catarrh Remedy Made from Australian Eucalyptus and Other Antiseptics—Just Breathe It.

It Banishes Catarrh

Getting rid of catarrh is an easy matter if you will only use a common sense method.

Germs cause catarrh. You know that, and you also know that in order to end catarrh you must destroy the germs. Sprays and douches will not kill the germs. Liquid cannot penetrate into the folds and crevices of the mucous membrane of the nose and throat. Neither can it reach the lungs or even the tubes that lead to the lungs.

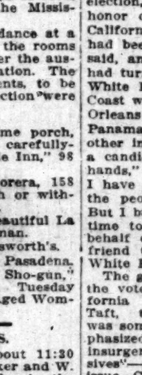
In every HYOMEI outfit, which is sold by druggists everywhere, there is a bottle of antiseptic liquid that will kill catarrh germs.

Pour a few drops of this liquid into the little hard rubber inhaler which comes with the outfit and breathe this now antiseptic vaporized air over the membrane of the nose and throat infested with catarrh germs.

It's pleasant, soothing and healing, is this vaporized air, and it is really the only remedy known that can reach and destroy catarrh germs and end the misery and humiliation that catarrh causes. Complete outfit $1.00. Extra bottles of HYOMEI if needed cost 50 cents. Druggists everywhere sell HYOMEI. It is guaranteed not to contain cocaine, opium or other habit-forming drugs.

HARDLY ABLE TO WALK.

"I Took Peruna and It Has Done Wonders for Me."



Mrs. M. P. Curry.

Mrs. M. P. Curry, P. O. Box 615, Petersburg, Ill., writes: "I have been troubled with internal catarrh since my girlhood, and was sick in bed three months.

When I was able to get up I was so weak and thin I could hardly walk. What I ate disagreed with me. I had stomach and liver trouble, and my feet and limbs were swollen so I could scarcely drag around.

"I took Peruna and it has done wonders for me. My cure was a surprise to my friends, for they never expected to see me well again. I just took two bottles of Peruna after doctoring for five months and growing worse all the time."

South Pasadena.

ENGINEER REPORTS ON OUTFALL SEWER PROJECT.

SOUTH PASADENA, April 27.—At the meeting of the Inter-City Commission of eighteen in the City Hall, South Pasadena, last evening, the engineer retained by the commission to investigate the outfall sewer problem, F. H. Olmstead, made his first preliminary report. He stated at the outset that the plan was entirely practicable of taking the sanitary sewage of the valley to Alamitos Bay or that it might, perhaps, be found preferable to take it to Newport Bay, not routing by way of Fullerton, Anaheim and Santa Ana, but rather uniting with a trunk line from those cities.

"From an engineering point of view," said Mr. Olmstead, "it is a comparatively easy problem. The right of way, the right to discharge the sewage into the ocean, and the matter of purification are the real problems. It is of supreme importance that the matter has been taken up this early. It is easy to look back and see our mistakes. Ten or twelve years ago when I was City Engineer of Los Angeles there was talk of a big conduit in Spring street to take care of all electric wires and pipes. It was felt that the project was too costly to be undertaken at that time, yet if it had been done it would have proved an asset to the city by this time, and eventually it will have to be done anyhow, and at a greatly increased cost.

"So with this outfall. It will be much more difficult to overcome the obstacle in the future; it would have been less difficult in the past. At the present time there would be little objection to an outlet for the sewage anywhere between Anaheim landing and Newport Bay, but in five years from now with the influx of population, it will be much more difficult to find your outlet. It is not going to be easy now."

Meanwhile, Mr. Olmstead stated, he is working out an equitable basis upon which the cost of the preliminary work can be divided among the eighteen cities which recently formed the Outfall Trunk Line Sewer Commission. These cities are Alhamra, Artesia, Azusa, Claremont, Compton, Covina, Downey, Glendora, Lordsburg, Monrovia, Norwalk, Pasadena, Pomona, Rivera, San Dimas, South Pasadena, San Gabriel and Whittier. From each of these he is obtaining information as to population, area and assessed valuation in order that there may be a division of cost which will fairly represent the benefits to each community of the work proposed.

It was agreed by both Mr. Olmstead and the members of the commission that the most important matter to be decided at once was the obtaining of a competent secretary, to work in harmony with all the cities interested, and keep all posted on the progress being made. The Outfall Sewer Association has authorized the employment of such an official, and John D. Reavis, president, and Robert Jordan, vice-president, of both the sewer association and the Inter-City Commission, have been appointed to act with Mr. Olmstead in obtaining the required person.

Mr. Reavis reported that he believed the San Pedro franchise problem, affecting the congestion in interurban traffic, had been practically settled through the Los Angeles Railway Company consenting to accept a third-rail franchise on San Pedro street and give the service which the property owners demanded as the price of admitting the Pacific Electric cars to the street as an outlet to the north and east, in the harmonizing of the warring elements the Inter-City Commission having taken an active part.

The commission passed a vote of thanks to Councilman MacKenzie of Los Angeles for having virtually, single-handed, procured the ordering of the reduction in grade of the Broadway Tunnel, which will give a level, through road from the center of Los Angeles to the center of Pasadena. One of the possibilities of this road suggested by Mr. Reavis was the establishing of decorative electric light posts from one end of this route to the other, to be known as "The Lighted Way."

THE BRONCHIAL TUBES.

When catarrh of the head or throat is neglected, or wrongfully treated, it extends down the windpipe into the bronchial tubes and after a while attacks the lungs.
Have you a cough? Do you take cold easily?
Have you a pain in the side?
Do you raise frothy materials?
Do you spit up little cheesy lumps?
Do you feel like you were growing weaker?

OF THE EARS.

Catarrh extends from the throat along the eustachian tubes into the ears, causing partial or complete deafness.
Is your hearing failing?
Do your ears discharge? Do they ring?
Is the wax drying in your ears?
Do you hear better on some days?
Does a cold make your hearing worse?
Don't neglect this until your hearing is irreparably destroyed.

OF THE STOMACH.

Catarrh of the stomach is usually caused by swallowing poisonous mucous which drops down from the head and throat at night. Are you constipated?
Do you belch up gas? Is there nausea?
Do you bloat up after eating?
Is there constant bad taste?
Now is the time to be permanently cured. Drs. Shores are curing hundreds every year.

POISONED CANDY.

Colliver Cooley, 8-year-old son o Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cooley, died a the family residence, 446 Sixth street today from eating poisoned candy The child had purchased colored chocolate, eating a portion, and was taken violently ill, dying after sev eral hours fearful suffering. Coroner Fullerton anu the city health author ities are making a thorough investi gation.

OPENS CAMPAIGN.

William E. Smythe of San Diego, opened the La Follette campaign here last night with an inspiring talk to thirty citizens. The speaker took the occasion to score Roosevelt and John son. He said that Mr. Taft is against the recall of the judiciary. "But he is against it all the time and everywhere. Mr. La Follette is likewise for it all the time and everywhere. He would make it possible to recall Justices of the Supreme Court."

Mr. Roosevelt in his last western trip was against the recall of the judiciary until he crossed the Colorado River. Then he met Heney or someone else, and when informed that he was in bad, he changed his principles, and next day at Los Angeles was for the recall after a most strenuous fashion."

VITAL DRAWBACK.

A bad jolt in the road at Cucamonga is supposed to be a vital drawback to the acceptance of the Foothill boulevard plan for a link in the State highway. This bad turn in the road has been pointed out to the Cucamonga people by R. E. Swing, one of the county committee appointed to keep track of the State highway plans. It is believed that the Cucamonga ranchers will be able to eliminate the turn, and in that way make it possible to present the Foothill boulevard in more attractive form. It is pointed out that because of the number of incorporated towns reached by the proposed boulevard route, the mileage necessary to be maintained by the State is six miles less than would be by the proposed valley route.

LUMBER DEAL.

According to schedule the government opened bids at San Francisco yesterday for the sale of over a billion feet of timber on the various forest reserves. Of this timber over 1400 cords are juniper, on the reserve above Hesperia. The larger amount of timber sold is yellow pine, fir and cedar, in the high Sierras back of Fresno and timber in the Shasta country. The sale is in harmony with the policy of the forestry service to cut out all timber that has reached its maturity and will deteriorate, and by removing the old timber make room for the younger growth.

AGAINST TRUST.

The business interests of San Bernardino are lining up for a war against the cement trust. It is claimed that owing to the severe operations of the trust building is practically held up here. In explaining the situation it is stated that notwithstanding that this city is under the very shadow of two big cement plants cement cannot be purchased here at less than what it is sold for at Los Angeles, plus the freight from here to Los Angeles, though in shipping cement here it comes direct from the factory to town, never going nearer than sixty-five miles of Los Angeles.

RAMBLING HILL MAKES TROUBLE.

San Bernardino - Riverside Boundary Unsettled.

Question Will Go to the Attorney-General.

Vital Drawback to Adoption of Foothill Route.

SAN BERNARDINO, April 27.—If there's a way found to stake down a crawling hill the boundary dispute between Riverside and San Bernardino counties will be settled permanently. In the old Spanish grant, a monument marking a corner was located on a hill near Chino. Years gradually ate the monument away. In 1878 Engineer Finkle relocated the corner, but later years again devoured it.

Gradually the hill on which the monument was located crawled away. Since then it has moved over 900 feet. Riverside insists that the corner should follow the hill on its wanderings. This would now lose San Bernardino eight acres, valued at $4000. The general route of the hill is toward Chino, therefore in a little matter of 100 years the Chino sugar factory and a rich farming section would be in Riverside county.

County Surveyor Bright of San Bernardino contests the right of the hill to always remain a corner of the original grant, and proposes to call in the Attorney-General and Surveyor-General to settle the disputa.

UNPRECEDENTED PROSPERITY.

Settlement Is Growing More Rapidly Than at Any Period in Its History.

Special Dispatch.

FULLERTON, April 27.—Contracts were let this week for three new residences which with the other building improvements now under way makes the present period a record-breaker in the amount of building in Beaumont. S. F. Smiley of Pasadena, will build two handsome bungalows on Sixth street, near Beaumont avenue. James McCann, who recently moved here from Sawtelle, will erect a modern six-room bungalow on the west side of Beaumont avenue. Work is progressing on the B. S. Casey store building. The lots have been cleared for the large business structure to be erected by Mrs. M. M. Fisher opposite the postoffice. Others who are making extensive additions to their homes are A. M. Belford, A. T. Gantt and J. J. McCoy.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Louis Provo purchased this week of Mrs. M. M. Fisher the business structure and lot opposite the depot now occupied as a pool hall. The new owner will enlarge and improve the building.

Arrangements have been completed for the extension of the local telephone system to accommodate fifty new subscribers. Applications are already in from twenty-five persons who will have 'phones installed as soon as the new lines are strung.

R. E. Williams has purchased of Hugh McDonald a one-half interest in the Beaumont market.

Judge Holton Webb and S. S. Patterson of Riverside, addressed a meeting of the Taft Republicans here Wednesday night.

George M. Kimball has purchased of James McCann eight and one-half acres of fruit land in Cherry Valley. The reported consideration is $2500.

Mrs. J. O. Tillery was hostess at a largely attended meeting of the San Gorgonio Club. The subject of the session was, "Early Pioneer Days of California."

The following standing committees for the Board of Trade have just been appointed: Civic—D. H. Spruill, J. J. McCoy and N. C. Beebe. Advertising—K. R. Smoot, George A. Lee and Charles Budden. Entertainment—W. P. Keasbey, F. C. Martin and J. O. Tillery. Membership—F. D. Campbell, D. H. Spruill, J. W. Elder, W. A. Sewell and W. A. Henderson.

FREE MAIL DELIVERY.

Fullerton Postal Receipts Warrant Metropolitan Service Which is Soon to be Instituted—Short News.

FULLERTON, April 27.—Fullerton will have free city mail delivery within a few months, as soon as the requirements are complied with. The total receipts for the four quarters ending March 31 of the city postoffice were $10,997, a gain of $1359 over one year ago. This places Fullerton in the free delivery class. Postmaster Edwards will take the matter of the city meeting the requirements up with the Chamber of Commerce.

WILL SELL BONDS.

The sale of $146,000 of good roads bonds will take place Monday night and bond buyers were informed today to submit bids. One of the roads to be macadamized extends three miles north and will be a part of the State highway through La Habra from Los Angeles. The City Council last night appointed W. J. Renshaw as City Engineer and Rod Stone as City Marshal.

Francis Cuttle of Riverside and B. J. Weisel of Anaheim addressed a meeting of the Fullerton Roosevelt Club last night at the bank hall. A permanent organization was effected with B. G. Balcom as chairman and W. J. Newell as secretary.

Seneca M. Sheldon, aged seventy-five years, brother-in-law of B. G. Balcom, president of First National Bank passed away at the Fullerton Hospital last night after a long illness. The body was interred at Anaheim this afternoon.

FORMER WHITE STAR MAN DERIDES INVESTIGATION.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SANTA BARBARA, April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Capt. E. Price Mitchell, formerly in the service of the White Star Line, who would have been the captain of either the Titanic or the Olympic had he remained with the company, and who is considered an expert on affairs marine, declares that the Senate investigation of the Titanic horror is more or less of a fiasco. In an interview today he said:

"The Senate should have appointed an investigating committee of marine experts including a shipbuilder, a marine engineer, an Atlantic sea captain, an officer of the hydrographic office—all being selected for their proved ability and experience. This committee, instead of asking puerile and utterly irrelevant questions, and expressing amateur opinion in the preliminary stages of the investigation, would have conducted the court in a professional and dignified manner, only technical and pertinent evidence would have been extracted from the witnesses and due allowance would have been made for the individual idea of each witness. This committee would have made a valuable expert report to the Senate with suggestion for future legislation for safeguarding the lives of those who travel by water.

"I can imagine the feelings of our naval experts—and we have some of world-wide repute in this country—on reading many of the absurd questions asked by the committee of Senators and pseudo marine experts, for instance, 'Are not the water-tight compartments safe places for the women and children in time of danger?'

"I may mention that the water-tight compartments referred to is the space between the ship's bottom and her next floor, which is called the ceiling. This space is divided into compartments by fore and aft, and also athwartship bulkheads, and are accessible through manholes, which are round holes just large enough for a man to squeeze through; when a ship strikes anything and the ship's bottom is pierced the water floods one or more compartments, but the ship floats except in a case like the Titanic, where so many of the compartments were flooded that the specific gravity of the vessel was destroyed and she foundered. Then, again, the opinion of an ignorant sailor, 'that, had he been supplied with a pair of binoculars, he would have seen the iceberg in time and thereby avoided the collision,' is taken seriously. Any bridge officer knows that all glasses darken the horizon at night and are practically useless except for picking up lights.

"Again several witnesses testified that they actually saw 'everything that happened,' and their statements appear to have been taken literally. As a mater of fact, the circumference of one deck of the Titanic was nearly one-third of a mile long and there were several decks, and all were obstructed by houses and deck fittings, so that even if ten observers had been carefully stationed on each deck and a consensus of their reports taken, even then we would be short of some of the actual happenings.

"I think that the ultimate result of this wreck and loss of life will be much-needed reforms in the Atlantic passenger trade, on something of the following order: All vessels to carry adequate boats, rafts and sufficient sailors to man them, and if this is not possible then a gradual return to smaller vessels, with a carrying capacity of not over 1200 people (The Titanic's full complement was about 5000) and a more southerly route during the dangerous season, even at the expense of an extra few hours. This will also save the lives of many of the bank fishermen, the annual loss of life among them unseen and unheard, is much greater than most people suppose. The wireless system on duty on every moment of the voyage.

"Two powerful searchlights, to be carried so that on a dark, but clear night, when ice is known to be in the vicinity of the vessel, these lights may be used to advantage. The Carpathia had no means of picking up the small boats of the Titanic except by the light of day. A storage battery with sufficient power to keep all the principal lights burning at least four hours. These batteries should be on one of the upper decks, so that in case of accident it would be the last thing afloat.

"All boats should be compelled to carry at all times fresh water, sealed tins of hardtack and two globe lamps, trimmed and ready for use, with a water-tight pocket of matches attached to each lamp and six signal rockets, capable of being seen at least five miles distant. And last, but most important of all, it will be fully recognized and understood, that no ship is unsinkable, that the unexpected often happens and that eternal vigilance is demanded, from the weighing of anchor to the dropping of it."

San Jacinto.

FRENCH MAIDEN SHOWS COURAGE.

SAN JACINTO MEN AMAZED BY HER BRAVERY.

Daring Miss Explores Wild Country and Wins Title of "Commercial Joan of Arc"—Civic Club Plans to Hold an Agricultural and Horticultural Exposition.

SAN JACINTO, April 27.—Miss Edmee Nicholas, a young French saleslady in a local department store, has demonstrated this week that she is entitled to all the privileges of the franchise.

The store in question runs an auto delivery truck to the Winchester, Auld and French Valley country, the trip covering a distance of seventy-five miles. This week the big auto was out of repair and the driver refused to attempt the long, hard trip by team. None of the other men in the store were familiar with the country, and it looked as though the trip must be abandoned, although many families, miles from railroads and towns, were depending upon the delivery car for their week's supply of provisions.

At this point a modern Joan of Arc in the business world appeared in the person of Miss Nicholas, who declared that she would "deliver the goods." Men argued against it; the route meant a two days' trip at least by team; roads were rough, and there were many long, lonely stretches; a journey that men shrank from should not be undertaken by a woman.

The big wagon was piled high with provisions and amid the good wishes of the store force the courageous young lady drove away. Just before sunset at the close of the second day the travel-stained girl drove her weary team up to the store, the wagon now loaded with eggs and butter, gathered from the ranch houses in the two days' journey, and the manager declares that more orders were taken for next week's delivery than have ever before been received.

Miss Nicholas is a native Californian of French parentage. She was brought up on a ranch, where she learned to ride colts, to drive two, four and six horses and to shoot all kinds of firearms. She is as much at home on the hurricane deck of a California bronco as she is behind the drygoods counter selling fine silks to my lady of fashion. Since her trip of this week Miss Edmee is quite the heroine of the town.

COUNTY FAIR.

The San Jacinto Board of Trade, working with the Civic Club, is arranging for a big agricultural and horticultural fair to be given here this fall. Souvenir postal cards advertising San Jacinto are being distributed by the board in connection with newspaper, booklet and other means of advertising now being used by the Board of Trade. The Board of Trade is also arranging for a big barbecue to which all Southern California will be invited.

NEWS BRIEFS.

An all-day Sunday-school convention of the San Jacinto Valley was held in the Christian Church today. Sunday-schools of San Jacinto, Hemet, Little Lake, Valle Vista and Winchester participated and addresses were made by some of the best-posted workers in the State. Among the speakers were Rev. Orin B. Waite of Los Angeles, Miss Mamie Brockway and Dr. H. A. Dowling.

Dr. J. M. France has purchased the Abbott place on Central avenue. It is understood the consideration is $1500. Mr. and Mrs. Abbott expect to leave in a short time for Florida to reside. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Lettner also report that they have sold their home place on Seventh street to new arrivals in San Jacinto, who will at once improve the property. C. Tripp and Jack Hopkins have bought the eight-acre improved property of George K. Fox on Stephen avenue.

Nat Goodwin is installing a forty-horse-power electric motor to be used in connection with his pumping plant on his San Jacinto ranch. A new pump is also being installed, having a 200-inch capacity.

B. J. Inwall was elected City Treasurer of the city at a special meeting of the Trustees this week, to succeed J. W. Ryan, deceased.

The members of St. Paul's Church held their annual meeting and elected the following officers for the year: J. Carmichael, treasurer; G. B. Hannahs, clerk; Gus Matthews, warden. The church has recently sold its hall for $1000 and this amount will be placed in a fund to be used in building a rectory.

FILES WRITTEN CHARGES.

Former Assistant Engineer for the Public Utilities Board Puts Black on White.

A. T. Stewart who, until his trouble last week with the Board of Public Utilities, was assistant engineer of that department filed with the Mayor his charges against the board yesterday. He gives it ashis belief that his statements show the unfitness of some of the members to hold the positions they occupy and says: I am convinced that a thorough, intelligent and honest investigation of the department will result in good to the city."

Stewart charges that President Foulks is not fitted to hold such an office either by temperament, general education, or a proper conception of its requirements. He charges that Foulks has attempted to use his office as a means of witholding from the public information which it is a part of the duty of the board to keep available for the public and that the whole conduct of the affairs of the board by the incumbents has shown an utter lack of conception of the proper functions of such board, or a lack of ability to handle them on a par with similar commissions elsewhere.

Eight or nine pages are used by Stewart in backing his charges with instances illustrating them. He charges that Foulks has not sufficient command of the English language to write a clear and intelligent letter replying to questions coming to the office, and that the answering of complaints and matters between the city and the public utility companies is turned over to a $90 clerk to decide questions that should be handled by the president or be referred to engineers.

Stewart asserts in his charges that Foulks "took him over the coals" for giving citizens information in response to inquiries about the Eagle Rock Railway line using crossings of streets over which it had no franchise, and says he was told by Foulks that he should not give out information. He also has a grievance against the way the board treated his endeavors to explain data in reference to a proposed re-routing of street cars.

The Mayor has said that he would take up the matter of an investigation when Stewart filed his written charges and it is possible some move will be made in this line Monday.

COTTON PICKERS NEEDED.

Negroes Interested in Movement to Send Members of Their Race to Valley to Assist Farmers.

A movement that has been instituted in Los Angeles for the betterment of the condition of negroes who come here from the South, and which is commended by some of the leading negroes of this city, is likely to be the means of sending to Imperial Valley a number of the best negro cotton farmers who come from the southern cotton belt to California.

For some time past leaders of the negro citizenship here have felt that members of their race who come from farming districts of the South should be urged to get out into the agricultural districts of Southern California, rather than to seek locations in the city.

To this end a company of colored men have been making an inspection of conditions and lands in Imperial Valley. In the party were J. L. Edmonds, editor of the Liberator, a local negro newspaper; G. Woodson Wickliffe, a local attorney, and T. N. Alexander. These men made a thorough inspection of Imperial Valley from Brawley to Calexico, and were amazed at what is being done in cotton growing there, especially in the volunteering of cotton.

These men, who have just returned from the valley, believe they will be doing the best class of southern negroes a good service by inducing them to go to Imperial Valley and engage in cotton growing, and that this will also be of service to the valley residents, as it will furnish an abundance of experienced labor for the cotton fields.

ADMIRAL THOMAS RETIRES.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—[By A. P. Day Wire.] Rear-Admiral Chauncey Thomas was placed on the retired list of the navy today on account of age. He was appointed to the naval academy from Pennsylvania in 1867. His active service ended when he relinquished command of the Pacific fleet about two months ago.

Riverside.

RICH STRIKE BY A CANDIDATE.

RIVERSIDE MAN DISCOVERS AN UNCHARTED VOTERS' NEST.

Inyo and Mono People So Pleased at Being Discovered that They May Fall in Line Solidly—School Debate on Labor Question Is Settled Sanely.

RIVERSIDE, April 27.—It has remained for ex-Mayor S. C. Evans, who defeated Francis Cuttle in the postcard primary with reference to the congressional candidacy, to find a new and promising field for votes. He has just returned from Inyo and Mono counties, now a part of the Eleventh District, and reports that he was greeted as the first candidate who had visited those counties in years.

"I take it that my visit was somewhat of a novelty to those people," says Evans. "There are not many votes up there, probably 600 or 700; but then that number would be quite a factor in swinging almost any election."

So far as the Riverside High School is concerned, there is no justification for the "closed shop." In the debate last evening between the Redlands and local schools, Riverside was adjudged victorious by a two-to-one vote in her support of the negative of the question, "Resolved, that in labor disputes, workmen are justified in demanding as a condition of settlement that their employers agree to employ only members of trade unions."

Redlands was represented by Miss Ruth Davis and Roscoe Anderson, and Riverside by Archie Robinson and Claire Anspach. The latter's forceful rebuttal won for him an enthusiastic demonstration. San Bernardino and Chaffey Union High Schools being out of the contest in the Citrus Belt League, the trophy now lies between Riverside and Redlands.

White Park was given over to an unusual cause this afternoon, when the musical and literary talent of the city gave of their services to a benefit concert for the survivors of the Titanic disaster.

Stationed at the park entrances were the girls of the Sunshine Society in white gownsl. On their sleeves were pinned a little red cross as a bade of their gracious office. They took charge of the sale of admission tickets, which were 10 cents, or any larger amount that the patrons of the event felt they could pay. A very snug sum was realized for the worthy charity.

Mayor Peters presided at the exercises, features of which were the concert numbers of the Riverside Military Band and a chorus from Handel's "Judas Maccabaeus," presented by the Riverside Oratorio Society.

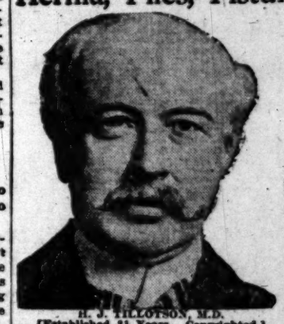
CURED IN FIVE DAYS

Hernia, Piles, Fistula and Varicose Veins



H. J. TILLOTSON, M.D.

[Established 31 Years. Copyrighted.]

I publish my true photograph, correct name and personally conduct my office. I am the longest established, most successful and reliable, as medical credentials and press records prove. Imitation of my copyrighted announcement is an evidence that I am a bona-fide specialist. I make this statement that you will know you consult a Specialist who sees and treats patients personally. I possess skill and experience acquired in such a way that no other can share. Experience is the safe standard by which judgment may be valued and results obtained.

A thorough investigation should be made by every ailing person as to the specialist he consults. Duty and destiny to self and those who depend upon you demand the best medical attention. I have the ability and can give you this service. I have always charged a very reasonable fee, so that my services may be obtained by any man who sincerely desires to be cured. I make no misleading statements or unbusinesslike propositions; Neither do I desire to be particularly independent, and I would like to have you for a patient if you will come to me on a strictly professional basis, and the inducements that I offer, which are my ability and thirty-one years' successful experience. Time-saving treatment and guarantee of cure of certain diseases.

NO MONEY REQUIRED TO COMMENCE TREATMENT. Many patients have no confidence in their doctor because he demands pay before a cure has been effected, and there are many who have been misinformed about their condition, or through unsuccessful treatment have become skeptical and think there is no cure for them. I want an opportunity to treat such cases. It makes no difference about the financial part, as I accept pay for my services as benefits are derived; when I am satisfied the patient is reliable. Health is capital at interest. I will prove my ability to cure you before asking pay for my services.

WRITTEN GUARANTEE.

Dr. Tillotson's written guarantee means a cure or no pay for services. I guarantee to cure certain diseases or refund every dollar you have paid me for my services. My services cost you nothing unless I cure your Varicose Veins, Hernia, Piles, Fissures, Fistula or any disease I guarantee to cure. My terms are reasonable and no more than you are willing and able to pay.

READ MY BOOK—It contains information every young man, husband and father should have regarding himself. Book Sent Free to those who, in my opinion, will be benefited by it. Call or write before treating for disease or disorders.

Many Cases Cured Permanently in FIVE DAYS. Most Time-Saving, Most Natural, Most Safe. No Detention from Occupation, Family or Home. A Radical and Permanent Cure. I Will Give $500 to Any Charity as a Guarantee That Every Statement in This Announcement is True.

I cure rapidly, painlessly and at small expense. Cured patients are my testimonials; however, I do not make patients' names merchandise by publishing them. I will give conclusive evidence of my merit, which is obtained and maintained by ability. I invite you to come to my office. I will explain my treatment for Hernia, Piles, Fistula, Varicose Veins, Pelvic, Nervous, Blood, Kidney, Bladder and Rectal Diseases. I will give you free a physical examination; if necessary a microscopical and chemical analysis of secretions to determine existing pathological and bacteriological conditions. Every person should take advantage of this opportunity to learn their true condition. Certainty of cure is what you want.

VARICOSE VEINS.

In the cure of Varicose Veins, Rupture and Associate Diseases of the Pelvic Region, I am successful in bringing to bear the curative power of Nature's forces in such a manner as to supplant the old-time, wide-open surgical operation. Once it required several weeks to cure these conditions and the method which some still use is such as to endanger the life of the patient and require a long period of convalescence. Now an absolute cure can be accomplished in a few days and with perfect safety.

TRUSSES SELDOM CURE RUPTURE.

Disregard for existing Hernias has cost many lives. The smallest hernias are the most dangerous to life, because of the increased liability to strangulation. I am aware that a great deal of fraud has been practiced on the public in connection with the alleged cure of rupture, and when I say positively that I cure Rupture, to stay cured, I do not expect any one to accept my statement without investigation of my professional work. My claim to your confidence is based on absolute facts, accomplished results. A personal consultation. I will make a free examination and can explain every detail of your Hernia and demonstrate to you the curative value of the method I have discovered. I invite the careful investigation of any person who sincerely desires to be cured. I cure Rupture, in selected cases, with perfect safety, and entail no suffering, and do not detain you from occupation under Written Guarantee. Many cases cured to stay cured by a few treatments.

PILES, FISTULA, RECTAL DISEASES.

These diseases are very common; most frequently found in persons of middle or advanced age; are exceedingly annoying, often very painful, and sometimes very dangerous, and frequently unfit one for pleasure or occupation. My treatment and successes are the result of years of experience; my treatment is kindly applied. I cure Piles without cutting. Some cases are cured by one or more treatments. If I do not cure your Piles, Fistula and other Rectal Diseases, my treatment does not cost you anything. Gentleness in treatment comes from treating many cases, so I guarantee a cure of Piles, Fistula, Ulcers and all curable Rectal Diseases.

KIDNEY AND BLADDER DISEASES.

With these diseases you may have more complications than are presented by any other diseased organs. By my searching illumination of the bladder I determine accurately the diseases and by my microscopical examination and urinalysis, make sure of the condition of the kidneys, thus laying foundations for scientific treatment.

I OFFER A FREE CONSULTATION AND EXAMINATION.

Men With Drink Habit Need the Neal Treatment

When Craving for Liquor Becomes Stronger than the Will-Power to Resist Scientific Treatment Is Needed

Drinking men are poisoned—poisoned with alcohol, which is the most insidious, soul and body-wrecking poison known.

When drinking has progressed so far that treatment is required, the drinker should not be dosed with so-called "secret cures" or given obsolete treatments, but should be placed under the care of competent physicians, who are thoroughly familiar with this particular line of work, and who administer a treatment which has been proven to be always effective and absolutely harmless.

The Neal Three Day Treatment, originated by Dr. Benj. E. Neal, is a harmless, vegetable remedy, administered internally, with the full knowledge and co-operation of the patient. It never fails to eliminate all alcohol from the system and neutralize its functional effect upon the body tissues, in three days' time, without the use of painful, dangerous hypodermic injections.

The Neal Drink and Drug Habit Treatment is now administered in fifty-three Neal Institutes in the United States, Canada and Australia, and after the most rigid test, for years, has been pronounced the most reliable and successful of all treatments for alcoholic poisoning.

The South Australian government adopted the Neal Treatment for use in the Government Inebriate Hospital at Adelaide, after a thorough investigation of all treatments for the alcohol evil in both continental countries and the United States.

For full particulars call at the Los Angeles Neal Institute, or write or phone G. U. Neal, manager for Dr. Neal's free book. Phone Bdwy. 4602, A4072.

FINANCIAL NEWS SUMMARY.

[Furnished by Logan & Bryan, Members New York and Boston Stock Exchanges, Bradbury building, Los Angeles.]

NEW YORK, April 27.—Utah Copper net profits in 1911 equal to $3.56 a share, against $4.45 in 1910.

State Department orders ship to Mexico to rescue Americans.

Business situation shows that recent improvement is being maintained, with better sentiment prevailing over labor troubles.

Engineers' conference continue, both sides hopeful of avoiding of strike.

Foreign trade in copper will approximate $120,000,000 for fiscal year of 1912.

Failures this week, 248, against 209 previous week.

Henry C. Frick, in London interview, says business outlook is good, but does not anticipate any boom.

Twelve industrials advanced .50 per cent. Twenty active rails advanced .32 per cent.

The coalers and coppers have been the conspicuous features taken in connection with various specialties in the trade the past week. Sentiment at the end of the week is rather hopeful about the settlement of the anthracite coal strike, and to the satisfactory progress which has been recorded in connection with the demands of the engineers.

The steel issues, notably those of the United States Steel, have been inclined to lag, in view of the fact that it is generally expected that the corporation's statement of earnings for the quarter ending with March will show net profits of less than $20,000,000.

In the above connection the fact apparently has been lost sight of that the disposition during the past month on the part of steel manufacturers has been to increase prices on finished products, and while it is quite true that new bookings have not been on as large a scale as previously, still the fact remains that the business now being accepted will permit of a greater profit than recently.

The fact that strikes have been averted have done much to produce a more cheerful feeling in commercial and industrial circles. However, a rather mixed report, emanating from agricultural sections, has tended in a measure to act as a restraining influence on the other hand it looks as if the chief drawback to forward tendencies, especially in the stock market, has been the labor questions.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKETS

Cheese declined from 1 to 2 cents a pound yesterday, following a period of weakness lasting ten days. The market held up until receipts of 15,868 pounds (double those of the preceding day) compelled a break in prices.

In the poultry list, hens declined 1 cent a pound, to 16 and 17 cents; and broilers 3 cents a pound, to 20 cents—wholesale prices. The producers' prices have been reduced in proportion, broilers declining early in the week.

White wax onions were quoted for the first time yesterday, the initial price being 2.25 a crate. New crop onions continued to arrive in increasing quantity, the receipts being 522 crates.

Other produce prices were unchanged. Potato receipts were heavy, amounting to 20,364 sacks. The market for them, under the recent 50-cent drop, continued weak, with indications for a further decline this week.

Eggs were steady; receipts being only 502 cases. Fifteen sacks of sweet potatoes arrived. Green vegetables were plentiful and sufficient to meet the usual heavy Saturday demand.

WHEAT SOARS TO HIGHER LEVELS.

REACHES POINT HIGHER THAN FOR SEVERAL YEARS.

Upward Turn Is Taken in Spite of Favorable Weather Conditions in Heavy Growing States—Corn Is Unchanged and Oats Slightly Off. Provisions Are Higher.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 27.—In the face of predictions of rain for Kansas and Nebraska, the wheat market advanced today to a point higher than for several years. Prices closed nervous and irregular, ½ to 2 1-8c above last night. Corn finished unchanged to 1-16@¼c up. Oats off ¼ to 3-8c and provisions higher by 5 to 35 cents.

July wheat ranged from 1.12¼ to 1.13⅜, closing at 1.13 1-8@¼, a gain of ¼c. July corn ranged from 77½ to 7-8c, and closed easy at 77 5-8@⅞c, an advance of a shade over last night. Spot grades, were steady, No. 2 yellow quoted at 82c.

July oats ranged from 54½ and 54 1-8c, with last sales ¼c net lower at 54¼.

Investment demand received the blame for a rise in the cost of provisions. Packers were liberal sellers at the advance. When the gong cleared the pit, pork had increased 27½ to 35c, lard 15 to 17½c and ribs 5 to 12½c.

THE CITY AND ENVIRONS.

BREVITIES.

What is regarded as the most valuable collection of rare antiques ever shown in Los Angeles is now on exhibition at 604 So. Hill St. Old rosewood and mahgany furniture, dressers, tables, bookcases, beds, etc., all rare specimens of the handwork of ancient times. Hungarian and Vienna glassware, old Chinese minton and other rare porcelains, bronze vases and figures, cloaks, brass firedogs, andirons, knockers and many other articles of bric-a-brac, which every lover of antiques would give anything to possess. Many of these articles have been in storage for years, prior to which time they were the proud collection of a wealthy Chicago lady who spared no expense in collecting them while traveling in all parts of the world. Everybody should take advantage of this opportunity to see this valuable collection and, better yet, regardless of their value, you can purchase any article you want at any price you are willing to pay, for they must be sold at auction to be held Monday and Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Thomas B. Clark, Auctioneer, 604 So. Hill St.

I will make you a pair of rimless gold-filled Shur-on style glasses with best lenses, toric shape, for $2, with examination. I make a specialty of eyesight; if it is defective, it causes many ailments, such as black spots floating before the eye, brain fag, watery eyes, blurred vision, nervous debility. I can relieve all this with my special ground lenses. If you see double I can stop that. If you have cataracts started I can detect them with my method of examination. I make Invisible Bifocals, two pairs of glasses in one; no lines, no cement. They are the latest and best; they are called Kryptok lenses. I make them as low as $8. I will duplicate any broken lens, save the pieces. I have the best gold-filled hair, pin or ear chain, 12k, for $1. Dr. A. M. Garfield, optometrist. Suite 417 and 19 Grant Bldg., 355 So. Broadway.

Strong line of women's suits at Harris & Frank's. Harris & Frank are offering a remarkable value in women's suits for tomorrow's selling. There are about fifty suits in the assortment, new garments shown for the first time. (See the advertisement in the society section.) They're tan, gray, blue and cream suits, chiefly, and while the values are from $25 to $45, they will be sold tomorrow at $19.50. A remarkable chance to get a new suit. The same firm (Harris & Frank) have a fine showing of women's suits in values from $25 to $35, late styles, and well-made garments, at only $19.50.

Play Day.

NATURE FAKING NOT HIS STUNT.

Mayor Refuses to Enter Cage of Lions for Picture.

Illinois Picnic Feature Is Too Much for Him.

Splendid Tribute Is Paid to Grant's Memory.

Illinois patriotism broke in a tidal wave over Eastlake Park and the wild animal farm at the Indian Village yesterday when 50% of its more than 10,000 members celebrated the ninetieth anniversary of the birth of U. S. Grant in one of the greatset picnics the Illinois Society of Southern California ever held here.

During the day 1200 members were enrolled and the State's 102 county associations held brief and spirited sessions which were like happy family reunions. Cook and Peoria counties turned out the largest gathering, but the Pike county attendants voted that no matter what they cook up in Cook county, Pike county has no pikers west of the Mississippi River.

So many features were crowded into the day that the animated programme filled many hours with sparkling entertainment. When it came to the wild animal show, Mayor Alexander cast a momentary shadow over the sunny occasion by refusing to enter the lion's den when the lions were present and in good working order, to pose for a moving picture machine, but in apologizing for this delinquency President Frank W. Blair explained that the Mayor is an Iowan, having been born in that State instead of in Illinois, where he lived for five years, whereas one must live in the State for ten years and play Chicago politics at that before an engagement with a hungry lion looks good to him. The Mayor squared himself by giving a speech and the lions roared as lustily as if they had dined on a Scotchman.

Shaded by a large tent the audience sang "America" and the Illinois State song and listened to speeches in memory of a great soldier and statesman.

U. S. Grant, it appeared, was born somewhere else, but moved to Illinois as soon as he discovered his mistake. He lived at Galena, going to West Point from there and to the war afterward. Many were present yesterday who were with Iowa and Illinois regiments in Grant's Thirteenth Army Corps in the Vicksburg campaign. Capt. W. C. Gibbon, introduced by President Blair, delivered the address of the day.

"Gen. Grant's first triumph," he said, "is quickly told. President Lincoln at first knew nothing of his coming into the army. A quiet, unobtrusive man, no political party heralded his worth. Indeed, he had found it difficult to obtain any recognition at first. West Point graduate though he was, he gladly accepted a subordinate position. He was always prompt in doing whatever was required of him and he seemed always to be looking for something to do. Such traits as these were what brought him at last in February of 1862 to the command of a movement in which President Lincoln was deeply interested. This was the capture of Ft. Henry and Donaldson.

"The President wrote Grant: 'Our success or failure at Ft. Donaldson is vastly important and I beg of you to put you soul in it.' Gen. Grant, ever careful and methodical, put his army of invasion in shape for success. When the Confederate commander at this fort wrote Gen. Grant regarding the terms of surrender, Grant replied, 'No terms except unconditional and immediate surrender can be expected. I propose to move immediately on your works.'

"It was as a result of this splendid victory that Grant was made a major-general and on July 16, 1862, he was placed at the head of the armies of the West. Political preference then, as now, was busily at work. Grant was doing something and winning promotion. His Ft. Donaldson success furnished pretext for a political conspiracy. Envious men went to Lincoln to urge Grant's removal. 'No,' said the President, 'I can't spare this man; he fights.' It is now that we find Grant before Vicksburg strongly fortified and well manned.

"Nine days after Vicksburg had fallen President Lincoln wrote Grant a letter which deeply touched the commander on account of its manly character and sincerity of tone.

"'I do not remember,' wrote the President, 'that you and I ever met personally. I write this now as a grateful acknowledgment for the almost inestimable services you have done the country.' Briefly the President outlined what he thought Grant should have done and added, 'I now wish to make a personal acknowledgment that you were right and I was wrong.'

"Even at this time Grant stood alone with his laurels. He had no friends at court. Lincoln, however, saw it was time to shut down this sort of thing and he did it by telling one of his famous stories. In making one final effort to dethrone Grant, the politicians in Congress charged that he was not fit to command the men under him because he drank too much whisky.

"'If it makes fighting generals like Grant,' replied the President, 'I should like to get some of it for distribution among some of the other generals.'

"The first time these immortal men met face to face was on March 9, 1864, after three years of war, three years of trusting confidence, three years of heroic effort to preserve the Union. From the hand of the President Grant received his commission as lieutenant-general in command of the whole army. Lincoln said: 'Gen. Grant, as the country herein trusts you, so under God it will sustain you.'"

Capt. Gibbon's address continued with the history of Grant and concluded with a brilliant summing up of the great man's splendid character.

The following officers conducted yesterday's affair: F. W. Blair, president; G. K. Barrere, past president; C. E. Snively, secretary; E. W. Murray, assistant secretary; Dr. D. D. Nice and R. J. Culver, vice-presidents; M. D. Hurley, chairman of the board of control, and E. W. Murray, Dr. W. C. P. Jaynes, Frank Maurer, C. L. Logan, G. H. Moore, Paul Howse, A. W. Brode, Joseph Karineck and W. W. Haskell, members of the board of control.

LETTERS TO "THE TIMES."

The Mocking Birds.

LOS ANGELES, April 27.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I would like to say a word through your paper in answer to the dear lady who wants the mocking birds arrested for disturbing her slumber.

Now, I had a very sweet experience at one time while living at Tropico. We had some lovely pepper trees, where a flock of birds held forth nightly. They seemed to be gossiping till after 12 and 1 at night.

One night, in particular, they kept up a ceaseless chatter, but next day there was not a bird on the trees. I asked my husband where they were. He said they had held a convention the night before and decided to go to the canyon to spend the day, as it was going to be so hot. Now I have great respect for the birds.

Those mocking birds that the lady complains of may have been a little loud in their joy over their new spring dress and Easter plumage, which Nature has so kindly given them. And in the very joy of their hearts, sang out excitedly in the very joy of living.

If we were as blessed as they are, to live in the open, in the trees, breathing nothing but pure air, instead of in close rooms, perhaps we, too, would call loudly to our mates in very gladness. Give us more mocking birds. Let them tell their sweet story.

Woman Orders Everyone to Leave Laretta Parish Home, and Is Arrested as an Insane Person.

Resisting vigorously the patrolman who sought to remove her from the premises, and asserting that the house belongs to her, accusing Father Donahue and others of having stolen it from her, Mrs. Margaret Morton, 50 years old, No. 961 East Edgeware road, was removed from the Laretta Parish House yesterday and taken to the Receiving Hospital on suspicion of being insane.

The woman went to the house earlier in the day and demanded that the occupants vacate.

Efforts were made to reason with the woman, but she was obdurate. Finally it was found necessary to summon aid from the Central Police Station. The Laretta Parish House is at No. 301 North Belmont avenue.

S. P. Bartlett, 28 years old, advertising manager of the municipal newspaper, walked into the hospital with a wooden splinter half an inch long under the nail of the middle finger of his right hand.

While trimming an electric lamp at No. 216 South Spring street, J. W. Norman, No. 412 Wall street, J. W., twelve feet and sustained a sprained ankle and a sprained little finger on the right hand.

M. Lopez, No. 1515 New High street, sustained a severe scalp wound when a brick fell from a house being reared on Western avenue.

Flying Robber.

"GREY GHOST" TERROR OF FOOTHILL CITIES.

Mysterious Auto Pirate in Swift Machine Sweeps About Night after Night Plundering as His Fancy Dictates. Valuables or Trifles Appeal to Him Alike—Knows and "Burns Up the Roads."

"GREY GHOST," a low-swung racing car, with its goggled, supposed owner at the wheel, and with the exhaust roaring and thundering a protest from its powerful engines, has been sweeping through Glendora and surrounding towns upon a piratical mission that has spread terror in its wake.

Along foothill boulevards, the stretch of well-paved road that leads from Los Angeles through Glendora, the pirate car and its owner have aped night after night upon marauding expeditions. It is only when the car is out on the boulevards, where other cars are wending their way to and from the little cities near the foothills, that the "Grey Ghost" is let loose with all its speed. Then it flashes by other automobiles, giving the occupants a moving-picture view of a swift-speeding car with a driver huddled behind the wheel, a mere blur of a human being, whizzing on.

Several times the "auto pirate" and his gray streak of a car have been seen by orange growers, who live along the boulevard. That he is the one who is committing the various depredations which have aroused residents along the mountain road has been made certain by traces that he has left after bold crimes. The men who have seen the driver of the "Grey Ghost," say he handles his car with all the skill of a professional racing driver, and that he evidently knows every turn of the roads in the surrounding country.

STEALS LARGE OR SMALL.

Evidence that the "Grey Ghost's" owner does not care what he takes and is as willing to commit a petty theft as a daring burglary of consequence, is shown by the fact that on one occasion he went so far as to steal a drilling machine belonging to a ranchman, who owns a place at Grand avenue and Foothill boulevard. The tracks of the automobile tires showed plainly where the "auto pirate" had driven up to the driller, had hitched the machine to the back of his car, and then sped away.

Two recent crimes in Glendora which are laid at the door of the "Grey Ghost's" owner are the burglaries of Edward J. Ashby's hardware store, on Michigan avenue, the business street of the little city, and the looting of Frank H. Mace's drygoods store, which is also located on Michigan avenue.

The hardware store was broken into and the thief evidently decided to outfit himself with weapons. He took two automatic pistols, a shotgun, a rifle, and several searchlights. He also stole ammunition. Evidently deciding that the rest of the stock was too cumbersome to carry, and that it would be hard to dispose of, he touched nothing else.

The burglary of the drygoods store showed that he evidently had an automobile capable of carrying a large load. A number of pairs of shoes and a quantity of drygoods were taken. The burglar was not seen by any of the residents of the foothill city, and he must have operated between 1:30 a.m. and daylight, as Marshal Frank Currey is on duty until 1:30 a.m., and he caught no sight either of the "Grey Ghost" or its owner and driver.

STRANGE FEATURES.

One of the strange features in connection with the case is the fact that the "auto pirate" seems to know every crook and turn in the roads leading in and about Glendora, Covina, Duarte, Monrovia, Claremont and other towns. When shooting his car along over the smooth highways he never seems to hesitate at a turn or slow down for a railroad crossing or bridge.

Because of this fact there have been several rumors that the "auto

CROWD HALTS POLICE.

Women Refuse to Let Injured Man Be Taken to Hospital in Auto and He Lies Long on Floor.

For almost an hour Thomas McClusky, a Los Angeles Railway motorman, was left lying on the floor of a drug store at Pico and Figueroa streets in an unconscious condition yesterday afternoon because a mob of several hundred men, women and children would not permit the police to remove him to the Receiving Hospital in an automobile.

McClusky had been knocked down on Pico street between Flower and Figueroa streets by an automobile driven by Miss Eleanor Barry, No. 3229 West Sixteenth street. Witnesses exonerated the woman, declaring the accident was unavoidable.

No one knew how severely the motorman was injured, but the crowd would not permit patrolmen who hurried to the scene to touch the man.

A police automobile was rushed to get the injured man. A woman objected that it would be cruel to carry him to the Receiving Hospital in it.

She was joined by others. The patrolmen argued that the man could be rushed to the hospital without hurting him as he was unconscious anyway, and that he might be in danger of dying.

The crowd insisted that a patrol wagon be summoned. McClusky was still unconscious when it finally arrived. It is not known whether he is fatally injured.

No Quarter.

WAR TO THE KNIFE ON SWINDLERS IN REALTY.

State and Federal Authorities to Join Forces and Clean Out Swarms of Parasites on Legitimate Business. Some of the Schemes, How They Work and How the Swindlers Can Be Checkmated.

IN THE rush for land in Southern California, where an almost perfect climate and nearness to a great metropolis makes urban life most attractive, a swarm of land sharks and swindlers are fleecing ignorant investors, despite all warnings.

The State and Federal authorities are about to institute a decisive campaign against these bunco men and after other work is cleaned up it is possible that the grand jury now in session will investigate some land schemes on a par with those of Dr. John Grant Lyman, now languishing in a Federal prison for his attempt to sell worthless acreage in Central America to unsuspecting homeseekers and investors. There are hundreds of such swindlers. The District Attorney has frequent complaints. In some cases the wily confidence man has so skillfully covered his tracks that it is almost impossible to secure a conviction. Rascals employ lawyers to keep them out of jail while they ply a trade that hurts legitimate enterprises and makes persons cautious of even the best propositions.

DON'TS FOR INVESTORS.

Here are some "don'ts" heartily commended by Deputy District Attorney Keetch, who has had considerable experience in the prosecution of land tricksters:

Don't buy land you haven't seen.

Don't buy land on somebody else's advice as to location.

Don't buy land unless the seller is solvent and of good reputation.

Don't buy land without consulting a responsible title company or a lawyer in whom you have confidence.

Don't buy land unless you know that the cost of improvements is provided for, or that the assessments are paid.

Don't buy land without investigating the cost of transportation and the convenience of the time table.

Don't buy land in a hurry; take your time and be sure that it is the land you want.

Don't assume liabilities that you may not be able to carry.

The natural desire of men and women to own their homes has given the great army of harpies an opening wedge and in every other city, as well as in Los Angeles, there are schemers who spend their time planning how to get the money of the unwary. The great marvel is that persons will go to the unscrupulous ones when there are plenty of honorable firms, backed by large capital and members of the Los Angeles Realty Board. But an occasional exploitation of the sharpers does good, for at least it warns many who would otherwise entrust their savings to land sharks and thus lose the homes they think they are getting.

WHERE TO GO.

"There are plenty of reliable firms in the city to whom strangers can go for bargains in land," said Deputy District Attorney Keetch yesterday. "I have had a number of complaints lately and this office is going to do all it can to prevent fake land deals and like frauds perpetrated by confidence men. As in all growing municipalities, Los Angeles is full of such creatures. They prey upon women ignorant of business and lurk in wait for the unwary, using the want advertisement columns of the newspapers to attract their victims. As long as persons are gullible it is perhaps impossible to absolutely stamp out such evils, but we can do what we can and the papers can aid by a campaign of publicity against such sharpers."

Though there is no positive way of estimating, it is more than probable that at least 100 fake real estate concerns are operating in this city. Each has its own specialty. One will advertise for a good reliable partner with a few hundred dollars' capital. The sucker is shown a real estate office with perhaps $50 worth of furniture in it. He is given a long list of real estate deals and told that only push and patience are needed to bring in a large return.

In some cases the swindler, after getting $500 from his "partner," will quietly leave the city. Often he braves it out and tells the victim that it his own fault that deals are not made and that business is not coming in.

Sometimes the trick is varied by an offer of a cash salary, upon the deposit of several hundred dollars "merely as a guarantee of good faith." The young man with $50 saved goes to the office mentioned in the advertisement, meets a smooth-tongued person, and finally is placed in what he supposes is a fine position at $25 or $30 a week. He may even get his first week's salary. Then things go wrong, or the manager gets "sick." Sooner or later the victim awakens to the fact that he is out his savings and the position is a fictitious one.

FAT PICKING.

Of course, this is misrepresentation, but the trouble is to find the seller and also to get corroborative testimony to support the story of the purchaser. It is not easy at all times to secure a conviction, and the sharper operating under many aliases and moving from place to place may elude arrest and conviction for years. Generally in the end he comes a cropper.

One of the most prolific sources of fraud is in the land-locating business. Of course, there are reputable men who make a specialty of searching out desirable locations on government land and who charge a small fee for the service. But the genuine locators have to contend with swarms of sharpers who never intend to place their customers on government land. They generally take their victims to a region where there is desirable homestead land and vaguely point out what the purchaser fondly believes to be his or her quarter section. The victim is taken to the Land Office and shown how to apply for a certain designated piece of government land. Later it turns out to be desert, far from water and means of transportation and not able to support a coyote.

When a complaint is issued and the case goes to trial, it is often found that the wily swindler never made any direct misrepresentations and can only be sued in a civil action.

PRECAUTIONS.

"If the purchaser of real estate could be made to take advice before embarking into some doubtful land scheme, thousands of dollars would be saved," said a real estate man yesterday. "In this city we have a fine association of real estate men, all of whom are ready to give competent and honest advice. But the sharpers loitering about the tourist hotels and parks capture many easterners who come out here with the idea that everybody is honest and that all land is good. Persons shouldn't buy land they haven't seen. They ought to know something about the seller, and above all things an abstract company should furnish a certificate of title."

Buying a home with the money one is now spending for rent is an attractive slogan and one worked with unvarying success by the swindlers who not only have no title to the lands they pretend to develop, but who never intend to fulfill the many promises made to the purchasers.

Methods of selling worthless land are a copy of those often used for selling meritorious tracts. In fact, all fraudulent schemes are patterned after honest enterprises.

A legal advisor for one of the title guarantee companies declares that it is a marvel to him that so many persons are taken in by unscrupulous companies when there are so many good concerns that are as safe as the bank. He says that the honest real estate men would give anything to get rid of their dangerous and law-violating rivals, but that the victims usually are so ready to sign papers without reading them that the law does not get a chance at the rascals.

OTHER SWINDLES.

The lawyer referred to two separate species of land swindling that had recently come under his observation. He said:

"A farm is bought, maps are made, and lots laid out. The plan is to sell the lots on the installment plan of a few dollars down and a dollar a week. Sometimes it takes a good deal of money to get a release from the mortgage, in order that the deed may be delivered. The mortgage money is not available and it is raised by a blanket mortgage covering the entire property. This is a first mortgage, of course, and then comes failure and the whole scheme collapses.

"That is one way in which an investor loses his money, and another way is by the bond-selling plan. A concern buys a tract of land by a small payment down. Then it writes up, as a matter of book-keeping, a certain equity, and against this equity

Tribute of Tears.

MEN AT BIER OF KERN CRY LIKE CHILDREN.

THE funeral services over the remains of the late Edward Kern, former Councilman, Chief of Police and Democratic politician who killed himself in El Paso several days ago were conducted yesterday afternoon by the Fraternal Order of Eagles at their lodgerooms, No. 320 South Main street.

Hundreds of his personal friends, many of them figures in civic and business affairs, attended and paid tribute to his memory. Members of nearly every department in the city's service and brother Masons, Eagles, Elks and Forresters, of which fraternities the deceased was a member, were present.

The floral tributes were magnificent and included beautiful pieces sent by the police and fire departments, employees of the Los Angeles Ice and Cold Storage Company, and the various fraternal orders.

Four patrolmen and four members of the fire department stood at attention about the casket covered with floral offering during the services.

The eulogy was pronounced by Earl Rogers, a close friend of the deceased. Stout-hearted patrolmen and firemen, who had worked and served under him, wept like children when Rogers touched upon the sweet, kindly and whole-souled character of Kern.

Rogers spoke impressively of the early struggles and history of the late head of the police department and eloquently portrayed the services he had rendered to this city during his public career. "Edward Kern was the best Chief of Police this city ever had," said Rogers, "and he was one of the first to advocate the bringing of the Owens River water to Los Angeles."

Dr. C. E. Stoner, Worthy President of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, delivered a short address and F. B. Aaron, Worthy Chaplain, offered prayer. The Euterpean Quartette sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee" and "Farewell, My Brother."

The active pallbearers were past presidents of the Eagles, as follows: F. P. Kopenhaver, George R. Smith, Charles E. Salter, Jesse R. Shafer, George Renwick and Charles E. Rice.

The honorary pallbearers were exmembers of the City Council, who were in that body while Kern was a member, as follows: Bernard Healy, E. A. Clampitt, E. L. Blanchard, Oscar E. Farish, Fred Ford, Sid Hiller, Percy V. Hammon, Robert A. Todd, Henry H. Lyon, Arthur D. Houghton and former Mayors Harper and McAleer. Interment was in Inglewood Cemetery.

Kern was born in Norwalk, Iowa, in 1860, and his father was a major in the United States army during the Civil War. He received his early education in the public schools and was preparing for college when failing health forced him to seek a change of climate. He went to Arizona and served as chief of supplies under Gen. Crook during his campaigns against Geronimo and other notorious Indian leaders. When Gen. (then colonel) Miles relieved Crook he placed Kern in charge of the commissary. He came to Los Angeles with Gen. Miles in 1886 and a few months later was honorably discharged. He secured a position as driver for the Los Angeles Ice and Cold Storage Company, and by dint of hard and faithful work rose to superintendent.

He manifested a deep interest in politics and civic affairs and was elected to the City Council in 1904 and re-elected by a big majority in 1906. The then Mayor Harper appointed him Chief of Police at the end of his second term. After serving for one year he was appointed a member of the Board of Public Works. He resigned a few months later during the Mayoralty recall campaign.

He leaves a widow.

COURT CHANGES DRINK PRICE.

THREE BEERS AND A HIGH BALL COSTS FIVE HUNDRED.

Rich New Yorker With Joy Water Under His Belt Drives Recklessly and Ditches Buggy and Injures Occupants—Heavy Fine Imposed for What Might Have Been.

R. Troescher, a wealthy New Yorker who passes his winters in this city and whose father is president of the Brunswick Balke-Colander Company, was fined $500 by Police Judge Chambers yesterday for driving his auto on West Pico Thursday evening while in an intoxicated condition. Near the intersection with Bond street, Troescher ran into the rear end of a horse and buggy driven by A. M. Martin and his wife. The buggy was turned completely over, and the occupants and the horse were injured.

Witnesses testified that Troescher was so intoxicated he couldn't walk straight, and that a bystander jumped into the Troescher machine and stopped it, the New Yorker having leaped from it after it struck the buggy and while it was still going. Testimony was given to show that the auto was driven at high speed and that Troescher tried to fight with people who were attracted by the accident. Deputy Sheriff Taylor found it advisable to take the man from the scene because of the ill-temper shown by the crowd.

Troescher, when examined by the court, admitted that he had been drinking with friends over in Pasadena but denied being intoxicated.

"What did you have to drink?" asked the court.

"Three or four glasses of beer and a highball," replied the defendant.

After admitting that he turned to the right instead of to the left in attempting to pass the buggy, Troescher denied leaving the auto while it was in motion, saying that only his engine was running. He also denied fighting or quarreling with people attracted to assistance to Martin and his wife.

In finding Troescher guilty, the court said in part:

"I must disagree with you when

GLIMPSES OF SAN FRANCISCO.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20.—Some anxious commuter is worried over the possibility of an accident to a ferry-boat. He calls attention to the fact that there are not enough lifeboats on any of the ferries. The State Board of Railroad Commissioners wishes to investigate, but is uncertain as to jurisdiction. Meanwhile the army of commuters passes to and fro every day, and there is no danger of their striking for an increase in the number of the lifeboats.

Mayor Rolph inspected the Central Emergency Hospital. After a preliminary examination he seemed satisfied and admitted to the surgeon in charge that he had a sprained thumb. The injured member was fixed up in a jiffy, and now there is no fear on the part of any of the employees there that it will be thumbs down for them as far as the Mayor is concerned.

The gamblers up in Chinatown heard that Police Sergeant Layne was ill, so they at once opened up their resorts. For some time past because of his activity he has managed to keep them closed. His sickness is only temporary, and he will soon have the oriental sports on their good behavior again.

Dr. S. N. Jacobs is suing James Brooks, a wealthy broker, and Miss Emma Reed for $65, alleged to be due for treating a black eye received by the lady while auto riding with Brooks. According to the physician, who was aroused at 3 a.m. to patch up the eye, the broker said that he would pay the bill. No mention is made as to how the lady received the injury, but, perhaps, the trial of the case will bring that out.

There has been another postponement of the peace pact between the city and the United Railways. For a while it looked as though there would be a dismissal of all litigation and an amicable agreement as to the joint use of the Geary-street railway tracks. The Supervisors have referred the matter to the City Attorney for his opinion, as to a transfer proposition, so there is no telling how long it will be held in abeyance.

The recall election campaign in Berkeley is thrilling. Mayor Stitt Wilson had a meeting and when Prof. Reed attempted to address it for the other side, the Mayor stirred his followers up to the point of throwing stones at the pedagogue. Reed can talk, but he cannot dodge rocks, so he quit after being struck by several missiles. The learned professor may have heard of rampant socialism before, but now he knows what it is from experience.

Mrs. Robert M. La Follette, wife of Wisconsin's Senator, talked to several hundred ladies in the colonial ballroom of the St. Francis Hotel. Her subject was "Twenty-Five Years of Progression." She censured a man for making his bride go marketing with a brown string bag. She believed that marketing should be done by telephone, between whiles, as a woman engages in broader pursuits. She had no remedy to suggest if the butcher sent home a tough steak.

Arrangements have been made with the Japanese liners as well as with the Pacific steamships that wireless reports as to the weather, will be sent as long as the vessels are within communication with San Francisco. Forecaster A. G. McAdie is delighted with the prospect of getting a hunch on what is going on hundreds of miles off shore. It will also come in handy for the man, who wishes to get his overcoat before the fog hits him.

Mrs. Ella Kellner thinks that she is entitled to a divorce from her husband, L. H. Kellner, a typewriter man, because he forced her to live on a $1 a month. Judge Graham is looking the matter up. The lady's two female friends testified that the husband was a model man except for his stinginess. He did not smoke, drink or gamble, and was not bad looking.

Merchants and Manufacturers Association Will Ask Railroad Commission to Equilize Rates.

Proceedings are to be instituted before the State Railroad Commission by the directors of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, to have the express companies equalize their California rates.

The association declares the express companies charge a higher rate from Los Angeles to any point 100 miles distant, than is charged the San Francisco merchants.

A committee has been appointed by the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association to write to the various steamship companies to make Los Angeles Harbor a port of entry, if they have not already done so, promising aid in inducing shippers to send their products by the lines that comply with the request.

CONQUEST OF THE NORTH.

Arctic Explorer Wirt Will Tell of the Wonders of the Esquimos Land and Relate Experiences.

Lincoln Wirt, Arctic explorer on Tuesday evening, will tell of his remarkable experiences in the far North, where with snow-shoes and dogs he explored the vast unknown territory from the Arctic Circle to the Pacific Ocean. As government commissioner and superintendent of schools he founded public schools and did great service for the Esquimos in many ways. As a guide he led a relief party 1200 miles in mid-winter to bring relief to an imperiled camp. This remarkable story of privations and wonders will be told in Choral Hall, Auditorium Building, on Tuesday evening, under the management of L. E. Behymer.

COLORED ORATOR HERE.

Dr. James E. Shepard, colored scholar and orator, arrived in this city yesterday and spoke at noon in the Friends' Church. This morning he will be at South Park Presbyterian Church, and this evening in Pasadena. On Monday evening a mass meeting will be held in Wesley Methodist Church, this city, where the speaker will be supported by Dana W. Bartlett, Mayor Alexander, Rabbi Hecht, D. P. Luther and a number of other gentlemen.

VERMONT MAY DAY FROLIC.

A Vermont May Day picnic will be held in Sycamore Park, on Wednesday, to which all former residents of the State and their friends are urged to come. It will also be considered "sugaring-off" day and hot maple sugar and coffee will be served. Lunch will be served at noon and the platform meeting at noon and the platform meeting will being at 1:30.

MORE KIDLETS WANT TO G

Cars Are Now Offered 775 Children.

Look Out for Sailing Ord on Tuesday.

Here's the List of Cars Th Far Offered.

All owners of motor cars who have volunteered for The Times May Day Joy Ride for poor children will be notified on Monday by telephone where they are to report for their children.

The Times specially requests that no one attempt to assign his car without consulting this May Day Joy Ride editor. Any attempt to change the system under which this ride is operated will be fatal to the success of the day.

On Tuesday morning, the list of motor cars will again be published showing to which institution each car has been assigned.

The owner of the automobile that goes whizzing through Bonoratown and the whitful little child, who crowds back against the curbing to let it pass, are brothers and sisters after all.

One afternoon of each year—on May Day—the opportunity is given to both of them to prove it. The automobile owners are eagerly taking advantage of that opportunity.

Offers of cars for The Times annual May Day joy-ride are coming in by every mail. The telephone keeps up a continual jangle with them.

Other auto owners, like John W. Mitchell, have come in person to The Times office, messengers from their wives, offering, not only their motor cars, but volunteering their services as soldiers, to be ordered wherever needed on that day.

With the cars now offered, 775 little children can now be accommodated.

Many more cars are expected and wanted.

As rapidly as come the offers, come also the most pathetic appeals from little children who ask.

"Aren't you going to take us, too?"

Some of these appeals cannot be denied. The Times has taken the responsibility of opening the gate wide enough to admit twenty little children from the Bethlehem mission, trusting that the facts in their case will bring out cars enough.

Last year, at the time of the May day joy-ride, there was one little girl critically ill at the mission. The doctors thought that she could not live. The other children, unwilling to go on a pleasure ride while their little playmate was dying, gave up their outing and stayed at home.

But the little girl did not die. She has since improved to such an extent that she is now a convalescent at the Children's Hospital. There is every prospect that she will be able to go with the joy-ride herself this year; and her little friends who sacrificed themselves out of pity for her are simply crazy to go this year.

Somehow or other, they are going to get there.

But let it be remarked right, in spite of the request printed above, please do not detail yourself and your automobile to that institution.

THE ENTIRE SUCCESS OF THE PLAN DEPENDS UPON HAVING A UNIFORM AND FOLLOWING THAT PLAN. PLEASE REPORT TO THE TIMES AND TAKE YOUR ASSIGNMENT LIKE A GOOD SOLDIER. ANY ATTEMPT OF THE AUTOMOBILE OWNERS TO MAKE PRIVATE ARRANGEMENTS OF THEIR OWN WILL INEVITABLY RESULT IN HOPELESS CONFUSION.

Several other private institutions to which room was not found last year appealed to be remembered this year. The Times is anxious to remember them if it is a physical possibility.

And the automobile owners can tell whether they will or will not be remembered.

TOO MUCH LICENSE.

The right of a city to grant a license to alleged spiritualistic mediums has been touched upon by a local Superior Court judge. Cities impose upon their subjects in licensing anything questionable. The practice of a religion or cult is one thing; its operation for gain is another.

THE NECESSARIES.

For a long time dollar wheat was the dream of every agriculturist. The country has advanced, however, to 81-cent corn for May delivery, with no knowing what it will be in June and July. Perhaps if the country had dollar whisky and dollar cigars, with wheat and corn at a bushel a bit, bread would be more popular than poison.

LIKE FATHER, LIKE SON.

A popular pastor in this city celebrated the twentieth anniversary of his pastorate on Sunday, and at the same time his father commemorated the forty-sixth anniversary of his ministerial work in this city. No matter what their excellencies may be, good parents are like the roots of a tree; their children are its flowers and fruits.

A LIKELY LINE.

Contractors and others interested in beach city development contemplate establishing an automobile truck line between Los Angeles and Santa Monica. It is more than likely that another such line will be established between this city and San Pedro. No matter how satisfactory the railroad service or railroad tariffs may be, the automobile truck will certainly have its place where business is so intimate and of such a magnitude as the future will develop here.

WAITING.

A party of thirteen men were waiting for a slow train to pass at Riverside Thursday. One of them, a Japanese, became impatient and tried to cross the track with the result that the others witnessed his death. People do too much discounting. They sacrifice hours for the sake of a minute, when a minute of waiting might show them the better way. They keep the personal will at a point of tension which blinds them to the big chance when it comes. A man's will is only half of life to him, and unless he reckons with his environments as the other half he will miss a good many points in the game.

PROGRESSIVE ARIZONA.

Now let the "progressives" of Arizona rejoice, for they have triumphed gloriously. They are exulting in the thought that President Taft will cower under the rebuke they have administered to him by fastening the judicial recall upon their brand-new constitution, making it look like a pair of pink-colored breeches with a yellow patch on the seat. There are two or three Republican Superior Judges in Arizona who were elected by narrow majorities. Is it to be expected that their Democratic opponents will not "pick their flints and try it again?" Before judges decide cases that they have under advisement it will be well for them to submit the case to a straw vote. A voter who is ignorant of the law and knows nothing about the facts is, under the Roosevelitian doctrine, much better qualified to decide a case than any old judge.

A JUST CAUSE.

Homeseekers in one locality have petitioned Congress to protect entrymen against disturbance after their claims have once been filed. The homesteader is entitled to all protection, for it requires the sort of character of which America has need to honestly prove up on a quarter section of government land. It may often happen that the government is compelled to withdraw lands for the sake of a great water development scheme which will redeem a large acreage and thus benefit thousands of farmers. The government plan is to redeem land to feed the millions, and not to enrich the farmer whose enterprise entitles him to share the profits. If land is withdrawn in this manner, however, entrymen should not be allowed to suffer. Their land should not be peremptorily withdrawn without a complete satisfaction of their just claims. Uncle Sam is big enough to protect all of his children and still carry forward every plan to develop his magnificent domain.

ARMED VAGRANTS.

Vagrancy is always a difficult and a complicated problem to deal with. The proper treatment for these wanderers—some simply unfortunates, some mere wastrels, some hopeless degenerates and some actual criminals—calls for the exercise of nice discrimination on the part of the authorities. But as to what should be done with an armed vagrant there can be no two opinions. He is a menace to law-abiding folk and should be handled without kid gloves.

This armed vagrancy has brought Mexico to its present chaotic condition. A tatterdemalion mob is attempting to defy the San Diego authorities, and among them are many armed tramps. These would no doubt gladly transfer the pillage and plunder regime, at present in vogue in the northern States of Mexico, across the international boundary and establish it in our southern county. Or failing this, they would like to share the spoils of lawlessness with their Latin confreres, to play the jackal to the Mexican insurrecto. We trust that strong measures will be adopted to prevent any armed vagrant from wandering like a wolf among the pastures of hard-working and industrious people.

AFTER THE EVENT.

There are certain world tragedies which will always arouse strong human feelings, but about which sober thought should not be hasty. In any case wherein general sentiment has been worked up to fever heat, wherein valuable lives have apparently been sacrificed for want of proper precautions, the first desire of the afflicted is generally to discover a scapegoat—some individual or individuals on whom to fix the blame.

This is naturally the case in such a terribly tragic event as the sinking of the world's greatest steamship, involving as it did so heavy a toll in human life. The radicals will call it a case of criminal carelessness, the conservatives will set it down as the result of man's overconfidence. The wise will reserve judgment and possibly turn their attention to making provisions first to guard against a repetition of so unnecessary a flinging away of human lives.

If the White Star line has been criminally careless in sending a vessel to sea not properly equipped with life-saving apparatus, then 90 per cent. of the vessels afloat have been guilty of the same criminal carelessness; then the Board of Trade, in compliance with whose regulations these ships are fitted out, must also share the blame. And the public itself, in so far as it has been willing to accept ocean travel on these terms without a protest, must be considered as guilty of contributory negligence.

For any man of average intelligence could have discovered that there have not been sufficient boats carried on any Atlantic liner (with a few possible exceptions) to accommodate all the men and women on board in case of a total wreck. Not only the steamship builders and owners, but those travelers, too, who have made many safe voyages across the Atlantic have always believed that such mammoths as the Titanic were practically unsinkable. So the world has kept on demanding larger, swifter and more luxurious vessels. So the steamship companies have been continually vying with one another to meet this demand. And so the risk has been forgotten. Thousands of records of safe passages across stormy oceans, made in ever larger and ever faster vessels, have lulled the public mind into a comatose state of fancied security, until unexpected and unimaginable disaster at last calls a halt. After the event, when the blow has fallen, wisdom awakes too late.

Too late to restore the precious lives that were blotted out in the icy waters on that night of gloom; too late to restore husbands to wives, parents to children, to fill the vacancies in many desolate homes; but not too late to prevent any preventable ocean tragedy from ever again so blackening the record of lives lost at sea; not too late to enact more stringent regulations, that every person shall, in case of unforeseen disaster, have a reasonable chance of escape; not too late to insist that human life, anywhere and everywhere, on land or on sea, shall be valued higher than any commercial interest.

TOUCHES OF SWEET HARMONY.

When God first sent blessings innumerable to his creatures of earth he sent nothing more wonderful than the power of music. Its charm defies analysis. Certain vibrations, arranged in definite order, strike the tympanum of the ear, and at once, according to the peculiar effect produced by the sound waves, any emotion may be responsively awakened in the heart of man.

From the warble of the mocking bird among the drooping foliage of green and graceful pepper trees to the majestic boom of ocean breakers along the shores of the Pacific, from the sighing of soft summer breezes over the fields of waving alfalfa to the roar of winter storms through the branches of mountain pine trees, every sound in nature has a message and a meaning. To catch the message and reproduce the meaning is the art and province of music.

Man was not long in answering the voice of nature. He learned to tame the winds of heaven and to confine them in reeds and metal tubes; to catch the vibrations of the ether and imprison them in wires of steel and strings of catgut. Then came melody, harmony, music—the interpretation of nature in the terms of human feelings and aspirations. The savage fashioning a piece of hollow cane "to whistle back the parrot's call," and the master mechanic, designing a cathedral organ to peal forth man's worship to his Creator, are both animated by the same spirit of emulation; both, according to the knowledge vouchsafed them, are attempting to master the mystery of sound.

As the race progresses the longing to produce melody for the joy of mankind grows ever stronger; as with the spread of cultura nobler ideals sway the souls of men, so the uplifting power of music becomes a higher factor to create and foster lofty sentiment. The whistling of the schoolboy, on his release from scholastic duties with the baseball ground in view, expresses his general satisfaction with life and the world at large. The wrapt attention with which a crowd of holiday-makers will listen to the stirring strains of a massed orchestra is a symbol of humanity's unsatisfied longing for something above the mere material joy of living.

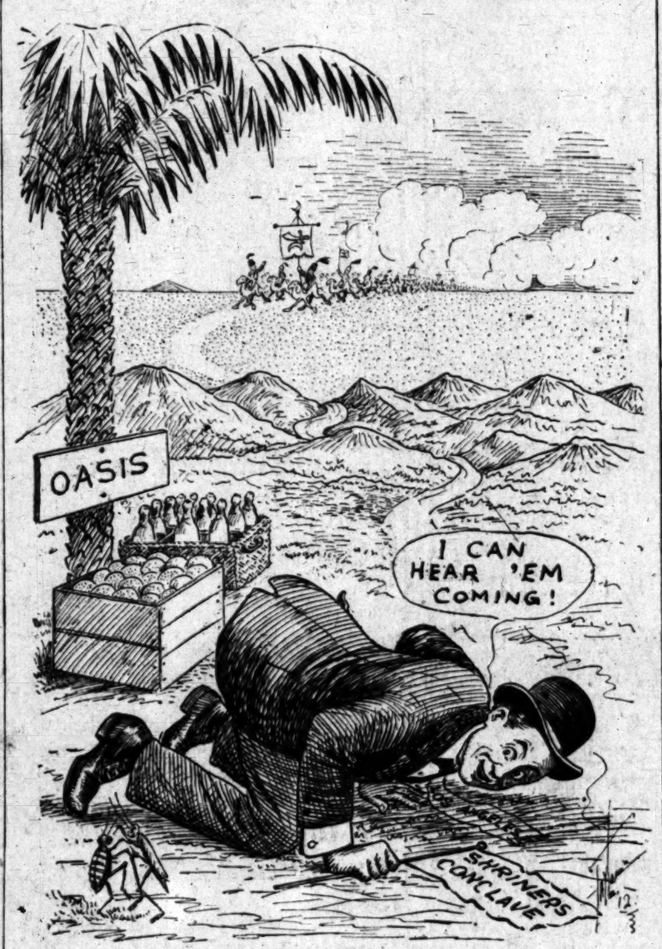
The taste for and the love of music—as well as the occasions that call for it and the purpose for which it is used—differentiate the aims, the ambitions, the ideals of individuals, of nations and of epochs. The sounds that delight the ear of the Chinaman and stir his spirit are as far removed from the complicated harmonies produced by a Sousa band as the civilization of the Orient is from that of the Occident. Nero, fiddling while Rome was burning, typified the cruel conditions that prevailed in the days of the Roman emperors. No less truly does the picture of those brave bandsmen, playing a sweet hymn of appeal to their Creator with icy death all around them, symbolize the ideals of Christian religion that animate the world today.

For in religion music reaches its sublimest measure. How wonderful an influence it has exerted in the spreading of the Gospel of love is exemplified in the power of one Christian hymn, played in the face of death, to still the sorrow of that bitterest of partings. As the icy waters were creeping up slowly but surely to engulf their victims, the well-remembered music of the simple faith-song took away the thoughts of the brave men on deck—far from the ice and the cold and the ocean grave beneath them. Perhaps to some dimly-remembered country church, where wife or sister or son had stood among the choristers and sung the same sweet hymn, when friends and home and warmth were all around them.

Out on the deep, amid the gloom and despair of shipwreck, memory awakened by music, as it can never be by other mortal agency, could bring before the vision of every hero who remained to die some scene, hallowed by the touch of religious service—could hold each soul in a state of earthly peace, till the final pang was over and the last hero-soul had passed away to that far greater peace "that passeth man's understanding."

Truly such power is in one strain of simple music! Truly "such harmony is in immortal souls!"

"U-Kno-Us."



SNORT OR SNIVEL?

To "snort" is, according to Webster, "to force the air with violence through the nose in anger, scorn or derision." To snivel is "to cry or whine as children"—"a true soldier would put a stop to thy snivelling ditty," says Sir Walter Scott.

Snort and snivel have been thus far the watchwords of the Rooseveltian campaign, and their spellbinders and newspaper organs. "Taft is a hypocrite, a fabricator, and a violator of all canons of decency," snorts Roosevelt. "Taft turned me out of office," snivels Pinchot.

"The struggle in politics today," says a local speaker, "is between humanitarian rights and property rights. The masses of the people who constitute the non-propertied class are demanding their just share of the benefits of government, etc., etc."

The last speaker is more logical or at least more candid than the snorters. The struggle is between the "humanitarian right" of an I-Won't-Worker to obtain something that does not belong to him, and the property right of the honest worker to retain the results of his industry and economy. People do not always draw a distinction between rights, privileges, and duties. One may have a low opinion of a man who in this world of human misery and suffering can make and keep a hundred millions of dollars. Yet it is his privilege to make it if he can do so without transgressing either statute or moral laws, and it is right to keep it all if he chooses to do so. Between great-hearted multi-millionaires lavishing millions to educate and help their fellow-men, and hard-hearted plutocrats whose benefactions to humanity—if they ever made any—have never been chronicled, there is a difference as great as that between light and darkness.

But the snivelers in politics either do not appreciate this difference or do not care for it. They follow and support the snorters in their outcry for an all-around low level of fortune.

History ever repeats itself. Jack Cade was a snorter who said: "Make me King and every man's pint cup shall be made by law to hold a quart of beer." Robespierre was a snorter who said: "Cut off the heads of kings, nobles and priests, and so elevate the heads of their judges and executioners."

History does not make record of the names of the snivelers, yet it mentions their existence. There were tories of both sexes who sniveled at being deprived of the tea which the patriots dumped into the waters of Boston Harbor. There were snivelers who cried aloud because the taxation imposed by the necessities of the Civil War made a slight reduction in their incomes.

Yet the mass of the great, generous, brave-hearted American people are neither snorters nor snivelers. They fight bravely and persistently for what they believe to be their rights, and if the medicine of defeat is pressed to their lips they gulp it down, and say:

"In the fell clutch of circumstance
I will not wince or cry aloud.
Beneath the bludgeonings of chance
My head is bloody but unbowed."

WHAT MIGHT BE DONE.

Suppose that, a majority of voters actually voting, constituting perhaps one-fifth of the people of California, should enact an initiative law, delegating to a board composed of the Governor, Attorney-General and Secretary of State the power to change the Civil Code and Code of Civil Procedure in any particulars. Suppose that the board should under this authority pass an act abolishing all laws for the collection of debts. The Supreme Court would adjudge the board law to be unconstitutional in that it impaired the obligation of contracts and also because neither the Legislature nor the people has a right under the Constitution to create a board composed of executive officers of the State and delegate to it legislative duties.

Then, if we had the "recall of decisions," one-fifth of the people might, under the latest intellectual antic of Roosevelt, vote to reverse the decision of the Supreme Court. The motto of California would be that of Ancient Pistol: "Base is the slave who pays."

Suppose that one-fifth of the people should, either by the initiative or through a Legislature elected by them, enact a law that property, whether owned by corporations or individuals, the value of which was in excess of $10,000 should be subject to double the rate of property below $10,000 in value, property valued at $50,000 at three times the rate, property valued at $100,000 at four times the rate, and property valued at $1,000,000 at ten times the $10,000 rate. The Supreme Court would decide that the law was in violation of that provision of the Constitution which declares that taxation shall be equal and uniform. One-fifth of the people, voting, might reverse the Supreme Court and solvent and enterprising men and women would flee the State, and socialism, freedom and bankruptcy would reign in a community where no loathsome capitalist could be found.

These illustrations are probably far-fetched, but a law must be tested by what may be done under it, and the reductio ad absurdum is allowable in argument.

STEAMSHIP LEGISLATION.

The House of Representatives Committee on Merchant Marine has reported a resolution "that the danger from fog and ice to vessels has been known, and that to lay down routes by international agreement, and make them compulsory for swift steamers, has long been regarded as necessary to the safety of life and property at sea."

Senator Lodge from the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations has reported a resolution "that the President of the United States be and he is hereby advised that the Senate would favor treaties with England, France, Germany, and other maritime governments to regulate the course and speed of all vessels engaged in the carrying of passengers at sea; to determine the number of lifeboats, rafts, searchlights, and wireless apparatus to be carried by such vessels and to assure the use of such other equipment as shall be adequate to secure the safety of such vessels, passengers, and crews."

It is to be hoped that the great maritime nations of Europe will agree with the United States that all passenger steamers of whatever nationality shall be subject to governmental inspection in the port from which they are advertised to sail, and shall not be suffered to depart unless they have enough lifeboats to carry passengers and crew, and are provided with life-saving appliances, and have two wireless operators. It might also be required that steamers shall sail in pairs and keep within five miles of each other and travel on a part of the ocean that is free from icebergs. With these safeguards ocean travel can be made as safe as journeying by land. Without waiting for legislation the great ocean steamship lines will probably provide a greater number of lifeboats. The demands of the traveling public will force that concession from them.

I REMEMBER.

BY TOM FITCH.

No man ever lived more vitally or died more regretted than James G. Blaine. No man combined more adroitly the suaviter in modo with the fortiter in re. He could stoop to conquer; but, when a combat was on, "his helm was proudly set," and it could have been said of him as of Prince Rupert that "he never came but to conquer or to fall." He never smoked, he never gambled, and the wine cup had had no fascination for him; but at his hospitable board there were no sumptuary laws for the regulation of his guests. He was the prince of raconteurs, and he never omitted a good story because the point of the joke was on himself.

I remember as if it were yesterday his narration of a defense that was made of him by an old farmer who acted as chairman of a Republican afternoon meeting at a camp ground in the woods on the banks of a beautiful little lake in Maine. "Muffriends," said the ancient hayseed, "it is distressin' how Democrats do lie about Congressman Blaine. The Democratic skeesicks who is runnin' here for the Legislatoor went around last week tellin' everybody that Blaine swears. Now I know taint so. My boy goes to school with Blaine's boy at Augusty. Often he stops at Blaine's house. He has eat many a meal's victuals at Blaine's table, and he tells me that he never heard Blaine swear. Now it stands to reason that a man that can keep from swearin' in his own home, and at his own wife, can keep from swearin' anywhere."

Blaine was too great-hearted and broad-minded to hate anybody, but he despised cant and hypocrisy and never hesitated to launch an arrow from the quiver of his wit at pretentious humbuggery. Of a Congressman who assimilated and reproduced Emersonian paragraphs he said that he was "a transcendental squash." Of another, whose legislative career was marked by inconsistencies, he said that "he could absent himself from his seat without detriment to his constituents because he could always 'pair off with himself.'" Of still another, who entered Congress with a local reputation as an orator and who failed to live up to his reputation, he said that "he resembled a young pigeon, he was biggest when he was first born."

Blaine was a wonderful speaker. His poise and gesture were faultless and unaffected. His matter was well chosen and timely. His rhetoric was both clear and ample. No sesquipedalian adjective ever issued from his lips. Nobody ever went to sleep under his voice, and he possessed the rare faculty of making statistics intensely interesting. He could arouse an audience to enthusiasm with the census returns and elicit laughter by quotations from the multiplication table.

How thoroughly he would have enjoyed the construction of the Panama Canal! The dream of his public life was to weld the Central and South American States in close commercial and friendly union of interest and sentiment with the United States of America. As an advocate of the doctrine of protection to American industry he was second to no man, not even Henry Clay. He was a staunch supporter of the administration of Gen. Grant and aided as much as Thaddeus Stevens or Henry Winter Davis in formulating reconstruction legislation.

Jealousy of other men formed no portion of his make-up. He was swift to see and prompt to recognize genius whenever and wherever it made its appearance. His defeat for the Presidential nomination did not abate his zeal for the cause of Republicanism to which his life was devoted, but his defeat at the polls in 1884, or rather the robbery of which he was the victim, hurt his proud spirit and he was never again quite the same man. He was in his day next to Abraham Lincoln, "the greatest of living Americans."

A SUFFRAGETTE PLATFORM.

[Life:] Having waited for some time in vain for the suffragette party to promulgate and publish a platform, we modestly suggest the following as a basis:

"The recall of all birds and animals to their native haunts, with full permission to let them roam at will and to raise their young instead of being killed off by the hired representatives of millinery and tailor's trades."

"The due insistence, to be enforced if necessary by proper legislation, that all wives shall live within their husbands' incomes, even if by so doing they are obliged to dress in a more or less becoming manner."

"The restriction of the cost of women's hats, not to exceed $15 a hat, this being three times the cost of the best hats for men."

If these items meet with the unanimous approval of all suffragettes, and we pride ourselves that they will, we shall be very glad to furnish others from time to time in order to complete the whole interesting affair.

COL. ROOSEVELT.

[Detroit Free Press:] T. R. has changed his mind on more than one thing, not the least of which is the reciprocity question.

[Charleston News and Courier:] Mr. Roosevelt may have sat in Lincoln's seat, but he'll not fill Lincoln's shoes.

[Springfield Union:] Pinchot's reference to Roosevelt as a modern Brutus reminds us that Brutus was the gentleman who was there with the knife.

[Washington Star:] Mr. Roosevelt will never get another nomination that is as unexpected as was his nomination for Vice-President.

[Topeka State Journal:] Nor must it be forgotten that President Taft obtained more delegates in Pennsylvania than Col. Roosevelt did in New York. So the Roosevelt victory in Pennsylvania, as a matter of fact, is not of exceedingly momentous concern.

GOSSIP OF THE FOREIGN STAGE

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

LONDON, April 13.—What [illegible] new productions and fresh arr[illegible] from your side, we have had n[illegible] than enough to engage our atten[illegible] this week. Charles Frohman and [illegible] L. Erlanger sailed in last Mon[illegible] evening and London still survives [illegible] shock. C. F. was in excellent fo[illegible] although compelled on account of [illegible] bad knee to use crutches. By [illegible] courtesy of the officials at Fishgu[illegible] his landing was made tolerably e[illegible] There was a pretty big sea runni[illegible] and to have transferred him from [illegible] Mauretania to the ordinary tug wo[illegible] have been a matter not only of c[illegible] siderable difficulty, but of some d[illegible] ger. One of the big steamers, ho[illegible] ever, ranged itself by the side of [illegible] Mauretania, a broad plank was [illegible] from one vessel to the other and do[illegible] that Frohman was wheeled in [illegible] bath-chair. The voyage appears [illegible] have bucked him up appreciably [illegible] although for the greater part of [illegible] week he has remained in his room [illegible] the Savoy, he insisted on going as far [illegible] as the Globe on Wednesday night [illegible] order to witness a dress rehearsal [illegible] "The Pink Lady."

So far, I have only had a br[illegible] chat with him, but next week we a[illegible] to have an afternoon together wh[illegible] he promises to unfold to me all h[illegible] plans. I have a lurking idea th[illegible] these will not amount to very muc[illegible] inasmuch as with the Globe The[illegible] ater delivered over into the hands [illegible] Klaw & Erlanger, he has only th[illegible] Duke of York's to consider. And ther[illegible] Pinero's "The Mind the Paint Gir[illegible] is doing fairly well, although, [illegible] course the piece, like everything el[illegible] in London, has been materially af[illegible] fected by the coal strike. Lucke[illegible] that is over and done with, although [illegible] obviously some weeks must elaps[illegible] before business recovers from its ef[illegible] fects.

With Erlanger also I had a shor[illegible] chat. I found him on the stage of th[illegible] Globe at the close of a rehearsal of [illegible] "The Pink Lady." In the course o[illegible] the next few days we are to have a [illegible] big pow-wow together when he pro[illegible] poses to give me some of his idea[illegible] regarding the art of production. As [illegible] he is a master of that particular [illegible] branch of theatrical business, I look [illegible] forward to our meeting with interest.

By the bye, Charles Frohman has been giving utterance to certain sentiments which, however flattering to American actresses, are hardly likely to increase his popularity here. Englishactresses, he is reported to have declared, have everything to learn from their American sisters. "We are better and stronger," he continued, in our women, who are more clean cut, more feeling and more comely than yours." Every man has a right to his own opinion, even if he be a Charles Frohman. But I am bound to say that in practice he has not done much to support the theory contained in the sentence. "English actresses have everything to learn from their American sisters." Some of the latter, he has brought over, are hardly shining lights. The point is one it would be ungallant to elaborate and I certainly should not have touched upon it had not Frohman set me so bad an example. Comparisons, as Mrs. Malaprop remarked on an historic occasion, are "odorous" and I submit that Frohman would have shown greater wisdom and better taste had he left so debatable a subject discreetly alone.

"Mistakes," Gladys Unger's adaptation of "Die Fledermaus," went off with a whoop at the Lyric, but, alas, the fight is not to be of long duration. Michael Faraday, I daresay, fondly imagined that with it he was going to repeat the big success he and Cissy Whitney made with "The Chocolate Soldier." "Nightbirds," it is true, had to battle against untoward circumstances. There was, for instance, the omnipresent coal strike with its baneful influence. But, in addition, there was dissension in the camp. Faraday's leading lady, Constance Drever, has always been a difficult person to handle and he could not quite tell whether she would or

SCOPE AND AIMS:

THE TIMES PUBLISHES REGULARLY more pages of news and other reading matter and a larger volume of advertising than any other paper extant.

DISTINGUISHING FEATURES: Independent, uncompromised, unshackled, unpurchasable, unafraid and unincumbered. THE LOS ANGELES TIMES is devoted to the great principles of Liberty under Law, Equal Rights in all fields of lawful human endeavor, Industrial Freedom, and to the upbuilding of Los Angeles, the State of California and the great Southwest.

AS TO LABOR: The Times is the unbelieving friend of all honest toilers—of all unshackled law-abiding workers everywhere; and while never denying the right of workmen to organize lawfully, it is the unyielding foe of lawless, proscriptive, monopolistic and exclusive labor organizations, because they are the selfish enemies of their own class and of the common industrial weal. Our position is unmistakable and will be maintained. The long record of The Times as a just, liberal, reliable paymaster is unassailable. During the period between August 4, 1890, and September 30, 1911, there was paid to our loyal and well-satisfied non-union workmen, in salaries and wages, the telling aggregate cash sum of $4,262,319.17—mainly to skilled labor.

WORN CIRCULATION: Daily net average seven days, Sunday included—for 1895, 15,801; for 1897, 19,258; for 1898, 26,124; for 1899, 25,731; for 1900, 28,733; for 1901, 30,443; for 1902, 34,920; for 1903, 36,340; for 1904, 37,702; for 1905, 42,180; for 1906, 46,361 copies; for 1907, 52,311 copies; for 1908, 53,100 copies; for 1909, 54,904 copies. GOSSIP OF THE FOREIGN STAGE.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

LONDON, April 13.—What, with new productions and fresh arrivals from your side, we have had more than enough to engage our attention this week. Charles Frohman and A. L. Erlanger sailed in last Monday morning and London still survives the shock. C. F. was in excellent form, although compelled on account of his bad knee to use crutches. By the courtesy of the officials at Fishguard the landing was made tolerably easy. There was a pretty big sea running and to have transferred him from the Mauretania to the ordinary tug would have been a matter not only of considerable difficulty, but of some danger. One of the big steamers, however, ranged itself by the side of the Mauretania, a broad plank was run from one vessel to the other and down came Frohman was wheeled in his bath-chair. The voyage appears to have bucked him up appreciably and although for the greater part of the week he has remained in his room at the Savoy, he insisted on going as far as the Globe on Wednesday night in order to witness a dress rehearsal of "The Pink Lady."

So far, I have only had a brief talk with him, but next week we are to have an afternoon together when matters are to unfold to me all his schemes. I have a lurking idea that they will not amount to very much, for such as with the Globe Theatre delivered over into the hands of Mr. A. Erlanger, he has only the role of York's to consider. And there is "The 'Mind the Paint' Girl" going fairly well, although, of course the piece, like everything else in London, has been materially affected by the coal strike. Luckily, that is over and done with, although for many weeks must elapse before business recovers from its effects.

With Erlanger also I had a short chat. I found him on the stage of the Globe at the close of a rehearsal of "The Pink Lady." In the course of the next few days we are to have a pow-wow together when he promises to give me some of his ideas concerning the art of production. As he is a master of that particular branch of theatrical business, I look forward to our meeting with interest.

By the bye, Charles Frohman has been giving utterance to certain sentiments which, however flattering to American actresses, are hardly likely to increase his popularity here. Englishwomen, he is reported to have declared, have everything to learn from their American sisters. "We are more and stronger," he continued, "than our women, who are more clean in their feeling and more comely in their own opinion, even if he be a man, Frohman. But I am bound to say that in practice he has not done much to support the theory contained in the sentence. "English actresses have everything to learn from their American sisters." Some of the latter, who has brought over, are hardly in the lights. The point is one it would be ungallant to elaborate and I for one should not have touched upon had not Frohman set me so bad an example. Comparisons, as Mrs. Malaprop remarked on an historic occasion, are "odorous" and I submit that Frohman would have shown more wisdom and better taste had he found detestable a subject discreet-

"Madame" Gladys Unger's adaptation of "Die Fledermaus," went off with a whoop at the Lyric, but, alas, it is not to be of long duration. Michael Faraday, I daresay, had imagined that with it he was to repeat the big success he and Hicks had made with "The Chocolate Soldier" and "Nightbirds," it is true, had to battle against untoward circumstances. There was, for instance, the omnipresent coal strike with its baneful influence. But, in addition, there was dissension in the ranks. Faraday's leading lady, Constance Drever, has always been a difficult person to handle and he could not tell whether she would or would not appear on any particular evening. The public naturally resent this sort of thing and are apt to fight shy of a theater where they can never quite depend on finding the principal performer of an evening, and in addition, Tom Davis, who is opening next door at the Apollo, has weaned Constance away by offering her a bigger salary than Faraday was willing to give. All this certainly has served to weaken the foundations of Faraday's latest production at the Lyric; wherefore it is to disappear into the limbo of gorgotten things within the next four weeks. This leaves Faraday face to face with only about two months of the season. To venture another costly production would obviously be to take a considerable risk. Consequently, he has decided to fall back on a lighter kind of entertainment and about the middle of next month will present a comedy by Basil Hood. This will leave his present musical comedy company free and it is just possible that some of them at least may cross the Atlantic in order to play their original parts when "Nightbirds" is done in New York by Lee Shubert.

Fred Terry has returned to work again, much against the wish and advice of his friends. But, as I have had occasion to mention more than once, Terry is at one and the same time the most charming and the most obstinate of men. When he makes up his mind to do a thing nothing will stop him. Last Saturday he resumed his old part in "Sweet Nell of Old Drury" at the New Theater. It was an anxious moment for all those in front who were in a position to realize what a serious risk he was taking. Although obviously exceedingly weak he did manage to pull through the performance, but later he had to pay the price of his temerity by an extremely restless night. Since then he has had several warnings that he is over-taxing his strength. But even these have failed to keep him away from the theater. I understand that he and his wife, Julia Neilson, have now practically decided to close their season at the New about the middle of next month and that Charles Wyndam and Mary Moore will then take up the running there. Wyndam returned from his long trip abroad just a week ago looking amazingly well. He carries the burden of his 74 years with wonderful ease.

George Edwards has just arranged with Gertie Millar to play the principal part in Lehar's opera, "Gipsy Love," which is to be the next production at Daly's. Basil Hood has written the English version—he has made, Edwards tells me, practically a new play of it. Lehar has also proven thoroughly amenable and has composed no fewer than nine new numbers for the English adaption. In the original score there is a goodly proportion of almost grand operatic music, but the greater part of that has now been dispensed with. Lehar, accompanied by his favorite librettist, Dr. Wilner, comes to London next week in order to discuss details. By that time Edwards will pretty well know how long "The Count of Luxembourg" is likely to serve his purpose.

Mrs. Sydney Drew's farce, "Billy," proved a complete fiasco at the Playhouse. It is many years since a piece has been so mercilessly roasted by the critics, not one of whom was able to discover a redeeming point in the piece. Cyril Maude has taken his failure very composedly; after all, it is not a particularly serious matter for him. He purchased the scenery from William Greet for a very moderate sum and his loss at the Playhouse is fully counterbalanced by the profits he derives from the London and provincial rights of "Bunty Pulls the Strings." "Billy" is to be taken off next Saturday and already a new comedy entitled "Love—And What Then?" by Macdonald Hastings, author of "The New Sin," has been put into rehearsal.

The first performance of "The Pink Lady" at the Globe brought together an audience, almost equally composed of Americans and English. William Gillette, looking as well and as impassive as ever, brought Doris Deane with him, while beside me were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Brooks, together with Arthur Collins. In a box, carefully concealed from the vulgar gaze by a drawn curtain, was Charles Frohman accompanied by Haddon Chambers, just returned from Nice. Mrs. C. M. S. McLellan and her daughter, who is studying for the stage, were in one of the front rows of the stalls, but McLellan himself modestly took a seat at the back of the dress circle. George Edwards sat near me and had the satisfaction of witnessing the success of Hazel Dawn, formerly a member of one of his own companies. The piece was received with boisterous applause and on the fall of the curtain Caryll and Erlanger appeared before the footlights and were loudly cheered. But McLellan, after his usual fashion, incontinently fled the theater.

Last Thursday night seems to have been a lucky one for playwrights because in addition to "The Pink Lady," Anthony P. Wharton's "At the Barn," with the inimitable Marie Tempest in the leading role, scored heavily at the Prince of Wales Theater. Wharton, of course, is the author of "Irene Wycherley," in which Lena Ashwell made her first great success as actress-manager at the Kingsway Theater here. His latest play is light comedy suiting Marie Tempest like the proverbial glove.

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

George Curry, one of New Mexico's two representatives in Congress, is a former Governor of that State, and has been many other things. It is recorded that he started life as a cowboy, but gave it up to become a Sheriff. He saw military service in Cuba and the Philippines, and at one time was chief of police of the city of Manila.

Associate-Justice Charles E. Hughes of the Supreme Court of the United States, formerly Governor of New York, is 50 years old. He is the youngest member of the Supreme bench, and with the single exception of Oscar W. Underwood, is the youngest of all the men prominently mentioned as a Presidential possibility in either party. Mr. Underwood is the justice's junior by twenty-five days.

Alderman Walter Pierce and Paul Jankowski of Wausau, Wis., will have to cut cards at the next meeting of the council to decide who shall represent the Sixth Ward of the city. Both received the same number of votes at the recent election. Two years ago Pierce had a similar experience and won in the cut of cards.

H. M. Williams, the "cranberry king," lives at Seaview, State of Washington, where he cultivates a bog of 600 acres, said to be the largest single cranberry garden under cultivation in the world. He has been raised in the business, his father having owned cranberry grounds in the Cape Cod district. Mr. Williams's tract in Washington is very productive, and is not for sale at any price.

By special direction of the President, Brig.-Gen. W. P. Hall has relieved Col. H. C. McCain of charge of the Adjutant-General's office at the War Department. Gen. Hall was in Europe on leave of absence when Gen. Ainsworth was retired in February last, and Col. McCain then was placed in charge "until further orders." Col. McCain probably will remain on duty at the War Department as Adjt.-Gen. Hall's chief assistant until June next, when Gen. Hall retires for age, and his successor is appointed.

Prof. Michel I. Pupin, head of the electrical engineering department of Columbia University, who urges the State to establish a technological school of high order in connection with the Johns Hopkins University, was a poor boy and worked for a time as a farm hand in Maryland. He went to New York and worked at anything he could find, while he attended night schools. He heard lectures at Columbia, finally captured a traveling scholarship, and went abroad to complete his studies.

Raymond A. Pearson, ex-State Commissioner of Agriculture, of New York, has been elected president of the State Agricultural and Mechanical College of Iowa. He is about 40 years old and is a native of Indiana. He got his first experience as laborer on a stock farm. Then he went to Cornell and after graduation entered the milk business.

LOS ANGELES TO THE SEA IN 15 MINUTES VIA

Valentine Monorail

Announcement

To Citizens of Los Angeles and Southern California

All who are familiar with the facts know it to be true that Los Angeles is one of the most progressive cities in the world, and this same aggressive spirit pervades the surrounding vicinities.

One of the most potent influences in the upbuilding of this great city has been the excellent street and interurban electric car systems. Los Angeles is fortunate in having one of the best electric car systems in the United States, also one of the most profitable to the owners. Rapid transit has meant much to Los Angeles in the past, and real, genuine rapid transit will mean still more in the future. But the so-called rapid transit of the past will not satisfy the demands of progressive citizens of Los Angeles and vicinity today.

ARE YOU SATISFIED?

Do the citizens of Pasadena believe that no better service can be conceived than one which requires a ride of from 35 to 55 minutes to travel 10 miles, with very often a much longer time required during those hours when the streets are congested?

Do the citizens of Los Angeles believe that the service from this city to the sea, requiring from 35 minutes to one hour, inadequate accommodations and the present rates of fare are the best that this age of progress can give?

Is Los Angeles content to see some of her worthy citizens ground to death nearly every week at the grade crossings of fast moving surface cars?

Though, as admitted, Los Angeles has one of the best electric car systems in the country, it cannot meet the requirements and demands of today.

NEW PRINCIPLES MUST BE EVOLVED.

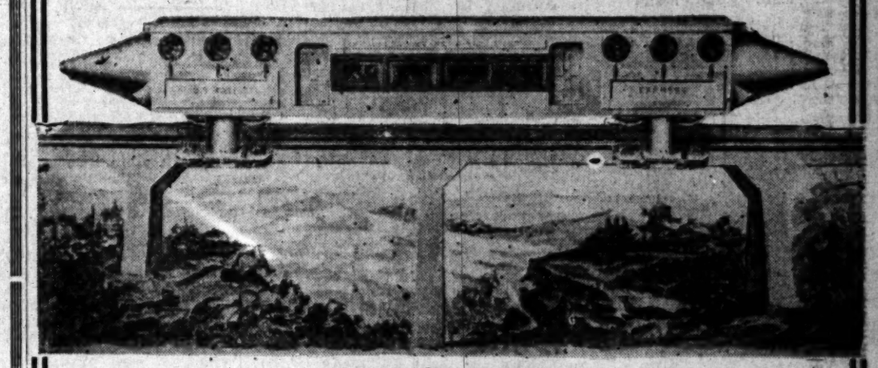
During the past few years scientific and other publications have discussed widely the "MONORAIL," and its possible bearing upon the solution of the rapid transit problem that confronts every great city, and, in fact, the whole world. Many engineers have declared boldly that the Monorail is the next move in transportation.

These facts indicate clearly a general trend of thought. That it should require a few years to develop the idea was only natural. That the problem would be successfully solved was inevitable.

VALENTINE MONORAIL SYSTEM.

Mr. Walter D. Valentine, an electrical and mechanical engineer, after years of experimenting, has evolved the Valentine Monorail System, which will make speeds of from 100 to 150 miles per hour easily attainable in absolute safety, with maintenance and operating costs so reduced that fares may be materially lowered. Mr. Valentine and associates expect to build in this vicinity at the earliest possible date the first operating road of this system, "Los Angeles to the Sea in Fifteen Minutes" will become a reality, and Los Angeles to Pasadena in ten minutes equally real.

In this announcement the principles involved are briefly described. The demonstrating model, built to one-twelfth scale and operated on a track 150 feet in length, is situated in the south basement of the Consolidated Realty Building, Sixth and Hill streets. You are cordially invited to call, inspect this model, watch it in operation, and see for yourself unmistakable evidence that "Los Angeles to the Sea in Fifteen Minutes" will soon come true.



VALENTINE MONORAIL CAR.

Valentine Monorail

Valentine Monorail roads will be elevated at all points. Double track construction is designed for the system throughout. The roadbed construction will be of reinforced concrete. Inasmuch as Valentine Monorail roads will be elevated, there will be no grade crossings, with their menace to automobiles, wagons, carriages, individuals or animals. Trains may therefore run just as rapidly within city limits as in the open country without endangering life. The reinforced concrete roadbed will be absolutely rigid and eliminate practically all vibration. It will be far superior to any railroad roadbed previously constructed. Herein lies one of the great virtues of the Valentine Monorail system. The roadbeds on which Valentine Monorail cars will run will be of the highest conceivable type, built of indestructible materials, making naturally possible, therefore, very great speed.

VALENTINE MONORAIL CARS ABSOLUTELY NON-DERAILABLE.

The trucks for Valentine Monorail cars, as shown clearly in the accompanying illustrations, will be so constructed as to make derailment absolutely impossible. Electricity will be used for motive power. The Valentine direct power motor entirely eliminates waste of power by eliminating gears. The traction wheels are the motors and the speed that may be attained will depend entirely upon the amount of power applied. Inasmuch as the cars will be non-derailable, speeds of 100 to 150 miles per hour will be attained with safety.

COSTS REDUCED.

Valentine Monorail roads will be of the highest type ever constructed. They will not be cheap roads to build, though, as nearly as can be estimated, they will cost little if any more than high-class roads of the present type. The maintenance costs of the Valentine Monorail roads should be more than 50 per cent. less than for roads of the present two-rail type, and operating costs should be reduced by a similar ratio. The reduction of maintenance and operating costs will make it possible to materially reduce fares.

SERVICE.

The demand today is for higher speed and greater safety. The railroads of the present two-rail type have attained the maximum possible speed, because it is not possible to run faster and keep the trains on the tracks. It is impossible to lay two rails exactly horizontal and parallel with each other. When a railroad car of today, going at a high rate of speed, strikes an elevation or depression in the rail, though the elevation may be only half an inch in five hundred feet of track, the tendency is to "jump" the rail. It is not a difficult matter to create power to run trains at the rate of 100 or 150 miles per hour, but it is absolutely impossible to run them at such a rate on roadbeds of present design without jumping the track.

A glance at the illustration showing a cross-section view of roadbed and track construction and an end view of a Valentine Monorail car truck, will instantly reveal the fact that it is absolutely impossible for this truck to leave the traction rail. The lower wheels, bearing upward on the under surfaces of the guide rails, hold the truck securely in place at all times. It is therefore, only a matter of applying sufficient power to attain and maintain a speed of 150 miles per hour. With the Valentine direct power motor wheels this is a simple mechanical and electrical question. It is merely a matter of turning on the "juice," in the parlance of the electrician.

Come and See for Yourself

It is our earnest desire that every citizen of Los Angeles and vicinity become thoroughly familiar with all the facts in connection with the Valentine Monorail system and the Monorail Rapid Transit Company, which controls the patents of this system throughout the North American Continent.

A demonstrating model is now in operation on a track 150 feet in length in the south basement of the Consolidated Realty Building, and we invite every reader of this announcement to call at our demonstrating room any day between the hours of 10 o'clock a.m. and 5:30 p.m. or 7:30 and 9 p.m. and see for himself that our claims for the Valentine Monorail System are based upon demonstrated facts. Within the limits of this short announcement it is impossible to give any adequate idea of this enterprise, but a personal examination of the operating model will convince you that "Los Angeles to the Sea in Fifteen Minutes" at half the present fare will be a reality of the near future.

Those who cannot call and examine the operating model should fill in the following coupon and mail it to us for full descriptive literature on the Valentine Monorail System and the Monorail Rapid Transit Co.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

Health Officer Powers yesterday state that great betterments have been brought about in the lodging-houses of the city, but that he anticipates the development of many new problems as immigration expands.

Commissioner Humphreys yesterday proposed that the city sell franchises — the right to construct bridges over alleys in the business district, and the City Attorney is to make a report on this.

The Board of Public Works yesterday authorized the payment of $26,433.39 to the United States Land Office for 22,753.11 acres along the Los Angeles aqueduct, for which application has long been made.

Friction has appeared in the Aqueduct Investigation Board as to whether it shall continue its investigations unless $2000 more is forthcoming from the City Council. Johnson favors this; Warner opposes giving up the job.

The Superior Court decided yesterday in the case of a man who received a telegram too late to attend his mother's funeral that mental anguish is not measurable in this State in dollars and cents.

At the City Hall.

ROOMING-HOUSE BETTERMENTS.

HEALTH OFFICER TELLS OF THE IMPROVEMENT.

Says Three Years' Work of Inspection Has Brought Changed Conditions From a Sanitary Standpoint—Problem Will Be Greater When Canal Opens.

City Health Officer Powers yesterday stated that the work of the past three years in inspection of lodging and rooming houses in Los Angeles has brought about vast betterments in the general situation, and that he considers this one of the most important phases of the health department.

In many cases faulty ventilation has been remedied, unsanitary conditions have been changed, and the formerly common practice in certain places of crowding numerous lodgers into small quarters has been greatly overcome. This latter trouble still exists in the Russian quarters, and has to be constantly watched by inspectors.

With the increased territory of the city and the prospect of a vast increase in the arrival of immigrants when the Panama Canal is in use, the matter of keeping rooming houses up to standard is certain to become of great importance, says Health Officer Powers, and this will require the services of more inspectors.

"The immigrant business that is certain to come to Los Angeles within the next few years will undoubtedly bring to the city's health department many serious problems," said Dr. Powers yesterday. "We want to be thoroughly prepared to handle these problems and to maintain the high standing that this city has attained in matters of health."

TO BRIDGE ALLEYS.

MAY SELL FRANCHISES.

A communication from the proprietors of the Fifth Street Store was before the Board of Public Works yesterday, asking for permission to construct a bridge over the alley to connect the building at the southwest corner of Fifth and Broadway with the building on Fifth street just west of the alley and which is to be used by the store for school purposes. Commissioner Humphreys suggested that the matter of bridges over alleys might be solved by giving franchises for them, as they use public property, and after discussion the subject was referred to the City Attorney for recommendation as to the best method of handling it.

INITIATIVE PETITION.

A committee from the Alembic Club, composed of Louis J. Hansen, F. C. Finkle and Charles D. Chase, brought to the City Hall yesterday an initiatory petition, signed by 7812 persons, asking for the improvement of Pacific avenue, Fourteenth street and San Pedro street to the Huntington Fill at San Pedro. This petition doubtless will go before the Council on Tuesday, and may go on the ballot for the special election. The estimated cost of this improvement is $150,000.

SCHOOL WANTS RELIEF.

The Board of Education yesterday asked the Board of Public Works to provide better storm drainage on Fifty-second, Fifty-third and Main streets, where the storm water damages school property, and the city engineer was instructed to prepare plans for this betterment.

WILL PAY UNCLE SAM.

Special Attorney Matthews yesterday reported to the Board of Public Works that the General Land Office is now prepared to issue cash certificates on receipt of payment for the 22,751.11 acres of land along the Los Angeles aqueduct, known as the river channel application, the Tinemaha reservoir application and the artesian lands application. The amount to be paid is $25,438.89. The board authorized this payment.

WANT MORE MONEY.

Edward Johnson, president of the Aqueduct Investigating Board, yesterday filed a communication to the City Council, stating that the committee would require about $200 besides the $1000 granted by the Council in April, in order to further carry on its wok, and that unless it was the intention of the Council to grant this request it was advisable for the commission to drop its work at once and thus save the city approximately $1200. A copy of a resolution was also sent the Council, showing that all of the commission employees except three were to be dropped and these were to be carried until May 15.

Commissioner Warner stated yesterday that Johnson evidently was speaking for himself alone in suggesting that the investigation be dropped, as no action on this matter was taken by the commission.

CITY HALL BREVITIES.

H. W. O'Melveny has asked for a ninety-days' leave of absence from the park commission.

Hartwick C. Muller of Highland Park and George F. C. Gray of the Los Angeles Ambulance Company, have been appointed special police.

William S. Bartlett has sent a communication to the City Council stating that much confusion is arising because of the change of numbers on West Adams street, west of Arlington, as recently ordered by the city engineer, and asking that the block running west from a point opposite Lecond avenue be designated as the 3100 block, instead of the 2200 block, as it now is known.

At the Courthouse.

MENTAL ANGUISH IS UNASSUAGED.

SON GETS TELEGRAM TOO LATE TO ATTEND FUNERAL.

Sues Telegraph Company, Alleging Its Failure to Deliver Message Caused Him Great Suffering—Decision Establishes Precedent in This State.

Whether or not the mental anguish of a son whose mother had passed away and who on account of the alleged neglect of the telegraph company to deliver the message of bereavement was unable to attend the funeral can be measured in dollars and cents was decided by Judge Houser yesterday in the suit of R. B. Wilson against the Western Union Telegraph Company. The demurrer of the company to the complaint was sustained.

Wilson's brother at Washington, Iowa, telegraphed him November 14, 1910: "Mother passed away tonight. Funeral will be Wednesday unless you come."

It was alleged by Wilson that the telegram was not delivered until it was too late to leave for Washington, although the company knew his office and home address. He asked $1950 damages for the anguish which ensued by reason of the neglect of the company.

Judge Houser found the statutes of this State do not cover the question of anguish so far as it relates to bereavement or from disappointment, but the issue had been tried in other States, five deciding in favor of it and eighteen against it. The decisions of the Federal courts are against it. In sustaining the demurrer Judge Houser establishes a precedent in this State. He said he was materially assisted by one of the best briefs ever filed with him.

WITHOUT HIS CONSENT.

GIVE BABY AWAY REGARDLESS.

The indination of Judge Rives was aroused yesterday when Charles R. and Pearl Snow appeared in his court, prepared apparently without a twinge of regret to give their three weeks' old baby, Eva Catherine, to strangers.

The court refused the petition of Charles H. and Blanche G. Travis to adopt Eva, on the ground that the procedure is to have the infant first declared a dependant in the Juvenile Court.

Attorney McLaughlin, who represented the petitioners, stated that Snow and his wife, a young couple, married last year in Canada, had advertised they wanted a home for their baby. Snow alleged as the reason that he is not able to support his family of three. The advertisement was read by a Mrs. Richardson, who told a neighbor and the latter suggested Travis, who lives on Dayton Heights. Travis and his wife jumped at the opportunity to have a baby in the house and took steps to have it legally adopted.

Although this was denied, Eva was turned over to Mrs. Travis shortly after the quartette left the courtroom. She is now the most prized possession of the Travis household. Snow and his wife left for the East.

CASE GOES HIGHER.

APPEAL IN MESMER SUIT.

After the judgment is signed tomorrow an immediate appeal will be taken from the decision of Judge Bordwell in the suit of Joseph Mesmer against the Board of Public Service Commissioners to restrain the board from completing the purchase of the site for the new water building at Fifth and Olive streets and proceeding with the erection of the building.

Judge Bordwell held the contract did not create an indebtedness sufficient to violate the constitutional provision, which is that no municipality shall incur an indebtedness exceeding in amount the revnue for that year. This was the main point contended by Mesmer.

He will base his appeal on the contention that the complaint did state a cause of action, the court holding that it did not and could not be amended.

JUST LIKE THAT.

HIS IDEA OF FAMILY ROW.

Fred S. Solomon was an unwilling but graphic witness in the divorce proceeding of Mrs. Etta E. Pattillo in Judge Monroe's court yesterday. Joseph N. Pattillo, the husband, is a friend of Solomon's and when he was asked about their family differences, Solomon replied:

"It is just like this, judge. These people are friends of mine, and I don't like to but in on family rows. I have known them for ten or twelve years and you know how it is when two strange bull dogs meet—well, it was just like that."

Mrs. Pattillo was granted the decree.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.

BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

HEAVY BONDS. Bonds aggregating $10,000 have been given in a suit for an automobile worth $1000, and for a week, Judge Baker has been giving one hour a day to the trial. The suit was brought by Earl Newmire and Isidor Morris against the Schacht Consolidated Auto Truck Company for ownership of the machine.

HANDSOME JEWEL. H. C. Lichtenberg, deputy County Clerk, has received one of the handsomest jewels ever presented by the Grand Parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West. The gift was made at Fresno during the Grand Parlor session, Lichtenberg being past president.

INCORPORATIONS—Messer, Brubaker and Teague Manufacturing Company, incorporators, V. V. Messer, J. B. Brubaker, H. J. Brubaker, E. E. Teague; capital stock, $50,000; subscribed, $40.

EXPERT PEACEMAKER.

Justice Summerfield has qualified as an expert peacemaker. In the case of Dyer against Van Slooten, the plaintiff sued to recover for a balance alleged to be due on a contracting job. Summerfield decided to see the work. He took the plaintiff and defendant to the house and after talking things over all became so friendly that the plaintiff agreed to withdraw his suit.

IN THE INFERIOR COURTS.

Boy Driving Grocery Wagon Does Marathon on Spring Street, Is Pursued, Captured and Fined.

The next time Paul Geodice, No. 570 Alpine street, tries a marathon on Spring street he probably will make sure beforehand that he can outrun the swiftest cop.

Geodice, driving a grocery wagon, failed to obey Traffic Patrolman McGillen's signals at First and Spring streets. McGillen called to the boy to stop. He didn't. Instead, he looked over his shoulder at the patrolman, grinned and whipped up his horse.

A buggy was passing and McGillen jumped into it.

"Catch that young fellow," he said as he pointed to Geodice, who was going north on Spring street, as fast as his horse could travel.

At Market street the lad peeped again at the patrolman, and seeing that he was still following him, shot around the corner, and memntarily disappeared from view. When McGillen reached the corner Geodice had reached Main street, and was headed for Temple street. At that street the chase came to an end. Geodice's horse quitting. The pace was too swift.

Police Judge Chambers fined the boy $5.

Begged Not in Vain.

Frank Steffan, alias Frank Miller, whose partner, F. W. Malone, was sentenced Friday in the Superior Court to four years in the penitentiary on a burglary charge, the "trick" netting him 35 cents, made such an effective plea before Police Judge Chambers yesterday for another chance to reform that the court released him.

Before coming to Los Angeles Steffan stole $150 from a hotel-keeper in Seattle. He was arrested with Malone, but there was not sufficient evidence to convict him, and he was released from the County Jail only to be picked up by Plainclothesmen Robinson and Shy.

Time for Reflection.

A. J. Woodall, who was arrested several days ago by Sergt. Stelzridge, charged with having obtained money under false pretenses, circulating a petition in an effort to raise money to prevent the alleged removal of his wife's body from Forrest Lawn cemetery to the Potter's field, was sent to jail for sixty days yesterday by Police Judge Chambers.

Woodall was convicted Friday, and remanded without bail until yesterday for sentence.

Masher Goes to Jail.

Twenty days in the City Jail was the sentence meted out to Sam Wilkey by Police Judge Chambers yesterday because he persisted in talking to Miss Anna Smith, No. 1607 East Fourteenth street, while she was walking on the street. The man was intoxicated.

Fight Proves Costly.

Harry West and Charles Williams were haled before Judge Chambers yesterday on a charge of disturbing the peace. Patrolmen Gamash and Fisher, who made the arrests, found the men fighting in a room in the Wilmington, No. 123 North San Pedro street. The men, before they could be separated, had succeeded in demolishing almost all the furniture in the room. They were fined $15 or fifteen days.

Bosses to Fight.

C. L. Waldry, president, and W. B. Huddy, business manager of the Columbia Athletic Club, have been cited to appear in Police Judge Chamber's court Monday in answer to a complaint filed by Sergt. Plummer. He charges them with having staged a boxing contest at the club recently, without having first secured a permit. It is understood the club intends to permit by the Police Commission.

HIS NIGHTIES PERFUMED.

Dainty Gowns Exhibited in Trial of Young Man Examined as to His Sanity—Religious Love.

Two dainty night shirts, edged with lace and odorous with violets, were proudly displayed in Judge Hutton's court yesterday morning by Charles T. Parnell, under examination for being an insane pervert.

Several witnesses had testified Friday to Parnell's care of his nightwear as showing him to be insane and the latter unrolled the two gowns before the judge and doctors to show that they were merely such as any luxurious young idler might wear.

"Those witnesses said I was insane because I was so particular about my shirts," said Parnell, brandishing them in the air. "I had had to get boys' sizes because I am too small to wear men's things."

Parnell said he loved Gorham Tufts, Jr., founder of the "Church of God," as a brother in religious work, and hugged and kissed him through fervor of religious zeal. He taxed witnesses with being prejudiced and biased against him.

Parnell and Tufts seemed excited during the hearing and frequently consulted as to the procedure, despite warnings from their counsel.

Finally Judge Hutton said he had heard enough of the case and that with permission of Parnell's counsel he would allow the two doctors to make a private examination of the man early in the week.

Tufts is seeking to regain control of his two boys and there will be another session this week in Judge Wilbur's court to decide whether the mother or father shall have the custody of the lads.

Tufts is also facing several criminal charges which have not been pressed because of other matters demanding immediate attention. He is in the County Jail and Parnell is at the County Hospital under guard.

GOES TO HIGHEST BIDDER.

Collector of Customs Pendleton will offer at public sale, at the warehouse, No. 316 Commercial street, May 15, a lot of unclaimed goods. The value of the various articles ranges from $1, for a box of candy, to $770, the value of five boxes of moving picture films. The highest bidder will get them.

ELECTRICAL MEETING.

At the meeting of the Los Angeles section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers in Grant Hall, Walker Auditorium, Tuesday evening, at 8 o'clock "Motors" will be the subject, with "Some Features of Dynamo Electric Design," by Carl E. Johnson, and "Motor Applications," by W. S. Hoag. J. E. MacDonald will also give a report of the Pacific Coast meeting at Portland.

Overfatness Condemned

Fat, or even fattish, women readers who want to be in the mode this year must understand that the demand is for lines, not curves, and govern themselves accordingly.

That means OFF with the fat. It has become a duty. Many are trying exercise or dieting; but it is certain they will find these methods too slow, and undesirable. The cheapest and safest way to get in form for the Directoire mode is by means of Marmola Prescription Tablets. Any druggist (or the Marmola Co., 225 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.) will give you a large sized case of these elegant little fat reducers, containing a good, generous supply, for 75 cents, and even this quantity should be enough to make a decided impression on your excess fat. Many have lost as much as a pound a day.

These Marmola Prescription Tablets may be used with impunity and likewise perfect confidence, for, being made strictly in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription, they are, of course, quite harmless. They are rather beneficial than otherwise, in fact, never disturbing the stomach or causing a wrinkling of the flesh.

PSYCHIC PHYSICIANS DEFIED BY ONE THEY TREATED.

Hollywood Woman Puts Her Trust in Mental "Cures" and Finds Big Hole in Her Pocketbook—Now Willing to Help Prosecute Those Who Had Designs on Property.

When J. H. Beynon, who says he had a doctor's license in Michigan, tried to collect a $250 fee for alleged mental treatment of Mrs. F. E. Rogers of Hollywood, she caused the practitioner's arrest for alleged extortion. He was arraigned in Justice Young's court yesterday morning and allowed to go on his own recognizance.

Beynon was also charged with practicing medicine without a license. That case is to be heard in Judge Chambers's court.

In addition to the alleged extortion on the part of Beynon, Deputy District Attorney Shannon is inquiring into the dealings of Mrs. Rogers with C. H. De Haven, a psychic healer and fortune teller. Mrs. Rogers told Shannon that she had given De Haven considerable money upon the assurance that he would cause happy thought waves to envelop her. Through her acquaintance with De Haven, Mrs. Rogers says she met Beynon who gave her mental treatments for a nervous malady. She got a bill one day for about $250 and when she failed to send the money Beynon brought suit in the Justice Court, but the case has not yet been heard.

Deputy District Attorney Shannon is not quite sure what relation De Haven has to the case other than he is one of a group of phychics who have been treating Mrs. Rogers and demanding large fees. But in Beynon's case the prosecutor says the man has laid himself open to the law by threatening to blacken the character of his patient if she did not pay his apparently extortionate bills.

Mrs. Rogers lives at No. 1807 Fairmont avenue. She is ready to help prosecute Beynon and declares that there was apparently a plot to get her under hypnotic sway until she gave up a lot of her property to the seers.

Beynon said that he once practiced medicine in Michigan but admitted he has no California license. He denies giving any medicine and says his mental treatments are not contrary to law. He admitts writing a letter to Mrs. Rogers, demanding a $250, fee.

AUCTION MEN ARRESTED.

Police Charge They Obtained Money Under False Pretenses in Selling a Watch.

Herman Fields and J. S. Bernstein spent four hours in the City Jail yesterday waiting for $200 cash bail required by Police Judge Chambers to insure their attendance in court tomorrow morning to answer to the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

The men operate a jewelry store and auction sale at No. 314 South Main street. They were arrested at the instigation of L. D. Goodwin, 16 years old. In his complaint Goodwin alleges that he was induced by Fields and Bernstein to part with his watch and $6 for a timepiece that they represented was a railroad watch, contained twenty-three jewels and would give perfect satisfaction for twenty years. Other jewelers told the police the watch was worth $1.50 or $2.

Mike Smith, a capper for the store, was recently sent to jail for sixty days by Police Judge Chambers. The police say they have had a number of complaints against Fields and Bernstein.

GOES INTO BANKRUPTCY.

Clyde Jackson, a prospector and mining promoter of La Jolla, San Diego county, filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States Court yesterday. The liabilities are scheduled at $8,776.40, of which $5,970.95 is due the Fairview Oil Company, on a judgment. The alleged bankrupt has equities in several pieces of real estate at La Jolla, a watch, stick pin, and wearing apparel.

MONTANA MARRIAGE HERE.

Miss E. Berwick Redding and Lewis A. Cowan, both of Bozeman, Mont., were married by Rev. Baker P. Lee at Christ Episcopal Church, at noon on Tuesday. A wedding breakfast was served at the apartments of Mrs. Dorothy McVay Tibbits in the Huntley, at which place Mr. and Mrs. Cowan are at home to their friends.

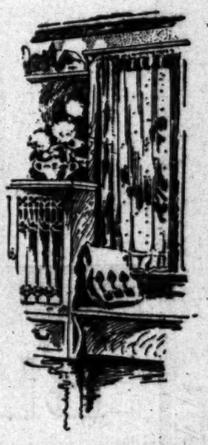
Exquisite Summer Draperies Will Transform Your Home



Some exquisite new summer drapery stuffs are shown in one of our windows this week.

At this time of the year, when you desire to add new beauty and color to the furnishings to harmonize with the season—aesthetic study reveals that most pleasing transformations may be effected at least cost by changing the draperies—by supplanting the rich warm colorings of the season past, with the exquisite light, dainty fabrics of summer.

The "California's" drapery department offers discriminating home furnishers the advantages of selection from the most exclusive new ideas in summer draperies, curtains and upholstery fabrics—especially suited to this semi-tropic climate.

—beautiful French and English cretonnes and chintzes.

—dainty shadow-warp taffetas in soft, delicate colorings.

—block printed linens in bold designs, with printed borders to harmonize.

—broad selections of exquisite tapestries, silk damasks, brocades, silk armures, embroideries, and reproductions of rare antique stuffs of all important periods.

The advice of the California's Drapery Department is at your service to assist you in working out most harmonious and appropriate results for your own requirements at least cost.

We invite you to visit this department, study our prices and facilities for service, and convince yourself that we are equipped to serve you most economically and satisfactorily.

Modern Mecca.

A FAIR CITY OF MORTALS.

Shriners Will See Wonderful Transformation.

Fifty Trainloads Start Here, Several Today.

Los Angeles Will Receive Gorgeously Attired.

Fifty special trains bearing thousands of Shriners, their wives and friends from various cities in North America will leave for Los Angeles to day and the next few days with their cargoes of happy fez wearers and excursionists, who are to participate in the great Imperial council meeting to be held here during the week of May 4.

Twenty other special de luxe trains carrying hundreds of Nobles are scheduled to leave within the next forty-eight hours for the 1912 trysting place of the Nobility of North America.

From the East, the North and the South will come thousands of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine to revel in the glorious sunshine and salubrious climate of Southern California and partake of the famed hospitality, good cheer and fellowship of the great Southwest.

With the 129 temples will come unsurpassed bands and magnificently uniformed patrols. In the delegations that will fill every hotel in the city and every suburb for miles about will be wives and daughters of the Nobility.

Los Angeles, the mecca of the nation's pleasure seekers, will outdo itself in providing for the entertainment of the visitors.

Without doubt it will be the most elaborate and impressive Imperial Council meeting held since the establishment of the Imperial Council in New York City thirty-eight years ago. Members of the executive committee in charge estimate that there will be close to 150,000 visitors within the city's gates during the week's festivities. It will cost approximately $85,000 to carry out the splendid programme of entertainment as planned by the committee.

LOOKING UP ALREADY.

The down-town section of the city already presents a gala appearance. Scores of the big buildings are being decorated with thousands of pennants, flags, banners and electric lights.

Gangs of electricians are busy stringing wires, Chinese lanterns and incandescent lamps across the principal streets. The result will be to give the city the appearance of a great fairyland inhabited by mortals.

Fifteen thousand lanterns will be hung, four strings of three each being stretched across the streets. Each lantern will contain an electric lamp. The lanterns will be so arranged as to give the effect, when looking down the street, of a solid canopy of illuminated globes. These with three immense set pieces to represent different insignias of the Shrine will be the electrical features of the street decorations.

Nearly every business man in the city has notified W. G. Hutchison, in charge of the street decorations, that he is planning to decorate in honor of the occasion.

It is estimated that $15,000 will be expended in carrying out the gorgeous lighting scheme along the line of march. When completed, it will be a wonderful electrical pageant far surpassing any former street decorations here.

The towns and cities throughout Southern California are making preparations to participate in the floral and allegorical parade of May 10. There will be a large number of beautiful floats depicting the varied resources of this fair region. Entrants are appearing daily and every community adjacent to Los Angeles will doubtless be represented.

ALL IS BUSTLE.

Gangs of workmen are erecting mammoth grand stands which will line both sides of Grand avenue between Eighth and Tenth streets. They will have a seating capacity of 12,000 persons.

Thousands of reservations for seats are being received by A. F. Devereaux, who has charge of their sale. The price of each seat has been made as low as possible.

Official headquarters of Al Malaikah Temple will be in the Pacific Electric building. As the visiting delegations arrive, they will be escorted to their hotels by Al Malaikah Shrine band and the famous Arab Patrol.

The Imperial Council will hold its annual session in the Scottish Rite Cathedral, while the grand Shrine ball and other features of the week's entertainment will be held in the Al Malaikah Shrine Coliseum.

Hundreds of automobiles will be required to show the city's guests its innumerable attractions and beauties and the Executive Committee is anxious to secure as many private machines as possible. The machines will be used May 5 and 7 and anyone willing to lend his automobile on these days will confer a favor on the committee if he will communicate with Herbert L. Cornish, chairman of the Automobile Committee.

The Japanese Association has arranged to enter a float costing $1000 in the parade of May 10.

CITY NEEDS MORE WORKERS.

Two Sets of Civil Service Examinations Announced for Next Month to Fill some good Positions.

There are some remunerative positions in the municipal service to be had by persons who can meet the requirements of the Civil Service Commission as to citizenship and pass the examinations. Ten examinations are announced for May.

In order to take a civil service examination it is necessary to have lived in this city for at least a year and be a citizen of the United States, and a registered voter. Application blanks may be obtained at the office of the commission, No. 204 Exchange Building.

The second set of examinations will be given on May 18 for the following positions; auto machinist, fire department, $100 a month; page, library department, $16 to $40 a month; policewoman, police department, $75 a month; inspector, housing commission, $100 a month; director, playground department, $90 a month.

Just See That Corn Shrivel—Vanish!

The New Corn Cure "GETS-IT" Gets It.

Corns on Sunday! Before Using "Gets-It."

Gone on Tuesday! After Using "Gets-It."

"GETS-IT" is the new corn cure on a new plan, that is as harmless to the skin as water, but, blazes, how it works! Nothing to stick or hurt. Lo and behold, your corn comes out. You don't have to drag it out. Every owner of a corn, callous, wart or bunion is going to get the surprise of a lifetime. No more digging at corns, no more slicing with razors and drawing blood, no more blood poison, no more sticking plasters. "GETS-IT" is sold at all druggists at 25c a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago. Sold in Los Angeles by The Owl Drug Co.

REMARKABLE TESTIMONIAL.

Medical Profession Tenders Dinner to Dr. Ellis in Recognition of Highly Appreciated Services.

In recognition of the services of Dr. H. Bert Ellis in bringing the American Medical Association to this city last year, 110 members of the medical profession and other friends tendered him a testimonial dinner at the University Club on last Monday evening. The following after-dinner speeches were delivered: "My Friend," Dr. Granville MacGowan; "Who Brought the A.M.A. to Los Angeles?" James Slauson; "President of the Medical Association Building Company," Dr. J. Rollin French; "Without Prejudice," Dr. Charles W. Bryson; "Who Made the A.M.A. Happy When They Came?" Frank P. Flint; "Broad-Minded and Ethical," Dr. Charles B. Nichols; poem, "True Friendship," dedicated to H. Bert Ellis, John S. McGroarty; "A Sunsetter," J. W. McKinley; "My Defense," Dr. Ellis. Speeches were also made by Gurney Newlin, Dr. F. T. Bicknell, Oscar Lawler and Capt. J. D. Fredericks. The chairman of the evening was Dr. William Monroe Lewis; toastmaster, Dr. Norman Bridge. Committee, Dr. O. O. Witherbee, Dr. F. C. E. Mattison, Dr. C. W. Decker.

INVENTION OF LOCAL MAN.

Stephen W. Chick of No. 425 East Selma avenue, Hollywood, has invented an ingenious automatic street indicator, to be placed in street-cars, after two years of labor and the expenditure of $1200. It is designed to be operated by a brush hanging from the trolley wire at each street intersection, which will throw up the name of the street, ring a bell and light a lamp in front of the indicator. It would be a great convenience, particularly at night, and can be made to hold any number of names, up to 1000 or more.

WHO'LL HEL
LONE

He's in a Crow

Traffic Officer Krug, Seventh and B son

THE lonesomest man in Los Ange les was discovered yesterday b the "confession" of Walter Krug ave it. He's the tallest man on th police force and is to be found ever day—rain or shine—directing traffi at West Seventh and South Broadway that is considered the busiest inter section in the city.

Krug says he is much lonesomer than the dispatcher in his funny little tower on the street corner, the scrub woman who sweeps out the empty skyscraper between midnight and sun rise, the milk man or the man who runs the city to sleep. Krug com pares himself to a "desolate Robinson Crusoe," declaring with a sigh that at Seventh and Broadway he is ma rooned in a sea of traffic with thous ands brushing his elbows, with hoarse cries of coal wagon drivers and the honk of auto horns ever in his ears.
Standing squarely in the heart of the city's uproar, his solitude, he says, is greater than that of the hermit or the hermit nearthe altitude mark.

"I could stand this job better," con tinued the chaos-dispatcher, waving with a taxi with one hand and draw ing forward a tiny girl in a polo cap

POLITICAL TIPS.

The Roosevelt campaign is well financed. The filing of campaign ex penses shows that $59,000 was ex pended in New York City alone to en courage the spontaneous popular de mand for his nomination which amounts to about $4 each for all the votes the colonel received at the pri mary election. For the whole State it is estimated that $100,000 was spent in behalf of his candidacy, which fact made the Chicago Inter-Ocean to say:
"We thus have, to put it very mild ly, about the same amount of money used in Mr. Roosevelt's campaign in New York that was regarded in in timate circles as furnishing a conclu sive presumption of corruption when used in Senator Stephenson's cam paign in Wisconsin. And yet, so far as we have been able to learn, there has been neither horror nor indigna tion in insurgent circles on that ac count."

The plain man who is not exactly obsessed with the workings of the corrupt mind will naturally be led to inquire wherein lies the ground of distinction—why is that expending a sum in a Wisconsin campaign tantamount to the republic, whereas expending as large a sum in a New York campaign for Mr. Roosevelt is right if not laudable."

Henry W. Taft, brother of the Pres ident, has also been placed in the Outing Club by Mr. Roosevelt be cause he was reported to have said already a million dollars has been spent in behalf of the colonel's candidacy.

"I don't believe Mr. Taft can be correctly quoted," he said. "But if he has spoken a deliberate falsehood."

Concerning Taft's statement that Senator Flinn informed him $250,- 000 had been spent in Pittsburgh to carry Allegheny county for Roosevelt, Flinn said abruptly: "I don't know anything about Pennsylvania."

There is likely to be considerable wrangling of delegates to the Balti more convention. For instance, the Taft primaries elected delegates who are instructed for Gov. Wilson.
It is reported from that State that not all the delegates prefer Mr.
Taft to Gov. Wilson. The impres sion has gone abroad in the State that Taft cannot be nominated and the chance for the Governor has much weakened thereby.

The Alabama delegates to the Balti more convention will vote for Oscar Underwood for President until a change is made. At least a resolu tion to this effect was unanimously passed by the State Democratic convention. The action of the con vention is reported to have been char acterized throughout by great enthu siasm, a demonstration lasting fully fifteen minutes when Underwood's name was mentioned on the floor.

Some of the Missouri Democrats in Congress are considering the advis ability of grooming Francis Marion Cockrell, former Senator and mem ber of the Interstate Commerce Com mission, for the Governor. The fact that Cockrell is 77 years of age is said to be no bar, since he comes from a line that live to be 100. Fur thermore, the veteran Missourian is reported to be in vastly better health since his recent trip to the Philippines, where he assisted in estab lishing the permanent boundary line between New Mexico and Texas as members of the United States.

Democrats are said to be badly divided that there is much about the ability of the party to re-elect Ben Hooper,

MILADY'S TOILET TABLE

Simple Home Made Toilet Preparations That Anyone Can Make.

Thousands of women are now making their own toilet preparations. They not only find them better and fresher, but they get three times as much for the money—for instance, a good ready-made greaseless cold cream costs 50c for a two or three-ounce jar—while a whole pound can be made at home for very little more money. Two ounces of cerol mixed with a pint of boiling water produces the fin-est non-hair-growing, non-pore-clogging greaseless cream it is possible to make.

Beauty specialists now make their own Vaucaire treatment for rounding out the form. This is made by adding one ounce of true gallol to a pint of sugar syrup—any woman can make this herself with-out going to the beauty parlors for the treatment, as all druggists now sell the true gallol in original one ounce packages.

A dainty softening and whitening lotion for rough and red hands is easily made by dissolving two ounces amarol in a pint of boiling water.

To remove unsightly hairs, mix a little delol with enough water to make paste. Smear over hairs and after two or three minutes wash off and the hairs will be gone. Beware of imitations. Be sure to get the genuine delol — druggists charge 75c for an ounce bottle.

Catarrh Can Be Relieved

There is no need for you to continually suffer from catarrh and cold in the head. It makes you miserable, doesn't it? You really don't care whether things go right or not, and you wonder when you'll ever get over it. And you will not get over it until you get the Clover Leaf Catarrh Remedy, and use it. It will relieve you, and you'll wonder why you had not used it sooner.

We are so positive that this will relieve you of your catarrh or cold in the head that we guarantee you satisfaction or we will refund your money.

Price 50c. For sale by all druggists—or sent by mail postpaid by the manufac-turers.

Mayor Crump of Memphis is said to be noted for his serene temper and the only time he was ever angry was when some nervy chap came into his office and called him nasty names. Without rumpling his hair or mussing his costume the Mayor lit into the fellow and thrashed him so soundly that he had to stay in a hospital for a fortnight.

Brig.-Gen. George H. Harries of Washington, D. C., who is commander of the National Guard of the Dis-trict of Columbia, says "there is no reason why the followers of Presi-dent Taft should feel discouraged be-cause of the result in Illinois and Pennsylvania. He will be nominated with plenty of votes to spare. No man of real courage gives up because he has received a few whacks over the head. The Taft forces are not dream-ing of surrender. In fact, they are just now getting ready to do some sure-enough fighting."

Col. Roosevelt, while in Silver Creek, Neb., last week, declined to engage in joint debate with Congress-man Gardner of Massachusetts, who said an effort was being made to "link the name of President Taft with that of Senator Lorimer and other unpop-ular persons whom the President al-ways opposed."

Col. Roosevelt declared that the "linking" was done by Lorimer, and that Mr. Taft made no effort to break the link until it was proven unprofit-able to him.

"In Illinois," said the colonel in one of his speeches, "we got all the State except the votes which Mr. Lorimer had in his pocket.

"Now that Mr. Lorimer is defeated, a number of Mr. Taft's supporters are sending me word that Mr. Taft was against Mr. Lorimer. Mr. Taft may have been against Mr. Lorimer, but it was so inoffensively that Mr. Lorimer never found it out until af-ter he was beaten."

And yet President Taft has shown by the correspondence with Roose-velt that the ex-President was entire-ly familiar with his feelings toward Lorimer.

The New Jersey Legislature hit Gov. Wilson a slap just before ad-journment by passing the Congres-sional redistricting bill over his veto. Writing vetoes appears to have been about all the Governor has had time to do during his brief periods at home. He has been giving more time to the national campaign than he has to New Jersey legislation.

A BROAD MAN.

CHARACTERISTIC TAFT LETTER.

WASHINGTON — Representative Gardner made public the following letter from President Taft relative to the reappointment of David Little, collector of customs at Salem, Mass.:

"My Dear Mr. Gardner—I have your letter in respect to Mr. David M. Little. As I understand it, Mr. Lit-tle has filled the office of collector of customs at Salem, Mass., for eight years satisfactorily to the public and the department and you have recom-mended him for reappointment, as is the custom.

"Mr. Little is now concerned with reference to my reappointing him be-cause he favors Col. Roosevelt for the Presidency and he has desired you to bring that matter to my at-tention before I reappointed him, if I desired to do so under the circum-stances. I think this shows on the part of Mr. Little a high-minded view of the situation, which I respect.

"As a matter of fact, I sent Mr. Little's reappointment to the Senate yesterday and would not think of re-calling it. I have removed no one in this campaign because of his po-litical views and I do not intend to bezin to do so now.

"The truth is, there has never been a time with which I am familiar in the history of politics in this country when the political support of the Fed-eral office holders, such as it is, has been so divided, and at no time has the Federal patronage exercised less influence in the national convention than it will in the one to be held at Chicago. Sincerely,

"WILLIAM H. TAFT."

MEN OF NOTE.

Uncle Joe's Reply.

[New York World:] Some members of the House heard a few days ago the strangest combination of sacred and profane language which had ever been uttered on that floor. During a debate Uncle Joe Cannon went after A. Mitchell Palmer, of Pennsylvania, and handled him without gloves. Cannon is a Quaker and so is Pal-mer. When conversing privately they drop into the Quaker vernacular. After the debate Palmer went to the former Speaker, who is thirty-six years older than himself.

"Uncle Joe," he said, 'thee treated me a little roughly in the debate to-day."

"Well," replied "Uncle Joe," in a mixture of Quaker and Cannonian English, "perhaps I did treat thee a little severely, but blankety-blank, thou deserved every damned thing I said."

Minister Ide Cornered.

[Detroit Free Press:] "Henry Clay Ide, our Minister to Spain," said a Washington official, "gets on well in Madrid because he has an affection for the Spanish people.

"Mr. Ide, while no champion of the bull fight, hates to hear Spaniards abused for cruelty on this head.

"He tells an ancedote of a Spaniard traveling from San Sebastian to Biarritz in a first-class compartment with an American.

"'You Spaniards are a great na-tion,' the American said; 'but I can't understand how a nation that pro-duced Velasquez and Valdez can stomach the savage cruelty of the bull fight.'

"The Spaniard rolled his black eyes at this.

"'You have in America a number of societies for the prevention of cruelty to children, I believe?'

"'Yes.'

"'And they do good work?'

"'Oh, splendid work!'

"'Well, senor, such societies would be useless in my country,' he said. 'The man who would lift his hand against a little child has not been born in Spain.'"

Senator Smith's Funny Experience.

[Baltimore Star:] Senator William Alden Smith of Michigan had a funny experience the other day. He was walking through the Capitol one day last week, when he was accosted by a fine-looking man, who stopped him and said: "This is Senator Smith, of Michigan, is it not?" The Senator replied that it was and the stranger then asked the following questions, to which the Senator replied yes to each one:

"Senator," said the stranger, "you were born in Dowagiac, Mich." So was I, and educated in the public schools there; so was I. You moved to Grand Rapids, Mich.; so did I. You were a page in the Michigan House of Representatives; so was I. You and I both studied law and were admitted to the bar. We both came to Wash-ington. But here our lives separ-ated," ended the stranger. "You be-came a United States Senator and I did not," and the stranger started to move away, saying, "Mr. Senator, I just wanted to speak to you, for our early lives ran in parallel lines, but we have divided now."

Senator Smith halted the man who was moving off and asked: "My good man, may I ask what you have done since you came to washington?"

The stranger replied at once, "Why certainly Senator, I am a member of the Capitol police force."

Wu Ting Fang's Revenge.

[New York World:] When Wu Ting Fang, who is reported in Peking dispatches to be slated to be the first Minister from the new Chinese re-public to the United States, left Wash-ington the last time, he made a pre-diction that some day he would come back. Mr. Wu, whose eccentricit-ies as a humorist are still remem-bered here as among the most pleas-ant reminiscences of the diplomatic corps, pretended to believe that he would live to a great old age. The day he left Washington to go back to China an American friend accom-panied him to the train.

"Some day I will come back sure," said Mr. Wu, as he shook hands and said goodby. "Maybe not for 200 years. Who knows, but I will return. I want to come back. I like America. See those boxes out there on the plat-form full of souvenirs of your country? I am taking them back to make me remember you. What have I got? Everything I like—pictures, graph-ophone, typewriter, American dress suit."

"What in the world do you want with an American dress suit, Mr. Wu?" asked his friend in surprise.

"Hang it up on the wall in my house in China as a curio, just like you Americans hang up Chinese kimonos in the den," and Wu's oriental face was as imperturbable as that of the Sphinx.

Weather-Bureau Moore's Retort.

[Popular Magazine:] Prof. Willis L. Moore, chief of the Weather Bu-reau, is often guyed for mistakes his service makes in forecasting the weather. Over the cigars and coffee at a dinner one night a young physi-cian had a lot of fun at Moore's ex-pense, the professor refraining from denying the accusations against him.

"There is one thing to be thankful for," said the physician. "I see that you fellows are willing to admit that you are sometimes wrong."

"Well, so far as that is concerned," replied Moore, "we have to admit it because we have no alternative. With the medical profession it is different. You fellows can bury your mistakes."

LADS FACE MURDER CHARGE.

To Be Arraigned in Superior Court For Shooting Their Father—Brutal Features Disgust.

Complaints charging murder will be filed tomorrow against Frank and Roy Yannes in Department Twelve of the Superior Court.

The boys by their own confession shot and killed their father George Yannes at his home near Compton, because they feared he would punish them for disobedience. Both lay in wait for Yannes as he came home from work. One of the boys says he leveled a shot gun at his father and pulled both triggers. The victim fell to the ground dead.

The boys, who are both large and strong for their age 15 and 13 re-spectively, threw the gun into a sumphole and went home. Deputy Sheriff Sepulveda, who was detailed on the case, soon reached the conclusion that the sons did the shoot-ing and arrested them. Both con-fessed.

At first some disposition was shown to take up the matter in the Juvenile Court, but the murder ap-peared of so brutal a nature that the District Attorney refused to allow the lads to escape with a nominal sen-tence. Dept. Dist.-Atty Alexander will handle the case for the State.

WAR TO THE KNIFE.

bonds are issued. These bonds are sold and at the end of a year, the equity is increased because of the al-leged increase in the value of the property owing to the sale of some lots and the improvements. Then more bonds are offered for sale. And this goes on until the venture fails or it is happily successful and the bonds are taken care of.

"There are various phases to these two methods. One phase is to sell property to men in far-away places. This is done by mail. A short time ago the Federal government got after a set of men working this scheme and put them out of business. They were selling lots at the east end of Long Island, where there is nothing but sand. One man located at a naval station in Japan was caught in this way. Every lot was sold at a price greater than the land was worth by the acre.

"Another phase was the offer, made by a mercantile house about a year ago, to give a lot to holders of a cer-tain number of tickets given with goods that were sold. When the 'win-ners' came for their lots they were told that they would have to pay $5 for making out the deed. Investiga-tion showed that the lots were not worth it."

"LADY MAYORESS" IS AN AMERICAN-BORN WOMAN.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

Lady Cheylesmore,

The "First Lady of London." She is the daughter of F. O. French of New York. Her husband has been chosen chairman of the London County Council, the governing body of Greater London, and his position corresponds to that of the Mayor of New York.

LONDON, April 6.—By the election of her husband to the important position of Chairman of the London County Council, Lady Cheylesmore, an American woman, becomes in a sense the "First Lady of London." The county council, of course, is the real governing body of the greater city and the position of chairman corresponds in a general way to that of Mayor of a city like New York, the so-called Lord Mayor of London "ruling" over only the old city of London —about a square mile in area.

Furthermore, Lord Cheylesmore himself is half American. His mother was Charlotte Harman of New Orleans and he is a living example of the advantage of wedding the hustling, practical qualities of the American with the liberal conservative qualities of the best English aristocracy. Lady Cheylesmore, who was Elizabeth French, daughter of F. O. French of New York, has become one of the most popular and respected women in English society. She is tall and handsome and possesses that dignity which is so highly valued in this country.

Although she has never entertained on a big scale, her affairs are popular and there is keen competition to be numbered among her guests. Her town house is in Prince's Gate, fronting on the south side of Hyde Park, a couple of doors west of the London home of J. Pierpont Morgan, in which the American banker shelters his unrivalled collection of art treasures. A near neighbor also is Joseph Chamberlain.

As London's "uncrowned Mayoress" Lady Cheylesmore will necessarily blossom out into a more prominent hostess and during the coming season the Prince's Gate house will be the scene of some of the most important functions of the year. At the more important banquets the wonderful Demidoff dinner service, made of silver gilt and valued at $45,000, now in the possession of the Cheylesmore family, will make its appearance.

In a lesser degree Cheylesmore, the splendid Midlands estate of Lord Cheylesmore and his American wife, will become a center of gaiety. The seat formerly belonged to the Hertfords, and was bought by Lord Cheylesmore's father, the first baron, a very rich man, who made his money in silk, and was created a peer at Queen Victoria's first jubilee. It is an extremely ancient and picturesque pile, and in former ages was held by the Black Prince and the famous Earl of Warwick, the "King-maker." Here is housed Lord Cheylesmore's celebrated collection of war medals, the finest in the world, including some that were bestowed by Queen Elizabeth after the destruction of the Spanish Armada. His book on these medals is considered an authority on the subject.

Besides being one of the handsomest men in the British Army—he was in the Grenadier Guards and is now retired—Lord Cheylesmore is certainly one of the most versatile men living. He is best known for his shooting, but besides that he is a fine whip, a strong oarsman and a well-known numismatist; he is a freemason, and was once a journalist, having founded and edited the "Guards' Magazine." The only line in which he suffered any measure of failure is politics, having been rejected by the town of Coventry, which his father represented in Parliament for twenty years. He is said to have a larger bill for club subscriptions than any other man in London.

He has always taken a keen interest in municipal affairs. He was elected an alderman of St. George's, Hanover Square, in 1907, and for two years acted as Mayor of Westminster.

Lord Cheylesmore owes two of his most prized possessions—his wife and his title—to luck. How he obtained the first has often been told. Mutiny broke out in a brigade of the Grenadier Guards, and as a punishment, they were sent to the Bermudas, Maj.-Gen. Eaton, as he was then, being given the command. As if in compensation for this apparently unlucky turn, Dame Fortune arranged that pretty Elizabeth French should repair to this spot with her father at the same time, and the acquaintance between the rich American girl and the handsome English soldier soon developed into love. They were married in 1902. Even then there were two lives between Eaton and the title, but not long after his marriage, his two brothers died and he succeeded to the title.

His nickname of "The Shooting Man's Friend" indicates his great hobby. He has shot ever since he could hold a gun and is of opinion that every boy should be taught to do so as well. He shot for Eton when a boy, and has taken the keenest and most active interest in everything that promotes "good shooting" ever since. He is chairman of the County Council Territorial Army Association and also of the National Rifle Association. Both his sons are good shots and were taught to handle rifles almost as soon as they could walk.

OVER THE SEA.

Lady Henry Somerset is going to copy the George Junior Republic idea of this country in England. The Earl of Sandwich will give the use of a farm for the purpose, and Lady Somerset will direct the undertaking. She is familiar with its working in this country.

Probably few people in England can claim a record such as that of Miss Sophie Groom of Watford, who has been in the service of one family in one house for seventy years. She has never desired any other employers, has never longed to see the world, and although now 84 years of age she never had a week's holiday in her life.

Ambassador Jusserand's transfer from Washington to Madrid is in the nature of a promotion, for just at the present time the relations between Spain and France are of the most critical character. M. Jusserand's predecessor at Washington, M. Cambon, was also transferred from Washington to Madrid.

The Countess of Craven, who was Miss Bradley Martin of New York, gave her first big dinner and reception as an official hostess for the government. The dinner guests included Premier and Mrs. Asquith, Viscount Haldane, Secretary of War; Sir Edward Grey, Foreign Secretary, and other Cabinet ministers. At the reception there were fifteen hundred guests. Mr. Asquith stood at the head of the staircase with the hostess to welcome them.

Henry James, the novelist, rarely touches a pen in the day time. Instead he waits until his last caller has gone and every member of his household is safely in bed, and then retires to the garden study, which is a feature of his home, and plies his pen through the stilly watches of the night, often until the first streaks of dawn come through the window.

SEEKING HER NIECE.

Mrs. E. C. Hudson, No. 408 Second street, Hermosa Beach, has asked the police to assist her in locating her niece, Miss Jessie Jewell Hudson. The girl is supposed to have left Columbus, Kan., to come to Los Angeles to marry Jess Landreth, whose address is not given. The girl was to have come by the way of Salt Lake City. She has not arrived although due on the 9th inst. Miss Hudson is described as being 18 years old, with dark hair, eyes and complexion.

Los Angeles Needed the Feagans & Co. Department of Stationery

Our knowledge of the fact that many of Los Angeles society were required to send to other cities for their more exacting stationery needs—because of the fact that Los Angeles did not provide a stationery service commensurate with the standards they desired, prompted us to establish a stationery department that should render a service unsurpassable in America.

We engaged the highest class talent available—we searched out the finest quality stocks made—we fortified ourselves with a knowledge of what is new, exclusive and correct in every stationery requirement. We spared no effort nor expense to perfect every detail.

To those who desire the unusual—the authentically correct and masterfully executed in stationery, we can assure a character of service quite in a class alone in Los Angeles.

Special at $1.00 the box—Fawn Lawnette—a popular new shade of correspondence paper or correspondence cards with envelopes to match.

TAFT FORCES TO ORGANIZE.

Meeting of Precinct Workers, Men and Women, Next Tuesday Noon.

Since the Taft organization has moved into its new commodious quarters in the Citizens' National Bank building, Third and Main streets, hundreds of messages have been received by Chairman George N. Black of the Los Angeles County Taft Committee from loyal Taft men and women who are anxious to help in the work of precinct organization.

To meet these workers and give those interested an opportunity to enlist, either as paid workers or volunteers, Chairman Black has called a meeting of district managers and precinct workers, to be held at No. 631 South Spring street, Los Angeles Realty Board building, Sixth floor, Tuesday, April 30, at 12:15 p.m., sharp.

The meeting will not be devoted to speechmaking, but will be confined strictly to the business of precinct organization.

THE TIMES-MIRROR CO.

"GREY GHOST", TERROR.

pirate," instead of being a mere robber, stealing in order to gain a living by his cunning rather than by his hands, is merely some erratic person in the foothill orange district who is leading a Dick Turpin life of adventure, and instead of a strawberry-colored mare with racing blood, uses a powerful motor car as his means of escaping from possible pursuit.

Added to these rumors are whisperings that someone strongly resembling the "auto pirate" has been seen "burning up the roads" near Azusa in a car which greatly resembles the best discription of the "Grey Ghost." Here are some residents of Glendora who say that the "auto pirate" is not always alone in his excursions and that sometimes he is assisted in his midnight raids by another man.

Some time ago the Citrus High School was broken into and a typewriter, a pair of finely-balanced scales, used in laboratory work, and several other things were taken. These articles were finally recovered where they had been hidden by the thief. At that time the son of a wealthy orange grower was suspected. He was questioned, and it is understood, admitted his guilt and promised to reform. He was not prosecuted. His friends say he is in no way connected with the marauding operations of the "auto pirate."

MYSTERIOUS RETURN.

Another singular fact in connection with the "Grey Ghost's" operations is that two weeks after the automobile had towed the drilling machine away it was mysteriously returned. It was hauled to the same spot where it had been taken from. The drill showed that it had been pulled at a rapid pace over the hard road along Grand avenue. Several teeth were broken out and it was othewise damaged. The theory was advanced that it had been taken by some one who feared that it might be seen and recognized by the rightful owner, and for that reason had been returned. This serves to make many of the residents near the foothills believe more firmly than ever that the "Grey Ghost" and the "auto pirate" are known to some of them.

CHARITY TAG DAY NEXT.

Great Preparations Among the Schools for the Prize—Will Invade Road Race.

The rivalry between schools as to which shall obtain the $100 prize for selling the greatest number of tags for the Associated Charities next Saturday promises to be red hot. The Pacific Electric Railway has helped to remove the handicap which the society feared on account of the road race excitement at Santa Monica, and will transport 500 boys and girls to the races to sell tags. An automobile is desired for the use of one of the school principals, who will be sent to the races to supervise the sale.

There will be many automobile and tally-ho parties about the city, the vehicles attractively decorated, and more of them are wanted, in order that the city may be well covered and that every person who wishes to do so may have the opportunity to buy a tag.

The nature of the work of the society is not so much the distribution of food to the poor as to find the cause of poverty and distress and to correct it if possible; but relief is given to distress wherever found, without regard to religion, nationality or color, and the stories that emanate from the office are of the most pathetic character.

OVER QUARTER MILLION.

Men and Women on Great Register Qualified to Vote At Presidential Primary—Clerks to Get Pay.

Completed tables compiled at the registration bureau yesterday show that 230,562 men and women are eligible to vote at the Presidential primary, May 14.

The new registration from January 1 to the close of the canvas is 198,534. The balance represents those who registered last year and who did not care to change their announced party affiliation.

County Clerk Lelande says the girls working on the precincting of the voters will get all their wages but about two weeks, and that this may be advanced to be refunded later by order of the State Legislature.

BOTH COUPLES SEEM HAPPY.

Parents of Wee Baby Girl that Was Abandoned Leave for East—Court Legalizes Adoption.

With all their troubles at rest, Ralph and Ola Neal will leave this city tonight for Prairie Grove, Ark. They will be accompanied by W. T. Neal, the father of the young husband.

Justice Summerfield yesterday dismissed the charge of child abandonment against the Neals at the earnest request of Constable Lyons.

After court was adjourned yesterday, Judge Hutton went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leon V. Shaw, where Mrs. Shaw is recovering from the loss of her own baby, and the legal adoption of the Neal baby by the Shaws was made.

The tiny infant, which has had a checkered career since it was found abandoned at the Pacific Electric Station, now has a splendid home and loving foster-parents.

COURT CHANCES DRINK PRICE.

you say that you can drink three or four glasses of beer and a highball and be in perfect condition to handle an auto. Your actions at the scene of the accident show you were in no condition to drive the car. No doubt you have tried to make retribution to Martin and his wife. But suppose you had killed one of them? Your offers would not bring back life. You men who drive machines sometimes think that because you have the heavier and more powerful vehicle that all other vehicles must get out of your way. I will fine you $500 and give you until 5 o'clock this afternoon to pay it, after which hour you will be placed in jail to serve it out at the rate of $1 per day, provided you shall not serve more than $65 days."

Justice Chambers had hardly gotten the last words of the sentence out of his mouth before Troescher was reaching for his check book.

PERSONALS.

Prof. H. H. Wikoff, at the head of the department of modern languages at the University of California at Berkeley, is passing a few days at the Westminster. Martin Landis, interested in the oil fields of Pennsylvania, is registered from Dallastown, that State at the hotel. Another guest is E. E. Page, a San Francisco engineer.

R. W. Dolson, advertising manager for the Alaska-Pacific Steamship Company is registered at the Hollenbeck from Seattle. F. J. Burns is also at the hotel. He is a statician for the Associated Oil Company, and has his headquarters at McKittrick.

F. W. Larned is passing a few days at the Angelus. He is a coil operator and one of the leading Republican politicians of the Wilkesbarre district. R. C. Rogers, interested in the manufacturing of hardware, is registered at the hotel from Kalamazoo, Mich.

George A. Mitcheson, his wife, son and daughter are occupying a suite at the Alexandria. Mitcheson is a lumber operator of Marinette, Wis., and is here on business. Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Kimball and H. W. Kimball are guests from San Francisco. Kimball is a mining man with interests in Arizona.

Frank N. McCandless, a real estate and insurance operator of Tacoma, is making his home at the Lankershim. E. Beck, head of one of the banks of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, and L. J. Webb, a San Francisco attorney, are among the guests of the hotel.

W. V. Freeman and T. H. Keyes of San Francisco are staying at the Van Nuys. They are officials of the Pacific Implement Company of the northern city. Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McFadden and their son, Hector, are guests at the hotel. McFadden is interested in real estate in San Diego.

Henry S. Nelson, a shipper of San Francisco, is at the Angelus. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Ferry Smith and J. F. Smith, their son, are occupying a suite at the hotel. Smith is a real estate operator. Mr. and Mrs. Morton L. Tower are at the hotel. Tower is in the lumber business at Eureka.

Max P. Fries, the San Francisco borax king, whose workings are near Bakersfield, is passing a few days at the Alexandria. John N. Young, an attorney of the northern city is also at the hotel. Among the foreign guests who registered yesterday are Mrs. H. Dinmore and John Thorpe, both registered from London.

J. C. Clancy is making his home at the Hollenbeck. Mr. Clancy is Mayor of El Paso, and is here on matters of official interest. C. K. Tilton of La Colorado, is staying at the hotel. e was formerly an eastern hotel man, but has been in Mexico looking after mining interests.

Alexander Thom and wife of Plainfield, N. J., are staying at the Van Nuys. Thom is a manufacturer of advertising novelties. O. S. Balzer is a Pittsburgh steel operator, who is at the hotel.

R. L. Proser of Milwaukee is passing a few days with his family at the Seminole. He is one of the principal leather dealers of the mid-western city and is looking over trade conditions on the Coast, preparatory to locating a plant.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Duggin are staying at the Hayward. Duggin is a mining engineer and has been located at Empalme, Mex., until trouble became so serious he deemed it advisable to get out of the country. Should the United States invade that country, even for intervention, the lives of Americans will be greatly endangered and many may be lost, according to Duggin. Other guests at the hotel include Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Gillespie of Kansas City, and Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Wilcoxon and their children, of Cleveland. Gillespie is a railroad official and Wilcoxon is a manufacturer.

POLICE TOLD TROUBLES.

Lost Dogs and Stolen Articles Sought by Owners with Aid of Officers of the Law.

Two dachshunds, sire and son, which appear to be about a year old, have been "lost, strayed or stolen" from Austin T. Park, Redlands, and he has asked the Los Angeles police to assist him in locating them. The dogs are of a dark red color, and have pedigree blood coursing through their veins.

Boys are suspected of cutting a hole in the rear door of the Anton C. Olson establishment, No. 1101 Maple avenue, and stealing a quantity of cigars and cigarettes.

Charles Wong was a much exercised individual when he rushed into headquarters with the story that three bundles of clothing had been stolen from his wagon. Charles was especially grieved because the clothing had been washed and ironed. "Workee all for nothing."

Thieves forced an entrance into the office of the Leahy Manufacturing Company building, Eighth and Alameda streets, Friday night, and stole a few postage stamps, a clock and a few tools.

A. Lynn Shaw, No. 416 Gramercy place, has asked the police to help him find the man who got a clock from him some weeks ago on the plea that he could fix it. Shaw says if the man has fixed it he would like to have him bring it back.

SETTLING AN ESTATE.

Thirty-seven Hundred Dollars a Front Foot Is Paid for Interest in Spring-street Property.

The five-sixteenths interest held by the Carrie M. Jones estate in a lot on South Spring street between Third and Fourth streets has been sold to E. A. Hoffman, through the Southern Trust Company, executor of the will. The price paid was $57,890. This is at the rate of $3700 a front foot.

The sale was reported to Judge Rives yesterday for confirmation, and is a cash proposition. The Jones estate is in course of administration and is valued at approximately $1,000,000. The trust company was represented in the Probate Department of the Superior Court in the Hoffman sale by Attorney O'Melveny.

LAND CLAIM SETTLED.

In the contest instituted by Ethel Hart of Brawley against Joseph Cox of the same place, involving the right to a desert land claim for a quarter section in Imperial county, the local Land Office decided in favor of the defendant yesterday. The plaintiff sought to acquire title to 320 acres of land by taking possession of 160 acres of the property and pushing the work of reclamation under the desert land law, it being alleged that under the departmental orders she could acquire title without filing on the additional 160 acres.

NEW ENTERPRISE PLANNED.

Imperial Is to Possess Among Other Things a Cannery with Vast Capacity—Other Building Notes.

IMPERIAL, April 27.—A new enterprise is the Imperial Cannery Company, which is being promoted by Los Angeles capital and which is the outgrowth of a necessity.

One of the promoters owns one of the largest asparagus fields in Southern California.

The daily capacity of the cannery will be 7000 cans, which will be added to as necessity demands.

This cannery company is prepared to handle asparagus, peas, beans, tomatoes, corn, fruits of either tree or vine. It is estimated that sufficient produce in Imperial Valley goes to waste to keep a cannery busy six months of the season. The profit from the waste product would more than pay incidental expenses of the farm if sold to a cannery, as the manager of the company estimates that a good percentage of the cannery's proceeds will go to the producer of the raw product.

NOTES OF PROGRESS.

One hundred thousand dollars is to be expended immediately in improvements to be made in the city of Imperial. Three large brick business blocks are now in the course of erection. These blocks will be constructed on the east side of Imperial avenue, one of the prominent business streets. The Auditorium is to be completed to conform to the original plans and specifications which will provide Imperial a well-appointed theater building.

The Maier Brewing Company of Los Angeles is installing a branch of its establishment in Imperial and is expending $15,000 in improvements on the building, which will be occupied by this company.

A. B. Evans has selected a suitable site and will begin the construction of a large creamery in Imperial. Mr. Evans, who for a decade was superintendent of the San Joaquin Ice and Creamery Company, is at present owner of the Alamorio Creamery. Mr. Evans will also manufacture ice and maintain a cold storage department in the Imperial creamery for the preservation of perishable products.

BRAWLEY.

BRAWLEY, April 27.—A business transaction has been consummated by a corporation of prominent business men of Los Angeles and San Diego, whereby this corporation has purchased from the Imperial Valley Cotton and Fruit Company a tract of land comprising 480 acres, lying northeast of Brawley. The sum of $135 per acre was paid for this acreage. Imported date offshoots will be planted on 320 acres, while the remaining 160 acres will be set to early fruits. J. Edmund Snow, who has been manager of this tract of land, has been retained in the same capacity by the new owners.

AFTERNOON OF MUSIC.

A sacred concert will be given by the Y.M.C.A. orchestra, assisted by Madame Maud Hartley, the famous London contralto, this afternoon at 2:15, in the lobby of the Y.M.C.A. Building. Madame Hartley will also sing at the men's meeting at 3:30. All men are invited for both occasions, a pleasant afternoon being assured by either.

SULPHURRO CURES ARE A RECORD OF MODERN MARVELS

Wonderful Letters of Appreciation From Men and Women of State.

DELIGHTED TO TELL FOR OTHERS' BENEFIT.

Read These Communications to C. M. C. Stewart Sulphur Co. and You Will Be Convinced Sulphurro Is the Great Discovery of the Time.

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 21, 1912.
The C. M. C. Stewart Sulphur Co., 310 Northern Bank Building, City.

Gentlemen:—It gives me the greatest pleasure to tell my story of Sulphurro. Although I am under 35 years of age and had always considered myself more than ordinarily strong and healthy, I have every reason to believe that Sulphurro kept me from being a cripple for life.

For six years I had articular rheumatism, beginning in the acute form, with the attacks coming about a year apart; but for the last three years the trouble stayed with me all the time. At first only my feet were afflicted, but after a time it spread all over me until I think every joint in my body was suffering all the pain it is possible for a miserable joint to suffer.

I should hate to have to tell how much ability to cry I developed when the pain got to going. Until lately my feet were so swollen that for three years I have not been able to wear a respectable shoe at any time, nor one anywhere near the normal size. And frequently I could not get my shoes on at all for as much as three months at a time. I was not able to walk more than two or three blocks when I was compelled to stop and rest my feet.

My condition was getting serious and alarming to me. Between January, a year ago, and last July I had four separate attacks, each worse than the one before, until it got me in a helpless condition, where for days I was flat on my back, unable to move or turn without someone helping me.

I started on your Liquid Compound of Sulphur, or Sulphurro, about July 10, 1911, following instructions to the letter. Six weeks after commencing the Sulphur treatment I went to the Olympic Mountains on a hunting and fishing trip and I was running everywhere over the mountains without any pain or inconvenience at all and I have had no rheumatism since.

It has been seven months since I commenced taking the Liquid Sulphur and as during the six months prior to that time I was confined to my bed at least half the time suffering, as I thought no human being could suffer and live, and as now for seven months I have had no trace of the old trouble, I believe one can safely say I am permanently cured. As I took no medicine but the Sulphur, I am bound to believe the Sulphur cured me, and I am ready and happy to recommend it to any sufferer from that unbearable disease.

I want to add the warning you gave me. A few days after beginning the remedy my condition was worse and kept getting worse, just as you told me it would. I felt most strongly the natural inclination to stop taking the medicine, and confess that at times I felt as if I had to do so. But, happily for me, I stuck to it until past this aggravating stage when, to my delight, I could notice an improvement in my condition, which was continuous and quite rapid. I felt and feel that a modern miracle had been performed, for, as I have already said, my rheumatism left me and left me for good, as I verily believe.

It is, I trust, needless for me to say I am under an obligation to you which I cannot soon forget, and I wish for you and your remedy the success it so richly deserves.
Your truly,

F. H. KETCHAM, JR.,

SAVED FROM TRIP EAST BY SULPHURRO.

UNION CITY, Wash., Feb. 17, 1912.
To All Who May Be Interested:

For years past I have been a sufferer from severe attacks of sciatic rheumatism and last winter I was confined to my bed for over a month with the most severe attack I had yet experienced. The usual treatments giving me no relief, I determined to go to Mt. Clemens, Mich., for the purpose of taking the cure there. I left my home at the head of Hood's Canal on crutches and upon reaching Seattle met a friend who informed me of the now much-talked-of rheumatism remedy, Stewart Sulphurro, and the large number of rheumatism sufferers who had obtained marvelous results through taking it.

My friend advised me to try it. I had taken about everything in the way of rheumatism specifics and while I had but little faith in this new remedy concluded to add one more to the list, procured some of the Sulphurro, which I proceeded to take according to directions.

C M C Stewart

Dear Sir your Sulphurro has cured my rheumatism and lame Back. I feel as well as I did twenty years ago. no pains or aches. Sulphurro gave me great relief. I suffered fifteen years with Rheumatism Sulphurro cured it standing you every Kindly

To my astonishment and delight within three days I was able to throw away my crutches and walk around without them, and in six days returned to my home apparently cured. So far there has been no recurrence of the disease, for which I am thankful indeed, and feel it to be a duty to relate my experience with this remedy in the hope that others who may be similarly afflicted may have their attention directed to it and get the same happy results from its use. NEWSPAPERS PRESENTING GREAT TESTIMONY

Spontaneous and Convincing Letters on File at Sulphurro Offices.

OPEN FOR INSPECTION TO THOSE DESIRING

Straight-Forward and Powerful Appreciations From Many Sources Pleasing to the Makers of Stewart's Compound of Sulphur.

We today present some of the most remarkable letters of appreciation ever written for a medicine. They tell of cures made by Sulphurro, so surprising as almost to challenge belief. But they have been sent to the C. M. C. Stewart Sulphur Company by people well known, and any one who desires may see the original letters on file in the Sulphurro offices, 71 Columbia street, Seattle, Wash.

Just read the statement of F. H. Ketcham, Jr., whose office is in the Colman building, Seattle, and who has a wide circle of acquaintances and friends. Its straight-forward nature is so convincing that this letter may be regarded as one of the strongest indorsements that could be made.

Similarly effective is that of C. J. Johnson of Union City, on Hood Canal, who was on his way East to take special treatment for sciatic rheumatism, when he heard of Sulphurro's cures, and after taking it three days was able to throw his crutches away. He returned to his home without going further than Seattle, and will remember Sulphurro and what it has done for him to the last day he lives.

These indorsements are so spontaneous and so convincing that they are a source of the greatest satisfaction to Mr. Stewart, who discovered Sulphurro and used it first in an effort to cure a member of his own family of rheumatism and stomach disorder. So successful was it right from the first day that friends came by the hundreds to obtain the newly found boon, and in less than a year Mr. Stewart had distributed it to upward of 5000 persons in Seattle, and had watched a majority of these regain their health and strength.

When Sulphurro comes to be known and appreciated throughout the United States its cures are certain to reach into the millions.

Sulphurro in 50c and $1.00 bottles is for sale by all druggists. C. M. Stewart Sulphur Co., 71 Columbia street, Seattle, Wash.

DEAFNESS CURED; ANOTHER VICTORY FOR SULPHURRO

J. D. Van Atta, Well Known and Prominent in Fraternal Circles, Interviewed.

HEARING RESTORED IN SHORT SPACE OF TIME.

Loss of Hearing Attributed to Catarrhal Condition—Stomach Troubles Fall Before Stewart's Liquid Compound of Sulphur.

By F. W. STRANG.

To lose any one of the five senses, and have it restored through the agency of a medicine makes the sufferer forever grateful to the medicine that wrought the cure. The story of Mrs. E. J. Mueller, of Bothell, near Seattle, whose sight was brought back by the use of Sulphurro, is known all up and down the Pacific Coast, and in eastern States. As remarkable as that cure is the cure of J. D. Van Atta, of Seattle, whose hearing has been brought back to him through the kindly offices of Sulphurro.

For the greater part of three years Mr. Van Atta, who is a well-known Mason, Odd Fellow and member of the order of Redmen, was so deaf that his case was pitiful and excited the keenest sympathy among his friends. The affliction came upon him first in the left ear and then in the right. Its exact cause he has never been able to learn, but attributes it to a catarrhal affliction of the membranes of the ear.

"I obtained some Sulphurro from Mr. Stewart when he was giving it away at his home, and almost immediately I gained relief," said Mr. Van Atta yesterday. "In about six weeks my hearing was completely restored and today I can hear just as well as I ever could.

"At first I did not take the Sulphurro for deafness, but for a stomach disorder that had troubled me greatly and had caused much suffering. I would have been greatly pleased even if the relief had gone no farther than that. You can imagine my joy when my deafness disappeared and made me feel like my old self once more.

"The stomach trouble made it necessary for me to cease smoking, and I had to be extremely careful in my diet. Now I eat anything I like without discomfort and smoke all I want.

"Sulphurro will be an intimate friend of mine as long as I live. It is richly deserving of the success it is meeting, for its cures are marvelous."

Mr. Van Atta came to Seattle from Chicago some years ago, and is proprietor of the barber shop in the basement of the Northern Bank building, with entrance from Westlake. Before opening this establishment he conducted the barber shop in the Hotel Barker.

The use of sulphur as a lotion has been one of Mr. Van Atta's features in his barber establishments, as for several years he has made a sulphur preparation for the hair. Since the introduction of Sulphurro, however, he has brought it into requisition in shampoos and as a headwash.

"It is so cleansing and refreshing that I find my patrons are very partial to it," said Mr. Van Atta. "A few drops of Sulphurro in a quart of water makes an ideal mixture for use on the hair, and it is excellent for the scalp. Also it is beneficial in combatting dandruff.

"Another use I find for Sulphurro in the shop is for removing pimples and blisters on the face. The pure Sulphurro applied to afflicted spots on the face by the tip of the finger will cause them to turn white and disappear in a very short time.

"Barbers will find Sulphurro one of the most useful and beneficial preparations that they can have around their places, and as soon as they learn its merits we will see Sulphurro in every shop in the country. Being such a good disinfectant and purifier it seems a natural remedy."

Spokane, Wash., February 29, 1912.
Mr. C. M. C. Stewart, Seattle, Wash.:

My Dear Mr. Stewart: Your representative has just called upon me and inquired as to my experience with Sulphurro after I had been suffering for years with rheumatism. While he has not asked me for an open letter I have suggested to him that I would be very glad, indeed, to furnish a letter for publication in regard to this remedy. I first suggested its use to Mr. Harry Ostdick, the captain of the Spokane baseball team, who was and has been suffering for years from rheumatism, and in his case it has resulted in a perfect cure. I have also recommended it to many others for stomach troubles and rheumatic ailments, and in each case I have heard of flattering results. In my own case it has been giving me great relief and I heartily recommend it for the cure of those ailments that have come under my observation. Yours truly.

SULPHURRO WONDERFUL FOR STOMACH TROUBLE AND TONSILITIS.

Seattle, Wash.
Mr. C. M. C. Stewart, Seattle:

Dear Sir—I am writing this letter to tell you how thankful I am that I have my health again—that Sulphurro has surely saved my life. I had been under various treatments for nine months and was told I would have to undergo an operation or never get well. I heard of your wonderful medicine, and five weeks ago I began taking it. I was almost blind and suffered what I can't explain with stomach trouble, kidney and bowel complaint. I had spasms and had to be given morphine to make me sleep. Now my eyes are as good as when I was a girl, though I am 43 years old, and I feel just as young as I did a score of years ago.

My daughter has cured herself of tonsilits by the use of Sulphurro. She was operated on three times, and every winter the affection returned.

I can't half express my delight in telling this. Sulphurro is simply a wonderful remedy for faded, thin hair and dandruff. My daughter, 16, had anaemia and dandruff so bad that she was losing all her hair. She used the Sulphurro, and now her hair is so fluffy and glossy, and grows rapidly.

Hoping I have expressed myself clearly, I will always keep Sulphurro in the house. Respectfully,

MRS. GRACE HOUSE.

BACK AT WORK IN THREE DAYS.

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 21, 1912.
C. M. C. Stewart Sulphur Co., Seattle, Wash.:

Gentlemen—Having received such immediate results and benefits it affords me great pleasure to forward you a letter of appreciation for Sulphurro. Suffering from Rheumatism compelled me to retire from work. A friend suggested I try Sulphurro. Furthermore, he took enough interest to call on you at your house, obtained some, and handed it to me. I began at once using as directed, and in three (3) days I was back to work. Since returning to work I have not had any signs or indications of rheumatism. I continue using Sulphurro and have never enjoyed as good health as at present. Yours truly,
LAWRENCE LEED,

New Tuberculosis Remedy Based On Medicine

To say that a specific exists for the cure of Consumption is perhaps too strong a statement, but in Eckman's Alterative we have a medicine that has been the means of saving many a life to years of usefulness, and in permanently curing a large number of Consumptives.

Certainly a person afflicted with a wasting disease should be well fed with wholesome, nourishing food, but frequently raw eggs in quantities cause a digestive breakdown, and then no food nourishes. As for milk, a very good food for many, but a producer of biliousness for some.

Any diet that keeps a Consumptive well nourished is the right one, but what is going to cure the patient? Eckman's Alterative has cured and is curing many a case of Consumption. Let those speak who know. Here is a specimen:

30 Savannah St., Rochester, N. Y.

"Gentlemen: On June 3, 1907, I was operated upon for Tubercular peritonitis, at St. Mary's Hospital, Rochester, N. Y. After the operation my physician gave me up as hopeless. I was then urged by a priest to take Eckman's Alterative, which I did. My weight at the time was 72 pounds. I began to improve and steadily gained in health and strength. I now weigh 128 pounds, and am absolutely cured. Believing I owe it to myself and others, I make this statement."

(Signed Affidavit) EDNA FINZER.

Eckman's Alterative is effective in bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles, and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. For sale by The Owl Drug Co.'s Stores and other leading druggists. Ask for booklet of cured cases and write to Eckman's Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for additional evidence.

TWO PERSONS HELPED HER.

Police Trail Escaping Woman Over Roofs but Fail to Catch Up With Their Quarry.

The police are satisfied that Lottie Smith, the young woman who escaped Thursday night from the City Jail, was assisted by a woman and man. They have a good description of both, it is said, and are searching for them. The girl acted as a go-between between the Smith woman and the man, carrying notes from one to the other. For more than a week before the Smith woman escaped this unidentified woman called upon her in the jail a number of times. It is thought that during these visits all arrangements for the escape were perfected.

While the matron was away, the Smith woman went into the kitchen, raised the window, and stepped out upon the window sill. Carefully she moved a flower pot, and from there stepped up on the top of one of the iron shutters in the rear of the Receiving Hospital which faces west on South Hill street. The roof of the hospital was several feet above her head.

The man who, assisted her, as is shown by the marks on the roof, leaned over the roof, and pulled the Smith woman up. She assisted herself by hooking her toes in the rough brick wall. Gaining the roof of the hospital, she walked diagonally across to the porch of a rooming-house. From there it was easy to reach the street and disappear.

President of Pan Hellenic Association Opens Her Home to Large Company of Guests.

The Pan Hellenic Association, composed of the alumnae of the national women's Greek fraternities, entertained 100 guests at the home of the president, Mrs. Edward S. Merrill, on Friday evening. The house was handsomely decorated with flowers for the occasion and a buffet lunch was served. There was an interesting programme of a varied character, in which seven clubs participated, with old college-day spirit. There were songs, recitations and amusing stunts, and an original Greek play. The object of the association is to bring together all fraternity women in a social organization, helpful alike to the chapters and the individuals participating.

OPIUM INDICTMENTS.

Federal Grand Jury Charges Chinese With Smuggling of the Drug—Chew Pack Explains.

Chew Pack, one of the best known merchants in the Chinese colony and a prominent leader in the "New China" movement, was arrested yesterday on an indictment returned by the Federal grand jury, charging him with buying and concealing smoking opium. Chew Pack was accompanied by a number of his Chinese friends and gave $3000 bail for his appearance for trial on the allegations of the indictment. His bondsmen were Cashier A. C. Way of the First National Bank, and Vice-President O. M. Souden of the United States National Bank. Hom Yee was arrested on a similar indictment and he gave bond of $3000.

The charges against Chew Pack date back to the 15th inst., when Juan Arcoverde, Hom Yee and Chew Tong were arrested on a complaint alleging the sale of smoking opium. Chew Tong and Arcoverde could not give bail and they were committed to the county jail.

Chew Pack has been in business at No. 306 Marchessault street, for a number of years, and holds a dominating position among the Chinese colony. His arrest was a surprise to his friends. Chew Pack denies the charge. He said:

"Chew Tong was in the habit of coming to my place every day where he took a cup of tea and read the newspapers. Whether he has had anything to do with the opium I don't know. I am innocent of the charges made against me. I know nothing about the case."

Special agent Johnson says the grand jury must have had the necessary testimony or Chew Pack would not have been indicted.

James Seligman, the New York banker, who celebrated his eighty-ninth birthday anniversary recently, is a gentle old man in the full possession of his mentality and possessed also of a sweetness not ordinarily associated with captains of finance and industry. He was born in Baiersdorf, Germany, one of a family of eleven, and after working some time as a weaver came to this country with $40 in 1839.

At the recent meeting of the Cali fornia Association of the new church held in San Diego, he was unanimously chosen general pastor for Californ nia, which is an office of the bishopric order, and as such he has the authorization of candidates for the ministry, the ordination and installa tion of ministers and the dedication of houses of worship. His duties as general pastor will occupy much of his time, and for the present he will preach in this city, but two Sundays in the month.

Dr. French and family have come to reside permanently. He has purchased two large ranches for apple-growing for a daughter who has graduated from an agricultural college, also from a horticultural college, and who will superintend these places. Miss Veda French has just begun her work at Sebastopol, Cal., by having 1000 apple trees set out under her special supervision. The son graduated at Harvard and is located in this city, a civil engineer in charge, at present, of a motorcycle business owned by New York people. Mrs. Thomas French was Miss Laura Hildreth of Cambridge, Mass.

MAY DAY RECEPTION.

Board of Directors of Florence Crittenton Home to Greet Their Friends on Wednesday Afternoon.

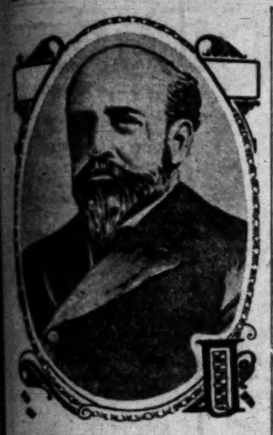
In celebration of May Day the board of managers of the Florence Crittenton Home will hold a reception which will be open to the public at the Home, No. 1632 Santee street, Wednesday from 2 to 6 p.m. Those receiving will be Mrs. Frank Stoddard, president; Mrs. Emil Kirchen, vice-president; Mrs. A. Fay, secretary; Mrs. Ellen Diegelman, chaplain; Mrs. James H. Ballagh, Mrs. H. J. Hodges, Mrs. E. H. Wise; Mrs. W. A. Hawk, Miss Margaret Scott of the Executive Committee.

Features of a brief and pleasant programme will be a vocal and piano solo by Miss Helen Warner, a piano number by Mrs. Phil Davis, a recitation and monologue by Mrs. Crilia Farrow, "Lullabies to the Babies" by Mrs. Ballagh, and the serving of refreshments.

A Florence Crittenton Circle has been organized and all persons interested are heartily invited to join. This circle meets the first and third Wednesdays of each month. A member of the Executive Committee recently purchased a phonograph for the entertainment of the home's residents. A woman in the western portion of the city made the first payment of $20 on the machine, and if the generosity of others takes the same turn the committee will appreciate it exceedingly. Comparatively few persons in the city are in the least familiar with the good work this institution undertakes and accomplishing. Mrs. Stoddard urges, therefore, that a large number avail themselves of the opportunity to visit the home next Wednesday and acquaint themselves with what is going on there.

IN FINE NEW OFFICES.

Some of the county officials moved from the old Courthouse yesterday to their new offices in the Hall of Records. The county game warden and public administrator's offices were moved the day before. Yesterday, a shifting was made with many other departments that are now paying rent for space in the International Bank building. In the course of a week or ten days it is believed that most of the offices in the Hall of Records will be occupied.



Rev. Thomas French, Jr.,
New pastor of the Swedenborgian Church of this city.

Interesting.

SCHOLAR-PASTOR COMES HERE.

MAN OF SCIENTIFIC LEARNING, ALSO PREACHER.

Called to the New Church of the Swedenborgians—Has Had Wide Experience in Civic Affairs in Eastern Cities—Quits College Chair to Enter Pulpit.

The Swedenborgians, who for many years have been worshiping in a small building at No. 615 East Ninth street, known as "The New Jerusalem Church," have been without a minister for some time, but they have recently secured the services of Rev. Thomas French, Jr., of Buffalo. Dr. French will be able to give but the first two Sundays of each month to the local church, and it is the purpose of the congregation to sell its lot on East Ninth street, it having become very valuable, and build a suitable church in a better location.

Although a man of mature years, Dr. French has been in the ministry less than a decade. He graduated from Harvard and afterward pursued the study of physics and mathematics in Germany for a period of two years, accepted a position as a professor in the University of Cincinnati, and followed this by many years as a professor in Amherst. He is said to have taken the first steps toward the discovery of the X-ray, while the city of Cincinnati as its first electrician and was associated in the publication of the Journal of Terrestrial Magnetism. After leaving the college from he spent several years in travel in connection with mining in Colorado, Arizona and Alaska. He was a member of many civic and scientific bodies at Buffalo and was a member of the commission to form a commission form of government for that city, and is a Thirty-second Degree Mason.

At the recent meeting of the California Association of the new church, held in San Diego, he was unanimously chosen general pastor for California, which is an office of the bishopric order, and as such he has the examination of candidates for the ministry, the ordination and installation of ministers and the dedication of houses of worship. Dr. French and family have come to Pasadena permanently. He has purchased two large ranches for apple-growing, for a daughter who has graduated from an agricultural college, and from a horticultural college, and will superintend these places. Mrs. Viola French has just begun her work at Sebastopol, Cal., by having the apple trees set out under her personal supervision. The son graduated at Harvard and is located in this city as a civil engineer in charge, at present, of a motorcycle business owned by New York people. Mrs. Thomas French was Miss Laura Hill of Cambridge, Mass.

Old, Old Story.

GOOD FELLOW, BOGUS CHECKS.

CONNECTICUT SWELL LANDS IN THE COUNTY JAIL.

Is Young, Plausible, Says He Has Wealthy Relatives in East, but Is Himself Without Funds—Business Men, Banks and Friends Among Those Touched.

After having passed worthless checks aggregating more than $1000, so the Sheriff and several deputies of the District Attorney affirm, C. A. Kendall, a tourist from Connecticut was arrested in Pomona yesterday morning and in default of $5000 bonds was placed in the County Jail.

Kendall is about 25 years old and says he has wealthy relatives in the East. He telegraphed his aunt, Mrs. D. B. Mallory of New Milford, Ct., to send him money with which to settle his alleged bogus checks and provide for a legal defense. He begged to be kept out of jail until an answer should come. After waiting several hours the officers locked him up. Kendall told Deputy Constable Benjamin that he is a graduate of a Pennsylvania college and came West to see the country.

Kendall appears to have cut a wide swath at Pomona and in Pasadena. He spent money freely, dressed well and drove a stylish rented automobile. According to the officers, when he ran short of money he would induce some of his acquaintances to introduce him at some bank or business house where he would cash a check on the First National Bank of New Milford. In most instances the signature of Mrs. Mallory was used as the drawer of the check.

W. A. Snyder of Pomona told Deputy District Attorney Keyes yesterday that Kendall had made such plausible representations to him he did not hesitate to cash two checks for $200. Each was apparently drawn by Mrs. Mallory and the entire check was written in a hand that greatly resembled letters Kendall showed which came from his aunt.

In Pasadena, it is alleged, Kendall became acquainted with someone who obligingly cashed a check for $45 and introduced him to the business men. In Los Angeles Kendall is alleged to have passed two worthless checks on a sporting goods store and on taxicab owners and cafe proprietors.

The defendant will be arraigned in Justices Reeve's and Summerfield's courts tomorrow and may also be taken to Pomona to answer another charge there.

Forgery will be the main complaint against the defendant, and witnesses from the East may come to testify at the preliminary examination. Two checks have been returned from the First National Bank of New Milford, marked "forgery."

EXCLUSIVE STORE OPENING.

The opening of the new building of Myer Siegel & Co., No. 443 to 447 South Broadway, will occur on Monday and Tuesday, when they will show an exclusive line of feminine apparel. They have been in business for twenty-six years in this city and are well known to the buying public, and the expansion of their establishment on Broadway has been a great forward step. Their stock includes everything ready to wear for women, children and infants, and a complete outfit may be secured without leaving their doors. They extend a welcome to the entire public for the opening on Monday and Tuesday.

MILLION STILL DUE.

County Tax Collector Welch has yet to collect approximately $1,000,000, due on the second installment of the year's taxes. Tomorrow is the last day before the delinquent penalty of 5 per cent. attaches. It will be a lively day. On the corresponding day last year, about $300,000 was taken in and a long line was left standing in front of the office at closing time. For some unexplained reason thousands of tax payers wait until the last day before settling. It occasions congestion and difficulty, both for the payers and the clerks, but notices and warnings seem to have no effect. So far about $5,500,000 has been collected.

His Rupture Cured Eleven Years Ago.

This portrait is of the veteran, Wm. C. Waterstreet, Napoleon, Mich., a well known and highly respected farmer who had been suffering for a long time with a severe rupture. He had tried one thing after another without a cure. Trusses were of no use—he was greatly distressed and discouraged; when he heard of the Rice Method, became convinced, upon investigation, that it is genuine and practical. Then he proved it for himself. Nearly a dozen years have passed and Mr. Waterstreet is still free from the rupture, enjoying good health. This is but one of a great number of such cases. A Great Selling Out Shoe Sale

World's Largest Shoe Retailers Quit Business

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the Boston Shoe Market, located on the entire fourth floor of the New Orpheum Building, and one of a chain of stores reaching from coast to coast, it was voted to discontinue their retail stores and confine their efforts to the manufacturing and wholesale ends only. Strict orders have been issued to each store to dispose of their stocks at once. Our orders are SELL OUR STOCK DOWN TO THE LAST PAIR—GET RID OF THEM AT ANY PRICE, ONLY SELL THEM.

WE HAVE FOLLOWED INSTRUCTIONS TO THE LETTER, WE HAVE CUT PRICES AS PRICES WERE NEVER CUT BEFORE. The world's finest footwear—the cream of this year's styles—are now to be bought at a price so low, that you will say WE ARE NOT SELLING YOU SHOES, BUT MAKING YOU A PRESENT OF THEM.

Shoes for Practically a Song--Come Carry Them Away

And they are being carried away. All day Friday and Saturday of last week our store was thronged with customers, buying the biggest and best shoe bargains they ever bought, and now, look what tomorrow holds in store for you!

Tomorrow Is Your Chance, Just Look at These Offerings for Monday!

Nervous Wrecks from Sore Feet; Gives Cure.

The nagging irritation from daily foot torture causes thousands of nervous break-downs. Besides, there is the pain, the haggard face and peevish disposition. Don't waste an hour, here is a treatment that will cure your feet quickly. No matter how many patent medicines you have tried in vain, this treatment, formerly known only to doctors, will give prompt results. "Dissolve 2 tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of warm water. Soak the feet in this for full fifteen minutes, gently rubbing the sore parts." The effects are marvelous. All pain goes instantly and the feet feel simply delightful. Corns and callouses can be peeled right off; bunions, aching feet, sweaty, smelling feet get immediate relief. Use this a week and your foot troubles will be a thing of the past. Calocide works through the pores and removes the cause. Any druggist has it in stock or will quickly get it. A 25c package is said to be enough to cure the worst feet.

FRANCISCAN GLORY-STORY.

"AMERICAN OBERAMMERGAU" OF JOHN S. M'GROARTY.

"Mission Play," in Its Own Unique Playhouse at San Gabriel, to Be Born Tomorrow Night—Details of Historic Southern California Drama-Pageant.

All is in readiness for the premiere production of John S. McGroarty's "Mission Play," in the specially constructed Mission Theater at San Gabriel. Tomorrow evening, promptly at 8:15 o'clock, the curtain will rise on what, it is hoped, will be an impressive and beautiful pageant drama, which immortalizes the rise and fall of the Franciscan missions in California and the dawn of civilization in the Southwest.

Every detail, down to the last button on the coat of Don Gaspar de Portola, is completed. The remarkable scenery is all painted and in place. A splendid orchestra has finished its last preliminary rehearsal, the monks are all in their brown robes, the Spanish dancing girls are on tip-toe with their castanets. And there will be a glorious moon in the sky to light the travelers who shall fare to ancient San Gabriel. The air is heavy with the scent of orange blossoms.

A distinguished audience will be present to witness the first performance. Society and all the walks of the artistic and business life of Los Angeles will be represented.

Bishop Conaty, Bishop Johnson and a large number of clergymen of all denominations, Protestant as well as Catholic, have already engaged seats.

There will be an especially large outpouring of literary people, including a number of celebrities from the East and foreign countries. Among those to occupy boxes will be Prince Lazarovich, with the archbishop of the Greek church.

The full rehearsals of the play, with complete stage settings, music and the actors in costume, leave no doubt in the mind that Mr. McGroarty has accomplished in the "Mission Play" a work that will live. He has handled his colorful subject with technical skill and with the soul of a poet.

In the third act of the play Princess Lazarovich collaborates with the author and embodies the role of Donna Josefa Arguello.

Profound public interest has been aroused in the forthcoming production. Mr. McGroarty's admirers are eager to crown him with laurels, poet, playwright and historian.

Ben Horning, who will play Junipero Serra

Of "The Mission Play,"

John S. McGroarty's unique dramatic embodiment of the Franciscan mission period in California's history, which will first see the light tomorrow evening, in its own especially constructed theater at San Gabriel.

ple who have long desired to see and hear Princess Lazarovich, formerly Eleanor Calhoun of California, on the stage, will have their wishes gratified and Henry Kabierske, architect, designer and builder of the playhouse and director of the play, will come into his own. The stage scenery was painted by H. Logan Ried, artist, who came from the East specially to do the work and who will return to Boston and New York early next week, after witnessing the first performance.

The public will receive its first atmospheric intimation when it views the theater building, and its unique design. It is entirely unlike any other theater in the world, and there is no theater more complete in its equipment.

It has the largest stage west of Chicago. The last word in electrical and other mechanical appliances are in evidence. Grand opera or any other sort of theatrical performance is possible there.

Surrounding the theater building is a most unique novelty in the shape of El Camino Real, "the King's Highway," in miniature. Here visitors will be able to take an imaginary journey on the old road of the Padres from San Diego to Sonoma. Not only will each Mission ruin be faithfully reproduced, but the landscape and the topography of the country will be shown, up hill and down dale, as it actually is. Shrubbery and vines and Spanish gardens will be strung along the way to make the illusion more perfect. A fine old actor has been retained to accompany visitors, explaining the history of the Missions and giving the traditions and the romance of each one.

But, as Shakespeare said, "The play's the thing" after all.

Mr. McGroarty tells a stirring story in his Mission play. At times it dims the eyes with tears, but it is not all solemn; there is much laughter and a great deal of joyousness in it. Above all, it portrays the nobility of character and the unselfishness and sacrifice of the Spanish pioneers who came to California in 1769 to establish civilization and Christianity.

It is the opinion of several competent observers that the first act of the Mission play constitutes its greatest scene, one of the greatest ever produced on any western stage, and the remarkable thing about it is that it has been taken almost literally from the history of California. Here are shown the thrilling incidents that characterized the long and fruitless march of Portola in search of the lost port of Monterey. The sublime and heroic stand of Father Junipero Serra to defeat the movement to abandon California in the face of starvation is portrayed with great ardor by Ben Horning.

The climax of this act, as the sky reddens with the sunset across the Bay of San Diego, and the relief ship appears as if by a miracle on the horizon in answer to Serra's prayer, is one of the most beautiful stage pictures imaginable.

The second act portrays the Missions as they were in the happy days of their prosperity and contentment. The act is filled with colorful and delightful situations. It opens with the morning hymn that was always sung at the old Missions, a chorus of excellent voices having been trained for the work. In this as well as in the first and second acts H. Logan Reid, the scenic artist, has achieved fine results. Sunrise and sunset, starlight and moonlight, and the waves of Carmel Bay breaking upon the shores pass in rapid succession. It is in this act also that the Spanish dancing girls of Monterey are introduced, and the historic quarrel between the commandante Rivera and Father Junipero. The pageant of the Indians displaying their arts and crafts is also shown in the second act.

The third act tells the story of ruin. It was a difficult act to produce, but the collaboration of Mr. McGroarty and the Princess Lazarovich has solved what appeared to be a hard problem. It is in this act that the Princes Lazarovich appears as Donna Josefa Arguello. The first appearance of the Princess in California after her European triumphs is eagerly looked forward to by the people of her native State.

The Pacific Electric will put in an excellent car service, running trains every few minutes from Los Angeles, between the hours of 6:15 and 7:30 o'clock. The curtain will go down on the last act at 10:35 o'clock. Through cars will be run back from San Gabriel immediately after the close of the play.

The Week.

MARJORIE AT HOME AGAIN.

FAVORITE ACTRESS TO APPEAR AT MAJESTIC.

Mizzi Hajos Returning With "Spring Maid"—Muriel Starr to Essay "Madame X"—"Man's World" at Belasco—Continuances and Vaudeville Announcements.

Marjorie Rambeau, one of the most popular young actresses who has ever appeared on a local stage, will, after an absence of several months, make her reappearance before local playgoers, commencing an engagement of two weeks tonight at the Majestic Theater in Ethel Barrymore's greatest success, "Cousin Kate."

Although "Cousin Kate" served as one of the most successful starring vehicles in which Miss Barrymore ever appeared, it is comparatively new to local theatergoers. In the northern cities it is considered one of the best and most delightful things in which this clever actress has appeared, being especially adapted to Miss Rambeau's talents.

Norther critics have all agreed that in the Barrymore role of this delightful comedy-drama, Miss Rambeau is seen to even better advantage than "Merely Mary Ann," which has heretofore been considered her success. Supporting Miss Rambeau will be found several players well known in Pacific Coast theaters and four who are distinct local favorites.

William L. Gibson, who is now leading man for Miss Rambeau, was until recently leading man of the Belasco company and who will be favorably remembered for his work in "Alias Jimmy Valentine." Adele Farrington, another Belasco favorite of long standing, will also be found prominent in the support of Miss Rambeau in "Cousin Kate."

George Osborne, one of the founders of the Alcazar Theater, San Francisco, and who is believed by many to be one of the best actors of old character parts in America, and Lloyd Bacon, who may be remembered for his appearances at the Belasco Theater, will both be seen in prominent parts in "Cousin Kate."

For the second week of Miss Rambeau's engagement, she will be seen in "The Deserters," in which she scored a distinct personal success when it was given at the Belasco about a year ago.

Mason.

"The Spring Maid" comes again tomorrow to the Mason Operahouse in green and white and gold; through it sweeps color and beauty. Beauty in voices, beauty in the women, beauty in the scenery and beauty—a delicate, whimsical, peculiar beauty, in the music. It takes the listener back to the days when he dreamed dreams, and all the land has praised the marshaling of so much color, entrancing harmony and merriment, into one stage production.

Everywhere, Heinrich Reinhardt's operetta has been welcomed as one worth going to see and then going to see again, for in addition to its laughter and music, wit and sentiment, it contains Mizzi Hajos. That little Magyar maiden has danced herself into the heart; her sauciness, daintiness and roguishness, with the precise, foreign English, her coquetry and fascinating voice, all go to form one of those memories not soon forgotten. Mizzi Hajos has captivated America as she did the lands across the seas, and has brought an acknowledgement that she was one of those rare mortals possessed of a whole Pandora's box full of gifts, who simply could not help acting, or evidently living the mischievousness of her stage character.

With Mizzi Hajos will return the unusual organization of singers, chorus and orchestra, including George Leon Moore as Prince Aladar, Dorothy Maynard as the coquettish spring girl, Jack Raffael, Tillie Salinger, Dorothy La Mar, and others, but the character of the pompous, laugh-compelling actor of the old school is now played by Charles McNaughton, who has been brought from the London production of "The Spring Maid," and has been the foremost English comedian for more than six years. There is also a lyric tenor of reputation and brilliant dramatic ability, Louis Miller, who sings the stirring music falling to the role of Baron Rudl.

The group of waltz songs in "The Spring Maid" has swept the country with fascinating melodies, and the rehearing of "Day Dreams," "Two Little Love Bees," "How I Love a Pretty Face" and "The Fountain Fay" will appeal again to thousands who have welcomed the coming of the better things in light opera presented with a great array of singing voices and an unusual orchestra.

Burbank.

At last, after having seen Bisson's powerful drama, "Madam X," score success after success in almost every country of the world, local theatergoers are to have the privilege of seeing this remarkable play receive its first stock company production at the Burbank Theater this week.

"Madam X" has stirred theatergoers most profoundly; no such thoroughly moving drama has been known to the stage for over a score of years. Under the direction of Henry W. Savage the piece has had two local presentations—both at the Majestic Theater—and on each occasion has proved a drama of such positive worth and genuinely perfect construction and writing, that it has always attracted audiences of the largest and most enthusiastic sort.

The production of "Madam X" at the Burbank next week, may, therefore, be justly considered an event of actual dramatic importance. Muriel Starr, whose splendid work in the chief feminine role of "The Stranger" at the Burbank this week, has justified all the laudatory notices that preceded her from the East, will find in the role of Madam X exceptionally good chances, and effectual emotional action. Those who are conversant with Miss Starr's previous stage work predict that she will achieve a sweeping success in the principal role of the Bisson drama.

To Donald Bowles will fall the role of the young son, who defends his mother without realizing her identity. It is a part in which Mr. Bowles will find ample scope for the exploitation of his well-known ability, and with the other roles in capable hands the Burbank performance of "Madame X" should be an attraction out of the ordinary of stock offerings.

Belasco.

"A Man's World," a forceful and striking play in which Mary Mannering made her last local appearance, will be the offering of the Belasco stock company for this week. The play is by Rachel Crothers, whose "The Three of Us," is recalled by theatergoers as one of the best of all western plays.

In "A Man's World," Miss Crothers deals with some of the most important social problems of the time and swings the action to a logical and inevitable close in a strikingly effective scene. The playwright has seized upon the idea that this is essentially a man's world—that there is a double standard for men and women, and that after all the talk about votes for women, and the like it is men who establish the rule for women. Not that she is better than he is—he demands that she be so or else pay the penalty.

In the role of Frank Ware, Alice John will find rare opportunities for acting of a high order. It is a role that puts the acid test to the efforts of any actress, but Miss John proved herself such a thoroughly capable leading woman in "The Commuters" that it is pretty certain she will add additional honors in "A Man's World."

The entire Belasco organization

Theatrical Personalities

Of the coming week at the various theaters.

will be concerned in the performance and as he author has laid the scenes in New York's Bohemian circles, the Belasco people will have capital chances for some highly interesting delineations in character.

Fischer's Lyceum.

Into its second week, with all the military eclat signified by its name, goes "When Johnny Comes Marching Home" at Fischer's Lyceum tomorrow. And well does it deserve a second week, too, for as produced and given by the Fischer Follies company, this war-time opera is a revelation in musical excellence.

Few supposed that a complete and perfect organization of farceurs would or could do a genuine opera with credit to themselves and delight to the public, but the Fischer forces seem capable of anything, and it would not be surprising after this to see them in a minstrel show, or a melodrama, so versatile are they.

However, that may be, to get back to the "Johnny" performance, let it be said that here is a fine production of an opera that, though not a stranger here, is none the less welcome. With all the resources at hand, "Pop" has set his stage magnificently, giving two war-time pictures of singular beauty.

He has costumed his troupe in true atmospheric regard for that day, even to hoop skirts and poke bonnets, with the swing and dash of uniforms of blue and gray, flying flags, and clanking sabers.

In war-time tunes, interlaced and interwoven into marvelous symphonic melodies, the opera is rich, and these are exploited to perfection by the large cast, especial note being demanded by May Boley, Laura Oakley and Charles Dudley, heretofore seen only in farcical roles, but now singing like grand opera leaders. Of course, Texas Guinan, Madison Smith, Bob Lett, Lon Chaney, Herbert Cawthorne, Reece Gardner, Jane Urban and the rest are right on the job also.

The choristers appear as "picks" in blackface, and as ladies and belles in hoops, and the men in uniforms, and the whole is a delightsome picture.

It will run all week, with the twice-a-bit bargain matinee Wednesday and regular matinees on Saturdays and Sundays.

Following it will come "Tillie's Nightmare" with May Boley in the star part, created by Marie Dressler.

—o—

Grand.

"California for Mine" is the patriotic title Edward Armstrong has selected for his next offering at the Grand Operahouse, opening there tomorrow night. This burletta is based on Mr. Armstrong's famous song of the same name, which has been sung by nearly every school boy and girl in the entire State.

Burlesques of some of the more humorous events in the State's history have been written by Mr. Armstrong. Especially is this true of scenes at the beaches, etc. The political situations will be reviewed in a series of scenes and verbal cartoons but in a way at which nobody can possibly take offense.

Seven new songs have been written for "California for Mine" by Mr. Armstrong. He also will interpolate popular musical numbers, and as usual there will be a dozen or more new dances introduced at opportune moments.

Will Armstrong will again be seen as the Irish tad with the propensity for twisting words out of shape, and Gus Leonard as usual will be a German, this time touring California in search of wealth and adventure. Charming Ethel Davis will be heard in three new songs and Clara Howard, the dainty soubrette, will add her quota of dances and songs.

Frances White will be heard in a song and dance specialty of unusual character. Hazel Wilson, Eddie Mitchell, Edward Armstrong and all the other principals will be given some excellent opportunities to display their versatility and ability. The Baby Dolls have been outfitted with a set of brand new costumes and will be even more inviting than ever before.

Orpheum.

Come now, after eight long years of absence, McIntyre & Heath. And Orpheum audiences, who have eagerly awaited their advent, will rise up in joy and acclaim Monday, April 29, at 2 in the afternoon, as the joytime of the year, for at that house and hour, McIntyre and Heath return to vaudeville in Los Angeles. It is enough to make the veriest old gloom die of heart failure.

Eight years ago McIntyre and Heath graced the Orpheum road show and made their last vaudeville appearance here. Since then they have played a legitimate engagement—but it was merely an excuse for their old vaudeville stunts, which they made the backbone of their show, and which were about all anyone cared to see anyhow. Now, back where they belong, the boys are to proffer a new skit, "Waiting at the Church," and it is acclaimed as quite the equal of "Georgia Minstrels", and "The Man from Montana," both of which they still carry for emergency use. But whenever or whatever McIntyre and Heath appear in, makes no difference; their personality is all their own, and no one cares what vehicle they use.

Surrounding these two stars come several new acts worthy of such company. David Schooeir is a young pianist of international fame, his ability giving him the soubriquet of "The Boy Paderewski." Accompanying him is Louise Dickinson, known as the young Mary Garden, a soprano equally classy. They will be heard in the best class of music.

The three Shelvey boys are contortionists, who have some new twists and curves to exploit—they are fine. Harry Girard, famed locally and elsewhere for his compositions as well as his fine singing voice, will do some songs, with the aid of a piano.

Charles Kellogg, the nature man, with his wonderful exhibit; CeDora, the girl in the gilded globe, the Whittakers and Art Bowen complete the list. Then there is the orchestral concert and the news views in motion pictures, both steadily advancing in favor. Altogether, it is a remarkable showing, and McIntyre and Heath, great as they are, find themselves in worthy company.

Pantages.

A vaudeville feature that grows better and more entertaining each time it comes around to us is Seymour's Happy Family, the premier among trained dog acts. Trainer Seymour is constantly adding to the ranks of his performers, and to their repertoire as well, and the performance which he will give at Pantages this week promises to be one of the best ever seen here.

The Musical Goolmans are no strangers to Los Angeles, for the year just elapsed is their longest term of absence from the Pantages circuit. Their repertoire of standard and novelty musical instruments is extensive and interesting. Among the musical acts ordinarily classified as "novelties" the Goolmans are ranked with the best.

Clarke and Verdi, a team of Italian comedy specialists, carry scenery and comedy effects of their own, and offer many new ideas in vaudeville fun production.

The Behrwallis, two young giants in strength, have the acrobatic and gymnastic section of the programme in charge. They are as handsome a pair of athletes as ever Greece produced in the days of her glory.

"A Case of Divorce," rattling farce comedy, presents Harry Brown and a company of four clever players. A country lawyer's office is the scene of the festivities.

The Olive Gypsy Quartette, a picturesque singing and instrumental number, completes the list. It is a new vaudeville feature here, but has a name and fame of its own earning in the East.

—o—

Empress.

An exceptionally attractive and inviting new Sullivan & Considine bill of seven acts comes to the Empress Theater tomorrow afternoon, headed by the well-known George Auger and his company of midgets in the novel one-act play, "Jack, the Giant Killer." Both Mr. Auger, his company and his present success vehicle are too well known in the world of amusement to require much comment.

There is an added interest in Mr. Auger's presence at the Empress owing to the fact that he has recently announced his intention of retiring from the vaudeville stage to challenge Jack Johnson, his contract already having been made with Tom Jones, the well-known fight manager, with this end in view.

The second feature of the new bill will be Joseph Slater, an actor well known to the legitimate stage, who, with his company, will be seen in the one-act drama, "The Card Party." This is described as an intensely interesting offering, full of big dramatic moments of a most surprising nature, while it contains much bright comedy.

Second in importance of the feature acts will be the novel acrobatic offering of two personages, who bill themselves as "Black and White" and who recently scored very much of a sensation in the European vaudeville houses.

Others on the new bill will be the Four Hodges, a clever quartette of Bridge Luncheon.

Mrs. Carl Leonardt of No. 2 Chester place entertained sixty-five friends with an elaborate luncheon followed by bridge, Thursday afternoon. The living-room was filled with yellow hyacinths and poppies, while a profusion of red carnations were utilized in the hall and the dining-room was done entirely in yellow tulips. The musicians were stationed in the music-room, where pink Killarney roses were effective. Handsome prizes were won by Mrs. Lawrence Sevier, Mrs. Charles Sharp, Miss Hildreth Maier and Mrs. Phillip Creppin. Vocal selections by Miss Madge Schalk were enjoyed.

"The Exclusive Specialty House for Feminine Apparel"

A NEW ERA dawns in the mercantile history of Los Angeles, with the formal opening of the "Greater Myer Siegel & Co. Store." Undisputed leadership since 1886—twenty-six years of uninterrupted progress, culminating in the realization of our ideal—a peerless setting for the gems of fashion, gathered for your approval, from the style centers of the world. A brilliant exposition of Afternoon and Evening Gowns, Dresses, Tailor-Made Suits and Coats and Beautiful Lingerie Gowns, in almost inconceivable variety. Waist assortments that defy the criticism of the most exacting, for they hold everything, from the simple lingerie, at a moderate price, to the most exquisite hand-made laces; Muslin Underwear from makers who excel in their production at home and abroad; Neckwear, including exquisite hand-made novelties; and a vast showing of the almost innumerable dress accessories, that style dictators have proclaimed the vogue this season. Our pre-eminence in everything ready to wear for Women, Misses and Children, and for the baby, too, is given renewed emphasis by increased showings, of all the various and varied lines, in which Myer Siegel & Co. will continue to excel.

Everything possible has been done to facilitate the comfort and convenience of our patrons, and to make this store the "perfect shopping place of Los Angeles." We shall strive continuously to merit your favors by faultless service, and tireless devotion to your exact requirements, and extend to one and all a cordial tained in the sleeping porch in the garden, which was decorated with peach blossoms representing a beautiful bower.

Engagement Announced.

Dr. and Mrs. George J. Lund of No. 1227 Maryland street announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen Pauline, to Merrill L. Russell.

Has Returned.

Miss Bernardine Williams with her mother, Mrs. J. C. Henderson of No. 854 Ardmore avenue, have returned from a six months' tour through the Orient. While away Miss Williams was entertained royally in army and navy circles. They remained some time in Honolulu and Manila.

Mrs. Henderson will leave for the East in June and will remain away during the summer, while Miss Williams will be the guest of her sister, Mrs. Robert Hiddleson. In a fortnight Mrs. Hiddleson will entertain with a tea for her sister.

To Entertain.

Mr. and Mrs. August Marquis of No. 2302 West Twenty-fifth street will give a May dancing party in honor of their nephew, Jack Marquis, Thursday, May 2, has been selected as the date.

Double Wedding.

Miss Mabel Jackson and Ernest Brooks and Miss Gladys Jackson and Hugh Mackie were married yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in St. John's Episcopal Church. Rev. Dr. Lewis G. Morris read the double service in the presence of many guests. The two attractive young women are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Jackson of No. 150 West Thirty-first street and following the service a wedding luncheon of forty covers was given at the family home, where a pretty arrangement of pink and white carnations was used.

These young people are all former residents of London and are now residing in Los Angeles, where Mr. Brooks and Mr. Mackie are prominent young business men. At the conclusion of brief trips Mr. and Mrs. Brooks will reside here, and Mr. and Mrs. Mackie will make Hollywood their future home.

Miss Heck Hostess.

Miss Etta Heck of Harvard boulevard charmingly entertained a number of friends Tuesday with a luncheon. Pink roses brightened the home and also formed a handsome centerpiece for the table, where there were covers for Mrs. Roy Warren, Mrs. George L. Machris, Mrs. Benson Phillips, Miss Inez Williams, Miss Hazel Johnson, Miss Bess Belger, Miss Hazel Bishop, Miss Ethel Williams and Miss Estelle Berg.

Another Wedding.

Miss Greeta Tate and Harry Philip McKay were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Tate of No. 223 East Twenty-seventh street, Wednesday evening. Rev. W. E. Spicer of San Dimas was asked to perform the service; music for which was rendered by Mrs. Frederick Reyer. The bride wore a traveling suit of blue and her only attendant was little Collins Kinney, who carried the ring. A trip to Riverside will be enjoyed and after May 15 the young people will be at home at No. 6308 Templeton street, Sierra Park. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William McKay of No. 157 West Twenty-seventh street.

Engagement Made Known.

The engagement of Miss Sadie Paulis and Joseph R. Berkowitz, is announced today by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Paulis of No. 1718 Magnolia avenue.

Matinee Party.

An enjoyable matinee party at the Orpheum was given last week by Miss Peggy Bonnetti, as a courtesy to Miss Florence Spellacy. Following the performance, tea was served at Christopher's, where there were places for Miss Eugenia Shafer, Miss Elizabeth Woodward, Miss Marie Scheller and the hostess.

Matrons' Club.

Members of the Young Matrons' Club celebrated their second anniversary Wednesday afternoon by entertaining their mothers at the home of Mrs. H. G. Beer of No. 301 North St. Louis street.

Honeymoon Ends.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ybarra, the latter formerly Miss Wilhelmina Jaynes of Sunland, Cal., have returned from their wedding trip to San Diego and are settled at No. 913 North Broadway.

Luncheon Party.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Saundrel entertained at luncheon Friday a few of their friends. A mound of violets beautifully decorated the table, where cards bore names of Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Binford, Mr. and Mrs. George Walters, Mr. and Mrs. George Adams and Rev. Commel.

San Diego News.

A marriage of interest to society this week was that of Miss Mildred Brown to Ensign Richard W. Wuest of the U.S.S. Maryland, which was celebrated Tuesday evening in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Rev. Charles M. Barnes officiating. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Edna Brown, as maid of honor, and Misses Jean Titus, Ethel Holloway, Marguerite Erzinger, Rachel Granger, Leona Holloway and Helen Willis as bridesmaids. The groom's best man was Ensign T. Parker. Lieuts. Kayes and Pence and Ensigns Alexander, Eckland, Sherman and Underwood, of the Maryland, were ushers. A reception was given at the home of the bride's parents, at which there were 250 guests.

An event of prominence was a bridge party given Thursday afternoon at the San Diego Country Club with Mrs. Francis Mead and Mrs. Herbert Anthony as hostesses. The event was in honor of Mrs. Barry Hamilton, a wealthy society woman of the East, who recently came to San Diego to live. For bridge thirty-two tables were provided.

Mrs. M. German of No. 1860 Third street gave an informal reception in honor of Mrs. Alice Bourne, Friday afternoon.

Mrs. L. G. Johnstone entertained twenty-five guests at five hundred at her home Monday evening.

Mrs. Alfred D. Robinson was hostess at a luncheon given at her home in Ocean Beach Saturday. Her guests were Mrs. R. F. Paine, Mrs. Harold Taylor, Mrs. L. A. Blochman, Mrs. Frank Frye, Mrs. L. N. Cullis, Mrs. Fred Grumm, Mrs. Rodney Stokes, Dr. Lena Cresswell, Miss Elizabeth Freese, Miss Myra Daley, Miss Eleanor Partridge, Miss Linden Anderson, Miss Nell Fraser and Miss Christadora.

The spring meeting of the San Diego County Federation of Women's Clubs was held at the Pacific Beach Clubhouse Friday. Mrs. Lilli Stibolt Hanssen rendered several vocal solos and Mrs. Edward S. Frank contributed instrumental selections. At a luncheon following the programme, Edna Woodham Snook was toastmistress. The women listened to an address by Rev. Clarence J. Harris on "The Improved Conditions of the Working Women and Girls." "Women in the World's Work" was the subject of an address by Miss Edna McConnell. A report on the work of the District Federation was read by Mrs. A. W. Wohlford, president of the Escondido Women's Club. "Department Activities in the San Diego County Clubs" was the subject of Mrs. Shelton Bissell's contribution.

Home Wedding.

A beautiful home wedding was solemnized on Thursday evening at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Lamb Willson, No. 824 West Franklin avenue, Hollywood, when their daughter, Miss Lora Delight Kipp, was united in marriage to Eldon Webb Tice, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Dr. Fishburn of West Adams Presbyterian Church, Los Angeles. Preceding the ceremony a musical programme was rendered.

The house was decorated in yellow and green, pepper twigs, acacia blossoms and ferns being used. The shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley was caught by Miss Villa Nye.

Out-of-town guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tice, Mrs. Harold Tice, Miss Josephine Tice and M. M. Webb, of Topeka, Kan.; Misses Harriette Parsons and Villa Nye of Highland; Lewis Fellows of Barstow; Mrs. John Long of Lordsburg, and Roy Hathorn of Compton.

Good Fortune.

Friends of Miss Kathleen Lockhart—and they are very many here—are rejoicing over the good news that she has been secured by Oscar Hammerstein as lyric soprano in his London Grand Opera Company. Miss Lockhart, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Lockhart of No. 1423 Oak street, has been studying abroad for several years. She has been in London finishing up her musical education for the last six months.

Hammerstein heard her sing one day about a month ago and at once sought her out and engaged her. She

Sample Suits and Coats of the Highest Class 1-3 Under Value

Our Cloak and Suit buyer, who is now in New York, secured, from a maker of the highest class Suits and Coats in America, his line of samples, and has expressed them to us with orders to pass them on to our patrons at the same ratio of savings, 33 1-3 per cent. discount.

To say it is an aristocratic lot is putting it mildly. It's the most interesting lot we ever saw—from any viewpoint—style or economy. Of course, there are no two alike, nor will any be duplicated. Come tomorrow and see this finery, if only just to look. But come before the best are taken.

Novelty Suits 1-3 Less

Beautiful suits of cloth or silk modeled after the very latest French designs, tastefully trimmed with expensive laces, braids or hand embroidered. Browns, tans, blues and grays predominate.

We doubt if anything so ultra-fashionable, so "Frenchy" has been seen in town.

Prices, $48.35, $50.00, $53.35, $66.65 and to $93.35. And those prices, in every case, are just one-third less than these suits were made to sell for.

Handsome Coats 1-3 Less

Among the Coats are imported models and adaptations of late foreign styles. Novel designs and novel materials all positively exclusive.

Auto and Street Coats of Terry cloth, Ratine and Serge in white or colors, Fancy Coatings and Camel's hair in colors, black and white checks, etc. Prices, $33.35 to $50.00.

Dressy Coats of changeable Taffeta lined with fancy marquisette, positively stunning affairs, at $66.65 to $100.00. Of course, the best will be snapped up earliest.

Santa Barbara News.

The Wednesday Afternoon Five Hundred Club held its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. W. A. Patton, No. 1214 Garden street. The living-room was decorated with lavender iris and the dining-room in pink roses. Those present were Mrs. J. W. Smith, Mrs. S. Reynolds, Mrs. Ryder, Mrs. Bordman, Mrs. McComber, Mrs. S. F. Pierce, Mrs. Adolph Abraham, Mrs. Smartt, Mrs. M. Pierce, Mrs. Thorne, Mrs. Eilers, Mrs. J. S. Morton, Mrs. J. C. Wilson, Mrs. Jesse Wood, Mrs. Tucker and Mrs. James Wilson.

The death of Robert Cameron Rogers, who was a prominent figure for many years in Santa Barbara and Montecito social circles, cast a pall over the social world of the two cities during the past week and many smart affairs that had been planned were postponed or entirely given up.

Mrs. Jessie Covel, of Oakland, was the guest of honor Wednesday afternoon at a party given by Mrs. H. L. Jordan at her home on Third avenue. Music and games were features of the afternoon. Mrs. Covel was formerly Miss Jessie Johnson of this city and during her visit will be entertained extensively. Those at Mrs. Jordan's party were: Mrs. Della Johnson, Mrs. Pharez, Mrs. Henry Doty, Mrs. Lottie Howland, Mrs. Pettingil, Mrs. N. Johnson, Mrs. Maud King and the honor guest.

The annual banquet of the Woman's Club held at the Arlington, last Saturday afternoon, was largely attended. Refreshments were served on a table which extended the length of the room and was arranged in the form of an elongated letter "T." Dainty floral decorations of Glenwood roses were placed in the table, being banked with large bouquets of the same flower.

Those in charge of the affair were Mrs. E. H. Thompson, who was assisted by Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Dunn. Mrs. Frank Maguire, president of the club, made a few opening remarks and Mrs. Frederick Conant, secretary read words of greeting from Mrs. Bauerhyte, president of the Los Angeles district of Woman's clubs. Sixty-four guests were present as follows:

Mrs. Frank Maguire, Mrs. E. H. Thompson, Mrs. Fowler, Mrs. E. P. Dunn, Mrs. A. D. Long, Mrs. F. Franceschi, Mrs. Henry Cooper, Mrs. G. A. White, Miss Harriet Hall, Miss Grace Elliott, Miss Elizabeth Knight, Mrs.

The sign of the Guaranteed Feather

This is the first of a series of talks on "Why Cawston Can Guarantee his Feathers"

CAWSTON Ostrich Feathers are made in "Sunshine" Factories.

There are few manufacturing establishments in America conducted in such a delightful and healthful environment as the Cawston Ostrich Feather Factories.

AN article in a current magazine makes the statement that "in those dingy tenements of little Italy (a slum district of New York City) are manufactured a large proportion of the ostrich plumes that decorate the hats of American women—among contagious diseases, filth and absolute lack of any sanitary precaution."

EVERY Cawston Ostrich Feather is manufactured in the Cawston Factories at South Pasadena, Cal.

Large, airy, modern factory buildings—surrounded by a beautiful semi-tropical park. Plenty of windows—two, where perhaps only one was necessary—let in an abundance of light and sunshine. Every health protecting, sanitary feature known to modern manufacturing has been installed.

Here the more than one-hundred expert workers are ever engaged under conditions that always stimulate workers to their best effort.

And that Cawston Ostrich Feathers are the best effort of the most skilled workers is evidenced by the fact that they have been awarded seven international gold medals.

This is one of the chief reasons—too—why Cawston is the only American ostrich feather manufacturer who can sell his product under this rigid guarantee.

The Cawston Guarantee.

SHOULD any defects in either material or workmanship develop in a Cawston Feather within one year from the date of purchase we will replace it with a new plume.

Metcalf, Mrs. Wolf Markus and Mrs. J. G. Kellogg.

To Live Here.

Dr and Mrs. Alexander Block and family of Pueblo have moved to No. 2085 West Twenty-ninth place.

Eastern Visit.

William M. Bell of Los Angeles is in New York City for a visit of two weeks and while in the East is staying at the Hotel Astor. Bell came here to attend the national conference of the Men and Religion Forward Movement, which held its meetings in Carnegie Hall during the last week.

To Give Reception.

Miss Florence Reiss and her betrothed, Louis Landfield, will receive from 2 to 5, May 5, at the residence of the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Reiss of No. 424 Park View.

Riverside Amateur Theatricals.

Riverside society women took part in private theatricals last evening at the Casa Blanca Club. Two farces were presented, "The Impostor," and "Which Is Which?"

Those in the cast included Mr. and Mrs. Percy Crump, Pember Castleman, Geoffrey Morgan, P. A. Crump, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Halsted, Miss Dolly Bettner and Miss Mable Scott.

The evening concluded with cards and dancing. Mrs. Lillian Pauline Frost and Mrs. M. A. Henderson conducting the dancing and musical programme, and Miss Frost and Miss Bakewell being hostesses for the card parties.

Other women taking part in the organizing are Mrs. W. P. Lett, Mrs. H. G. Pattee, Mrs. L. Bacon, Mrs. A. H. Halsted, and Mrs. E. H. Daly, the latter, the chairman of the proceedings, whatever that may mean.

The Misses Hosp, Margaret, Mattie and Della, gave a china shower on behalf of Miss Winifred McDougall, the much-feted young bride-elect, whose approaching marriage is to be a social event soon. On Saturday Miss Della Hosp entertained for another bride-elect, Miss Fern Sodestrom, whose engagement to Roy Simms was announced last week. On this occasion the Victoria Golf Club was the scene of hospitality which took the form of a delightful luncheon party.

Among those present were the Misses Frances Seaton, Dorothy Cunningham, Marjorie Cunningham, Jessie Dalgish, Pearl Mills, Aldah Byal, Ray Farr, Dorothy Wallacott, Mildred Hudson, Genevieve Kinsell, Mirriam Webb, Dorothy Wilbur, Norma Denison and Miss Della Hosp, the cordial young hostess.

The Victoria Golf Club was the scene of a pretty dance on Monday evening when Miss Grace Cameron, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. D. Cameron, entertained for her friend, Miss McRae of San Francisco, who, with her mother is visiting the Camerons. Dr. and Mrs. Cameron, Mrs. McRae, Miss Grace Cameron and Miss McRae assisted in receiving. Supper was served during the evening.

On the evening of May 1, there will be a club dance at the Victoria Golf Club to which all members and their friends are invited.

For Daughter-in-Law.

Mrs. John A. Prinsen, of No. 868 Ardmore street, will give a bridge luncheon of sixty covers May 2, guests having been asked to meet her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Harry Cleveland Smith of the City of Mexico.

Mr. Woodill Host.

Gilbert Woodill was responsible, last evening, for a delightful dancing party given at the Chamouny apartments. Woodill was assisted in entertaining his forty friends by his mother, Mrs. S. E. Woodill.

To Entertain.

Mrs. Charles Richards of West Adams street and her daughters, Mrs. Frances Joseph Kanne and Miss Elizabeth Richards, will preside at a bridge party at Hotel Alexandria, Wednesday afternoon.

For Bride-Elect.

Miss Myrtle Daum, who will be married April 30 to Claire Snow, has been entertained at several pretty parties since the news of the betrothal was made known. One of the interesting events was held Thursday, when Mrs. Alfred C. Danz of No. 1030 Edgeware road entertained with a luncheon and five hundred party. Prizes were won by Mrs. J. Kowen-Hoven and Miss Daum. Others present were Mrs. L. di Vecchio, Mrs. H. Daum, Miss Ruth Davis, Mrs. Frank Danz, Mrs. Milton Perry, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. C. Snow and Mrs. Jacob Danz. Wednesday Miss Daum was entertained by Mrs. Milton Perry at her home on West Forty-eighth street. Luncheon and cards were enjoyed. On this occasion prizes fell to Miss Gertrude Robertson and Mrs. Alfred C. Danz.

Another luncheon was given yesterday by Mrs. J. Kowen-Hoven and Miss Ruth Davis, who entertained at the home of the former, on West Twenty-seventh street. Later a matinee party at the Lyceum was enjoyed.

Luncheon Delightful.

One of the delightful affairs of Thursday was the luncheon given by Mrs. Harry Sessions, at her home, No. 2941 Kansas street, complimenting Mrs. Margaret Lewis of Peoria, Ill., who has been passing the winter with Mrs. George Miller, No. 229 South Coronado street. A low bowl filled with pink roses graced the center of the table and harmonizing cards marked covers for Mrs. Margaret Lewis, Mrs. George Miller, Mrs. Harriett Ewing, Mrs. Katherine Love and Mrs. Carrie Smith.

To Have Church Wedding.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Willard N. Bott of No. 120 North Avenue 24, of the betrothal of their eldest daughter, Miss Esther, to L. C. Leeds of this city. The service will be read Thursday evening, May 9, in Asbury Methodist Church, in the presence of a large company of guests. Little Marjorie Esther Gray has been chosen for ring bearer and Blythe Taylor and Maurine Hulse will carry baskets of flowers. Miss Tessa Mae

All the Late New Models in Nemo Corsets
—are to be found here. Style No. 508, the new self-reducing Corset, with the new incurve back. They cling to the figure when standing or sitting, owing to the gores of lastikop cloth on either side of the skirt, a webbing that will outwear the corset itself and never loose its elasticity. This confines the hips, reduces the abdomen, and produces a perfect rounded effect, making it impossible for the corset edge to show through even the most clinging gown, $5.00 pair. Other excellent models are:

Several hundred guests responded to invitations.

Mascot Club Luncheon.

Mrs. George Kramer charmingly entertained the members of the Mascot Club with a luncheon Thursday at Christopher's. The appointments were emblematic of the coming of the Shriners to this city. Their emblems and pennants were hung about the room, and on the table the red fez was used as place cards. A shower bouquet of red carnations graced the center, and from each stem was tied a red ribbon, ending in a perky bow on the centerpiece, forming a tent.

Following luncheon tables were arranged for five hundred, and prizes were won by Mrs. Kramer, Mrs. Van Zant and Mrs. McArthur. Mrs. Will Saurett was present as a special guest, and members Mrs. F. T. Eldridge, Mrs. Franck C. McArthur, Mrs. Fidelia Beck, Mrs. Franz Bischoff, Mrs. G. W. Butterfield, Mrs. William Kelley, Mrs. A. J. Koil, Mrs. Nellie Minnear, Mrs. J. L. Markwell, Mrs. Paul Ridley, Mrs. William Rodgers, Mrs. Van Horn, Mrs. Barker Van Zandt, Mrs. Walton and Mrs. Wagner.

Garden Party.

A beautiful day and congenial people formed a combination that made the great success of the garden party given yesterday afternoon by Miss Olive Percival, at her home, on Avenue Sixty-six and San Pasqual road. In large baskets red and yellow roses arranged in shower effects hung in the arbor, and ropes of roses were garlanded from basket to basket and to the sides of the arbor, carrying out a most gorgeous effect. A feature of the afternoon was the exhibition of bonnets placed on gavel sticks in the yard behind the house, from the year 1840 up to the present time. Tea and Japanese wafers were served in the arbor, and about one hundred guests enjoyed the afternoon.

Berkeley Guest.

Miss Annabelle Jones of Berkeley will arrive next Tuesday, and during her stay will be the house guest of Miss Belle Mayer, No. 2012 West Washington street.

Bridge Function.

Mrs. David A. Meekins, No. 1203 Arapahoe street, entertained with a large luncheon Friday at Hotel Mt. Washington. A color scheme of white and lavender was carried out by the use of white carnations and lavender ribbons, and a lavender luncheon set. Covers were laid for forty-five guests. Later tables were arranged for bridge in the glassroom.

Arrived Safely.

A cablegram has been received from Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Brown of No. 3219 South Figueroa street, who left this city about a month ago for a trip around the world, telling of their safe arrival in Naples.

Progressive Dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Boynton, who were recently married, were the honorees at a progressive dinner party given last evening by a group of friends. The first course was served at the home of Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Kidder on Hobart boulevard. The perfume of violets filled the dining-room and these flowers, gathered into corsage bouquets at the ends of long ribbons, formed a wreath in the center of the table. Each ribbon was attached to one of the covers, designated by a dainty hand-painted card. From here they were taken in automobiles to the home of Miss Jean ...complimented guest, Mrs. Arthur Sendall, who has been spending the winter in this city, will leave for her home in Chicago in May. Assisting ladies were Mrs. Oscar W. Roberts, Mrs. R. L. Byron, Mrs. Benjamin F. Church, Mrs. W. D. Campbell, Miss Helen Updegraff, Miss Eva Stavnow and Miss Eugenia Rixon. A color scheme of pink and yellow was carried out on alternating small tables by the use of enchantress carnations and jonquils arranged in Japanese baskets.

Stag Dinner.

The class of 1914, College of Dentistry, gave its first annual banquet Friday evening in a local cafe. The class colors of red and white were carried out in decorating the table by the use of carnations. Dr. Engstrum was toastmaster and those responding were Dean Ford, Secretary Bell, Drs. Atwater, Malcom, Jenks and Bayley. Covers were also laid for Drs. Lee, Young, Cannon, Johnson, Henry, McCabe, Tedford, Yishidu, Parker, Stayley, Haines, Stone, Northy, Ayres, Black, Tsusyan, Roberts, Dennis, Brownson Traynor, Baba Lisby, Watson, Kichue, Doty, Obert, Wells, Lovelace and Spencer.

Hostesses at Ebell.

Mrs. James Mackey Howard, Mrs. Robert Hartley Updegraff and Miss Helen Updegraff were hostesses at a notable reception given at the Ebell Clubhouse Thursday afternoon. In the reception-rooms where the receiving party stood baskets of pink Killarney roses and enchantress carnations were used, and a feature was a bank of palms screening an orchestra which gave a delightful musical programme between the reception hours of 3 to 5 o'clock. A yellow color scheme was carried out in the dining-room by the use of tulips arranged in a large gold basket, and yellow-shaded candelabra. Other features of the table decoration were cut glass dishes filled with bon-bons.

Unbonneted ladies were Mrs. W. L. Jones, Mrs. E. C. Bellows, Mrs. H. L. ...ory, Mrs. S. C. Potter, Mrs. Seeley ...Mudd, Mrs. A. A. Burnham, Mrs. ...M. Binford, Mrs. George C. Halde-

SOCIETY.

Lines, No. 404 South Occidental boulevard. Jonquils graced the table, with similar flowers ornamenting the place cards.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Rindge entertained them next at their home on Kingsley drive. Pink rosebuds were used to embellish the table, and covers were marked by dainty rose cards. Red carnations and red roses were used to enliven the table at the home of Miss Sarah Hanawalt on Annandale place, where the next course was served, and from here they motored to Venice for the last course, served by Miss Gladys Moore, who used a marine scena to charactorize the table. A lake of water, banked with daisies and ferns, in which were fish and ducks swimming about. Marine scenes also ornamented the place cards.

Japanese Luncheon.

Mrs. Harry A. Lane charmingly entertained the members of the Silk Stocking Club with a Japanese luncheon at her home, No. 2122 West Twenty-ninth street, Friday afternoon. The lavender wistaria and baby Cecile Brouner roses formed a beautiful decoration for the table, and Japanese place cards were used.

After luncheon, tables were arranged for bridge and prizes awarded to Mrs. John Douglass Walker and Mrs. L. A. Craig. Members present were Mrs. Lou Sapp, Mrs. W. G. Jobson, Mrs. L. A. Craig, Mrs. I. R. Bancroft, Mrs. Anna B. Taylor, Mrs. O. N. Patterson, Mrs. N. B. Harmon, Mrs. C. A. Howell, Mrs. R. W. Clenson, Mrs. Waldo Hallett and Mrs. John Douglass Walker. Present as a special guest was Mrs. Arthur La Touche.

Homeward Bound.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Lambert, who have been passing the winter in their home on Orange Grove avenue, and in whose honor many affairs have been given, left Thursday for their home in Chicago.

—o—

Dancing Party.

Mrs. Charles Parke, Miss Barbara Taylor and Miss Velma Potter entertained 100 guests Thursday evening with a dancing party at Hotel Burlington. Red roses and red carnations were used to enliven the drawing-room, where punch was served during the evening and music was furnished by an orchestra for the dancing.

—o—

"Five Hundred" Luncheon.

A shower of pink enchantress carnations and May Day place cards characterized the luncheon given by Mrs. Dalls Jones at her home on Forty-fifth street Friday afternoon, complimentary to a club of which she is a member. After luncheon "five hundred" was the game for the afternoon and the prize was awarded to Mrs. Silsbee. Included were Mmes. Fred Germain, H. M. Donnell, Al. Stein, William Reynolds, Charles Meyers, E. G. Washington, W. V. Lansing, C. S. Davis, Arthur Stephenson, S. J. Holman and Miss Ada Groves.

Banquet at Hotel Maryland.

The Delta Sigma Delta Fraternity of the College of Dentistry of U.S.C. held its annual banquet Friday evening at Hotel Maryland in Pasadena. The Palace, a private car, carried fifty guests from Los Angeles. The banquet and ball room were lavishly decorated with greenery and California poppies, the same color scheme being carried out on the hand-painted menu cards which marked the covers. An orchestra and vocal music were features throughout the dinner and dance. Dr. B. F. Eshleman acted as toastmaster and those responding were Dean Ford and Drs. Cave, Goodman, Noble, La Touche, Peden, Lynch, Parker and Williams. A vaudeville programme and dancing followed the banquet.

Card Affair.

A smart affair of the week was the card party given yesterday afternoon by Miss Albra Starey at her home, No. 40 St. Andrews place. Cecil Bruner roses arranged in charming profusion gave a most festive air to the home, but their beauty was most observable in the arrangement on the long table in the dining-room. Assisting the hostess was Miss Marion Smith, and others included were Mrs. J. Browning, Miss Pauline Lund, Miss Helen Charles, Miss Nina Chadwick, Mrs. R. Malcom, Miss Elsie Behaymer, Mrs. Joe Cott, Mrs. Morris, Miss Ruth Fidey and Miss Jess Kendrick.

—o—

St. Cecilia Club.

Mrs. George Crandall of South Pasadena entertained the members of the St. Cecilia Club at her home Monday afternoon. This was the club's "California Day" and Mrs. Crandall, who had charge of the programme, gave a talk on the "Songs and Legends of Yosemite," followed by Mrs. Phillip Zobelien, who sang two of them, "The Lost Arrow" and "The Invocation." Mrs. Crandall then read the legend of the Arrowhead, followed by the singing of the "Invocation to the Arrowhead," by Mrs. J. W. Thayer. Miss Eva Smith read "The Wooing of Hiawatha" and the Philomel quartette, all members of the club, composed of Miss Willy Smyser, Miss Jessica Lawrence, Miss Kie Julie Christin and Mrs. Phillip Zobelien, sang "The Little Papoose." Miss Jessica Lawrence read the libretto of "Natoma," Victor Herbert's latest opera, and Mrs. J. W. Thayer sang the big soprano aria of the opera, "The Legend of the Armulett." Rev. Father Dayton, who has just come here from the East, closed the programme by singing two numbers.

The club colors, red and white, were carried out in decorating by the use of roses and the California poppy. Refreshments were also carried out in a yellow color scheme. Others present were: Miss Rose Chilcote, Mrs. R. J. Selby, Mrs. G. J. Viera, Mrs. A. F. C. Forbes, Mrs. Leslie Hewitt, Mrs. John Shenk, Jr., Mrs. Young, Mrs. C. F. Bicknell, Mrs. J. C. OUT-OF-TOWN-SOCIETY.

Pasadena.

VERY few functions of social importance were given in Pasadena last week, most of the entertaining being informal card parties and teas or club affairs. One of the most enjoyable auction bridge parties was that given Monday by Mrs. Walter S. Wright of North Orange Grove avenue complimentary to Mrs. John W. Edminson and her daughter Miss Edith Edminson, who recently left Pasadena to make San Francisco their home. Mrs. William Parmer Fuller, formerly Miss Adaline Wright who is also now living in San Francisco was an honored guest. Card tables were provided for Mmes. George W. Sturdivant, Henry C. Barroll, Henry Goss, Charles H. Mears, Richard Lacey, George A. Vedder, Roydon Vosburg, Anson Lisk, Misses Hygiene Sawyer, Elsa West, Evelyn Lutz, Margaret Sherk, Clara Miller, Margaret Mears and the guests of honor and later Mmes. Harrison M. Lutz, George Cary, Don C. Porter, John E. Miller, F. B. Wetherby, Emil Kayser, J. Dawson Thomson, came in for tea.

Mrs. G. A. Crandall of Prospect avenue was the hostess Monday afternoon at a musicale given by the St. Cecelia Club. The programme was of unusual interest being a California day arrangement including a paper given by Mrs. Crandall on California's early history, "Legends of the Yosemite," a group of songs given by Mrs. Phillip Zobelein, and chants used by the Franciscan monks given by Misses. Christian, Smyser, Lawrence, and Chilcote. Assisting in receiving with the hostess were Mmes. E. W. Robinson, Alberta Thayer and Phillip Zobelein. Guests invited by club members for this occasion only were Mmes. A. S. Forbes, Leslie R. Hewitt, J. J. Shank, E. J. Viera, L. S. Harmon, L. J. Selby.

The Monday Afternoon Club was delightfully entertained last week by Mrs. Benj. M. Page, assisted by her sister Miss Elizabeth Blakeslee, at their home on West California street with a prettily appointed luncheon followed by cards. Covers were laid for fourteen at a table beautifully ornamented with baskets of pink and white sweet peas.

Mrs. G. O. Gaskell of Oakland avenue entertained the members of the Plandertasche Club Tuesday at an informal tea when all conversation was in German and readings in that language formed a part of the entertainment. Among those present were Mmes. L. A. Breen, E. C. Barrett, John D. Mersereau, Ross W. Reynolds, C. M. Black, Jean M. Plank, A. S. Gaylord, T. E. Mitchell, Fred T. Terstegan, Misses Grace Pompilly, Winifred Webb, Adele Roth, Jennie Bartlett, Pehmler, Cecil Rowe, Elsie Stambach, Ella Thompson and Sarah White.

In celebration of the seventieth anniversary of his birthday, William Pennell of North Marengo avenue, was made the recipient of a pleasant surprise party, arranged by his wife. Music and readings furnished entertainment, and among those present were Mmes. L. J. Holbert, Charles Copeland, Charles Racey, Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Jarvis, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pennell, Mr. and Mrs. William Schrieber, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Huelett, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Parsons, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Garston, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Racey, Misses Williams, Pennell, Mrs. A. D. Spaulding and Clarence Hughes.

Both the Valley Hunt Club and the Altadena Country Club upon their regular afternoon tea days last week, Monday and Tuesday, respectively, were scenes of large gatherings of society matrons and maids, who met for bridge and five hundred. Mrs. A. S. Gaylord presided at the tea table at the Valley Hunt Club, and at the Country Club Mrs. D. H. Gireuard presided. Mrs. Gireuard was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Shirley Vance Martin and Mrs. J. E. Parker.

Mrs. Alvick A. Pearson of New York avenue gave a delightful auction bridge party, Tuesday afternoon, in honor of Miss Henrietta Schemm of Saginaw, Mich. The rooms were lovely in decorations of spring flowers, and tables were provided for twenty guests. After the games, refreshments were served at the card tables. Among those present were Mmes. Charles S. Gilbert, Hampton L. Story, Thomas B. Wright, Andrew Jamieson, F. P. Pierson, J. B. Coulston, Ford Brown, J. B. Bustin, A. M. Kaiser, Thomas M. Livingston, Julius Seyler, C. M. M. Crichton, Carter, Theodore Barber, Edwin Sorver, Griffith, Misses Carter, Griffith, Bustin and Noble.

One of the largest affairs of the week was the afternoon tea given Friday by Miss Margaret Reynolds, at her home on West California street, in honor of her sister, Mrs. Frederick Terrill, formerly Miss Jessie Reynolds, and Mrs. F. L. Reynolds. Assisting about the rooms were Mmes. Robert Reynolds and Duncan Reynolds, and presiding over the tea table were Mmes. James Reynolds, S. Hazard Halsted, Benjamin Folsom and B. M. Wotkyns. One hundred and fifty invitations were extended.

Mrs. Elwood Wright entertained Thursday with a prettily appointed luncheon given at her home on South Euclid avenue, when covers were laid for twelve. Mrs. Edwin Hill of Los Angeles was the guest of honor.

Mrs. Raul Miltimore and Miss Miltimore of Garfield avenue were hostesses at a novel social affair Wednesday evening, which was in the nature of a house warming, but was unique on account of the religious ceremonial when Rt. Rev. Joseph H. Johnson, assisted by Rev. J. B. Watton, blessed the new abode. There was a large number of neighborhood guests present and a number of prominent society people.

Miss Laura Mendenhall of North Wilson avenue gave a prettily-appointed ante-nuptial function Monday afternoon, which took the form of a miscellaneous shower for Miss Grace Crawford, who is soon to be married. Five hundred furnished amusement after the shower of gifts had overwhelmed this bride-elect. Among the guests were Misses Ruth White, Marie Miller, Margaret Hammer, Ethel Thompson, Myrtle Hocket, Bess Wells, Alice Wood, Blanche Crawford, Agnes Wood, Faustina Sturdivant, Winnie Vessey, Beth Putnam and Mrs. F. G. Kempton.

Mrs. Bettie Smith of North Mentor avenue, who is leaving soon for her old home in Carrollton, Ky., was given a pleasant surprise party Tuesday evening by a number of her friends, who came in to enjoy music and games, and a bountiful repast, which was served by Mrs. W. N. Smith. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Hoover, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Shrader, Mr. and Mrs. William N. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Killgoro, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. McMahan, Mmes. J. J. Smith, Beulah Wayland, C. E. Cralle, Misses Irene Shrader, Margurite Gamby, Sallie Smith, Messrs. Lewis Falkenstein, Charles Hasselwande, Arthur Williams, Russell Killgore, Douglass Killgore and Owen Shrader.

Mrs. Torrey Everett of St. John avenue entertained a few friends with auction bridge Thursday afternoon. The living-room, where the card tables were arranged, was attractively decorated with garden roses. Cecil Brunner buds, arranged in brown baskets being most in evi-

ANNIVERSARY SALE

In commemoration of three years of most remarkable success, a success based wholly, we believe, on GREATER VALUES and on better SERVICE.

That, in brief, is the reason for this sale. We are proud of the fact that we have grown, proud of the fact that every day we see again the faces of the women who have by their patronage made our growth possible. Proud that those women are still numbered among our best customers and that because we are enabling them to be better dressed for less, they are paving the way for our still greater growth.

Intricately Designed, Perfect in Detail, Supremely Beautiful in Theme

There's the Very Breath of Summer in These Lingerie Fantasies

—Fairy fingers could never have fashioned more exquisite frocks with all their snowy daintiness—nor could common man bring forth models that could even be compared in beauty with these exquisite lacy modes that have met the touch of a wonder creator and that will blossom forth in glowing radiance on Monday in Bullock's Fashion Salons.

—But a practical note---these gowns with all their magnificence and individuality are so temptingly priced---the values are so markedly uncommon that Los Angeles women will find in this offering the opportunity of the season to secure the much planned on summer dress at a real saving---

—Look, now, at the drawing we had made of a half a dozen of these new dresses—and note particularly the prices that prevail—Bullock's garment buyer has certainly been singularly fortunate in securing these dresses for Los Angeles women, and no doubt Los Angeles women will be quick to realize the fortune that has brought such creations to Bullock's—

Dresses of sheer lingerie, charming marquisette and delicate voile, all of notable quality, fresh, dainty and new—some to be seen in Broadway windows and the widest assortment on the Second Floor.

—Pen cannot give adequate idea of these charming frocks. Every woman should be present at their special display, Monday, Second Floor—

—The First Gown—a symmetry creation of crepe marquisette with Dutch neck and short sleeves. The lace employed in trimming is of very heavy woven Moorish design and this is a season of heavy laces, so this is a perfect illustration of the lacy vogues of the present moment. A rare value at $35.50.

—The Second Gown—a perfect model in truly dainty shadings, allover ecru filet lace with lingerie insertion. Note how beautifully this gown is embroidered, and across the yoke is insertion of Irish crochet. Note, too, the superior lines of this model. $39.50.

—The Third Gown. In this model a new material is introduced—the distinctly different "whip cord ratine." A very stylish creation of two-tone tan and gray —with belt of black silk and sleeves and yoke outlined with black silk piping. The yoke insertion and small plaited frill on cuffs and Dutch neck is of tan shade Venetian lace. Pearl buttons are used effectively for trimmings. $49.50.

The Fourth Gown. This is a "town frock" of pure linen with insertion of good linen thread lace and it also forms the over panel or hip apron that drops from the waist line. Crochet buttons trim the front. This gown $25.

The Fifth Gown is of finest voile, dainty and delicate. The entire waist, sleeves and lower part of skirt is rich with eyelet and pattern embroidery. Across the skirt front and back is four inch inlay of Moorish lace of floral design. Black velvet edges the Dutch neck, the sleeve ends, the belt and bottom of dress. This model $39.50.

—The Sixth Gown is made of three materials, basket voile, heavy lace and velvet for edging. The picture shows how effectively they have been used. However, the picture doesn't give an adequate idea of the rich contrast produced by the black velvet on purest white. This gown is priced $85.

—There are other Gowns, so many of them, to be on display, Monday—

—If you want a new gown, one that is originally and exquisitely trimmed, differently draped and designed upon latest style lines, come to Bullock's Monday, to delight in the hundreds of just that kind of dresses Bullock's will show.

Nearly 1000 Table Cloths

—Many of them slightly soiled from being shown as store samples—

"Jouey Silks" Fashion Has Given The Magic Word, They're Supreme

—In domestic weaves, in Foreign productions—Jouey! Jouey! everywhere, and yet it's not the fabric, it's the idea—

—Jouey! and all these fabrics are bespent with the tiniest flowers, small roses—and the daintiest blue bells. They had their origin in the time of our grandmothers—yet in their earliest reign they could not have been more popular than in this revival that is sweeping through the Fashion world—

Bullock's has them in every effect in exquisite marquisettes, in rich silks and beautiful silk meteors at $1.00 $1.35, $1.50, $2.50 and $3.50 a yard.

—And the same idea is carried out in overdrapes for evening gowns—for here are magnificent chiffons in allover effects, 42 inches wide, at $1.75, $2 and $2.50 yard.

In New Silks Those in White Are Exquisitely Rich $1.75

—and $2 yard—for rare quality Tussahs—serges, tub cloths, herringbones, mannish suitings and the original, different, silk ratines—

—Some specially priced Navy Blue Serges and Cheviots, All-Wool Serges, are to be, 42-inch, 85c; 48-inch, $1; 54-inch, $1.25; $1.50 and $1.75 yard, that can't be equaled for wear. Don't miss them—

—New Fancy Suitings in cheviots, serges, in blue, brown or wistaria, much underworth, at $1 yard.

Exquisite 45-inch Flouncings of Batiste and Voile are $5.00

—Every woman who dreams of the charming lingerie frocks she, oh, so much wishes to have for summer, has this opportunity to make that "dream" a realization. These magnificent flouncings would bring such a different figure if offered in a regular event. They're wonderfully embroidered in designs as intricate and filmy as the spider's web, all with charming lace band and insert—mothers who have graduation dresses to make will be quick to secure these, and one can easily imagine the sheer attractiveness of the summer frocks that could be made from them.

—They're so radically priced at $5 yard.

27-inch and Even 45-inch Embroidery Flouncings, Monday 50c —Excepting the first item mentioned, this offering is possibly the strongest one—for there are flouncings in this lot worth several times this price—all exceedingly pretty and well worked upon fine swisses—imagine how long these will stay at 50c a yard—

Very Special Flag Outfits

—Have just come, Third Floor. Every Angeleno will want to decorate during the Shriners' Conclave, and the G. A. R. Encampment will be in Los Angeles in September.

Black and White the Vogue in Millinery Now —Fashion has decreed it, and millinery designers all over the country have brought forth numberless creations in which black and white is the central scheme——And Bullock's is not one whit behind Eastern millinery salons in its extremely attractive and highly practical display.

—Here are clever, close fitting tailored models—medium and large hats, with fancy ostrich and white wing, trimmings—Leghorn shapes in the new drooping effects, with clever arrangement of wings and flowers.

—Bullock's Monday millinery display will also show other striking new hats—prominently

South Pasadena.

VENICE, India, and Japan, all souvenirs of her recent trip around the world, were suggested in the table appointments in an elaborate luncheon given by Mrs. John D. Reavis Monday afternoon, at her home, No. 1102 Fair Oaks avenue, complimenting the Monday Afternoon Luncheon and Bridge Club. A Venetian glass centerpiece, suggestive of the canals filled with baby Cecile Brunner roses, graced the table on which was used a Japanese luncheon set. Cobra candlesticks from India entered into the artistic scheme, as well as small colored electric lights in a bed of asparagus fern, festooned from the electrolier overhead, and place cards were small silk Japanese fans. Following luncheon tables were arranged for bridge in the large drawing-room and hall, which were profusely decorated with roses. Prizes were captured by Mrs. Fred Hudson, Mrs. B. F. Huntington and the guest prize by Mrs. William Harrison. Special guests present were Mrs. Norman Marsh, Mrs. William Harrison and Mrs. Robert Hardy of Los Angeles, Mrs. L. O. Wilcoxon, Mrs. P. H. Updike, Mrs. George Bush and Mrs. Jessie Cairns Shoebottom and members Mrs. Charles Hudson, Mrs. Ernest Sutton, Mrs. W. D. Newerf, Mrs. J. W. Monahan, Mrs. Mary Stringfellow, Mrs. William Council, Mrs. B. F. Huntington, Mrs. Robert Gortner, Mrs. Frank Stephens, Mrs. Walter Sebree and Mrs. Carl McElay.

Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Updike and family, who have been spending the winter at Hotel Virginia, Long Beach, are now occupying their own home, No. 1941 Huntington drive.

The committee chosen, Mrs. J. P. Whitmore, Mrs. Norman Marsh and W. D. Newerf planned a progressive dinner for members of the Suprise Club last evening. The first two courses were served at the home of Mrs. J. P. Whitmore, corner of Fairview and Monterey road. Pink was the color scheme used by the hostess, a low bowl filled with roses gracing the center of the table, with the same flower scattered over the cloth. From here they were taken in automobiles to the home of Mrs. Norman Marsh, No. 911 Fair Oaks avenue, for the meat course. Here the appointments were carried out in red, silver candelabra with red silk shades ornamented the center of the table, while on either end were Japanese baskets filled with American Beauty roses. Following this course, a musical programme was enjoyed, and the guests were then taken for an automobile ride of a half hour, and then to the home of Mrs. William Axtman, No. 1305 Monterey road, where the last courses were served, and a flashlight picture of the crowd taken. Rose-colored roses were used to enliven the table, and from here the guests were taken to their homes.

Mrs. George Patterson, and daughter, Mary, who have spent the past month at Coalinga, have returned to their home, No. 1707 Oak street.

Mrs. Wiley E. Tussing charmingly entertained the members of the Monday Evening Musical Club at her home, No. 1121 Stratford avenue. In the large living-room a Japanese basket filled with poppies was suspended from the electrolier, and in the den, the room was brightened by the use of American Beauty roses. Pink was the color scheme used in the dining-room, the Cecile Brunner rose gracing the table, with festoons of pink ribbons, ending in perky bows. French composers was the theme of the evening, with Mrs. George Crandall in charge of the programme. An interesting paper on French composers was presented by Mrs. Brennan; piano selection, Miss Lulu Finney; vocal solo, Miss Harriett Vail; violin numbers, Mrs. A. E. Merritt; piano solo, Miss Rose Chilcote and vocal number, Mrs. Ward. A social hour followed, and dainty refreshments were served.

Mrs. Della Floyd of San Luis Obispo, who is the guest of her daughter in Hollywood, is spending a few days with Mrs. Z. L. Parmelee, No. 919 Fair Oaks avenue.

Miss Leila Hart, No. 1961 La France avenue, entertained a jolly coterie of young people known as the "Knockers Club," with a theater party at the Orpheum, Wednesday afternoon, followed by a pleasant hour at the Black Cat, on Sixth street. Included were Mrs. Roy Stephens, Mrs. George Binder, Mrs. Alice Keith and Mrs. John H. Chilcote.

The Annandale Clubhouse was the scene of a delightful luncheon Wednesday, when Mrs. Frank Cattern, the retiring president, entertained the officers of the Women's Improvement Association. A large Japanese basket filled with deep red roses embellished the table, and gilt-edge cards marked covers for Mrs. Elizabeth Mumford, Mrs. William Freeman, Mrs. J. Brymer Jones, Mrs. George C. Bush, Mrs. Leo Longley, Mrs. D. L. Baker, Mrs. Caroline Kiesling, Mrs. Frank Stephens, Mrs. L. O. Wilcoxon, and Mrs. Clara E. Rathbun.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Bryan and Mrs. P. B. Gakeler of Philadelphia, who have been the house guests of Mrs. Harrison Gilford, No. 1420 Laurel street, for the winter, left Thursday for Catalina, where they have taken a cottage for two weeks.

In honor of a club of which she is a member, Mrs. Noble Harter entertained with an afternoon at her home, No. 1507 El Centro street, Tuesday. Japanese iris and pink roses were used in the rooms given over to the affair, and dainty refreshments were served. Present were: Mrs. Z. L. Parmelee, Mrs. Rebecca Cairns, Mrs. T. I. Gilford, Mrs. John W. Moore, Mrs. George Wilson, Mrs. A. J. Hoffman, Mrs. E. N. Grant and special guests were Mrs. J. H. Johnston, Mrs. George Bush, the Misses Katherine and Mary Harter.

Mrs. James M. Herndon, No. 1420 Oak street, has gone to San Francisco, where she will pass a fortnight with her sister, Mrs. L. Dicey.

Mrs. W. H. Diehl of Santa Barbara and her daughter Miss Dorothy were the honorees at a dinner party given by Mrs. Otto Kuencer, at her home, No. 1125 Fair Oaks avenue, last evening. Yellow jonquils in a cut-glass bowl graced the center of the table, and hand-painted cards ornamented with Japanese lilies marked covers for Mrs. W. H. Diehl, Miss Dorothy Diehl, Miss Fair and Messers. Kelligan and Kunze of Los Angeles, Harry Simpson, Wendell, Walter and Kenneth Kuencer and Otto Kuencer.

Miss Florence Gifford, who has spent the past month with friends in Phoenix, Ariz., has returned to her home, No. 1119 Fair Oaks avenue.

Mrs. M. G. Ritchie delightfully entertained the members of the Saturday evening "500" club at her home on Fletcher avenue. The affair was in the nature of a house-warming as they have recently moved into their beautiful new home. A profusion of pink roses were used to beautify same where the card tables were arranged and the elaborate refreshments served. Prizes were captured by Mrs. Brasier and Dr. Redpath. Included were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. William Carlin, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Waterman, Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Bryant, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Harland, Mr. and Mrs. Chester R. Basler, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bingham, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Tower, and Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Blatner.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sebree and family and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Leavitt are enjoying an automobile trip to Arrowhead for the week end.

Porterville.

MEMBERS of the junior class of the Porterville Union High presented at the Majestic Theater Friday evening a most creditable performance of "The Little Tycoon," the comic opera by Sullivan. The work was done under the direction of Miss Helen Janet Keech, formerly of Pomona, the music instructor of the High School.

Scenic effects and costuming were of a very high order, and Edgar Strakosch, the well known eastern musician, who happened to be in Porterville and who heard the presentation, characterized it as a "remarkable piece of work."

Miss Mary Olds sang the leading role, that of "Violet," and Miss Lucile Martin, that of Dolly, chum of Violet. The other principals were Misses Bernice Giddings, Verda Larson, Carrie George, Lois Sawtelle, Helen Jones, Helen Larson, Frances Ford, Edna Hastings, Frances Herndon, Hazel Shiplett, Helen Emory, Alice Hutchinson and Gladys Cataneo.

Roy Steed, a popular Los Angeles boy, sang the baritone role of Gen. Knickerbocker, and Walter Emory that of Alvin Barry, the Great Tycoon. The other men principals included Donald Jones, Emmett Berry, Donald Hitchcock, Clifford Uhl, Bert Dennis, Clark Schmittou, Lovell Wilson, Rolla Norris, Orville Blalock, Eugene Blalock.

Misses Pauline Sears, Monica Ting and Dorothy Hess, were in charge of the orchestral and incidental music.

Proceeds of the entertainment are to be devoted by the junior class to the expenses of an elaborate reception dance tendered to the seniors. This is one of the events of class week each commencement and it has always been the practice to assess the expenses pro rata.

It was to provide for this event, as well as to secure valuable practice in their music and elocution work that the play was staged this year.

Puente.

MR. AND MRS. S. M. BOWERS had a merry house party last Sunday, among the guests being Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Livingston and son, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Vines, Harry Vines, of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chambers and daughters, Shirley and Geraldine, and Mrs. Mary Vines of San Jacinto.

A delightful party was given Friday by Mr. and Mrs. L. Didier at their home in honor of their daughter, Miss Constance Amar. While the engagement of Abel Garnier and Miss Amar was known to a few intimate friends, the party Friday was in the nature of an announcement of the happy event to take place next June. About thirty guests were present from Puente and Rowland. Red and white decorations predominated in the attractive floral decorations. Popular games were played and lively contests were enjoyed, and prizes, miniature pictures of the bride-to-be, were awarded to Miss Graside and W. Yorba. Elaborate refreshments were served.

The Puente Whist Club met Saturday evening. Ten tables played progressive whist. Dale Cross won the men's prize and Mrs. Peck captured the ladies' first prize. After the games refreshments were served. Then followed an hour of dancing, music for which was furnished by Miss Pratt, at the piano, and Mr. Haley, violinist. Mr. and Mrs. Heaton were elected new members. Guests of the evening were Mr. and Mrs. A. Sauders, Walter Sauders, Mrs. King and Messrs. Clem, Bailey and Kwis.

Gouraud's Oriental Cream

And enjoy the charms that are so admired in a fashionable woman.
Gouraud's Oriental Cream
Is a liquid powder, far superior to all powders that have to be frequently applied to gain the desired effect. Whitens, softens and clears the skin, absolutely free from grease, thus preventing it from encouraging the growth of hair.
Gouraud's Oriental Cream
Has been in actual use for nearly three quarters of a century, which is the best guarantee of its superiority. If you will but use it regularly, you will know why it has been popular for so many years. Can be had of any first-class druggist or department store, or will be sent by mail, or on receipt of $1.50 we will express you a bottle direct.
A soft, velvety sponge should always be used for applying GOURAUD'S ORIENTAL CREAM. It is wise to procure one of these.

...ntist, O., are stopping at the Bassett ...ouse.

Ed Poole, who has been visiting at the home of George Stark, has returned to Ottowa, Ill. Mrs. Poole will remain in Puente another month.

A delightful picnic was held Sunday in the foothills on the Rowland ranch. A sumptuous dinner was served at noon. The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Fleming, Mr. Paden, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Rowland, Miss Velma Paden, G. D. McCalge, Miss Minnie McCalge, Miss Maude Spurlock, all of Rowland; W. Skaggs and family of El Monte; Miss Alma Shafer, Louis Maxson and mother, of Los Angeles; Miss Halle Willits of Redondo, and Miss Dr. Blanche Bolton of San Pedro.

Inglewood.

ONE of the most delightful social affairs of the past week in Inglewood occurred at the home of Dr. and Mrs. H. F. Eshelman Wednesday, when Mrs. Eshelman entertained at a luncheon, Chapter I of P.E.O. of Los Angeles. The chapter's colors being yellow and white, the spacious rooms of this pretty home had been beautifully decorated for the occasion with a profusion of marguerites, presenting a most beautiful scene for the reception of the delighted guests. The color scheme of yellow and white was also carried out in the dainty luncheon for which covers were laid for thirty guests. Miss Lulu Ramsey, president of the chapter, and Miss Martha Wilkins, past president of California State Chapter, presided at the tables. Mrs. Eshelman, always a most charming hostess, was assisted by her daughter, Miss Carolyn, and her mother, Mrs. T. F. Kirk.

An unusually interesting and enjoyable meeting of the Fortnightly Club was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Lane on Keiso street. At this meeting J. T. Moriarity concluded his splendid chart lecture on "The Glories of Southern California," which he began at a former meeting. Another interesting feature of the programme was a reading and talk on the founding of Astoria, Or., and a sketch of the life of John Jacob Astor I, by Mrs. Lawrence Sloper.

Following this a dainty luncheon which had been prepared by the gentleman members of the club, was served by them in a most creditable manner. Dr. Hindman, president of the club, dispensed both wit and humor while serving as a most excellent toast master, and hilarity was at the Yankee in Southern California" was responded to by George Wetherbee in his humorous and original vein, followed by excellent toasts on "The Ladies" and "How to Make the Club More Interesting and Profitable," by J. T. Moriarity and George Keese.

Mrs. N. F. Michener of Osceola, Ark., arrived in Inglewood Wednesday and will make an extended visit with her daughter, Mrs. George Sauer.

Mrs. S. H. Wallihan of Wilkenson, Wash., arrived in Inglewood Wednesday and is the guest of her mother, Mrs. T. F. Kirk, and sister, Mrs. B. J. Eshelman.

Mrs. Harry L. Hall and daughter, Mrs. Harry Greenwood, entertained very delightfully Thursday afternoon at the home of the latter, the Woman of Woodcraft of Inglewood. Progressive whist was enjoyed during the afternoon and prizes awarded to Mrs. J. W. Clough and Mrs. Charles Nelk. Following whist a delicious three-course luncheon was served by the hostesses, whom the ladies voted charming entertainers.

Dr. and Mrs. B. F. Eshelman attended Friday evening at Hotel Maryland, Pasadena, the Delta Sigma Auxiliary banquet, where Dr. Eshelman served as toastmaster.

Miss Velma Allen entertained a jolly crowd of about thirty young people Tuesday evening at her home on Grevia street. Music and contest games were enjoyed until a late hour and prizes awarded to the Misses Ila Howard and Lorna Wallake, winners in two of the amusing contests. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess during the evening.

Dr. and Mrs. Hindman attended a dinner party Wednesday in Los Angeles given by their old Pittsburgh friends, Mr. and Mrs. William Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Hansen, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Frank McLain and Mr. and Mrs. R. Doke made a big automobile party last Sunday to Santa Conyan, where a most delicious luncheon was served by the ladies of the party, an enjoyable feature of which was the steaks cooked on an out-door gridiron. The afternoon was spent exploring the beauties of the canyon and surrounding country.

—o—

The freshmen of the Colton High School enjoyed a climb up Mt. Slover Friday evening, on the summit of which a picnic lunch was served. Prof. T. B. Kelly chaperoned the party. On Saturday evening the party, chaperoned by Miss Stella Hobbs, made the same ascent, a delicious wiener roast being the feature of the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Lightfoot entertained the Tuesday Evening Whist Club this week at their home on East Ninth street.

Mr. Carl Woerz of East B street entertained Tuesday afternoon in honor of her daughter's (Esther) birthday anniversary. Outdoor games made a pleasant afternoon.

Mrs. Fitzgerrell and daughter, Miss Ruth, with a son, Attorney Ray Fitzgerrell of Los Angeles, were dinner guests of Dr. Guy Fitzgerrell Sunday afternoon.

Miss Calla Milliken of the Colton High School faculty is spending the week-end with relatives and friends in Los Angeles.

Redlands.

A number of pretty and delightful functions have been given recently in compliment to Miss Mabel Moore whose marriage to Sidney Dean of Eugene, Or., will occur in the near future. Miss Guthrie is a charming girl, very popular socially and a general favorite. She has lived all her happy young life in Monrovia and good wishes will accompany her to her new home. Thursday Miss Marie Smith was the hostess of a girl's card party at her home on East Orange avenue. Twelve intimate friends of the bride-to-be were entertained delightfully at cards, followed by an enjoyable little supper. Saturday afternoon Miss Moore was the honored guest at a very formal function given by Mrs. Ida Rainfield, Miss Orr of Los Angeles and Miss Armstrong at Miss Rainfield's pleasant home on North Church avenue. Lovely Marchal Neil roses were used throughout the house in the artistic decorations and the dainty refreshment appeared in place cards at the refreshment tables. Among those invited to meet Miss Guthrie were Mrs. M. J. Esberger and Miss Nunsey of Los Angeles and Misses Maria Smith, Laura Newcomb, Alice Blanche Guthrie, Helen Crews, Brown, Cronenwett, Post and Ethel Baird.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Brooks of Capt. and Mrs. A. H. Brooks motored to make the 76th anniversary of the Capt.

We Have Purchased 875 Women's Regular $40 and $45 Tailored Suits and will Sell Them Tomorrow

at $25.00

Of Course Every Woman knows that a sale of Swelldom Suits stands for Irreproachable Quality, Inimitable Style and the Acme of Fine Tailor Work.

A MAKER of high-class tailored suits found, for the first time in several years, that he had a large surplus of high-class spring materials on hand and no orders large enough to dispose of them. They decided on vigorous measures to effect a complete clean-up, so they offered us a less than cost offer, providing we would take the entire lot—875 suits—in one shipment. We accepted on condition that the models should be of our own selection. This was agreed to and the result is a sale of high-class models, of high-grade materials, at an unprecedented low price.

The transaction was most extraordinary in every way. The quantity is large, the styles are the smartest and newest, and the price is less than the maker's cost.

Only the cleverest Spring styles, smart plain tailored or trimmed models; also Norfolk styles, some with just a few buttons or just a touch of trimming; others with handsome trimmings of embroidered linen; satin, silk braid, fancy and crystal buttons, are used effectively.

The materials are English mixtures with fancy stripes, whipcords, fine serges, swagger foreign mixtures, black and white checks, and imported novelties.

THE wedding of Miss Emily S. Mason of Platte City, Mo., to Lieut. W. S. Greacen of Monterey was solemnized at the Church of the Ascension Wednesday night at 8 o'clock. Rev. G. H. Cornell performed the ceremony. The church was beautifully decorated in pink roses and blue tulle. Charles Hall Perry played the Wagner and Mendelssohn wedding marches. The bride, who was given away by her father, was gowned in white satin and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lillies of the valley. Miss Merry Mason, the maid of honor, was in pink and blue messaline, and carried pink roses. The two bridesmaids, Miss Katharine Mason and Miss Jeanette Greacen, were in pink and also carried pink roses. S. L. Greacen, brother of the groom, was best man, and Lieut. B. H. Bonesteel and George Letteau acted as ushers. A reception was afterwards held at the Mason home on Sunnyside, to which about eighty guests were invited. De Nubila's orchestra from Los Angeles furnished the music during the evening. The couple left for a short trip to San Diego, prior to going to Monterey, where they will make their home.

An interesting programme was held at the Woman's Club in charge of Dr. Margaret Goether of Los Angeles, who gave a lecture on "Diet" with practical demonstrations. Many new and appetizing ways of preparing food were shown and their value explained. Preceding the programme various reports and announcements were made by the president. Delegates were appointed to attend the convention of Women's Club, to be held at Paso Robles, May 21 to 23. They were Mrs. F. J. Hart, Mrs. F. P. Burch, Mrs. L. E. Steinberger and Mrs. Martha Rust. A committee was also chosen to nominate officers for the coming year. They were Mrs. Alice M. Staples, Mrs. H. I. Hawxhurst and Mrs. C. W. Jones. A social hour was enjoyed after the programme.

Mrs. C. W. Jones was hostess at a large reception given at her home on Alegria street Thursday afternoon. Over 125 guests were present. The color scheme was pink, Cecile Brunner roses being artistically used in the dining-room. The guests were received by Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Virginia Holland and Mrs. George Wilson. Imperial.

IT WAS amid surroundings that recalled scenes in "The Splendid, Idle Forties" Gertrude Atherton's popular novel, that Mrs. E. H. Rockwood entertained the Woman's Improvement Club at her beautiful home at Calexico Thursday afternoon. Rare old pieces of Indian pottery found on the desert two decades ago served as large jardinieres, which held great clusters of long-stemmed American Beauty roses. Indian baskets were overflowing with roses and roses were massed throughout the home and the appointments were carried out in the favored shade. Handsome serapii were arranged artistically throughout the rooms and on the ramada a large Mexican flag was suspended beneath the Stars and Stripes. The programme rendered by Mrs. Rockwood was on Mexico. At roll call the club members responded with quotations from Mexican literature. Mandolin solo, Mexican waltzes, Miss Moiselle Wallace; "Agricultural Possibilities of Mexico," Mrs. A. K. Wallace; piano solo, Miss Bird; "The Mexican's Love of Music," Mrs. E. H. Rockwood: (a) "Perfida," (b) "A'Ella," Mrs. George Thing; "Diaz, the Statesman," Mrs. W. F. Smith; "La Golondrina," Miss Mitchell; "The Spirit of Music," Mrs. C. L. Stover; "El Centro, Mexican Dance," Miss Celeste Aguilar; "Ojos Verdes," Mrs. George Thing; "Music of Mexico," Mrs. Aguilar; "Mexican Chorus," Misses Amador, Garcia, Esparza, Ramora, Esparza and Mr. Amador.

Of special interest in Imperial's social set was the charming afternoon enjoyed by members of the Social Club of the Order of the Eastern Star, when they were the complimented guests of the teachers of the Imperial High and grammar schools, Wednesday. Mrs. George Thing of Calexico rendered several vocal selections. Mrs. C. H. White also gave several vocal numbers. Miss Mabel Kelsay rendered "May Morning." Other numbers contributed consisted of a whistling solo by Paul Steidorf, solo, humoresque, Miss Jessie Holt. A clever story, "Willie and His Tune." Miss Grace Fox Vannon and Miss Maude Montague. Eight little girls of the second grade, attired in colonial costume, danced a minuet under the direction of their teacher, Miss Beckett.

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Garmyer entertained a party of friends Tuesday evening complimentary to Dr. Edith Hook. Favors consisted of handsome bouquets of roses, the flower for which Imperial Valley is famous. Receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Garmeyer and Dr. Hook were Mr. and Mrs. Will Edgar and the guests entertained include Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Lienan, Miss Addie Turbett, Miss Edith Watkins, Miss Ollie Mack, Miss Etta Turbett, Miss Grace Stone and Miss Georgia Watkins, Dr. Eugene K. Carrier and Dr. M. R. Henry, Messrs. E. C. Paulin, G. R. How to be Certain of Curing Constipation Prejudice is a hard thing to overcome, but where health is at stake and the opinion of thousands of reliable people differs from yours, prejudice then becomes your menace and you ought to lay it aside. This is said in the interest of people suffering from chronic constipation, and it is worthy of their attention.

In the opinion of legions of reliable American people the most stubborn constipation imaginable can be cured by a brief use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You may not have heard of it before, but do not doubt its merits on that account, or because it has not been blatantly advertised. It has sold very successfully on word of mouth recommendation. Parents are giving it to their children today who were given it by their parents, and it has been truthfully said that more druggists use it personally in their families than any other laxative.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a gentle, non-griping—not violent, like salts or cathartics. It cures gradually and pleasantly, so that in time nature also does its own work without outside aid. Constipated people owe it to themselves to use this grand bowel specific.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of the remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at 50 cents or a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

The Doctor's Advice
by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms of which are given and the answers will fit almost any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Building, College-Ellwood Streets, Dayton, O., inclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions may be filled at any well-stocked drug store, and any druggist can order of wholesale.

Answer: Take the tonic prescribed and you will be strong in a few weeks, will gain flesh and your nerves will be restored to their natural strength. Take 5 drops of hypophosphites comp. 5 minims, cadomene comp., 1 ounce (hot water). Mix and shake well before taking. Take a teaspoonful before each meal.

"Mrs. Theresa" writes: "Some time ago you told one of my friends a remedy for obesity. She used this with great success, but misplaced the prescription. Please publish again for me?"

Answer: I shall be glad to repeat the ingredients again. Get from your druggist 5 ounce of aromatic elixir and 1 ounce of glycol arbolene. It is well to purchase these separately to avoid substitution. Mix them well and take for the first three days before each meal a teaspoonful; after that, reduce the dose and continue as long as you think you may require.

"Valeria" writes: "I am suffering from biliousness, stomach and kidney trouble. I am getting worse all the time. What can I take?"

Answer: For the troubles you name the best remedy to purify the blood and act on the liver and kidneys is to obtain grain sulpherb tablets (not sulpher tablets). Get these from your druggist in sealed packages with full directions. These are harmless and, if taken regularly they will soon affect a cure. By purifying the blood the biliousness will disappear. If you have dyspeptic you should take tablets with each time with the sulpherb tablets.

"Children": Your children should be given the following to cure them of bed wetting: Tincture cubebs 1 dram; tincture rhus aromatic 2 drams; comp. essence cardiol 1 oz. Give 10 to 15 drops in water one hour before meals. This is good for young and old.

"Maud" writes: "I should be very grateful for a remedy that would whiten my teeth and remove tarter. I have used many pastes and powders with no success."

Answer: To whiten the teeth and remove all tarter use the following which you can mix at home and which I am sure will prove successfully. Purchase 1 ounce powdered precipitated chalk, 1 ounces powdered orris, 2 ounces powder sugar or sugar of milk, 2 ounces antiseptic vilane powder. Mix well together and use twice a day with a soft brush. This will last a family a long time and is equal to two or three dollars worth of the prepared tooth powders.

"Anxious Mabel" writes: "My hair is falling out so rapidly that I am very much afraid that I shall soon be bald. I have also a great deal of dandruff which makes my scalp to itch."

Answer: You can stop your hair from falling, cure dandruff and make your hair soft and fluffy if you will purchase one ounce jar of plain yellow mineral oil and according to directions. It will promote a healthy growth of hair and bring back its intense natural color.

Health and Beauty Answers
BY MRS. MAE MARTYN

Victoria: No; soap of no kind or in any form should be used as a shampoo. All soap contains "free" alkali, which is too strong for the hair. It makes the hair split, become brittle, dull, harsh and "stringy." A perfect and very simple shampoo is prepared by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox in a cup of hot water will cleanse your hair and scalp thoroughly, and leave it ever so soft, bright and fluffy. This shampoo removes dandruff and stops scalp irritation instantly, makes the hair dry quickly and evenly without streaking and gives to it a most delightful glossy sheen.

A. B. C.: The electric needle is too painful. Mix a little powdered delatoue with water, then spread this paste on the hairs not wanted; after two or three minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs will have vanished. This treatment leaves the skin soft and free from blemish.

Maude: Your pimply, sallow skin is due to impure blood. You should correct this condition before warm weather comes and so avoid worse troubles. To quickly purify your blood, try this home-made tonic: Dissolve ½ cupful sugar and 1 ounce kardene in ½ pint alcohol, then add hot water to make a quart. A tablespoonful of this splendid tonic taken before meals will quickly clear your blood, and your pimples and sallowness will give way to a rosy, healthy complexion. This is the finest tonic I have ever found for purifying the blood, giving one energy and building up a run-down condition of the body. You are sure to get splendid results from its use.

Emma S.: To make your eyes clear and sparkling, try this simple eye tonic: Dissolve an ounce of crystos in a pint of water and put a few drops in each eye twice a day. This tonic is very soothing and strengthening and will rid your eyes of all weakness and inflammation, and make them strong and beautiful. A prominent oculist informed me that he uses this tonic with remarkable success in treating eye-troubles generally. It is excellent for granulated lids.

Lily: To have a smooth, rose complexion that does not look artificial, you must not use face powder. Use instead the following: Dissolve in ½ pint witch hazel (not hot water) 4 ounces spermaceti, 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. This will remove that shiny, sallow look and give to your skin a clean, clear, velvety look. It does not show or rub off like powder, and is unequaled as a skin whitener and complexion-beautifier. Use this lotion fine for cold sores and preventing chapping.

Trixie F.: I would not advise you to try any of those obesity cures you mention. At least part of them are dangerous but worthless fakes. If you want a safe and fat-reducer that will give you quick results, dissolve 4 ounces of marmola in 1½ pints hot water and take a tablespoonful before meals. This remedy removes excess fat rapidly without dieting or fatiguing exercises, and is perfectly harmless, also inexpensive. It gives a fine skin smooth and unwrinkled.

Hattie: The formula for that famous French hair-grower you speak of is as follows: Mix together ½ pint bay rum, ½ pint cold water and 1 ounce of glycerine. (Make it yourself, as ready Hattie: The formula for that powder is as follows: Mix together ½ pint alcohol, ½ pint cold water and 2 ounces ammonia. (Make it yourself, as stale half-strength ammonia are worthless.) Rub this into the roots twice a week and you will soon have a new hair getting thicker, longer and more lively and lustrous. This splendid remedy is an unfailing remedy for dandruff, falling hair and itching scalp. It is good for light and dark hair.

Miss Jessie: A splendid beauty cream that will not grow hair or make the skin grow can be easily prepared by anyone. Dissolve ½ stick cold water 1 ounce powdered borax in ½ pint cold water 1 ounce. Use the mixture morning and evening and your skin will be as soft as you could wish it. It is fine for removing dirt from the pores, blackheads and reducing enlarged pores. You are sure to find this a splendid complexion cream.

SOCIETY.

the nuptial vows were plighted. Mendelssohn's Wedding March was played by Miss Vinal Palmer and Master Arthur Frisbie preceded the bridal party bearing a silver basket with the ring. A. R. Baird of Independence, Inyo county, accompanied Mr. Walden as the best man and Miss Rena Walden, a sister of the groom, was maid of honor. She was gowned in pink marquisette over green and carried a shower bouquet of Cecil Brunner roses. The bride was radiant in white messaline trimmed with pearls and cut en train. She wore a tule veil held in place with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of white roses, lilies of the valley and maiden-hair ferns. After the ceremony a collation was served and Mr. and Mrs. Walden left immediately for a brief wedding trip. Both are graduates of Pomona College and Mrs. Walden has taught both the Pomona College school of music and private classes. Mr. Walden is in the banking business at Santa Paula, where they will make their home.

One of the most enjoyable social events of the year was the banquet given on Saturday night at the Claremont Inn by the Kappa Delta men in honor of the initiation of Prof. Frank P. Brackett into the society. Toasts were given by Willard P. S. Stover, Prof. F. P. Brackett, Alfred Woodhead and B. D. Seaver. Those present were M. M. Taylor, B. D. Seaver, J. B. Grab, A. S. Hoyt, J. B. Hundley, B. D. Palmer, R. S. Palmer, J. H. Baker, W. W. Clary, H. H. Warner, F. W. Shutt, K. L. Carver, H. E. Billings, W. P. Stover, A. C. Woodford, A. B. Payne, F. R. Cole, E. G. Gardner and T. T. Rice.

Casa Verdugo.

MRS. JOHN COOPER of Arden avenue gave a kitchen shower for Miss Galdys Reynolds of Los Angeles, whose engagement to Walter Fuller has been previously announced and whose wedding will take place early in May. The house was a bower of peach blossoms and pink carnations, the color scheme being pink and white, which colors were carried out in the refreshments. After twenty-eight guests were assembled each was given a blue and white linen tea towel to hem, in a given space of time. At the conclusion of which the towels were inspected, and the young lady whose towel was considered the best specimen of needlework, was awarded the prize, i.e., a corsage bouquet of white flowers. The bride-to-be was then led blindfolded to the screen room where all sorts of kitchen utensils were displayed. All in all it was a most unique and delightful affair.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Watts, parents of Mrs. T. L. Bell of No. 1028 Fair-view avenue, are visiting Mrs. Bell, and will remain some time. Mr. Watts is the American Consul at Puerto Cortez, Honduras, Central America, and has a sixty days leave of absence, and may possibly remain permanently, in which case he will make his home in Casa Verdugo.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Kirkpatrick of Remington street will leave shortly for an extended eastern trip visiting their old home in Troy, N. Y. They will go via New Orleans, thence to Washington, D. C. and New York, then sail up the Hudson, by daylight to Albany. They expect to return to Casa Verdugo about the last of July.

Mrs. H. C. Berner of Remington street gave a delightful little surprise party on Tuesday evening, for Mrs. Berner, the occasion being the first anniversary of their marriage. Fifteen guests were present, and the evening was spent in playing cards. Dainty refreshments were served.

MANY pretty social attentions are being planned for Miss Lily Edna Desmond of Highland, daughter of County Tax Collector and Mrs. Desmond, whose engagement, to Justice of the Peace Godwin Monterey Pitman of this city was recently announced.

Though the date for the nuptials has not been announced, friends close to the bride's family look for the pretty wedding during the early spring.

Miss Desmond is a social favorite, and the announcement that her home will be in this city after her wedding, news which brings abounding happiness to a wide circle of friends. Mr. Pitman is also popular. As one of the younger members of the San Bernardino County Bar Association his future is regarded as alluring. He has shown marked ability as a practicing attorney and in connection with his official duties as justice of the San Bernardino township court.

MRS. CARRIE BOTTS, formerly of Tropico, but now a resident of Garvanza, is spending the day with friends here.

Mrs. D. H. Imler entertained, during the week, Mrs. F. I. Marsh of Park and the Misses Emma and Haggerty of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Tuppin of Park avenue has left for the summer, her niece, Miss Reuben A. Gentry, from Independence, Mo.

Mrs. M. Moore, a son and two sons, from the East, have leased Mrs. Frank Graves's home on Columbia avenue.

Golden Temple, No. 122, Phythian Sisters gave an enjoyable box social party which was a success both financially and socially. The ladies vied with each other in the beauty of the baskets furnished, and the palatable contents therein sold. The bidding was very brisk in places. The committee who had the entertainment in charge was composed of Harry Hayward, B. F. Cook and J. E. Beyes; Messrs C. C. Happy and Noble Ripley.

Mrs. L. C. Rice, on Central avenue, is entertaining as house guest her sister, Mrs. Frank Fross, from Dongola, O.

Miss Christine Bohannan, sister of Mrs. H. H. Street, has come from Tucson, Ariz., to spend the summer in the genial climate of Tropico.

The friends of Jack H. Fishel are glad to learn of his joining the ranks. He was married last Sunday morning, in Santa Barbara, to Ida May Hopkins, and immediately after the wedding breakfast were over they came south to pay a visit to their relatives and friends. Their stay will be short, as Mr. Fishel is interested in a business in Santa Barbara which demands his attention.

Mrs. Hartwig, assisted by Mrs. Ed. Park avenue, entertained a number of little maidens one afternoon in honor of her daughter's tenth birthday. The hours were 3 o'clock to 5 p.m. were given over until the crowning feature of the occasion was presented in the shape of luncheon dainties that were especially pleasing to the young. Mrs. Helen Hartwig, the honored guest of the party, exerted herself to the utmost to make the day a pleasant one to her little friends bidden to the feast, and the success of the pleasure enjoyed proved conclusively that her efforts were not in vain. Those who were privileged to assist in making the little maiden's birthday a very happy one were Helen Hartwig, Dorothy Carmack, Frances Musser, Verna Graser, Susie Kohl, Mary Logan, Marion Richardson, Gladys Garder, Ethelyn Ballantyne, Pearl Adair, Ruby Stone, Lena Ashton, Lila Webster, Virginia Chappius, Helen Searle, Regina Strasser, Jeanette Seaman, Leola Webster, Nadine Noble and Leona Webster.

Riverside.

DAINTY showers for brides-to-be have formed a popular feature of the social events for the week just ended. The first gathering occurred on Monday afternoon when Misses Margaret and Mattie Hosp entertained with a plate shower at their home on West Tenth street, in honor of Miss Winifred McDougall, who, on May 22, will become the bride of Edward dWells. Pink and green was the color scheme for the tasteful house decorations and the same delicate tints were repeated in the tempting refreshments, which were served at the close of the afternoon. During the social hour which was passed informally over the fancy work, a basket laden with rare roses was presented to the guest of honor. The weight of the basket aroused the suspicion of the bride-elect, who, upon investigation, found hidden away beneath the floral offerings a dozen or more of daintiest hand-painted plates, one from each of the guests in attendance. Those who participated in the happy pre-nuptial affair were Mrs. Walter Neblett, Mrs. J. C. Neblett, Mrs. George Pearson, Mrs. James McDougall, Mrs. Boyd McDougall, Mrs. Arthur Brouse, Mrs. George Tucker, Mrs. Burdell, Mrs. Will Johnson, Mrs. John Garner and Misses Mabel Shields, Villa Seaton, Daisy Latimer, Mary Fenn, Jean McDougall, Winifred McDougall and Lillian McCleod.

Two brides-elect shared attentions in the double shower which was given by Mrs. Clarence Smith on Wednesday evening for Miss Eva Grizzle and Miss Beatrice Vear, who will be among the spring-time brides. The pretty home on West Eighth street was lavishly decorated for the affair, masses of yellow and white roses brightening the living room and quantities of red blossoms making brilliant dashes of color in the dining-room. Yellow shades softened the lights in the living-room and the large central light on the dining table gleamed through a shade of red. Concealed at its base by a mound of carnations and greenery were the favors with red ribbons attached which terminated at each plate. Upon drawing her favor from its hiding place, Miss Vear revealed a package of dainty handkerchiefs, which constituted her shower. The shower for Miss Grizzle was presented to her early in the evening in a basket decked gaily with flowers. The contents comprised a miscellaneous assortment of dainty articles for both personal use and the adornment of the new home. The evening was passed with games and informal sociability, and closed with the serving of refreshments, in which were reflected the tints appearing in the floral decorations. Those for whom covers were laid were Misses Eva Grizzle, Beatrice Vear, Mildred Beck, Tama Binford, Myrtle Roundtree, Lulu Christian, Ethel Eberhart, La Junta Carroll, Mildred Comer, Amanda Busch, Edythe Faulk, Mrs. Charles Gundstrum, Mrs. Ovid Scott and Mrs. Clarence Smith.

A linen shower expressed the regard of the friends of Miss Bethel Mangel, who will soon become the bride of David Imrie. The shower took place at the home of the Misses Donahue of West Tenth street, Wednesday afternoon, and was attended by a dozen or more of the close friends of the bride-to-be. Aside from the presentation of numerous dainty bits of embroidered linen, a number of amusing contests were provided for the entertainment of the guests. The serving of ice cream and cake brought to a close a happy afternoon.

Miss Jessie Woolbridge, who became the wife of Carl C. Walker on Saturday evening, was tendered her final shower Thursday evening by Mrs. W. B. Wilkinson of No. 1453 South Lime street. Significant decorations of white and green heightened the attractiveness of the pretty home and aided in concealing the dainty packages of miscellaneous articles which were hidden about the room for the bride-elect to discover. After the search was completed the company joined in a social hour which included the serving of tempting refreshments.

The bridegroom-elect, who has received special favor is Paul Moser. Like the coming bride he has been the recipient of a shower which took place Thursday evening at the home of Clarence Smith on West Eighth street. Cards furnished the diversion of the evening and at the close of the game the guest of honor was bidden to "hunt" for the articles of his shower. The search revealed a miscellaneous assortment of apparel appropriate for a man's trousseau. At the close of the evening a jolly Dutch supper was served in the dining-room, which was brilliant in its decorations of red.

At the regular monthly social meeting of the Wednesday Morning Club, which took place at the clubhouse Wednesday afternoon, the entertainment provided was diverse enough to suit the varying tastes of the seventy members in attendance. For those enjoying cards tables were arranged for whist in the reception room and pretty prizes were awarded the winners in the game. First and second prizes were won by Mrs.

SOCIETY.

Banker and Mrs. G. D. Allen and other awards were made to Mrs. C. A. Ables and Mrs. T. K. Seburn. Those of the company not caring for cards gathered in the assembly hall for a season of games which included a spelling match. This congenial circle styled themselves the "old-fashioned girls" and as such appeared in short dresses, pinafores, sunbonnets, long curls and braids and regaled themselves with chewing gum and all-day suckers. When "noon" was called the "girls" scrambled nimbly for their lunches of sandwiches, cookies and doughnuts, which they had brought in paper pails. Coffee and tea were passed as an adjunct to the home lunch and the "noon hour" proved a merry one. Those having in charge this distinctive affair were Mrs. Miguel Estudillo, president of the club; Mrs. O. B. Ormiston, Mrs. G. H. Sawyer, Mrs. A. E. Davis, Mrs. W. H. Ryan and Mrs. J. E. Winters.

Members of the Girls' High School excelled their own anticipations in the combined histrionic and musical entertainment with which they delighted their friends Monday evening. The Glee Club of forty voices gave the opening number and following it the senior class exemplified the five languages taught in their curriculum by the rendition of "Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star," and "Little Drops of Water" in the different tongues. In flowing robes of white and golden tiara Miss Kathryn Fertig gave the childhood rhymes in latin. In the costume of "Marie From Gay Paree" Miss Ruth Davis repeated the verses in French. The Dutch version was given by Miss Astrid Borchgrevinck in pretty peasant garb, and Miss Mildred Cannon, in a striking gown of gold spangled black, delivered the lines in excellent Castillian. The English was represented by the president of the student body, Miss Reba Cornwell, who introduced the speakers. The offering of the Literary Club was a clever little play, "Capt. Joe," which was presented by Miss Gladys Bodette, Avis Ilsworth, Esther Daniels, Aileen Pendergrast, Marie Chamblin and Helen Waldo. The German Club sang sweetly a number of old German songs and the spanish Club entertained with characteristic songs and dances. The Progress Club won applause with a clever mock trial with which they illustrated what would take place when they were elected to civic office. In closing this initial public performance of the girl student body the Glee Club sang Abt's "O Lovely Night."

Eagle Rock.

FRIDAY evening at their home Rev. and Mrs. Martin Post entertained in honor of the Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Hoyt. Other guests included members of the Congregational Church, board, officers of the Sabbath-school and the Aid Society, who were: Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Galloupe, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Bailey, Mrs. Pitman, Miss Chisholm, Mr. and Mrs. D. Hollingsworth, Dr. and Mrs. G. E. Cox, Mrs. Sperry and her friend, Mrs. Willett of New York, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Young, Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Sprague, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Candee, and Mr. and Mrs. Mark Rowland. Vari-colored roses lent a beautiful effect throughout the house. In a clever little game, which took all back to their schoolroom days, Mrs. G. E. Cox was the winner of the "Foolish Dictionary," by Gidem Wrutds. Mrs. C. W. Young recited Eugene Field's "Seein' Things at Night" in her usual charming manner, which produced much merriment. Mrs. Young was also able to see the most things, so was awarded a volume of Riley poems. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, and altogether a very delightful evening was enjoyed.

Mrs. W. H. Coyle of Sycamore avenue entertained on Friday at her home the following guests: Mesdames Morgan, Buffington, Bruce and Garber, and Robert Garber.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jern of Los Angeles and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vigne were guests at a delightful dinner party given for Mrs. Vigne by Mr. and Mrs. O. A. V. Rungren on Oak Grove avenue Wednesday evening.

Mrs. J. W. Freet entertained at dinner Thursday at her home the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Rossome and mother, Mrs. Burke, and Mrs. Frans.

Mrs. Henry Harwood was given a delightful surprise on her birthday Tuesday. About forty friends and neighbors were present. Music, games and light refreshments were features of a most enjoyable evening.

Miss Cora Powell and Bod Strickland, popular young people, were united in marriage on Saturday morning at the home of the bride's parents, where a reception was given in the evening to about twenty friends.

Mrs. J. H. Godfrey and Mrs. Frank Younts, formerly of Indianapolis, were dinner guests on Tuesday of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. McVey.

Mrs. Willett of New York, who has been spending the winter with her sister-in-law, Mrs. J. M. Perry, returned to her home Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Y. Murray of Los Angeles were dinner guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Miller on West Sycamore avenue.

George Knepper of Rawson, O., was a caller on Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Miller Friday. He has come for the purpose of hunting a location in Southern California.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Foster entertained the following guests Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Higgins, Lyle Adams and Miss Walker, all of Los Angeles.

The Twentieth Century Club has invited the Press Club to present a programme the afternoon of May 9. Final details for this have not been arranged, but the club realizes that they have a treat in store for them. Among those who will contribute will be Mrs. Cora Spencer, the "children's poet," of Hollywood, and Dr. L. C. Parks, writer of children's stories and verses.

Glendale.

"RECIPROCITY DAY" was observed at the meeting of the Glendale Tuesday Afternoon Club this week in the Glendale Country Clubhouse, corner Third and Brand boulevard. It was largely attended, there being present, besides nearly all of the members of the local club, members from clubs from Los Angeles, Pasadena, Hollywood, Highland Park, Long Beach and Eagle Rock, being about one hundred in number. These guests responded to invitations issued late last week. From 11 to 12 o'clock a social hour was enjoyed, when luncheon was served by the Glendale ladies. The afternoon programme started at 2:30, when the following programme was rendered: Violin solo, "Melodii" (Tschaikowsky,) by Julius Krans; vocal solos, "Ah, Love," "Irish Folk Song," and "Ah, Love, but a Day." Miss Grace M. James, with violin obligato by Julius Krans; reading, "Rose of the Wood," Miss Thekla Mertens.

The members of the Glendale Lodge, I.O.O.F., assisted in the celebration of the ninety-third anniversary of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows held at Long Beach Friday night. A special car carried the Glendal Odd Fellows and their wives, numbering nearly a hundred, to the beach town.

Unusually pleasant was the luncheon tendered to the Chapter L.P.H.O. members by Mrs. John A. Pirtle Wednesday at her home, Fernhill, in Verdugo Canyon. The morning was devoted to a business session, when a year book was completed and work for the future was discussed. After the luncheon literary work was taken up. Book reviews were given by Mrs. A. L. Bryant, Mrs. Charles Byrkit and Mrs. G. E. Williams. An enjoyable meeting of this society was held Monday evening at the home of Miss Monica Smith on Maryland avenue, when a musical programme was given.

Miss Edna and Mrs. Mable Gilkey, who for the past several weeks have been visiting Mrs. Helen Campbell of Jackson street, have returned to their home in Berkeley.

Miss Ruby Borthick gave a miscellaneous shower this afternoon complimentary to Miss May Fanset at her home on West Seventh street. The rooms were prettily decorated for the affair with a profusion of roses, ferns and smilax. About twenty guests were present.

Glendale is promised several weddings during the next few weeks. Among them will be the marriage of Miss Nettie Watson, daughter of T. W. Watson, president of the Board of Trustees of this city, to William Turner of Los Angeles. The wedding will take place at the bride's home at this place early in June. Miss Margaret Taylor, a graduate of the Glendale High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Taylor of the San Fernando road, will be the June bride of Edgar Adams of Eagle Rock, the wedding to take place at the home of the bride. On May 7 Miss May Fanset, daughter of Asa Fanset, former postmaster here, will be married to R. W. Collins, an employee of the postoffice department in Los Angeles. The affair will take place at the home of the bride's father in this city.

The members of the Baraca class of the First Baptist Church held their annual banquet at the home of H. H. Martin, No. 329 Orange street, Tuesday evening. The Philathea class of the Sunday-school were guests of the occasion. About forty young people were present. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Lee Isaacs; Vice-President, Sam Neighbors; Secretary, Laurence Stauch; Treasurer, Luther Huff; Teacher, A. R. Taylor.

The Glen Eyrie Chapter, O.E.S., held a very enjoyable meeting Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. M. O. Ryan on Fifth street. A short address on the early Indian music was given by Clarence Krinbill, and vocal solos were rendered by Owen Emery. Several interesting contests were held in which Mrs. John Hobbs and Miss Hazel Carr were winners. Refreshments were served.

Miss Leta McCoy was tendered a surprise party at her home Monday evening by a company of about fifty of her young friends. The surprisers furnished the following pleasing programme: Duet, Miss George Duffet and Owen Emery; piano solo, Sol Rehart; solo, Leo Goode; piano solo, Miss Emma Pulliam; solo, Owen Emery; piano solo, Miss Marjorie Duncan.

Hollywood.

E. JEFFREY GILLEAS! of 215 North La Brea avenue gave a delightful formal dance at his home Friday evening. The house was beautifully decorated; pepper boughs were prettily entwined on the chandeliers and mantel places. Red and white roses were placed about the rooms. In the conservatory, where punch was served, pink was the prevailing color. Rice's Colored Orchestra furnished delightful music for the dancers. During intermission, when dainty refreshments were served, several popular rags sung by members of the orchestra were highly enjoyed. Mr. Gilleas was assisted by his sister, Miss Gilleas and Miss Kellher. Those present were Misses Doris Kellher, Henrietta Norton, Elizabeth Woodward, Marie Schaller, Cornelia Eometta, Margaret Babbit, Edna Burland, Florence Spellacy, Harriet Kellher, Mabelle Lewis; Messrs. Ned Marsh, Leo McLaughlin, Jack Salch, Neil McCarthy, Harold Chambers, Carl Claussenius, A. A. Normanden, Frank Jenal, Otto Kellher and E. J. Gilleas.

A unique "Backwoods" party was given by Miss Louise Haskell Saturday evening when she entertained about twenty-five friends in honor of her birthday, also the birthdays of Mr. and Mrs. William Lamberteon of Mission Court who were recently married in Los Angeles and have come to Hollywood to reside. The guests entered the house through the back door and were forced to back into the different rooms. A musical game was enjoyed during the evening, the prize for which was awarded Mrs. Lamberteon. When the guests were invited to the dining room they found the chairs placed with their backs against the table. The decorations were carried out in lavender with violets. A beautiful white birthday cake, trimmed with lavender and holding lighted violet candles, was used for a table centerpiece.

Mrs. J. L. Dillinger of 146 Orange avenue was hostess Thursday night with a pleasant five-hundred party. Roses were used for the decorations. About thirty guests were present. First prizes were awarded Mrs. O. R. Stratton and L. C. Haynes, second prizes went to Mrs. J. R. Kinney and A. Straus and Miss Matilda Reilley and Mr. Von Ache received the third prizes.

The members of the Tuesday Bridge Club were entertained with a luncheon by Mrs. B. F. McJohnston at her home on West Franklin avenue. Roses constituted the house decorations. Mrs. E. F. Bogardus received the club prize.

Thomas F. Cook entertained the members of the Sierra Camp for Boys and Supt. J. H. Francis, B. O. Kinney, Dr. Peterson, Dr. H. L. Gardner and B. W. Reed with a merry dinner party at his home, 724 West Hawthorne avenue Saturday evening. A handsome group of roses was used for a table centerpiece.

In honor of her husband's birthday anniversary, Mrs. R. G. Brush entertained Iowa friends at a dinner party at their home, 521 Park Drive, Monday evening. The table was prettily decorated with yellow, California poppies effecting a handsome table centerpiece. Dainty yellow cards marked places for Mr. and Mrs. James Patterson of Santa Barbara, Mrs. E. F. Joy of San Francisco, Mrs. J. Dielman and Mrs. C. Bennett of Los Angeles, Mrs. Stephen Joyce and daughter, Miss Susette, and Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Brush.

The Rara Avis Club enjoyed a delightful reunion at the home of Mrs. Richard Paul of 524 Park Drive last Friday afternoon. Luncheon was served at 12 o'clock. Royal blue and white, the club colors, were carried out in the decorations. Cards were played during the afternoon, the prizes going to Miss Tribel and Miss Else.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank Lamb Willson of West Franklin avenue gave a dinner Tuesday evening in compliment to their daughter, who became the bride of Eldon Webb Tice Thursday evening. Cecile Bruner roses and ferns effected a handsome table centerpiece. Besides the guests of honor, covers were laid for Mr. Tice's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Tice, sisters, Miss Josephine Tice and Mrs. Harold Tice, and uncle, William Webb, all recently from Topeka, Kan.

Mrs. Edwin O. Palmer entertained with two dinner parties at her home on Yucca street this week. On Monday evening a Boat Dinner was given in honor of her husband, Dr. Palmer, and Thomas H. Cooke of Hawthorne avenue who left Friday for a trip to Panama. The favors and place cards were cleverly carried out in boat designs. Covers were laid for twelve guests.

Mrs. Paul de Longpre and her daughter, Miss Blanche de Longpre, were the complimented guests Wednesday evening, when Mrs. Palmer entertained their close friends with a delightful dinner. A scheme of yellow was carried out in the table decorations with yellow roses, favors, place cards and yellow-shaded candelabra.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Roberts entertained the "500 Club" of San Dimas at their home, No. 210 North Pine avenue, last Thursday evening. Twenty members of the club came by trolley from San Dimas, arriving at 6:30, and found a dainty "spread" awaiting them. Miss Ina Underwood rendered several delightful solos. Prizes for five-hundred were captured by Mrs. M. W. Bennett and the gentleman's went to Clinton De Witt. A pink and white color scheme was carried out in the house and table decorations. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton De Witt, Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Hart, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Platt, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Potts, all of San Dimas, and Miss Ina Underwood and G. Flint of Los Angeles.

The second in the series of cafeteria luncheons given by the Woman's Club of Hollywood in their rooms at Toberman Hall was held Wednesday afternoon. These luncheons are a very pleasant innovation and add greatly to the social life of the club. Before the hour for the programme the leaves of twenty-five trees or shrubs pinned on cards were numbered and the ladies entered into a guessing contest as to the name of each. Miss Higgins and Miss Shipman were the winners. The programme of the afternoon consisted of a talk on "Conservation of the Forests" by Mrs. Foster Elliott with slides furnished by the Forest Service. A resolution of regret for the sudden illness of the president, Mrs. Calvin Smith, was passed by the rising vote of the club members. May 1 Miss Ruth Hemenway, a talented dramatic reader, will present "What Every Woman Knows."

NEW BOOKS REVIEWED.

SATIRICAL MASTERPIECES.

ZULEIKA DOBSON. By Max Beerbohm. John Lane Co., New York.

BY FAR the best book of the spring crop is "Zuleika Dobson," by the inimitable Max Beerbohm. Not only is it an interesting and an arresting fiction, but an important one. It proves beyond a doubt that English literature today is possessed of a writer whose name is fit to rank with the greatest satirical artists in our literary history. The cry has gone up from all quarters that we were in need of a satirist. The cry was not without foundation. We had an abundance of mere fun-pokers, pantaloons, scaramouches, clowns, wags, harlequins, zanies, merry-andrews, pickle-herrings, jacka-dandies, mimes, mountebanks, antics, punchinellos and jack-puddings; but nary a satirist. In "Zuleika Dobson" the cry has been answered. Here is a masterpiece of caricature. There is nothing like it in English. It was a classic before it went to press.

Zuleika is, no doubt, the most beautiful heroine who ever lived. The hardest cannot resist her. The masculine world is at her feet. She is the supreme satire of modern-day gynotic feminism. Visiting her father, who is one of the wardens at Oxford, she meets the Duke of Dorset, a young dandy more magnificent than any male creature who has ever lived. He is the ultimate caricature of dandyism. These two superlative creatures come together. At first the Duke resists Zuleika's charms. But it is no use. As the sailors of old leaped to the Lorelei, so does the Duke prostrate himself at the feet of the music-hall conjurer. But the minute he succumbs, that moment he ceases to attract this super-heroine. He becomes as all men; with whom Zuleika is infinitely bored.

The time is now ripe for a supreme sacrifice. Again the satire is carried to five decimal places. The Duke dons his most splendid attire and marches, majestic and superb, to the river. A splash, a gurgle—and he is no more. But this is not all. Dandyism, epitomized in the Duke, has its fawners, its flunkeys and its sycophants. The Duke was the leader of a band of claqueurs, which numbered all the undergraduates at Oxford. They, too, have loved Zuleika, and when their leader jumps into the river it is an example for them to follow. And so the entire student body seeks watery graves, a sublime and awesome climax! Zuleika leaves for Cambridge, where there is another collegiate world to conquer.

This brain-whirling, this flabbergasting plot is merely one of the elements of Max's satire. His phrases glitter and burn with a hysteria of words never before encountered. His style is superlativism raised to the twelfth multiple. Its style alone is an awe-inspiring burlesque. Its inventiveness is beyond the dreams of romancers.

DOWN WITH CAPITALISTS!

JOHN RAWN. By Emerson Hough. The Bobbs-Merrill Co., Indianapolis.

"JOHN RAWN" is an absurd socialistic tract. The dedication reads as follows: "To Woodrow Wilson, one of the leaders in the third war for American independence." The book is designed as fictional consolation for believers in the initiative and referendum, direct primaries and the recall of judges—those political patent medicines, those soothing syrups of democracy. To separate the story and the propaganda in Hough's book would be a long and arduous task, and the propaganda would far outweigh the story. The book is "progressive," according to the nomenclature of the La Follette followers. It is designed to prove that the instinct of the rich man to keep his money is necessarily base, unscrupulous and immoral; and that the instinct of the poor man to take away the rich man's money is lofty, noble and just—a popular theory, but one which will not bear intelligent dissection.

John Rawn, the hero-villain of the book which bears his name, was a capitalist, predatory and selfish. He was no ordinarily immoral capitalist, but a financial hyena, a dreadnaught of wickedness, a Cyclops of vice. As a boy he stole bananas from his playmates. As an adult he appropriated inventions from his friends. He became very wealthy through methods which are right for the poor man, but immoral for the rich. Charles Halsey, the sub-hero, had a severe and chronic case of numismatiphobia. The sight of money produced in him a condition not unlike rabies. He was an inventor. But why, said he, should he make use of the free elements (which, as even a child can tell, belong to everybody,) for his own aggrandizement? Rawn had no such altruistic views. He was down on humanity. He would flich from it to the uttermost. Charles irritated him, and had the temerity to marry Rawn's daughter. The two men argued on the beauties of socialism. Charles always got the better of Rawn, not because of his polemic superiority, but because Rawn was without stylistic ability. Rawn was very rich, very wealthy and very reactionary.

Before wealth had gobbled him up, Rawn had married the pious and humble Laura. Laura was short on grammar. She had never heard of the fourth dimension. She couldn't distinguish between genuine diamonds and paste. In fact, she disliked both. She was a plain woman. She thought it was lovely to embroider suspenders for Rawn. She wore steel-bowed spectacles—probably far down on her nose. It was intimated that she smoked a corncob pipe. She not infrequently said "like as if." Anyone could see she was no complement to the ambitious Rawn. Her inadequacy was further emphasized when Rawn purchased Graystone Hall, in the most refined neighborhood. There was red gravel under the porte cochere. It combined Japanese, Colonial and Elizabethan architecture. It had glazed French windows. It was a grand edifice. Laura was ill at ease, however. She called her bedroom "her bedroom." She obviously (even to John Rawn) did not belong to this mansion de luxe.

Mr. John had a stenographer. Her name was Virginia Delaware. (Why not New Jersey?) She was very refined and distingue. Her face was almost classical in its lines. She had an air. Her poise and her dignity were those of a young, clean-limbed wood-goddess of old. Virginia was not a doll. What was more, she was highly educated. Humdrum Laura seemed not for her. She was almost in Oriental porcelains. She knew about such phrases as "chere de lune" and "famille verte." She was as familiar with Chinese potteries as the lowly Laura was with cooking utensils. She knew the dates of the Chinese dynasties. She could tell, without referring to an encyclopedia, that Ming died in 1644. She could look at a jar and tell that it came from U-Chou, in the Honan province. She knew where Chippendale borrowed his decorative ideas. It was obvious she belonged in Graystone Hall.

Laura was given $1,000,000 and disposed of. In her stead Virginia crunched John Rawn's velvet carpets. But alack! Charles, the inventor, turned fanatic. He rendered his machines useless. His idea was to rescue the elements of nature from the clutch of capitalists. Virginia fell in love with Charlie. She wanted to be poor. And oh, God! how she wanted to be clean! It was too bad. She couldn't help it. Her father's virtues were beginning to crop out in her. Her father had been a "progressive." Charlie was not adverse to Virginia and her inherited virtues. Whereupon Charlie's wife killed herself. Then a mob killed Charlie. It was quite tragic.

Rawn was desolate. The machines wouldn't work. His money was gone. The beautiful Virginia had thrown him over. But in the meantime, Laura had been reading the papers. Her limited education permitted of this. She went to John and returned the $1,000,000 he had given her, after having deducted enough of it to bury Charlie's wife. She was very original. John became excited. He said, "By God!" Laura told him it wasn't right to swear. He begged her pardon, and magnanimously accepted the embroidered braces she tendered him as a token of esteem. Thus does the book end.

Reformed by Love.

THE BURGUNDIAN. By Marion Polk Angellotti. The Century Co., New York.

A FULFILLING and colorful tale is "The Burgundian." The critics do not cease singing requiems over the carcass of the historical novel, but the dashing cadaver refuses to be buried. There are a dozen corpses of the historical romance parading through the bookstalls this spring. Some of them, to be sure, are little more than wraiths, pale washed-out creatures from beyond the sunset—mere ghosts of yesterday, but others have all the semblance of primary personalities. They rip-snort and bellow, huri anathemas and clank their swords.

Such a rejuvenated ghost is "The Burgundian," by Marion Polk Angellotti. The Dukes of Burgundy were compelling gentlemen of old. "We were born to flash like meteors, we Burgundians, to dazzle the world," admits one of them. There is considerable dazzling in the present book. Perhaps most of the dazzling was done by the Duc d'Orleans, a cousin to that mad French monarch, Charles VI. At any rate, he dazzled Rosamonde, the proud and beautiful heroine. It was no simple matter to dazzle Rosamonde, either. She was no trusting lass, although she did come from the country of Provence, and served as waiting-maid to Jehan's wife. She was proud and haughty, and ambitious. When she was young she had attired herself in boy's clothing and learned the art of fencing. Nor was she an amateur at sword-play. She was the first swordsman in Provence.

After she comes to Paris, she begins to live. She is ravishingly magnificent. She breaks many hearts. Jehan de Valois, Duke of great Burgundy, casts an amorous eye upon her. They meet in a room of the castle tower. The wind is storming like a hostile army. Rosamonde's fancy is heated. The wind seems to her like the war cries of Turks and Christians. The logs are burning red. The firelight flickers on the rose and silver of her dress. It also dances on her black hair. Jehan sans Peur is impatient. "I have loved you since first we met," he tells Rosamonde. By a mighty effort she composes herself, and repulses him. Jehan is insistent. Dijon, Ghent, Liege, Anvers, Mechlin and a hundred other proud cities lie in his grasp. He strides up and down the room. There is a dangerous gleam in his eyes. Suddenly he bursts forth, "What is the meaning of this, mistress? Do you love another then?" Rosamonde tries to calm his strange madness. It is no use: "Aye, you shall be mine yet! You shall, I swear it!" Rosamonde wishes to return to the Duchess below-stairs. The Duke is no gentleman. He bars her passage. Then Rosamonde casts a verbal bomb. She is going to marry the Duke of Orleans! The Duke falls back as if struck. His brow is dark red. Rosamonde pulsates with fierce exultation. The Duke clutches her wrists, but he does nothing further. Perhaps he is afraid the Duchess below-stairs might hear him. So he decides to overthrow his cousin. It is almost exciting.

The Duke of Orleans is done away with, but Jehan himself is assassinated by foes. It looks as if the proud Rosamonde had lost everything. But no. In the meantime she has reformed. No longer is she proud and ambitious. True love has smitten her. She has become wiser. Her pride has been crushed by the subtle passion. She marries Enguerrand de Bournonville, the Duke's squire-at-arms.

This ending is the one false note in the book. Woman's reformation by love is a pious hypothesis which still lacks the proof of practical demonstration. The Pilgrim fathers had not yet arrived in New England at the time of the Burgundians.

SOME GENUINE POETRY.

THE HUMAN FANTASY. By John Hall Wheelock. Sherman, French & Co., Boston.

THE precipitation upon the poetical mat of a new poet of high merit is not a weekly occurrence in this country of pallid versifying. Therefore the advent of a bard like John Hall Wheelock is especially welcome.

"The Human Fantasy" contains much colorful and distinctive poetry. The task the poet has undertaken in this volume is to catch and transmit in words and phrases the color and the poetry and the moods of a great city. In this task he has succeeded in no small degree. No poet has sung the spirit of modern New York with a keener accuracy of vision or in more passionate verse than Wheelock. Noon and midnight, the dusk of evening and early morning, sordid out-of-the-way places, the brilliancy of Broadway, the water's edge, the theaters and cafes—Wheelock has seen the city from every angle. The poems here comprise a narrative series, and are carried through the different shades and depths of emotional experiences by the motive of love. Each poem, however, is complete in itself. Each presents some shade or aspect of love and the city. Many of Wheelock's lyrics are little short of exquisite. His pages are full of those rare combinations of words which Peter call "the Gipsy phrase." But that which contributes most to the book's vitality is the fact that Wheelock sees with the eyes of passionate youth.

By no means the best, and yet a characteristic lyric, selected because of its brevity, is "The Last Meeting."

"The shadowy and the tremendous multitude,
Wearing at heart the old, the human dream—
The lust, the grandeur, the sorrow—like a stream
Bore down upon him in tumultuous flood;
Bearing him bounteous gifts, forever cast
Here, like wild waves, on the huge shores of Fate,
Of life magnanimous and compassionate,
Triumphantly, and the beloved face at last."

JAPANESE ACADEMISM.

ON THE LAWS OF JAPANESE PAINTING. By Henry P. Bowie. Paul Elder & Co., San Francisco.

HENRY P. BOWIE has published through Paul Elder an excellent chap-book on the laws of Japanese painting. Bowie brings to his book nine years of practical experience with the modern Japanese painters, as well as an ardent enthusiasm for his subject. The book contains the substance of several lectures which were delivered before numerous art clubs and institutions in America. No effort is made in the hundred odd pages here to cover the subject thoroughly, but what Bowie has done is to state briefly and succinctly the canons underlying Japanese art. Emphasis is placed on art traditions.

The Japanese artist, it seems, undergoes a long and thorough apprenticeship in his craft. Years are spent in mastering the rudiments, studying the greater artists, acquiring finest skill, becoming familiar with the laws of Japanese painting, and perfecting (through copying and tracing) the brush stroke. The training of temperament is another important factor in the education of the Japanese artist. The mind is taught to work automatically with the hand; the emotions are developed to produce effect. The reproduction of sentiment in Japanese scenery, for instance, as epitomized in the work of the Hriosshige in the Ukyio-e school, is ardently striven for. The necessity of clear thinking and definite feeling is also emphasized in the education of Japanese artists. The laws set down for artists are many; the law of contrast (In Yo,) the law of formal propriety (Keisho,) the law controling the painting of historical pictures (Ko Jutsu,) the law of invariability in the combination of mountain and water (Sun Sui,) the law controling the correspondence of all parts of a landscape with the seasons of the year (Shi Ki no San Sui,) and so forth.

The primary law, which has its foundation in psychology, and which demands a co-relative consciousness between the object depicted and the execution of it, is not without its superstitions; and the fault of Bowie's book is found in his apparent willingness to accept these superstitions. The idea, for instance, that if in ardent stroke work, drops of sumi accidentally fall from the brush upon the painting, they are in reality energetic addenda; and the superstition that, if in making the trunk of a tree, the brush shows many thin hair lines where the intention of the artist was merely to make one solid line, it is additional evidence of stroke energy—will find little sympathy in the occidental scientific intelligence. Again we are told that the Japanese artists believe that the best results in the tone of sumi are gained by having a young maiden rub it upon the stone. It is an interesting superstition, perhaps, but not to be taken as seriously as Bowie takes it.

Bowie renounces as absurd the idea that calligraphy enters into the matter of standard strokes. The fact is, perhaps, that Japanese art leans just as much toward the academic extreme as occidental art leans toward the other extreme. But such a book as this, in spite of its enthusiasms, is an excellent tonic for the American artist, who is as much inclined toward freedom in brush work as the Japanese artist is toward formality of stroke.

ALMOST A THRILLER.

THE HIGH ADVENTURE. By John Oxenham. Duffield & Co., New York.

A CONVENTIONAL romance of intrigue and adventure by a literary journeyman who knows his craft, is "The High Adventure," by John Oxenham. The novel is not designed to edify nor yet to produce mentation. Its sole purpose is to amuse, to inhibit introspection, to kill a dreary afternoon. As such it may be considered rather better than many others of its kind. The hero is an attache of the English Embassy at Paris. He is soaked in chivalry, and has all of the instincts of the gentleman, according to the most cultured of fictional tastes. Being a gentleman in a novel consists for the most part in refusing to take advantage of amatory openings. Charles Verney is such a gentleman. There was an excellent opportunity for ardent love-making at one point in the book, but he nobly refrained. Why? The only explanation seems to be that he was a gentleman.

The book, however, is not designed to elicit ethical discussion. It is far too busy with adventuring. The plot hangs on the sad fact that a beautiful Russian Princess is held prisoner in a Swiss prison, because she has stolen a disgusting Russian nobleman. Russia not being a democratic country, where one may petition the Governor and secure a pardon, more primitive and lawless means are necessary in order to rescue the languishing murderess. Her sister, the beautiful Sonia, appeals to Charles for aid; whereupon that chivalrous gentleman offers his services. The rescue is effected and the three become fugitives from justice. Obviously the situation is a strained one. What is to be done with the murderess now that she is out of jail? A problem indeed! And how is Charles to marry Sonia, since this lady is already encumbered with one husband—a villain, to be sure, but none the less a husband?

Oxenham's imagination is not fertile. Killing the two supernumeraries, namely, the escaped sister and the husband, hardly seems a creditable solution. But whatever the means, the result is felicitous. The avalanche which did away with the sister, immures Charles and Sonia in an Alpine hut and gives them the opportunity of falling in love.

On the whole, the book is satisfying, though it has its tame moments.

BOOK NEWS.

In a recent interview Mrs. Lloyd Osbourne declared that one of the most interesting books ever written about her distinguished husband's distinguished stepfather was "With Stevenson in Samoa," by H. J. Moors, (recently published by Small, Maynard & Co.) "He was not literary," said Mrs. Osbourne, speaking of Mr. Moors, "so he could only tell the truth. You know how truthful the unliterary person is." And she looked at her interviewer questioningly and he could only nod a reluctant head!

An English edition of "Her Husband," Julia Magruder's popular novel which Small, Maynard & Co. recently published, will shortly be brought out by Grant Richards.

Prof. Rudolf Eucken of the University of Jena, whose greatest book, "The Problem of Human Life," has just been published in a new and cheaper edition by the Scribners, has been appointed exchange professor of Harvard next fall. He is recognized as one of Germany's foremost philosophers; in 1909 he won the Nobel prize for literature. The full title of this book just published in a new edition is "The Problem of Human Life As Viewed by Great Thinkers from Plato to the Present Time." The characteristic speculations and the opinions of the great thinkers of the human race from Aristotle, Plotinus and Plato up to Kant and the modern world, are therein elucidated, contrasted and judged in an independent manner. The work may be taken as an introduction to the study of philosophy, and in Germany the book has already appeared in its sixth edition.

A new book from the pen of Henryk Sienkiewicz, the famous Polish novelist, is an event of considerable importance. "In Desert and Wilderness," a story of Egypt in the eighties, is the title of Sienkiewicz's new novel, published this month.

The third group of volumes in The Home University Library of Modern Knowledge was recently issued by Messrs. Henry Holt & Co. This group of eleven volumes contains Prof. F. L. Paxson's "The Civil War," which is the first of a five-volume series on American history within the latter series to consist of volumes on "The Colonial Period," "The Wars with England," "From Jefferson to Lincoln," "The Civil War," and "Reconstruction and Union," each specially written for the layman by an authority. The other volumes for January issue are "The Dawn of History," by Prof. J. O. Myres; "The Papacy and Modern Times," by Rev. William Barry; "A History of Our Time," (1885-1911,) by G. P. Gooch; "The Civilization of China," by Prof. H. A. Giles; "Modern English Literature," by G. H. Mair; "Astronomy," by A. R. Hinks; "Psychical Research," by W. F. Barrett; "An Introduction to Science," by Prof. J. Arthur Thomson; "The Evolution of Industry," by Prof. D. H. Macgregor, and "Elements of English," by Prof W. M. Geldart.

Messrs. Henry Holt & Co. are having to print a second edition of Prof. Henry Thew Stephenson's "The Elizabethan People," which gives a vivid account of Shakespeare's fellow-citizens. The same author's "Shakespeare's London" is already in its second edition.

"Harper's Guide to Wild Flowers," by Mrs. Caroline A. Creevey, is announced for immediate publication by the Harpers. It is based upon the new names and classifications of American flowers decided upon by the Vienna Congress of 1905. The book is illustrated with numerous colored plates and drawings, which makes it easy to identify the flowering plants by color, habitat and season.

A new Lincoln story by Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews appears this month. Its title is "The Counsel Assigned." As she presented Abraham Lincoln, the President, in her "The Perfect Tribute," so now in "The Counsel Assigned" she presents Lincoln, the young lawyer.

Banking and the currency question in their latest aspects, discussed from the point of view of American finances, American business, American farming, and American everyday living, constitutes the subject of "Banking Reform," which the National Citizens' League announces for immediate publication. In its 443 pages are discussed the elasticity of credit; panics, their causes and cure; acceptances, the function of banking; the machinery of credit; and the relations of banks to the government, to the large business community, to the small business man, to farmers, to laboring men, to non-borrowers. And there are chapters on commercial paper, speculation, inflation, the international position of the United States and the constitutionality of proposed legislation.

McBride, Nast & Co. have in preparation for publication this spring "A Shopping Guide to Paris and London," by Frances B. O. Waxman.

It is estimated that in 1910 7,256,525 people saw the big league games; in 1911 an even larger number, without reckoning the countless thousands who watch the minor league games. It is this big army for whom C. H. Claudy has written "The Battle of Baseball," in which the author, himself a baseball enthusiast, describes not only the wonders done by skilled players and fine teams, but tells boys of all ages how they, too, can become skillful and do for their teams what their favorite baseball idol does frequently in a game of the major or minor leagues.

"Cassell's Cyclopedia of Photography" is the first attempt on a grand scale to meet the demand for the complete dictionary of photography. The text is as non-technical as possible, the needs of the amateur being borne in mind, though the work makes its appeal to every photographer without exception.

The Century Company announces early issue of "The Strangling of Persia," by W. Morgan Shuster, ex-Treasurer-General of Persia.

Messrs. L. C. Page & Co., Boston, announce the publication of Caroline Atwater Mason's new book of travel and description—"The Spell of France" illustrated from rare old prints and photographs. It is the third volume in the popular Spell series, which includes "The Spell of Italy," the initial volume of the series by Mrs. Mason, and Mr. Burton E. Stevenson's "The Spell of Holland." A fourth volume will be issued in the early fall, "The Spell of England," by Julia deW. Addison.

Paul Elder and Company, San Francisco, have in press for early publication a work on Japanese art entitled, "The Heritage of Hiroshiza, a Glimpse at Japanese Landscape Art," by Dora Amsden (author of "Impressions of Ukiyo-ye,") with the collaboration of John Stewart Happer. Mr. Happer's discoveries concerning the Hiroshiza seals are included in the book with facsimiles of the Zodiacal seals or Cycle Ciphers. The illustrations reproduce prints from the Amsden and Happer collections.

In response to numerous demands from schools and libraries, Messrs. L. C. Page & Co., Boston, have decided to issue their famous "Little Cousin Series" (forty-five titles,) in a special reinforced library binding, which makes it almost impossible to remove the book from the cover or for any of the pages to become loosened. This special library binding is the result of much experimenting and it is interesting to know that it necessitated the building of a special machine for the sewing of the books. Such a practical style of binding will surely be of benefit to all schools and libraries.

Rudyard Kipling's books sell and sell. The Century Company is printing the twentieth edition of "The Second Jungle Book," while thirty editions stand to the credit of "The Jungle Book."

Reginald Wright Kauffman's new novel, "The Sentence of Silence," was published on Saturday. The demand was so big that the first edition, a large one, was not sufficient to meet it. The second edition will be ready immediately.

A book of verse by John Galsworthy, which has just been published, was announced by Charles Scribner's Sons originally under the title "Wild Oats: Moods, Songs and Doggerels." Mr. Galsworthy has dropped the words "Wild Oats" from the title and the book has appeared simply as "Moods, Songs and Doggerels."

THE BOOK IN LONDON.

Lady Bancroft Turns Novelist—"The Life Everlasting" a Frost—Leonard Merrick's Play, "The Impostor"—Tennyson and "Maud."

BY HAYDEN CHURCH.

LONDON, April 10.—Lady Bancroft, who, as Marie Wilton, was one of the most popular actresses in this country, and who retired at the height of her popularity, has turned novelist. Soon after she published her vivaciously-written and widely-read "Reminiscences," she tells me, a renowned English publishing firm urged her to try her hand at fiction, enterprisingly undertaking to publish anything she might write, but at that time—it was in 1888 to be exact—Lady Bancroft lacked confidence. But, being even comparatively idle after having worked like a trojan, generally becomes a bore, in time, and a few months ago the ex-star of the Haymarket Theater began to yearn for intellectual employment, and what appeared like a first-rate plot for a novel having one day popped into her head, she proceeded to try her prentice hand at making a novel out of it. The result is "The Shadow of Neeme," which John Murray, whose grandfather was Lord Byron's publisher, will put forth on this side of the Atlantic, and negotiations for the publication of which, on yours, are now in progress.

Oddly enough, Lady Bancroft's maiden effort in romance-making, which she declares will not be her last if "The Shadow of Neeme" is a success, and perhaps not anyway, has nothing to do with the stage. It is, in fact, a story of the occult that the ex-actress has written, and written uncommonly well, according to the opinion of abler judges than the present scribe. The hero, a young British nobleman, while serving in the South African war, dreams time after time of a beautiful girl, who becomes his feminine ideal. On his return from the campaign he greatly distresses all his kinsfolk by declining to marry various eligible fair ones, the dream lady having got firm hold of his affections. Then he goes to live at the Old Hall at Neeme, and there, on the night of the housewarming dance, he sees, or fancies he sees, his dream lady. But afterward, inquire as he will, he cannot discover that any guest answering to her description was present at the ball. So a hunt for the mysterious damsel begins, but how she is found it would not be "cricket" to reveal. Found she is, however, and she and his lordship marry and, presumably, "live happily ever after." That Lady Bancroft can write pretty good fiction, her first attempt proves satisfactorily. It would be odd if, after climbing up to the top of the theatrical profession in this country, she also became a serious rival to Miss Braddon. Queen Mary, by the way, at Her Majesty's own request, is to be one of the first to receive a copy of Lady Bancroft's novel.

What was described and, no doubt, correctly, as the most remarkably-bound book ever produced, was sold by auction at Sotheby's this week for $2025. The identity of the purchaser, who was represented by an agent, was not discoverable, but it's safe betting that his address is U.S.A., with "J.P. M." as possible initials. The book which fetched this tidy sum was a copy of the original edition of "The Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam," the outside covers of which were studded with about 1050 jewels, including rubies, turquoises, amethysts and topazes, each stone being in a gold setting. At the same sale a remarkable collection of "Gretna Green" marriage certificates was sold. There were nearly 1200 of them, relating to marriages performed between 1825 and 1854 by John Linton, the famous "priest" of Gretna Hall. A lot of romance is represented by these certificates, the authenticity of which is unquestionable, many of them having been accepted as evidence in courts of law. The price paid for the collection was $2100.

Evidently Miss Marie Corelli's last novel, "The Life Everlasting," was something of a "frost." While in the "city" offices of Mudie's, the biggest circulating library in this country, the other day, I was shown a stack of over 200 copies of that work, for which there was no call, and which were being offered at half-price.

"We have over a thousand more apparently unwanted copies at our head office," said the clerk to whom I talked. "The demand for it practically ceased three weeks after publication, and it is all but unsalable even at half-price. The trouble seems to be that all of Miss Corelli's recent novels have dealt with religious themes and it looks as if even her most devoted readers were getting tired of it."

Leonard Merrick, if one mistakes not, has gone back to one of his earlier, and most successful novels for the plot of the new play which he has written with our fellow-countryman, Michael Morton. At least one judges so from its title, "The Imposter," which also was that of the play, supposedly written by the hero, which figured so prominently, and was outlined with so much detail, in "The Actor-Manager." It sounded at the time too good a plot to be "thrown in" as it were with another full-sized one, and I am not surprised that Merrick eventually decided to turn it to account. Or, perhaps, it was Morton who suggested that the imaginary play would make a good real one. At all events, "The Imposter" has been written and shortly will be tried on the proverbial dog at Edinburgh.

How Tennyson came to write "Come Into the Garden, Maud" is told in the "Nineteenth Century," by the Hon. Mrs. Algernon Grosvenor, who is a daughter of Tennyson's great chum, the late Sir John Simeon. Incidentally she describes how the poet made his friend a present of the manuscript of "In Memoriam."

"It was on his birthday in the library at Swainston," she writes, "that Tennyson asked him to reach him a book from a shelf. As he did so, there fell out the manuscript of 'In Memoriam,' which the poet had put there as a surprise. Some time after this, while at Farringford, my father came upon the beautiful lyric 'O, That 't Were Possible,' which had appeared years back in an ephemeral publication of the time. He implored Tennyson to introduce it into a dramatic poem, and gave him no peace till he set about writing 'Maud.'"

Her own recollections of Tennyson were uncommonly pleasant. "He was very good to me just because I was my father's daughter," she says, "and would take me wonderful walks in London. These were attended with terrifying excitements; his sight was no longer very good, but, impatient of delay, he would dash into the thickest traffic, even in those days sufficiently alarming, to investigate the sooty buds inside the railings of some square gardens, or anything else that happened to take his fancy for the moment on the other side of the street."

None too soon, that renowned English navigator, Capt. Cook, is to have a memorial in London. It will take the form of a statue of the explorer of the Northwest Passage, and is being executed by Sir Thomas Brock, R.A., the commissioners being the British Empire League. The statue is expected to be finished in November next, when it will be set up, appropriately enough, near the new Admiralty Arch, close to Trafalgar Square. Many distinguished folk are expected to be present at the unveiling, which probably will be performed by the King, who, as a keen sailor, has taken a lot of interest in the memorial project.

In his recent history of the famous American publishing house of which he is a member, J. Henry Harper described the celerity with which Sir Walter Scott's novels were hustled into print, on reaching the United States, and now we are told how this process was duplicated in Scotland. The story comes second-hand through Prof. Cooper, of Glasgow, who, in a recent lecture on Scott, mentioned that when he went to Aberdeen in 1851 there was still living, in that city a veteran upwards of 90 years of age, one Laurie, who had been a bookseller in Aberdeen when the Waverly Novels were coming out. He told Dr. Cooper that, so great was the demand for each novel as it appeared that the book was sent down in sheets on the top of a coach, which came in from the South, late in the evening. On the night when a book arrived there was no rest for the binders. They plied their task all night, so that the volume might be issued next morning to the public. Dr. Cooper remarked that no literary sensation of that sort had appeared in our time. Perhaps, the nearest approach to it, he said, was when "Middlemarch" was coming out in parts.

WITH THE AUTHORS.

GEORGE SYLVESTER VIERECK is today only 27 years of age, and yet in that time he has published five books, fathered two plays and edited two magazines, to which number he recently added one more, "The International," which is the organ of the literary insurgents in the United States. The editors of "The International" will be as heretofore, Mr. B. Russell Herts and Mr. Richard Le Gallienne; but Mr. Viereck will be to "The International" what T. R. is to "The Outlook," that is to say, contributing editor. Mr. Viereck is also associate editor of "Current Literature" and editor of "Rundschau Zweiter Welten" (Review of Two Worlds.) Referring to his book, "The Candle and the Flame," he says, "In this book I pass from the physics to the metaphysics of passion. . . . My work is unconventional, because conventions mean ever less to me the more I feel the heart beats of life itself. We must rehabilitate poetry as Shaw has rehabilitated the drama. We must apply Shavian methods to the lyric and ballad. I have found myself as poet."

FRESH LITERATURE—BOOK REVIEWS.

By Willard Huntington Wright.

There has been much speculation as to the author of "The Autobiography of an Elderly Woman," which was published anonymously by Houghton Mifflin Company last autumn, and for some reason or other, the book was very generally credited to Mrs. Margaret Deland. The publishers have just announced that the author of this widely read and much discussed book is Mrs. Mary Heaton Vorse.

Alfred Noyes, the English poet, author of "Sherwood," has now practically recovered from a recent dangerous attack of appendicitis. He has returned to his country home at Rottingdean from the London hospital, where he had to undergo an operation. Mr. Noyes had hoped to be able to come to America for a lecturing tour this spring, but was prevented by illness. He now hopes to come in the autumn. It will be his first visit to this country.

John Burroughs was 75 years old on April 3, being about a month younger than William Dean Howells, Mr. Burrough's friend, John Muir, who is an authority on all nature subjects on the Pacific Coast, is only a year younger than Mr. Burroughs.

Frederic Arnold Kummer, author of "The Green God," began life as a civil engineer and attained an enviable reputation in that profession before taking up literature as a vocation. In addition to "The Green God," he has written many short stories, novelettes and serials for the magazines, and has had four plays produced, in one of which, "The Other Woman," Miss Blanche Walsh starred during 1910-1911.

It is reported by Bobbs-Merrill that George Randolph Chester's particular aversion is the color purple. And it is further reported that his particular delight is music of the Chopin, Liszt and Beethoven types. Just what does this mean?

NOTES ON THE NEW MAGAZINES.

Readers of the May Century will find in the number authoritative papers on some of the most pressing questions of the day, such as the recall of judges, the tariff and American trade, the remarkable advance of Persian women, and their share in the country's recent crisis, Chicago's rapid growth and significant civic development, and improved methods in New York's police courts. The pros and cons of the judicial recall are discussed with great variety of point and argument by Bruce B. McCay, a lawyer of Colorado. Mr. McCay gives many reasons for his belief that the proposed recall would be used to advance political ambitions and private interests, instead of promoting the public good. The paper is both suggestive and informing. Another article of special timeliness is discussion of "High Tariff and American Trade Abroad," by Oscar W. Underwood, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives. It is a practical discussion of the country's industrial conditions and of the influence upon them, present and future, of existing high rates of duty. W. Morgan Shuster, lately Treasurer-General of Persia, who has received much honor for his brilliant fight against heavy odds, for Persia's nationality, writes entertainingly of "Persian Women in the Present Crisis." Every word of his regarding conditions in that harassed country has unusual interest, and importance. Mr. Shuster claims that during the last five years the women of Persia have become, almost at a bound, the most progressive in the world, and gives instances of the initiative and power shown by them during the last trying months of the crisis.

John Fox, Jr., in his new serial in Scribner's "The Heart of the Hills," deals with the very type of people who brought about the Hillsville massacre of a judge and jurors; indeed, one of Mr. Fox's previous novels sketches a scene that resembles this tragedy.

When the Hawke rammed the Olympic, a naval court exonerated her captain on the ground that suction had contributed to the mishap. But the judge presiding at the damage suit ridiculed this theory. In the current issue of Harper's Weekly, Robert G. Skerrett explains how experiments in the government experimental basin at Washington have proved the existence of suction as a cause for collisions, though for many years courts termed it mythical. By means of diagrams, he shows the exact nature of the mishap, which could have been prevented had naval men then possessed the knowledge which these experiments have given us.

The first number of Bedrock, a new quarterly review of scientific thought, just published by Constable & Co., Ltd., of London, opens with an article on the "Value of a Logic of Method" by Prof. J. Welton, professor of education in the University of Leeds; B. Archdall Reid discusses "Recent Researches on Alcoholism;" E. W. Poulton, Hope professor of zoology in the University of Oxford, writes on "Darwin and Bergson as Interpreters of Evolution;" A. H. Gibson, professor of engineering in the University of Dundee, has an article on "The Inter-Action of Passing Ships." The number also includes articles on "The Stars and Their Courses" (being substantially the Halley lecture for 1911) by H. H. Turner, Savilian professor of astronomy in the University of Oxford, and on "Social and Sexual Evolution" by the Hermit of Prague, as well as "Notes on Current Research."

The State of California is said to be the greatest center of power transmission by electricity in the world. The whole development along the Pacific Coast is fully elaborated in one of the articles in Scribner's Magazine for May—which is a water and power number.

LITERARY GOSSIP.

William Dean Howells, in a chapter of reminiscences contributed to J. Henry Harper's book, "The House of Harper," speaks of the battle waged between him and the critics on account of his attitude in the Editor's Study against romanticism. "I detested the sentimental and the romantic in fiction," he says, "and I began at once to free my mind concerning the romanticists, as well dead as alive. As I could not in conscience spare either age or sex, the effect of my reason, I soon had every lover of romanticism hating me. I remember one English reviewer beginning a notice of my book, 'Criticism and Fiction,' by saying 'This man has placed himself beyond the pale of decency,' and then, in proof, going on to behave indecently to me. . . . . I perceive now that the monstrous rag baby of romanticism is as firmly in the saddle as it was before the joust began."

While Moliere is one of the authors most studied in our schools, he never seems to have got much of a hold on our public on the stage; yet when his "Learned Ladies" (in Dr. Curtis Hidden Page's version) was recently produced in New York, the critics generally spoke of its surprising freshness and suitability to the life of today. The original French text of this play—"La Femmes Savantes" is to be issued at once (along with the author's 'Les Precieuses Ridicules," edited, with introduction and notes) in one volume for school use, by Prof. John R. Effinger of the University of Michigan, by Messrs. Henry Holt & Co.

Justin Huntly McCarthy, in his novel, "The God of Love," has dealt with the same ever-fascinating subject of Dante's love for Beatrice, which Wolf-Ferrari has made the basis of his cantata, "La Vita Nuova," one of the novelties this season at the Metropolitan Operahouse in New York. While the composer in his version had made use of the original Italian text, Mr. McCarthy's novel, "The God of Love," purports to be a translation of an old manuscript discovered in a convent library.

Justin Huntly McCarthy, in his "How would you like to have a steak 50 or 100,000 years old served up to you?" asks James Oliver Curwood, author of the recently-published novel, "Flower of the North." Mr. Curwood tells how in one of his northern trips he came across some Indians who had discovered the carcass of a mastodon, exposed by the falling of a frozen river cliff. "The flesh," says Mr. Curwood, "was of a deep red or mahogany color, and I dined on a steak an inch and a half thick. My first taste of the flesh sent me back, I suppose, 50,000 years or more. The flavor of the meat was old—not unpleasant — but simply old and dry. That it had lost none of its life-sustaining elements during those hundreds of centuries of 'cold storage' was shown by the fact that the dogs throve upon it."

The familiar touches in the collection of hitherto unpublished Dickens's letters—"Charles Dickens as Editor" is the title of the book—are not the least pleasing portion of an interesting volume which Sturgis & Walton Co. have recently published. Writing from Paris, Dickens pushes home to his friend, Wills, an anxious query regarding a gin punch which kindled deep enthusiasm in the great novelist's bosom. Here is the passage: "I am impatient to know how the gin punch succeeded with you. It is the most wonderful beverage in the world, and I think ought to be laid on at high pressure by the Board of Health. After sleeping only two hours on the 'household words' sofa, I arose yesterday morning like a dewy flower." It is to be hoped that the golden recipe for the "most wonderful beverage in the world" is still extant, and may yet be spread in widest commonalty. Cannot some benefactor of the race lay hold of it and give it currency?

Mrs. Wilson Woodrow, whose latest novel, "Sally Salt," has just been published, had a strange experience in connection with the writing of this book. One morning she awoke from a sound sleep and found the name, Sally Salt, ringing in her mind. It meant nothing to her, but she couldn't get rid of the impression it made. In fact, instead of diminishing, this impression grew until finally she had a mental picture of a red-haired young woman, who became so real that she almost spoiled a short story upon which Mrs. Woodrow was working at the time. Later Mrs. Woodrow went to visit some friends on a farm in the Middle West, and one day, while returning from a drive, she beheld a young woman standing in a garden, who was the exact counterpart of the woman that had been in Mrs. Woodrow's mind for so many months. The author became acquainted with the woman and found that in temperament she was as much like her ideal as she was physically. The story then wrote itself.

Last week what was designated as a "silver anniversary" of the publication of Madison Cawein's first book of poems was celebrated by the people of Louisville, Ky. Mr. Cawein was presented with a loving cup and honored by glowing tributes in prose and poetry from William Dean Howells, James Whitcomb Riley, Cale Young Rice and R. Lee Gibson. In expressing his appreciation, Mr. Cawein said, in part: "I feel just like the little boy who, having done something for which he feared to be punished, tried to hide himself in the attic or some place, but, being discovered and unwillingly brought before all the company, instead of meeting with punishment, was treated with ice cream and cake and presented with some wonderful toy. Speech is so inadequate to express all that one feels on an occasion of this sort that I will not attempt to put into words the gratitude which is due the literary club and all the participants in the symposium extended me this evening in honor of my work."

Joseph Conrad, whose book of recollections, "A Personal Record," was recently published, reveals the fact that he who was born a Pole, but became first an English seaman, and then one of the best-known writers in the English language, made acquaintance with Dickens and Shakespeare at an early age. "My first introduction to English imaginative literature," he writes, "was 'Nicholas Nickelby.' It is extraordinary how well Mrs. Nickelby could chatter disconnectedly in Polish, and the sinister Ralph rage in that language. As to the Crummles family and the family of the learned Squeers, it seemed as natural to them as their native speech. But I really believe that I am wrong. That book was not my first introduction to English literature. My first acquaintance was (or were) the 'Two Gentlemen of Verona.'" At 10 years of age Joseph Conrad had read much of Victor Hugo and other romantics; had read in Polish and in French, history, voyages and novels.

THE AFTERNOON TEA.

It Is Growing n Favor in the United States.

BY MAJ. BEN C. TRUMAN.

Thirty years ago no hotel in the United States served an afternoon tea, except as it would serve anything at a restaurant table kept on the European style. At present half the hotels in the country serve afternoon teas, either free or for a fixed price. The afternoon tea stimulates social intercourse and acts as an intermezzo between 7 o'clock dinners and shopping and matinee hours and automobile maddenings. At present all the first-class eastern hotels and the Fairmont, Palace and St. Francis in San Francisco, and the first-class hotels in Los Angeles, serve afternoon teas at fixed prices, from 25 to 35 cents, which includes a pot of tea, sugar, cream or lemon, and varieties of cakes and wafers. There is also music at all of these places, and the combination draws multitudes of the elite and many others of both sexes, the consummation generally lasts from 4 to 5 o'clock, and during that delectable hour fashions and society, opera and theater, automobiling and business are promiscuously discussed; divorces and divorcees, bank accounts and overdrawn checks, ill-assorted weddings and elopements, Willie boys and chorus girls, millionaires and matinee idols, grass and sod widows, are also conventional subjects. The Mission Inn at Riverside, the Tavern at Tahoe, the Hotel Virginia at Long Beach, the Arrowhead at Arrowhead, the Hotel Leighton in Los Angeles and scores of others of its class all serve afternoon teas free, and in all of these places a majority of their guests may be seen enjoying the cups that cheer, but do not inebriate all afternoons but that of Sunday.

There is no doubt but that acceptable tea is an ideal stimulant; and if judiciously used may save many people from greater evil. Nevertheless excessive or even immoderate tea drinking engenders ill tempers and degeneracy, and frequently crime and disease. It has often been alleged by English newspapers that much of the degeneracy and crime observed in the lower classes of Great Britain is largely due to the immense quantities of tea which is drunk in that kingdom, much of which is basely prepared and adulterated; while it is fair to presume that the vicious window-smashing, head-breaking methods of the London suffragettes may be partly traced to their excessive consumption of tea. And yet excessive tea drinking in Russia and China may have been the salvation of two peoples from much greater evils. The decoction has at least been sterilized by heat, while water drinking in both those countries, and especially in China, has a multiplicity of dangers, as has been stated by many travelers and writers. To be sure, the contrary may be apparent among the Russians and Chinese of their most northern sections, who consume vast quantities of tea daily, and who rank among the most robust people of the world, especially as has been proven by the healthfulness of the Russian lumbermen, and the early Hudson Bay voyagers to Alaska and other northern regions. Therefore, for a severely-cold country a not immoderate use of good tea is an acknowledged stimulant; it revives the energies, is a safeguard against complete exhaustion, and affords a feeling of comfort that no other non-spiritous potable can produce.

Tea made its first entry into England between 1630 and 1650, and was sold at the enormous price of 60 shillings per pound; or, considering the different value of money then and now, at a cost of twelve times that at which the same article may at present be procured. At first it had to contend with marked opposition for coffee had got the start of it, and many an Englishman of that day denounced tea dealers as immoral members of society. But the new beverage soon knocked out coffee as a steady drink, and today Oliver Cromwell's teapot is a veritable relic to be seen at the British museum. Lord Clarendon, in 1687, notes in his diary that after supper with Pere Couplet he had tea, which his guest declared was as delicious as he had ever tasted in China. Walter Scott, in one of his novels, tells us that in Shetland tea was used by all ranks, at an early day, "the popularity of porridge being quite exploded." In Rome and Florence the influx of Americans and Englishmen has not only upset the coffee-pot altogether, but has brought about a little social revolution, the tea-urn in many families being almost as common as the samovar in Russia. In Denmark, too, and in Morocco, the entertainer shows his hospitality to the wayfarer by setting before him a brass tray with tea. Some eleven years ago I spent two days at Tangiers, and I noticed that all classes at the leading hotel drunk tea at two out of their three daily meals, while at my hotel at Gibraltar nearly everybody partook of tea three times a day. Agassiz and Darwin seldom indulged in coffee, while in one of Mr. Howell's novels he tells of a cook in a Main lumber camp, who claimed that he could not fell trees unless he had his pot of tea three times a day, 'made good and strong, with nice treacle to sweeten it."

Buckle, in his tracings of the connections between the intellectual progress of nations and the use of current drinks, favors tea. And Brillat Savarin, that prince of epicures and gastronomers, has said that while he preferred coffee to tea, the latter was the safer beverage; and he affirmed that a man would go mad who drank one litre of strong coffee every day for three months, and that the same amount of tea was less deleterious. Mr. Carnegie, in an interview some years ago, while I was in Edinburg, declared that at present, little or no coffee was used in Scotland, but that 150 years before his countrymen believed that tea brought on dyspepsia, and that its use spread slowly; and that in the extreme north of Scotland the majority of the inhabitants regarded it as a kind of medicine.

The four great tea-drinking peoples of the world are China, Japan, Russia and England, and Scotland. The United States ranks fifth, and is indulging in the habit more and more annually. In Russia tea is drunk as beer is in Germany, wine in Italy and France, and as all kinds of beverages, especially beer and whisky and ice water in the United States. Tea has always been the real beverage in China and Japan, so far as is known, just as native wines and liquors are used in Mexico. The Central American States use thrice as much coffee as tea and wine, partly because an acceptable coffee is raised in Guatemala, and Costa Rica. I saw very little tea drinking in Spain and Portugal; the people of those two countries drink great quantities of their native wines made from poor grapes and liberally sophisticated by selected water. The Russians consume more tea to the individual than any other people, often taking from five to twelve glasses at one sitting—sometimes cold, but generally hot. I once watched an aged Russian at the Paris Exposition of 1889 drink eleven glasses of tea at a single sitting. Buffalo Bill and I were sitting together at a near table, and, I am compelled to admit, we nearly kept up with the Russian on small glasses of Munich beer. But England is a good second to Russia, and few English people are there anywhere in the world that would not go to pieces were they deprived of their 4 o'clock tea. It is a great sight to see these Britishers assemble by hundreds on the terrace at Shepheard's Hotel in Cairo between 4 and 5 o'clock of a winter's afternoon, and each get away with a pot of tea—a good many of them eating the sugar from the hand.

How or when to a year tea-drinking was first introduced into England I have not been able to precisely chronicle, except that it was brought from Holland, and not China. Pepys, in his diary on September 28, 1660, indicated that while he was pretty much at the center of things, admitted that he was behind the times in the use of tea. "I did send for a cup of tea, a China drink," he says, "of which I never had heard of before." The first tea-cups were very small, and it was said of Bishop Gilbert Burnet that for years he drank twenty-five cups between 6 and 11 every morning. Catherine of Braganza, the Queen of Charles II, set a pace of ten cups of an afternoon, Johnson indulged in the astringent beverage immoderately, and wrote himself down as "a hardened and shameless tea drinker. Many others only drink three pounds per annum."

As a cup of black coffee has largely taken the place of the cocktail with the American gentleman in the morning, so will the afternoon tea take the place, it is hoped, of the cocktail with the ladies of an afternoon; for it must be admitted that the cocktail habit has grown with the fair sex during the past twelve years. Nowadays, a large majority of our ladies who have been out shopping or automobiling for two or three hours of an afternoon, and get that desire for something stimulating in the shape of a Martini or a highball, and especially hotel and apartment-house ladies think it incumbent upon them to take a cup of tea, and because, on the whole, they are aware that the latter is safer, politer and more exemplary.

But there are dangers, even in tea-drinking. Indeed, just as there are dangers in coffee-drinking and cocktail absorption. There are dangers along the lines of all lovable and delightful things. The traveler upon steamboat and railroad faces at least some danger. There is danger in the automobile and in the carriage. There are tea-cup dangers in England that have exhausted the nervous systems of tens of thousands of splendid English women and made execrable specimens of impatience out of as many Englishmen. There are thousands of Englishwomen who drink tea at all hours of the day and there are women in the United States and particularly in the States east of the Alleghenies, who keep pots of tea brewing from 10 in the morning until 10 at night. It is a stimulating beverage and its too-frequent use creates a craving for it and requires that the quantity be increased. In this respect excessive tea-drinking is more dangerous than coffee-drinking, and ranks next to the desire for "more" absinthe, liquor, or heavy, sweet wine. Its excessive use is far more injurious than many suppose, because it contains two powerful substances—tannic acid and theine, which assimilation converts the thin, delicate skin of portions of the stomach into what may be called hide. The excessive use of liquors does the same, but plays its part more rapidly and more hideously than does the excessive use of tea. Another danger, but not so alarming a one, is the commingling of cream or milk with tea, which often produces dyspepsia or other afflictions, especially when more than a half-pint of tea is drunk rapidly at one time. Even the use of sugar is considered by many scientists and physicians an unpardonable gastronomic solecism.

It is generally understood that the delicate leaf of honest black tea (and no green tea is considered strictly honest by experts and travelers in tea countries) should never touch metal—it should be kept in paper, wood, glass or porcelain. In making a perfect beverage put a small quantity in a porcelain (china) cup, fill the vessel with boiling water, cover it with a porcelain saucer and let it stand three minutes. Then, if you desire to be strictly epicurean, drink only the upper layer of the golden liquid and throw the rest away. Never use sugar nor milk, as the latter ruins the flavor of the tea and injures the stomach; a slice of previously-peeled lemon, or of orange, imparts wholesomeness. Never use green tea, as it is an unripe leaf and has been made so by being cured on copper pans or stained with indigo and chrome yellow, and, therefore, made poisonous.

SWEARING OFF.

Congressmen Quit Cigarettes.

[Brooklyn Eagle:] A few days ago Representative Swager Sherley of Kentucky met Representative Augustus Gardner of Massachusetts on the steps of the House office building. Each was smoking a cigarette.

"Gus," said Shirley, "if you will swear off smoking cigarettes until the Fourth of July, I'll do the same thing."

"I'll go you," said Gardner, and each man tossed away his cigarette.

"If either one of us breaks the pledge," added Sherley, "he will have to buy the other a suit of clothes."

"You're on," said Gardner.

A day later Sherley hunted up Gardner in one of the cloakrooms and said:

"Look here, Gus, I've been thinking about that cigarette bet of ours and I think you have given me the worst of it."

"How's that?" asked Gardner. "Isn't it just as fair for one as it is for the other?"

"No," said Shirley. "On the Fourth of July each one of us will be home. You'll be in Massachusetts, where they have Eastern time. I'll be in Kentucky, where we are on Central time. You will be able to smoke immediately after the clock strikes midnight on July 3, while I will have to wait an hour longer before I can smoke. That isn't a fair deal. You have got one solid hour the best of me. Now, I think I ought to be allowed to smoke after 11 o'clock on the night of July 3."

"I don't see it that way," said Gardner. "If the Fourth of July doesn't begin in Kentucky until an hour later than in Massachusetts, that's Kentucky's fault, and, as a citizen of the State, you will have to accept the conditions."

"Well, are you willing to leave the question to a referee?" asked Sherley. "I'll abide by whatever he says."

Gardner assented to this idea, and by mutual agreement they sought out Representative Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, himself a cigarette smoker. Longworth listened to the arguments on both sides and after mature deliberation rendered the following decision:

"I find that each gentleman must abide by the official time for the section of the country in which he lives. If, however, the gentleman from Kentucky wishes to board an eastbound train on July 3 and ride until he brings himself within the Eastern time zone, then he may smoke just as soon as the gentleman from Massachusetts."

Mr. Sherley shook his head and declared that he did not intend to do any railroad traveling on July 3.

"I'll abide by the decision of the court," he added, "but I want you to understand that from now on I'm in favor of the recall of judges."

How Mayor Shank Swore Off.

[Indianapolis News:] Mayor Shank and Theodore Hewes took a solemn pledge several months ago to quit smoking, and the pledge might have been carried out if neither had broken it. They were at Hot Springs, Ark., and one evening they decided smoking was harmful and that they would discontinue the habit.

Hewes had just two cigars left in a box and handed one to the Mayor, taking the other himself.

"Well, Lew," said Hewes, "we will take one last smoke. Then we will break up the box and throw it out of the window, so we will see nothing to remind us of cigars."

The next morning both of them awakened with a strong desire to smoke. Hewes and the Mayor excused themselves from each other, each declaring he had some business to attend to. Hewes thought he was safe and walked past the hotel cigar stand, but just as he was about to buy he saw the Mayor's eye turned in his direction. Hewes left the store, walked a few blocks, bought a cigar and entering the hotel again by a rear entrance, sat down in the shining chair. He lighted his cigar and just as he began to enjoy it, he opened to look into the adjoining barber shop, and there was the Mayor seated in a chair smoking a big black cigar. Both laughed, and they have been smoking ever since.

Clarence A. Richards of Dennescotta, Me., is said to hold more public offices demanding gratuitous services than any other man in the state. He is a town constable, fire warden, member of the Committee on Appropriations and has just been made chairman of the School Committee. His only compensation is $2, which he receives for acting as moderator at the annual town meeting.

SOCIETY.

Pratt Hyatt, Litchfield, Windrem, Comer, J. H. McKim, A. H. Harris and A. S. Goodale.

Mrs. Clyde Gates entertained the members of the Tuesday Afternoon Club at luncheon, after which cards were played. Mrs. Hutchinson of Pasadena was a special guest and others present were Mesdames M. L. Flint, C. Fred Thompson, Charles Clark, Elliot Hinman, George Belcher, H. B. Davis, V. W. Baker, Clyde Gates, George Cobb, John Yeend, R. S. Midgley, Frank Wilson, H. B. Monroe, F. L. DeArman, D. H. DeArman and Frank Kenyon.

Dr. J. Park Dougall, W. H. Woodbridge, J. K. Ritter of Los Angeles and George F. Ward of Riverside were here on Monday evening to attend the installation of officers of Pomona Canton, I.O.O.F.

Mrs. E. R. Stafford of Los Angeles and her daughter, Mrs. Charles Parker of Knoxville, Tenn., have been visiting Mrs. Edward Parker.

The local lodge of Moose entertained at a ladies' night on Wednesday evening at Knights of Pythias Hall. A musical and literary programme was given by Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Brewster, Robert McGovern, Misses Gleason, Bernice Turney, Leola and Hazel Weigle and Alfred Broad and Alfred Schwichtenberg. Cards and dancing followed the programme.

Miss Madge Bushnell of Laurel avenue entertained on Monday evening in honor of Miss May Elick, who was married to William Jones of San Dimas on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Raymond C. Hill passed several days of the week in Los Angeles with her father, R. F. Tabor.

Mrs. Robert J. Burdette of Pasadena was present at the meeting of the Pomona Ebell Club on Friday afternoon and addressed the members upon the subject of "Home Management." Miss Cora Mohr of East Fifth avenue entertained the members of the Mary Milliken Guild at her home on Monday afternoon.

Mrs. A. A. Van Vleck of Lake City, Minn., who is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hillen, was guest of honor at a picnic luncheon given by the latter on Wednesday at Garvanza Park.

Mrs. Elliott Hinman and Mrs. Frank Lenyon entertained the Union Whist Club at the home of the former on Thursday evening.

Redland.

NOTABLE among the society events of the spring season were two charming "at homes" given on Friday and Saturday afternoons by Mrs. John Hedley Evans and her daughter, Miss Maude Evans, in honor of Miss Eunice York of Boston, who is enjoying an extended stay at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Evans on West Main street. The living-rooms were in festive array, the decorations being entirely of white roses. Miss York has spent several previous winters in Highland and the delightful reunion of friends was much enjoyed. One hundred and twenty invitations were issued for the two "at homes."

Miss Harriette Parsons, Miss Mayme Seely, Miss Villa Nye, Miss Olive Hill and Mrs. Edwin Eugene Orwin were guests in San Bernardino on Wednesday at a delightful party given by Mrs. James Patterson and Miss Grace Kelly in honor of Miss Parsons, who will be a May bride.

Capt. and Mrs. Robert Bosworth tendered their hospitality to the members of the H.T.G.I. Card Club Tuesday evening. Dainty white caps trimmed in red roses had been made for the ladies by the hostess and in the folds of these surprise favors were found numbers which allotted the partners. The regular games of auction bridge were warmly contested and at a late hour a tempting collation was enjoyed. Mr. and Mrs. A. A. True, Miss Villa Nye and Mrs. Elmer Orton were special guests of Mrs. Bosworth and the list of club members include Col. and Mrs. C. W. Prescott, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ethan Allen, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Alhambra.

MR. AND MRS. L. D. ASHTON entertained a party of friends in a delightful and informal manner, last Tuesday evening at their home, No. 219 South Fourth street, in honor of their relatives from Illinois, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Kelley and Mrs. Irene Kelley, who are spending a few weeks in Alhambra. A pleasant evening was passed at games, music and story-telling. Those present: Mr. and Mrs. David Beeson of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Kenyon, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Moran, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ashton, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ashton, Dr. and Mrs. G. P. Waring, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Watson, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Amrose, Mrs. Alice Acton, Miss Ruth Waring, Miss Ethel Bishop, John Powell, Clifford Moran.

One of the society events of the season in Alhambra was the marriage of John W. Kelley and Miss Ethel Louise Montgomery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Montgomery, No. 622 North Wilson avenue, at the home of the bride's parents, Wednesday evening. The decorations were the most elaborate seen here for some time, one end of the parlor was a mass of asparagus plumosus and carnations, 1200 carnations being used, and 100 incandescent lights sparkled through the decorations like so many stars twinkling from a blue sky. As the strains of the wedding march filled the room the happy couple entered, preceded by little Helen Montgomery, who strewed their path with rose leaves; they were met under a huge bell suspended from the canopy of greenery by Rev. Walter S. Reed, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church, who officiated using the ring ceremony. Mr. Kelley was accompanied by his brother Leanord Kelley and Mrs. A. A. Montgomery acted as maid of honor. Those present: Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Utter, Rev. and Mrs. Walter S. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Leon S. Utter, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Lansford, Mr. and Mrs. Asa A. Mr. and Mrs. William F. Costello, No. 432 South Almansor street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss May Paul Costello to Henry F. Holtgrewe of New York, at the Church of Our Lady of Good Council, Brooklyn, April 11. The bride was becomingly attired in a gown of ivory satin draped in chiffon and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley. The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Joseph A. Murphy of New York City, as matron of honor. After a bridal trip to Niagara Falls the young couple located in Brooklyn where they expect to remain for about a year, and then move to Alhambra.

Last Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Robert Webb, No. 328 North Marguerita were given a surprise and housewarming party by a number of their friends who called rather unexpectedly. Mrs. Webb was formerly Miss Amelia Sackett. A pleasant evening was passed at games and music, and refreshments were served. Included in the party were: Mr. and Mrs. J. Blackburn, Rev. and Britton Ross, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Grey, Mr. and Mrs. Pierson, Mrs. Anna Rawson, Mrs. R. B. McLean, Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Ritter, Mrs. William McLean, Mrs. Allen; Misses Ollie Blackburn, Rachael Aifter, Goldie Thomas, Lucille Griffen, Ruth Ekholm, Esther Ekholm, Bonnie Alvin Aifter, Vernon Aifter, Elmer Sackett, Albert Pierson, L. Perkins, Ferguson, Lottie Ekholm; Messrs. Alvin Rawson, Russell Rawson, Clarence McPhail.

The Chabago Club gave a hard time party and dance at the Woman's Club-house last Saturday evening. Those attending appeared in costumes indicating hard times. The young people here chaperoned by Mrs. S. B. Ashbrook and Mrs. James D. Nairne; Messrs. Ralph Seay, Edward Overton, Nell Gregory composed the committee. Refreshments were served. Those present: Misses Louise Sexton, Leone Prichard, Thelma Prichard, Martha Stranskly, Alice Stockholm, Glenna Todd, Ruth Ashbrook, Mabel Page, Elizabeth Macfie, Eleanor Lowell, Miss Humbolt; Messrs. The Music Study Club enjoyed another of its delightful meetings Monday evening at the home of the Misses Erma and Harriette Dunbar on South Almansor street. Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Valk, who have always been so interested in the club, extended an invitation to the girls and their mother, to meet at their home next Thursday evening. After a short business session several very interesting papers were read. A social followed. A huge basket of Cecile Brunner roses formed an exquisite centerpiece, and the places were marked by dainty little hand-painted violins done in sepia with the name in gold. The next regular meeting will be at the home of Miss Ruth Knesel on North Garfield avenue.

Venice.

THE members of the Beta Gama Alpha Sorority Tuesday evening entertained their gentlemen friends at the home of Misses Florence and Clara Wilson on Ocean Spray avenue. A box party was enjoyed at the Venice dancing pavilion and later supper was served at the Wilson home, the girls preparing the meal. Wild mustard and white blossoms were used profusely in decorating and the club colors of yellow and white were carried out in every detail, the place cards being hand-painted with the pretty blossoms. At this affair the informal announcement of the engagement of Frank Pryor and Miss Margaret Walden of Los Angeles was made. Those enjoying this affair included Misses Elizabeth and Dorothy Knox, Lois Wilson, Helen Hawk, Guiger Hutton, Mildred Blakesley, Beulah Gerard, Eleanor Kopta, Frances Wallace and Margaret Walgren; Messrs. Elmer Wilson, Harold Warner, William White, Gilbert Pratt, Sidney Smith, Elon Brown, Innes and Sherwood Kinney, Marshall Wilkinson and Frank Pryor.

Mrs. H. W. Stoll and two daughters, who are well-known here, are en route to Europe, where they are to spend the next fourteen months. They had engaged their staterooms and would have sailed on the Titanic, but for the awful tragedy of the sea. First they were booked on the Olympic, but a broken propeller delayed that ship and they were transferred to the Titanic. After the disaster they changed their plans and sailed on the German-Lloyd Barbarossa, having taken the German steamer in preference to the White Star. Mrs. Stoll is the mother of Mrs. N. Donatelli of this beach and the owner of property in Santa Monica, upon which she expects to build and make her home.

Covina.

A REMARKABLE story was told before the members of the Monday Afternoon Club this week, when Mrs. J. E. Coleman of Los Angeles told of her work among some of the immigrants who come to this coast. Her tender appreciation of the much-abused term, "the brotherhood of man," was exemplified in her story of how she is bringing young people to her own home, especially young girls, and teaching them the simple truths of right living. Mrs. Coleman is making an appeal to the clubs of the State, laying special stress on the Christmas work for the coming season.

The Monday Afternoon Club will entertain two delegates from every woman's club in the valley tomorrow afternoon at what is known as "Reciprocity Day." A luncheon will be served at noon under the direction of Mrs. C. A. Leighton. Miss Emma Hawkes is in charge of the reception, Mrs. W. W. Nash of the programme, and Mrs. E. V. Rice of the automobile sight-seeing trip about the valley.

Mrs. Joe Heath, while entertaining some friends at a dinner party in honor of her own birthday on Monday evening, was surprised by a number of friends, and the birthday of H. M. Milliken, which fell on the same date, was also celebrated.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles King and children of Omaha, Neb., who have purchased a ranch at the corner of Rowland avenue and Hollenbeck street, are visiting their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. M. Carlsen for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. William Searcy and two daughters arrived this week from Platt county, Missouri, and are guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Coltrin and Mrs. J. W. Heath.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Girod are entertaining their nephew and niece, George and Gladys Keepin of Oak Park, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stewart entertained, this week, Mr. and Mrs. Al Griffith of Floyd, Iowa.

The wedding of James Wells and Miss Mary Hall took place Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Holy Episcopal Church, Rev. Alfred Fletcher officiating. The young people were attended by immediate relatives. Miss Hall was formerly a grammar school teacher here, and Mr. Wells is a well-known business man.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Lemon, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lorenz and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Thompson of Lodi, were guests, this week, of old friends here.

Ontario.

CHIEF among the delightful affairs of the week was the reciprocity day of the Friday Afternoon Club, at which the members of the Ramblers' Club were the guests of honor. The home of Mrs. Cornelius Garrett Henry Bennink was artistically decorated for the occasion in bridal wreath and huge bowls of ranunculus, the club colors being used. When the guests had assembled they were asked to pass into the "art gallery," where they enjoyed an hour guessing the objects representing the name on the list of pictures given them. Mrs. Ross Petch Garbutt captured the first prize, a handsome hand-painted brooch, while Mrs. Franklin Augustus Ross was awarded the guest prize, an exquisite hand-painted plate. Following the contest a dainty luncheon was served. Those who enjoyed the pleasant afternoon included Mrs. Cornelius Garrett Henry Bennink, Mrs. Wellington Arthur Freemire, Mrs. Nathaniel L. Mitchell, Mrs. Robert Orwig Brackenridge, Mrs. George P. Daum, Mrs. Frank L. Shimmin, Mrs. Ross Petch Garbutt, Mrs. George B. Sell, Mrs. Richard H. Gushee, Mrs. Seapy, Mrs. Archibald T. Hamilton, Mrs. Franklin Augustus Ross, Mrs. Howard Raymond Berg, Mrs. Samuel H. Gardner, Mrs. Orrin Zeigler Hubbell, Mrs. Bathurst Bellars Mann, Mrs. Jacob Jesson, Mrs. A. Kortwright Neales, Mrs. S. C. Henderson, Mrs. Ulysses Grant Durfee, Mrs. Christopher Sheppard, Mrs. George Arthur McCrea, Mrs. Orville S. Ensign, Mrs. Orrin N. Steele, Mrs. Henry Edson Swan, Mrs. Charles L. Lampkin, Mrs. Jefferson Taylor, Mrs. Ernest W. Thayer, Mrs. T. Kirth, Mrs. Nicholas A. Cavanagh, Miss Mary Pollock, Miss Myrtle Seapy, Miss Kessie A. Monroe and Miss Wise.

At their beautiful new home in West H street, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Hugo Mertz charmingly entertained Friday evening at progressive five hundred. Red carnations and feathery ferns added to the attractiveness of the room, and following the tournament, at which seven tables were used, a dainty collation was served. The prizes were captured by Mrs. Edwin Cramer and Lester R. Kennedy. Those who enjoyed the delightful hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Mertz included Miss Ala Ballou, Mrs. Earl Holmes Richardson, Mrs. Zebulon Samuel Skinner, Mrs. Reve Robinson Alston, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Earl Ashley, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Ray Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Harris Frankish, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pierce Fuller, Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. de Arman, Mr. and Mrs. Earle B. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Cramer, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Thatcher, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. James Aubrey, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. White, Albert Reynolds and Leonard J. Frankish.

Mrs. Earl M. Hill entertained very pleasantly Friday afternoon at her home in Bonita Court with a reception in compliment to her sisters, the Misses Agnes and Alice McVittie, who are to return soon to their home in Detroit after spending the winter here; to Mary Goss, who leaves next week for an extended eastern visit, and to Miss Marian Blood of Wheeling, W. Va., who is the guest of Mrs. Herbert Isbelle Ross of West A street. The rooms were attractively decorated for the occasion, California poppies being used in the living-room and red carnations in the dining-room. Light refreshments were served. Those calling during the afternoon included Mrs. Abraham Lewis Hill, Mrs. Julius Briggs, Mrs. Lester Ray Kennedy, Mrs. Reid Bordwell, Mrs. C. L. Head, Mrs. Jay Holbrook, Mrs. Paul Wright Nichols, Mrs. Byron P. Glenn, Mrs. Charles Stockdale Orr, Mrs. Edward Vollum Caldwell, Mrs. Charles O. Goss, Miss Mabel Gray, Miss Lola Case, Miss Isabel Osborne, Miss Olive Granger, Miss Harriet Granger, Miss Tenneriffe Temple, Miss Amanda Gerry, Miss Eva Gerry, Miss Maude Gerry, Miss Helen St. Amand, Miss Helen Chadwick, Miss Ismay Chadwick, Miss Frieda Graettinger, Miss Grace Elliot, Miss Grace Smyth, Miss Katheryn Salter, Miss Winifred Smith, Miss Minnie Hubbell, Miss Zella Bryan, Miss Laurel Mayhew and Miss Mary Case.

Miss Ala Ballou entertained Thursday evening at her home, No. 315 West E street, with a charmingly-appointed bridge party. The house was converted into a perfect rose garden for the occasion, the beautiful flowers being placed in huge hanging baskets. Four tables were used at the games. The prizes were captured by Miss Grace Craft and Hugh H. Frankish. Following the games a tempting collation was served. Those present included Mr. and Mrs. Lester Ray Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Harris Frankish, Miss Grace Craft, Miss Frieda Graettinger, Miss Mary Goss, Miss Grace Elliot, Miss Gertrude Hobby, Miss Muriel Hamilton, Miss Frieda Graettinger, Clarence C. Peabody, Darwin G. Graettinger, Rupert Graettinger, Otto S. Roen, Albert Reynolds and Leonard J. Frankish.

Santa Monica.

MISS RUTH SMITH has returned to her home on Fraser avenue after a pleasant two months visit with friends in San Bernardino.

The local lodge of Elks are making plans for a May party to be given at the Venice Country Club, Wednesday evening, May first.

Mrs. H. A. Eddy has returned to her home in Loraine, Ohio, after a delightful three months visit at the beach. She hopes to return soon, accompanied by her husband, to make this her permanent home. Mrs. Eddy is a sister of C. E. Holbrook of Venice.

The members of the Sunshine Society met at the home of Mrs. S. R. Pyles, No. 2917 Third street Wednesday afternoon to bid her mother, Mrs. Harriet Garwood, farewell before leaving for Denver, where she will be the guest of her daughter, for several months.

The Santa Monica Bay Women's Club met Monday afternoon at Odd Fellows Hall, a large number being present. Mrs. Gugen of Santa Monica gave a short talk on "Making music interesting for Children." She spoke of the methods employed in teaching children music and that if one could make it as a game that the children would be apt to grasp it more readily. F. W. Thomas, the speaker of the afternoon, gave as his topic "The Place of Play in Mental Life." He spoke of Play being the part of every human being from the cradle to the grave. He said that work was play in the lives of some simply for the joy of doing it, while with others, it came as a duty. He spoke of dancing as a splendid play for the young while with the professional, it was work. Mr. Thomas's lecture was logical and convincing.

Thursday evening the Women's Club took possession of the Majestic Theater on Oregon avenue and celebrated the birthday anniversary of the president of the club, each member bringing a sack containing a penny for each year of the age of the member. The money thus raised was added to the clubhouse fund, which is rapidly approaching that point which means the beginning of work. The programme, arranged to cover each month of the year, included these interesting numbers:

January, "A New Year's Prophesy," arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jones; February, "Washington's Birthday," the Menuet arranged by Mrs. Fabrique; March, "Saint Patrick's Day," an Irish peasant scene arranged by Mrs. W. F. Thurston; April, "Cutting the Birthday Cake;" April 25, the board of directors and clubhouse committee; May, The May Pole Dance, arranged by Mrs. H. J. Engelbrecht; June, Whistling solo, Mrs. Rosalynd Brunner with Mrs. Musette Sands at the piano; July, "The Spirit of Seventy-six," arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jones; August, "Just Boy's Vacation Days," monologue by Mrs. C. H. Burdick; September, violin solo, Arthur Gripp assisted by Miss Mary Neff at the piano; October, "Joe" from Bleak House, character sketch, by Mrs. Charles Rose, Mr. Backus; November, Moving Pictures, contributed by the Majestic Theater; December, A Christmas Eve Reverie, arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jones.

Under a bower of rosebuds and greenery, the impressive ceremony, uniting in marriage, Miss Grace James and Mr. William Crawford was performed Saturday at 1 o'clock at the home of the bride No. 1341 Fourteenth street by Rev. W. H. Cornett of the First Presbyterian Church. The Lohengrin wedding march was played by Miss Neff and preceding the ceremony, Miss Pauline Mathews accompanied by Miss Neff at the piano, sang "O Promise Me." After the ceremony "I have You Truly" was rendered by Miss Mathews. The bride was attired in a gown of white marquisette embroidered and trimmed with rare lace. She wore orange blossoms in her hair and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and maiden hair fern. The young couple were unattended, except for the bride's father, Thomas H. James, who gave the bride away. After a brief visit at San Diego, the young couple will go to Bakersfield to make that city their home, Mr. Crawford being in business there.

Circle Brooches

For Graduation and Bridesmaid's Gifts

These artistic new creations are among the most beautiful and clever jewel productions ever shown in Los Angeles. Their chief characteristic is the circle—emblematic of the endless circle of friendship—and because of this sentimental character, they are extremely appropriate and popular for graduation and bridesmaid's gifts.

These clever new ideas in brooches are shown in Los Angeles exclusively by Brock & Company. Our display includes an almost infinite variety of distinctive designs in 14 karat gold, plain chased—in 14 karat gold with colored enamels—in 14 karat gold gem set—in platinum gem set—and in platinum closely paved with perfect diamonds.

To all interested in choosing gifts of a distinctive character—a visit to the house of Brock & Company will prove most interesting and profitable. You are cordially welcome to come here at your convenience and spend as much time as you wish studying our wares.

THE HOUSE OF BAIR LADIES TAILORS

IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Los Angeles High School.

The classes in horticulture have recently had some practical demonstrations of the gentle art of tree planting, in more or less barren soil. Holes were blasted in the parkway along the front of the Science Building. Good soil was put into these excavations and a deep ditch was dug and partly filled with broken tiles and stones to serve as a drain and so prevent water standing on the roots of the trees. When the new sidewalk, which is now being put down, has been completed trees will be set out on both sides of the street. In addition to this the lighting company has agreed to put its poles on the east side of the street so that the new trees and grass will give the effect of a broad park-like sweep leading up to the top of the hill. In the face of the most stubborn resistance from the soil, the school grounds are each year becoming more and more beautiful. This spring a new lot of trees will be set out in the vicinity of the girls' gymnasium.

Many of the women teachers and girl students have just spent a strenuous week in applied domestic art. Sewing machines were rented and Dr. Edward's office converted into a sewing room for the production of costumes to be worn by the girls' gymnasium classes when they appear in a series of folk dances.

Complimentary tickets for the Shakesperean play were sent to the neighboring intermediate and grammar schools as well as to neighbors of the Los Angeles High School. The performance was given Friday by members of the classes in expression Great interest was shown by the production which proved a success from first to last.

Part 1 of the programme, "Ye Bard of Avon's Dream," arranged and presented by T. Howard Wilson, instructor in oral expression, was dainty and unique, the cast being as follows: Shakespeare, Harland Graham, Hamlet, Burton Browne, Ophelia, Magdalena Specht, Brutus, Scott, Moon, Cassius, Frank Walker, King Henry V., Walter Gores, Queen Katherine, Esther Liversidge, Alice, Mercedes Bloom, Orlando, Maurice Gibson, Rosalind, Gertrude McLin, Jacques, Percy Lyons, Celia, Ruth Lowery, Fiorizel, LeRoy Crawford, Perdita, Emma Crans, Polixenes, James Bullis, Camillo, Paul Kegley, Hero, Rose Bondiman, Ursula, Cora Hunt, Beatrice, Ruth Benson, Margaret, Edna Easley, Romeo, Wayland Angur, Juliet, Gretta Grey, Titania, Carla Bostelman, Puck, Charmion Poyser, Oberon, Robert Poston; Fairies, Gladys Taylor, Grace Austin, Sadie Drummond, Felicitas Bloom.

Part II. consisted of scenes from "Ye Merchant of Venice," under the direction of Miss Leno E. Cooper. The characters were cleverly sustained and were cast as follows: Duke of Venice, C. Franklin Lee; Antonio, Bruce Findlay; Bassanio, Edwin W. Miller, Will Ellemndorf; Gratiano, Arthur Morse, Reed Sprinkle; Lorenzo, Leroy W. Cate, John Bessalo; Salarino, Paul Stritch; Botanio, Elmer Belt; Shylock, Harrie Morley, Samuel H. Watters; Tubal, Harvey Setchel; Clerk of Court, Harvey George; Balthazar, Arnold Wilson; Portia, Erna Taylor, Gertrude Pentland, Louise Fazenda; Nerissa, Leona Backer, Lucile Carlyon, Lena Rosenkranz; Jessica, Alta Gaynor.

Mr. Housh has appointed a committee from the faculty to take charge of providing decorations for the faculty lunch-room. In addition to works of art for the walls, window boxes for plants will be installed. Also some member at each table will provide table decorations for one week.

The try-out for the Senior A class play, "The Road of Yesterday," will be held Monday after school. The big class of 300 is full of dramatic talent and each member seems anxious to make the cast.

The members of the Boys' Glee Club were the guests of the Ellis Club last week. They were especially appreciative of the programme as they are taking up "Cadman's North American Songs," under the direction of Miss Blythe.

Agricultural High School.

The raising of cotton and rice is being experimented with at Agricultural High School. This is being done on the suggestion of Mrs. Craig, member of the Board of Education, who believes that these will be important products in California within a few years.

Polytechnic High.

The Students' League will give a vaudeville performance in the auditorium next Wednesday evening, the main features of which are dramatic sketches written by Poly boys and to be presented by Poly students. One is entitled, "The Brute," and is by William Pierson, already the author of a number of plays, which he has presented with the assistance of his stock company; the other is "The Angel Lady," by Dick Morgan, Poly's popular actor, who will make his first appearance as an actor-playwright on Wednesday. Other boys will exhibit their various talents, musical and terpsichorean, and the "show" bids fair to be a great success.

The cookery department is about to take possession of two newly-equipped rooms, a household kitchen and a dining-room, located in the dwelling recently purchased for the purpose. The dining-room has been redecorated and recurtained by the girls, and will make a homelike place for entertainments. A cabinet has been designed for this room by Constance Grose, a student in the architectural department, and will be built in the shops. Seniors in domestic science work will give a series of luncheons to the faculty, beginning next Friday with a May Day affair given by Florence Alvarez, Hazel Robb, Annis Putnam and Irene Murray. The guests will be Miss Ross, Miss Kimble, Miss Dunbar, Mr. Vandegrift, Mr. Barker, Mr. Moore and Dr. Gardner.

Faculty men who can still remember their boyhood have been out on the diamond getting their baseball muscles into training. Senior A's and P. G.'s are kind to them, nobly refraining from defeating them by scores that would be ignominious. It is rumored that a like valiant squad from the Manual Arts faculty will cross bats with the Poly pedagogues in the near future. Messrs. Miller, Keller, Bailey, Barker and Vandegrift are the stars for Poly.

The German Club held its regular meeting Friday, the programme being entirely devoted to Ludwig Uhland. The entertainment opened with "Der Wirten Tochterlun," sung by the club. Greta Palmer gave a short "life" of Uhland, and his ballads were recited by Misses Bessie Miller, Mary Koenig, Katrine Crabtree, Clara Schorsch, Jessie Close, Shenn Strug, Ella Reichhardt, Camilla Lewis, and Messrs. Edward Fredenberg, Thomas Reynolds, Frank Doolittle, Charles Stoddard, Victor Johanssen, Martin Masterwich, Clarence Eisenmeyer and Frank Frank. Helen Rockwell gave a vocal solo, delightfully rendered, and Eda Secar played a piano solo. The meeting closed with "Der Gute Kamerod," by the club.

The French Club entertained the French Consul, M. Louis Sentous, at its meeting Friday. Bessie Gibson recited charmingly "Le Petit Frantz." Miss Jones gave a piano solo, and the club played a short sketch, "Ville on la Campagne," the parts being cleverly acted.

Water colors and oils by Travers Jones have been on exhibit in the art building this week, and most of them have been purchased by faculty members and senior students.

A number of Poly girls will assist in seating the audience at the Titanic benefit to be given at the Temple Auditorium, following the European custom of employing women ushers.

Twenty Poly girls will take part in "Jappyland," at the benefit for the McKinley Industrial Home, to be given by the Ebell Club at an early date.

Miss Lydia Neilson of the seniors was chosen by an unanimous vote of girl students and women of the faculty, to represent St. Barbara on the Santa Barbara float in the Shriner's Mission parade.

The society of Japanese students has again presented the school with a testimonial of their loyalty. This time it is in the shape of two handsome volumes to be added to the library—Count Okuma's "Fifty Years of New Japan."

Manual Arts.

As a development of the handling of the money in connection with the school cafeteria, a new departure has been worked out by F. J. Armstrong, head of the commercial department. At present something like $25,000 is handled yearly by the students. The noon meal for a school of 1400 runs into money. While certain phases of the work in serving food and taking money can be done by the students without hindrance to their school work, yet there are many of the operations—mechanical and technical, that call for an outlay of time and a kind of skill not advisable to give the students. This work is done by a carefully selected staff. They are engaged by the student body officers, who also arrange with Mrs. Hoffman, the capable head of the corps, what labor-saving machinery is required, what supplies are to be ordered, and the nature of the food to be furnished. Wages, equipment and bills for supplies are paid through the commercial department.

Mr. Armstrong has asked the council of the student body to consider a scheme for encouraging saving among the students. Three forms of vouchers will be sold wherever money is handled in the school. These will be for small amounts of a nickel or less. When enough stamps and cards are collected, they will be exchanged for dollar certificate, made out in the name of the person taking it. Interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum will be paid semi-annually. These certificates will be transferrable only on surrender, when new ones will be issued to the new owner. The stamps and cards will be sold in the classrooms by the student's secretary, in the book exchange, and in the cafeteria. They will be issued to those selling tickets for special concerts, etc. In this way the bank will be well advertised, and the idea of saving will be kept ever before the students. The sellers of the stamps—the tellers—will report at stated times to the treasurer of the student body. The books will be kept by the advanced commercial students, and under the supervision of the commercial staff. The new bank will be backed by the student body, in fact, it will be their bank, and they will be responsible for its running. The Los Angeles Trust and Savings Bank will hold the deposits and look after exchange drafts. It is expected that the new bank will be of use to the residents and firms of the locality.

Mountain Trip.

J. Samuel Lacy, principal of McKinley Home School, who is to take a party of boys on a trip up the Kern River Canyon this summer, reports many applications.

A nature school will be maintained throughout the entire summer and specialists in botany and geology, as well as an expert ornithologist and taxidermist, will accompany the excursions. A competent photographer will also be of the party. A physician and a physical director will help direct the sports of the boys, and native guides of many years' experience will lead the rambles of the divisions each day.

The trip is to be by rail to Lemon Cove, by stage to Three Rivers, in the foothills of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, followed by a two days' tramp to the permanent camp of the nature school at Mineral King. Special points of interest are the Sequoia National Park, the Giant Forest, the marvelous canyons of the Kern, and Mt. Whitney, with its glorious views.

Special Truant School.

The new special school for truants, being erected on a corner of the Boyle Heights Intermediate School site, while merely a temporary arrangement, is, according to Assistant Superintendent Bettinger, more nearly ideal than any other school of its kind in the city. It is to be an open-air school, with disappearing windows, has ample manual training facilities, and is situated on several acres of ground, where the boys can play and cultivate their gardens.

Special Teacher Complimented.

Miss Ella Nevell, assistant supervisor of manual training, was the recipient of a pretty compliment on Thursday at the last of her teachers' meetings, in the form of a huge bouquet of scarlet tulips, presented by the teachers of her class.

Berendo Street School.

Charles F. Edson gave a recital on Thursday afternoon before the assembled faculty and students. Beginning with the reading of Kipling's "L'Envoi," he followed with Scotch and Russian folk songs, and some of his own delightful compositions, interspersing the musical numbers with illustrative talks on music, and selections from American poets. His work was enthusiastically applauded by his big audience.

Sixty-second Avenue School.

"Are you a baseball fan?" was the leading question at the Sixty-second avenue—social center, Saturday evening. "Do you want to play ball?" was the next question. The answer was fully demonstrated by a scene somewhat equal to that of a typical bargain sale or of an old-time mobbing of the umpire. Dads, would-be dads, and granddads jumped on the "joy wagon" with a vim. None of your "no-hit, no-run" games when this aggregation gets down to business. It will be one continuous "Marathon" from the first ball out of the box. It's all to take place on the block set aside for the Arroyoside Carnegie Library, bounded by Pasadent avenue, Piedmont street and Avenue 61. The time will be 2 p.m. any Saturday afternoon.

This Arroyoside Library seems to have taken a grip on the whole community. Wednesday evening, May 1, a cantata will be given at the Sixty-second avenue school to pay off the last hundred dollars necessary to purchase the library site. It promises to be the gayest time of the year.

MRS. FRANCIS EMROY WARREN.

Wife of the Senator from Wyoming. Mrs. Warren was Miss Clara Morgan, Daughter of the Late John S. Morgan of New York, and the niece of the Retired Associate Justice Brown of the Supreme Court of the United States.

BY MARGARET B. DOWNING.

Mrs. Francis E. Warren.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—A social event of last June which was of supreme interest was the marriage of Senator Francis E. Warren of Wyoming and Miss Clara Morgan, niece of Associate Justice Henry C. Brown now retired, well known to a large circle of friends through her yearly visits to his home. The wedding was quietly celebrated in Hotel Gotham in New York City and only a few relatives and friends were present. This important event occurred during rather busy days from a legislative standpoint and the Senator had to hurry back to the capital to take up the thread of public duty temporarily sundered by Cupid. But when occasion permitted, Mr. Warren took his bride on an extended and entirely unique honeymoon tour as present-day civilized conditions can afford. In the whirl of a winter in which one delightful function followed another, when friends vied with each other to show her honor for her own sake and for that of her husband, Mrs. Warren looks back on that trip through Wyoming last summer as something so wonderful and entrancing that it seemed almost a dream.

Senator Warren timed his departure from Washington in order that Mrs. Warren could be present at that famous Wyoming Frontier show, a westernized idea of a country fair with the decided difference that everything is merely for exhibition and nothing for sale. This show has long been celebrated and people travel from afar to be present. It lasts a week and every moment is filled with events startling and entertaining even for those who live in the renowned former kingdom of the cowboys. To Mrs. Warren it was a revelation. The riding alone she thinks is worth crossing the continent to see. One feature is the catching and breaking of perfectly wild horses, another harnessing and driving buffaloes and of lassoing cattle.

"It was very much like what I have seen since I was a small child in the Wild West shows," said Mrs. Warren, "only this was the real performance, and the others merely a reproduction of it. It makes a vast difference when you know that the horses are absolutely wild and bridled and ridden for the first time and when the method of doing so is shown you in a circus ring. I found the same satisfaction with regard to the buffaloes and the entire exhibition was something which an easterner can not faintly imagine and before which our most vaunted riding displays pale. The varied products of the State were also displayed, and this week gave me a better idea of Wyoming, its agricultural wealth, its mines and its world-renowned live stock than the reading of hundreds of books on the subject would have done.

"But the people impressed me even more ahan their magnificent country, if that could be possible. I was charmed with their breadth of thought, their hospitality and infectious progressiveness. Cheyenne is a small city as the term goes in the East, but a most complete one when modern conveniences are applied. The homes are luxurious as in the East, the manner of living just the same, except perhaps wth the balance of favor with Cheyenne because of the superb climate. Trying to analyze the particular charm of the people, it is, I believe, caused by their earnestness, their courage and their well-tried abilities to grasp the problems which life in the far West presents. I admired their courage most of all. To grapple with the wilderness and to conquer it seemed heroic. We of the East used to paved streets, and all the comforts of a well-populated country, cannot even comprehend the mental and physical stamina of those who cut down the forest primeval, blast the rocks and build their cities where no white man has trod before them.

"After this delightful experience in Cheyenne, Sentor Warren had arranged what turned out to be a perfect way to see some of the fine State which is to be my home. Those who have never traveled in the overland trains which eat up the distance between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans miss much pleasure. These trains were a revelation to me and I have traveled in that division of the union called the East and Middle West. The end car of the suite of trains is made of glass, an observation car which might be termed a boudoir or a veranda in an elegantly appointed home. There are revolving chairs, small moveable tables, reading matter, all that one needs for comfort when ordinary duties have been suspended. We traveled in this luxury until we reached the small town of Cody, named for the great scout, Buffalo Bill. But on the way, I was delighted with glimpses of agricultural country, for Wyoming has now turned attention to the soil and the days of the great cattle ranges are gone. Ranches seem incredibly far apart, but we would pass small settlements of two or three houses and invariably a large substantial school house. I am told that these schools are well filled though the surrounding country seemed to be entirely depopulated. There was a comforting number of spires pointing upward and proclaiming that things spiritual claim as much attention as material development. At Cody we changed from the luxurious train to a motor car and thus began our tour to the objective point of our journey, the National Yellowstone Park.

"I thought myself quite adventuresome to start on such an expedition without a troop of cavalry in the rear, but Wyoming of today is far removed from Wyoming of wild west stories, and I can claim only one or two experiences. One was the capsising of the motor car, but we all escaped with a few scratches and the other was that the train was held up by a washout. No Indians or bold bad man impeded our progress, and though it would be quite proper to be able to relate blood curdling escapes, we accepted their loss quite philosophically. After speeding for a day through glorious mountain scenery, we spent the night in a small log cabin fitted up by the Cody Company for those who follow the new route to the Yellowstone from Cody to Pahaska. Only then I realized that we had left cities and modern conditions far behind and reached the heart of nature. The absolute wildness and the voiceless solitude awed me even more than the wonders of the park did afterwards. The cabin was well stocked with food and there was a fine cook to prepare it. Banquets in palaces are not to be named with the feast spread in one of these log cabins at the foot of these rugged mountains. The ranches which dot the landscape are treasure houses for the tourist. Chickens, fresh eggs, home-cured hams, and vegetables fresh and dried are all to be obtained and awaiting the motors which climb from Cody upward towards the park.

"There are three ways to see this magnificent government play ground. One is to rent everything yourself, plan your own tour and select your camping grounds at pleasure. The second is to permit the companies which possess government concessions to provide you with horses and guides, and the third is to hire a complete camping outfit and guides to conduct you through with least loss of time and without recrossing your path. Any of them are worth while and I could not recommend one more than another. The inns and hotels in the park are owned by the government, but are leased by private individuals. They are such hotels as Americans demand whether they travel in North, South, East or West. The Grand Canyon Hotel is a hostelry which would be impressive in the heart of New York City. Imagine it then in this glory of mountain and sky where no other building obtrudes on the attention. The food is bountiful and excellent, prepared with skill and there is every luxury which modern ingenuity can suggest. All through the park these comfortable inns or hotels are scattered and make the tour as easy and health-giving as though one were traveling in the oldest country of the old world. The Old Faithful Inn near the geyser of the same name appealed to me because of its quaintness. This geyser, which bursts forth every hour into a lofty stream, the vapor of which turns to every hue in the sunlight, is justly considered one of the wonders of the world. This continual phenomenon has been noted since this wonderful region became known. Sitting leisurely on the porch of Old Faithful Inn a megaphone informs you that the geyser is about to burst forth and scarcely have you turned to look when the volume of boiling water streams upwards in the clear, bright sunlight. They say that those who live near Niagara Falls are no longer impressed with its wonders. Perhaps those who reside for long near the Old Faithful geyser might get used to its magic effects; but it did not seem possible to me."

Mrs. Warren has secured a number of views of her favorite spots in this vast laboratory of nature and she has taken the trip over and over this winter describing her experiences to her friends. Senator Warren has a pleasant home in Cheyenne and there he took his bride after this tour of the national park. Mrs. Warren is enthusiastic over Wyoming and especially its capital city. She found the high dry atmosphere a tonic after the prolonged heat of the East last summer. Her neighbors and friends gave her a genuine western welcome and nothing can better express her satisfaction with her new domicile than the fact that though she feared to be homesick for the East, she found life too attractive and busy for the tiniest regrets and when she returned to Washington in December she found herself homesick for the West, for the bracing air, for the bustle and contentment of the frontier and for the glorious scenery which added so much joy to life.

instrumentalists, in a musical act which recently formed an important part of the Winter Garden entertainment; Rice, Elmer and Tom, daring horizontal bar performers, quite lustily celebrated for their display of nerve in mid-air; Jennings & Renfrew, who will be heard in a repertoire of new songs of their own composition and an abundance of bright, breezy dialogues.

Adolphus.

"The Belle of Broadway," commencing tomorrow, is another of the delightful comedies that has made the Adolphus famous in the short while it has been devoted to musical comedy, and gives Frank Morton a chance to turn loose another regiment of his little joys.

Jack Bradshaw, as Adolf Shultz, a German brewer, is a close second; dainty little Gladys Vaughn, as the brewer's wife, has an opportunity to show some more wonderful gowns and also to put over a few song hits in her own charming manner, and winsome Winnie Baldwin plays the part of Helen Towne, the Belle of Broadway. Clinton Melville and Joe Jancke are in their respective laugh-producing roles well up to their standard of excellence, and the singing, dancing, fine-looking chorus surpasses expectation.

"CHANTECLER" COMING.

"Chantecler," Edmond Rostand's famous play, will be presented at the Mason Operahouse a week from today next, with Maude Adams in the title role. The production will be the same as was seen during the greater part of last season at the Knickerbocker Theater in New York.

That there is a great deal of interest in the coming of this play is but natural, for it stands as the most widely-heralded work that the stage has had within the memory of man. There is little that can be told regarding the story of the piece that deals with the birds and fowls and animals of the barnyard with which the theater-going, as well as the reading, public is not familiar.

In the prelude the absence of all humans is explained and the introduction of the audience into the kindled fire is to follow. The ascending curtain then discloses the barnyard and what seems to be the clubhouse, on the evening of Thursday, May 2. The exhibition is to be held in the auditorium.

The jury of admission of the California Art Club will consist of Willard Wendt, Franz Bischoff, Aaron Kilpatrick, Jack W. Smith and Charles Percy Austin. The Hanging Committee will be chosen from among the jury. Press view will be on Wednesday afternoon, May 1.

This exhibition is an exceptional opportunity for the club, and it is to be hoped that all members will strive to be represented by their best work. The attention that will be drawn to the club's work nationally, through the fact that most of the delegates to the convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, which takes place in San Francisco, will visit Los Angeles during the month of May, will be invaluable in giving the club a standing throughout the country.

one, am glad to have the opportunity to see these excellent examples from his facile brush. Perhaps he is a better painter today than he was when he executed these homely studies—perhaps his brush-work is more brilliant—but in sentiment he remains the same. And these lovely canvases leave nothing to be desired.
At Royar's Gallery.

There is no formal exhibition of pictures at Royar's, No. 744 South vases by some of our well-known painters can be seen there.

There is a beautiful moonlight, in delicate grays, lavenders and pale browns, by the late Henry Koch, who always painted poetically. This is in oils. His son, Jakob Koch, shows an interesting study in water colors, rugged, snow-clad California mountains, range upon range, down the nearest of which a waterfall flings itself from dizzy heights.

C. A. Fries has an agreeable study of grapes and peaches; M. Braun, a picture of eucalyptus tree-trunks seen in vivid sunlight; Frederick Roland Ward some sketches, and also a well-painted coast study.

Franz Bischoff's San Pedro sketch is good and Hanson Puthuff shows a splendid study of rocks and sea, a vivid thing from Laguna.

Mannheim at Kanst's.

Jean Mannheim has gone to New York and Boston to paint portraits. His studio is "cleaned out," devastated, bare. He had only seven pictures when he left, and these are now being shown in the Kanst gallery, No. 643 South Spring street.

Exactly why the seven are still unsold is not clear, for they are certainly all good canvases. Furthermore, they are representative of the painter's different "manners" during his artistic career. Mannheim has always been an eager student, an enthusiastic experimentalist, and his pictures are authentic records of his ideas. Steadily he has made for directness and simplicity of handling for vividness of impression. It is interesting to know that the same hand which painted "Leslie," shown in the present exhibition, also painted the "Girl Filling a Vase." The comparison is illuminating as well as interesting.

"Leslie" is the head of a little girl seen in profile. Her hair is knotted at the back, and she looks like a delicate Peche, pure, sweet, innocent. The face is delicately modeled, and with a tender carefulness which bears not slight resemblance to Mannheim's earnest method of broad, free, colorful brush-strokes. The cool background of green leaves is very attractive—quite as pleasing, in its way, as the sunny yellows and richer greens of the background of "Girl Filling a Vase," a study of one of the painter's charming little daughters. The face of this small maid is also seen in profile, but the sun of Southern California has given it a glowing vitality. She is clad in wincy brown, and is standing near an open window, on whose ledge the squat vase is placed. The bent wrist, as well as the face, are beautifully painted.

"Man Seen by Lamplight" is also painted with extraordinary breadth, freedom and truth to the outward aspect of things. The bearded man smiling over the table might be a first cousin to Raffles, so sinister is his aspect. You can't see what he is doing, but you suspect he is "burgling." The yellow gleam of the lamp-chimney is rendered with great skill, and the picture is dashingly painted throughout. It's a small canvas, but as direct and forceful as a Frans Hals.

Several San Pedro subjects, the smaller one remarkably good, are also in Mannheim's later manner. But the two largest canvases in the exhibition are like Dutch genres, full of sad hues and a melancholy atmosphere. They are of the school of Josef Israels in subject and treatment. And they are fine paintings, too, done with knowledge and authority, though perhaps some of the poses are a trifle self-conscious.

One of the canvases, "News From the Battlefield," shows us three figures grouped round a table faintly lighted by a broad-curtained window. A man in a blue blouse is reading a letter, while an old woman and a younger one are listening with strained and eager attention. The old woman's head is silhouetted against the window.

"Four Generations" gives, of course, a quartette of figures. It is a study of childhood, youth and age. And it is also a Dutch family group sympathetically observed. The old, old man in the background is lost in thought. The child in the foreground, where only one leg is seen, is charmingly natural—it is, indeed, the best figure in the picture. The old woman is spinning, and the younger woman holds a skein.

Jean Mannheim paints Dutch interiors no more, and therefore I, for one, am glad to have the opportunity to see these excellent examples from his facile brush. Perhaps he is a better painter today than he was when he executed these homely scenes—perhaps his brush-work is more brilliant—but in sentiment he is the same. And these lovely canvases leave nothing to be desired.

Kanst's Gallery.

There is no formal exhibition of pictures at Royar's, No. 744 South Broadway, this week, yet a few canvases by some of our well-known painters can be seen there.

There is a beautiful moonlight, in which grays, lavenders and pale greens, by the late Henry Koch, who painted poetically. This is in the show, as is Jakob Koch, shows an interesting study in water colors, rugged snow-clad California mountains, the upper range, down the nearest of which a waterfall flings itself from the skies.

A. Fries has an agreeable study of apples and peaches; M. Braun, a study of eucalyptus tree-trunks seen against sunlight; Frederick Roland Ward some sketches, and also a well-done coast study.

Paul Bischoff's San Pedro sketch and Hanson Puthuff shows a good study of rocks and sea, a fine thing from Laguna.

Art Club's Exhibition.

Following the decision of the California Art Club at the meeting held April 6, and at the invitation of the Committee of he Friday Morning Club, the California Art Club will hold its exhibition at the Friday Morning Clubhouse, open to the public for the month commencing May 3. The exhibition will be formally opened with a reception to members and friends of both clubs, in the auditorium of the clubhouse, on the evening of Thursday, May 2. The exhibition is to be held in the auditorium. The jury of admission of the California Club will consist of Wilson Hurr, Franz Bischoff, Aaron Kilpatrick, Jack W. Smith and Benjamin Percy Austin. The Hanging Committee will be chosen from among the artists. From view will be on Thursday afternoon, May 1. The exhibition is an exceptional opportunity for the club, and it is to be hoped that all members will strive to be represented by their best work. It is suggested that will be drawn to the work nationally, through the visits of the delegates to the biennial of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, which takes place in this city in the month of May, will be given the club a standing throughout the country.

The Third Renaissance.

And in what sort of age, I thought, are artists living now? Are conditions favorable? Life is very multiple; "movements" are very many; interests in "facts" is very great; "news" batters at our brains; the limelight is terribly turned on; and all this is adverse to the artist. Yet leisure is abundant, the facilities for study great; liberty is respected. But, far exceeding all other reasons, there is one great reason why in this age of ours, art, it seems, must flourish. For, just as cross-breeding—if it be not too violent—often gives an extra vitality to the offspring, so does cross-breeding of philosophies make for vitality in art.

Historians, looking back from the far future, may record this age as the Third Renaissance. We who are lost in it, working or looking on, can neither tell what we are doing, nor where standing; but we cannot help observing that, just as in the Greek Renaissance, worn-out pagan orthodoxy was penetrated by new philosophy; just as, in the Italian renaissance, pagan philosophy, reasserting itself, fertilized again an already too-inbred Christian creed; so now, orthodoxy fertilized by science is producing a fresh and fuller conception of life—a love of perfection, not for hope of reward, not for fear of punishment, but for perfection's sake.

Slowly, under our feet, beneath our consciousness, is forming that new philosophy, and it is in times of new philosophies that art, itself in essence always a discovery, must flourish. Those whose sacred suns and moons are ever in the past, tell us that our age is going to the dogs; and it is true that we are in confusion. The waters are broken, and every nerve and sinew of the artist is strained to discover his own safety. It is an age of stir and change, a season of new wine and old bottles. Yet, assuredly, in spite of breakages and waste, a wine worth the drinking is all the time being made.—[From "Vague Thoughts On Art," by John Galsworthy, in Atlantic Monthly.

ART NOTES.

Pictures by Helen C. Chandler will be shown at Royar's, beginning on May 20 and continuing to June 1.

A dozen landscapes from the brush of Hanson Puthuff will be shown at Kanst's next week.

The fifteenth annual exhibition of the Ten American Painters was held in the Montrose gallery, New York from March 15 to April 6.

An exhibition of "Prints of Five Centuries" was recently held in the Knoedler gallery, New York.

M. Alfred Roll has been unanimously re-elected president of Societe Nationale (New Salon.)

A memorial exhibition of the late W. Christian Symons was held in the Goupil gallery, London. Symons's versatility was extreme and his range of subjects vast, in both oils and water colors.

ACTIVE WOMEN.

Miss Mabel Rice of Denver is believed to be the only woman in the United States who drives a water wagon as a regular occupation. She has just secured a position driving a sprinkler on the Denver streets and her pay is $4.50 a day. She owns the pair of mules she drives.

Miss L. Averill Cole, who bound the famous presentation set of Stevenson's works—the author's gift to Jules Simoneau—recently on exhibition in New York and San Francisco, began her career as a bookbinder with the desire to rebind her favorites among her own books. She became absorbed in the work and went to Brussels, where she spent three years under Louis Jacobs, and later took the first prize for bookbinding at the international exhibition at Brussels in 1905. She has a studio at Cambridge, Mass., and supervises the work of the Houghton Mifflin Company bookbinderv.

Miss Grace Wishaar, who has been honored by the Society National Beaux-Arts of Paris by the acceptance of her work for hanging in the salon of 1912, is a Californian, her home being in Oakland. The society has accepted two of her miniatures for the season. Prior to going abroad to become a member of an exclusive class of students she designed and executed some artistic scenic effects for California theaters.

Mrs. H. J. Camp, who has just returned to her home in Gardiner, Me., has been serving as a missionary in Central Arabia. Her headquarters was at Menakhi. In order to get there she was obliged to travel four days on horseback and was accompanied by camels carrying her luggage.

Miss Frances Stern of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology is an advocate of the use of a microscope in the home as a means of assisting in the proper preparation of meals. The use of the microscope, according to Miss Stern, would help the housewife to do her work more intelligently.

EDUCATORS.

Prof. Ralph Waldo Gifford of Fordham College has been elected to the chair of jurisprudence at Yale University. He was graduated from Harvard in 1892, and later from the Harvard Law School. He practiced law in New York before going to Fordham.

President Thwing of Western Reserve University says that graduates of western universities are worth $15 a week as against $6 a week for graduates of eastern colleges, because they work harder.

Prof. Reinhard F. Wetzel of the College of the City of New York, who has discovered the weight of the earth to be 7,000,000,000,000 tons, has a wonderfully delicate instrument by which he now hopes to weigh the sun, the moon and the planets.

Dr. David R. Boyd, of New York, superintendent of the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions, has been elected president of the University of New Mexico. He will enter on his duties July 1.

A Drop of Blood

Or a little water from the human system when thoroughly tested by the chief chemist at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., tells the story of impoverished blood—nervous exhaustion or some kidney trouble. Such examinations are made without cost and is only a small part of the work of the staff of physicians and surgeons under the direction of Dr. R. V. Pierce giving the best medical advice possible without cost to those who wish to write and make a full statement of symptoms. An imitation of natures method of restoring waste of tissue and impoverishment of the blood and nervous force is used when you take an alterative and glyceric extract of roots, without the use of alcohol, such as

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

Which makes the stomach strong, promotes the flow of digestive juices, restores the lost appetite, makes assimilation perfect, invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and restorative nerve tonic. It makes those strong in body, active in mind and cool in judgment. Get what you ask for!

RICHARD DE HAVEN

KING OF LIFE READERS

I was born with a strange and remarkable power—power not meant to gratify the idle curious, but to direct, advise and help men and women who are in trouble and suspense concerning the every day affairs of life.

$5.00 LIFE READING $1.00 (Reduced fee for this week only.)

I give just as careful and complete a revelation of your business, love and domestic affairs for $1.00 as I do for my regular fee of $5 and $10. I am taking the reduced fee plan to introduce myself and my work more extensively to the people of this city, where I have established my permanent home.

MY WORK SPEAKS FOR ITSELF

While I have the indorsements of hundreds of the most noted men and women of America, I deem them of little value, since I stand alone upon the merits of my work. Any person who can believe their own eyes and ears cannot help but know that I am a man of high ability and indisputable power excelled by no man on earth in this line.

MASTER OF STRANGE POWERS

There are strange and mighty forces which man and women can use to better their conditions. These forces are called personal magnetism, mental telepathy, semi-hypnotic suggestion, etc. All this I teach to any one who wishes to use it for a legitimate and honorable purpose.

WHAT I DO FOR $1.00

I tell what condition your business is in and how to promote it. I tell you of any move, journey, position or change of any kind which may be before you and how to act to obtain the best results. I tell you exactly what your acquaintances think of you, who to trust and who to shun. In short, I tell you everything you called to find out, and that, too, without asking you a question or you speaking a word.

I guarantee to develop mediumship to its fullest degree in those who have any latent power whatever. If I do not succeed as above stated, I ask no fee for my work and time whatsoever.

WOMEN'S WORK, WOMEN'S CLUBS

BY ROSE L. ELLERBE.

Women and Politics.

The women of Los Angeles are taking a quiet but active interest in the Presidential situation. Our women will be called upon to exercise their best judgment in dealing with the many and varied questions arising in the stirring and bitterly contested campaign. The Woman's Progressive League on Saturday afternoon listened to the claims of Champ Clark for the Presidency as presented by Judge A. M. Stephens. The best speakers obtainable have now made clear the principles and qualifications of each of the prominent candidates before the people to the women who have attended these meetings. That a large number of women are honestly seeking for enlightenment is evidenced by the attendance and interest shown in these gatherings. At the headquarters of the Women's Taft League much activity is shown and the Wilshire branch is holding weekly largely attended and interesting evening meetings at the homes of its members. The La Follette League of Women, of which Mrs. George Drake Ruddy is President, are working steadily in support of their favorite. The women supporters of Roosevelt had a noonday "eat" at the Federation Club on Thursday. Senator La Follette will speak at the noonday luncheon of the Woman's City Club on Monday—the subject is not announced, but it can be guessed. Edward Berwick, president of the Postal Progress League, will talk at the Evening City Club, in the Federation Clubrooms, on Tuesday evening of this week on "The Urgent Necessity for a Parcels Post."

Branches of the Woman's Progressive League are being formed in and out of the city. These are taking up the study of political questions and methods and educating the new voters to intelligent exercise of their franchise. This league is becoming another of the strong and far-reaching women's organizations which are one of the most remarkable developments of the present day. The capacity of women for organization and concerted action promises to become an important factor in civic and political history in the near future, a factor the strength of which has not yet been grasped by the women themselves.

Club Elections.

Club elections are the order of the coming month, and discussions as to available candidates, methods, policies, and so on, are rife in the clubs. The method of election, which shall be Democratic and simple, and at the same time insure a satisfactory and efficient official family, is yet to be found. There is much diversity among our clubs, ranging from the nomination from the floor, with the balloting on the spot stripe, to the carefully prepared slate of an executive board, acting as the Nominating Committee. Neither the Democratic nor the autocratic method has proved entirely satisfactory. Some of the clubs send out nominating blanks; but unless a primary or nominating caucus is held, this is apt to lead to confusion. The Ebell Club is this year trying the nominating petition. Petitions must state that the candidates will serve if elected and contain the signatures of at least ten members. These are put in the hands of an election board of three members, two chosen by the club and one named by the executive board. A nominating ballot is then sent out with the names of the candidates and all receiving 25 votes, or more, are then put on another ballot, which is returned on election day. This method seems to be somewhat cumbersome and would certainly not recommend itself to smaller clubs.

In some of the large eastern clubs a nominating committee presents names at the annual meeting. Names may also be put in nomination from the floor. They are then balloted for and the names receiving the highest number of votes become the candidates to be voted on by ballots sent out to the membership.

The club, which has found a simple and satisfactory way of electing officers, and one that "works" under all conditions, should publish it to the world. A good many perplexed club politicians are seeking for that same.

Ebell Programmes for May.

The usual varied programme is offered this month beginning with an address on "Economic and Domestic Science," by Dr. Jessica B. Peixotto of State university, a specialist on the newest—and the oldest—science of all, housekeeping, with all that the word implies. Dr. Peixotto will speak on Monday afternoon, May 6. On the 13th, the Hayden Trio, Madame Elsa von Grofe Menasco, cello; Miss Nancy Crail, violin; Miss Ina Davis, piano; Miss Helen Beatrice Cooper, dramatic soprano, will give a musical programme, which will be one of the most attractive of the many excellent musical treats provided for the club this year. May 20, Mrs. Leila M. Bloomfield of New Zealand will talk of "Wonderful New Zealand." On the 27th, Charles Lincoln Edwards will talk on "The Depths of the Sea," using stereopticon views to illustrate a subject little understood.

The departments offer some unusually attractive programmes this month. The art and travel section will have two days in Spain, under the leadership of Miss Anna Beckley of the public library. The civics topic will be "City Planning and Making of the City Beautiful."

The nominating ballots for the annual election offer four candidates for president, Mrs. J. H. Francis, now first vice-president; Mrs. William L. Jones, one of the present directors; Mrs. Jay B. Millard, and Mrs. Mathew S. Robertson.

Cosmos Club.

At its meeting last Wednesday the Cosmos Club elected its officers. As there was but one candidate for each office on the nominating ballot, the election was quickly disposed of. Mrs. William Reeve, who has won the hearts of the club during the past year by her devotion and efficiency, was re-elected president; Mrs. A. A. McCurda, first vice-president; Mrs. J. W. Giffen, second vice-president; Mrs. Hummelbaugh, corresponding secretary; Mrs. John S. Myers, recording secretary; Mrs. Frederick Webb, treasurer; Mrs. George W. Jordan, director at large.

After the election Mrs. Charles Weinberg read a paper on "The Art Motif of the Persian Rug." Mrs. A. A. McCurda told of travels in Honolulu and Mrs. Hummelbaugh sang several numbers. The women of the club are preparing for a real California day on May 3, when John S. McGroarty will talk to them of "Old California," a group of Spanish dancers from the mission play at San Gabriel will dance, and Spanish music and Spanish dishes will carry the participants as far as may be into the atmosphere of those early days of our State about which we dream.

Journalism For Women.

Barnard College is offering the first course in journalism yet opened to women. The first two years training will be offered in Barnard along lines parallel to those of the School of Journalism of Columbia University offered men. The last two years of the course will be taken in the School of Journalism of the University. The preparatory course will consist mainly of collegiate work, the last two years being purely professional training. To those completing the entire course the degree of Bachelor of Letters will be granted. The recognition of journalism as a profession for which collegiate training and a degree may be provided is a recent innovation for men, comparatively speaking. And no woman's college has previously made any provision for such a course. Yet it is stated that the number of women engaged in active journalism is larger in this country than in any of the other callings with which this occupation may be compared. The figures for occupations for 1910 have not yet been published; but in 1900 the number engaged in journalism was 30,098, of which 2193 were women. This compares with 1010 women lawyers out of a total of 114,703, and 7399 women among the 134,703 registered as of the medical profession. In addition nearly one-half of those listed as authors were women, the figures being 5836, with 2616 women authors. The proportion of women writers is undoubtedly considerably larger now than it was twelve years ago, while journalism is receiving a constantly multiplying number of women aspirants.

Hollywood Women's Club.

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Foster Elliot read a paper on "Conservation of the Forests" before the Hollywood Women's Club. The speaker deplored the Agricultural Appropriation Bill recently passed by the House of Representatives, reducing the fund for forest protection to a fraction of the sum allowed last year. Unless this is remedied in the Senate, the forest service will be crippled. Slides furnished by the United States Forest Service were used to illustrate the subject. The programme was preceded by the 1 o'clock cafeteria luncheon which has proved most popular among the members. The club felt keenly the serious illness of its president, Mrs. Calvin Smith, whose place was filled by the first vice-president, Mrs. A. G. Schloesser. Next week Miss Ruth Hemenway will present J. M. Barrie's successful drama, "What Every Woman Knows."

Matinee Musical Club.

The closing number of a successful and delightful series of musical programmes given by the Matinee Musical Club will take place at Gamut Clubhouse Thursday afternoon, May 2. Under the direction of the De Lano Mandolin and Guitar Sextette a full programme of Indian music will be rendered by the sextette, assisted by Edythe B. Spence, soprano. The stage setting will represent a camp fire scene and many novel effects, both in music and in scenery, will be produced.

Local Authors.

The Friday Morning Club on Friday considered three books written by its own members. The last published work of the brilliant and beloved novelist, Margaret Collier Graham, a series of essays entitled "Do They Really Respect Us?" was reviewed by Miss Cordelia Kirkland. "The Donner Party and its Tragic Fate," a story told by a survivor of one of the most tragic and also most distorted incidents of California history, was discussed by Mrs. J. A. Osgood, while the dainty verses of a California garden of Olive Percival, "Leaf Shadows and Rose Drift," was happily characterized by Mrs. George V. Wright.

Ruskin Art Club.

Wednesday was a gala day at the Ruskin Art Club, a Maeterlinck programme, the election and the last luncheon of the season forming a combination of attractions which pleased a large attendance. The morning session was under the direction of Mrs. A. F. Metcalf, the speakers being Mrs. W. S. Urion and Mrs. T. M. Walker. Mrs. Urion spoke of Maeterlinck as a philosopher and essayist, describing his early training and the influences which tinged his active mind with mysticism and touching upon the essays which have gained for him his position as a leader of thought. Mrs. Walker considered the author as a poet and dramatist, quoting many lines from his dramas. Mrs. F. A. Stephens, by request, read a part of the essay on the "Psychology of Accident." After the luncheon hour, Mrs. Elizabeth Cloud Miller gave an interpretation of "The Blue Bird," which delighted her hearers.

As a result of the election, Mrs. W. S. Bullis was chosen president; Miss Victoria Witmer, first vice-president; Mrs. E. S. Hodgin, second vice-president; Mrs. George Sinsabaugh, recording secretary; Mrs. A. F. Metcalf, corresponding secretary; Mrs. C. E. Day, financial secretary; Mrs. G. L. Hutchinson, treasurer, Mrs. W. T. Fennel, librarian, and Mrs W. S. Urion, curator.

Wednesday Morning Club.

The election of officers will be the principal business of the next session of the Wednesday Morning Club on Wednesday of this week. There are two tickets in the field, one headed by Mrs. H. Ivor Thomas and the other by Dr. Cynthia Skinner.

After the usual luncheon Rev. George Patterson will give the talk of the afternoon, having chosen as his subject, "Ralph Conner as I Knew Him." Music will be furnished by Miss Elsa Schroeder.

Badger Club.

The regular monthly meeting of the Badger Club will be held on Wednesday afternoon, May 1, at the home of Mrs. Emory F. Skinner, No. 644 Lucas avenue. The special feature will be a reception to new members and past presidents of the club. Mrs. Josia E. Cowles will give a brief talk on the coming biennial of women's clubs in San Francisco. Mrs. R. J. Waters, president of the State, and Mrs. William Baurhyte, president of the district federation will be guests of honor. Miss Margaret Goetz has arranged the musical programme for the afternoon.

May Festival.

The Y.W.C.A. of the University of Southern California is planning a May festival to be given on the campus the evening of Friday, May 3. The north end of the lawn is to be turned into fairy land, with booths, numberless lights, and many pretty girls in costume, and the orchestra will add to the effect. A May Queen, whose name is not yet announced, is to appear with her train and after the ceremony of crowning the Queen May, pole dances will follow. A whimsical comedy has been prepared for the occasion which will be one of the most ambitious social features of the college year.

Allied Arts Center.

The organization committee of the Allied Arts Center, F. W. Blanchard, president, held a session Friday afternoon at the Woman's Club House. A letter, prepared by the president, was adopted and ordered to be sent out to all civic, commercial, social and literary or musical organizations, besides those already included in the movement, inviting them to appoint five delegates to join in forming the permanent organization to work toward securing the civic art center. A meeting of the society will be held at the Woman's Club House on Friday, May 10, at 2:30 o'clock p.m. to adopt by-laws and elect officers. It is hoped that a full representation of the societies and organizations invited to participate, will then be present.

THE HELPING HAND.

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

Mayor Gaynor of New York has a kind side for poor children. Recently a young lad named Gustave Gelles felt the universal longing for "the feel" of a baseball, but as he had no baseball and no money to spend for a ball, he wrote to Mayor Gaynor telling of his misery. He confided in the Mayor that his "only desire in life was to have a baseball outfit."

The Mayor recognized the boy's sad plight instantly and sent back a letter asking Gustave "to come into the City Hall some day" intimating that the boy might find what he so much wanted.

Proudly bearing the Mayor's letter as a passport, Gustave went the next day to the City Hall and informed Lieut. Kennel that he must see the Mayor at once on important business. Robert Adamson, the Mayor's secretary, is a "fan" of the professional type and gave the boy a cross-examination on technical baseball. Mr. Adamson took Gustave into the Mayor's office, and the three talked baseball for twenty minutes. The boy told the Mayor something about the achievements of Mathewson, Baker and other baseball stars. The Mayor said he was pleased Gustave had called and sent the boy out with Lieut. Kennel to buy a first-class baseball outfit, with a catcher's mitt and three regulation balls.

An instance of the reluctance people have for leaving pets to the mercy of strangers is shown in the bequest of the late Miss Clara Ide, a director of the Rochester (N. Y.) Humane Society, of $500 for the care of a parrot, which is now said to be about twenty-five years old, and which may life for a half century longer. The chief provision of Miss Ide's will was to give her sixty-acre estate for a model agricultural venture, to be handled by a corporation for agricultural experimental purposes. This same corporation, however, is to care for Miss Ide's horse, without working him, and at his death bury him in a corner of the farm, alongside a deceased pet horse of the testatrix.

The clubwomen of Salt Lake City recently erected a tablet in the city library to the memory of Ann Elizabeth Chapman. Miss Chapman was the first librarian in Utah, and it is said the library at Salt Lake City is largely due to her personal exertions.

The 3-year-old child of Wesley Coheley, City Marshal of Butler, Okla., was recently saved from drowning by the heroic act of an older sister. The little one fell into a twelve-foot well in which was about four feet of water. The older sister at once jumped into the well and held the child on the surface until another girl passed a rope down to her and drew the babe up.

Des Moines College is the unexpected recipient of $20,000 for the erection of a new women's dormitory. The gift is from Mrs. Eleanor Childs of Waterloo, Iowa, who had quite recently made the institution a gift of $20,000, and that she should double it was an unexpected event. The new dormitory will add much to the prestige of the college.

Groping in steam from an exploded boiler, in order to rescue an unconscious man, was the recent heroic act of Fireman Alexander Unger of New York. The explosion roused the neighborhood, and Fireman Unger learning that a man who had been working on the boiler was in the cellar, already filled to a depth of over a foot with the boiling water, he threw off his hat and coat, and with only his rubber boots to protect him, waded into the steaming flood. He finally stumbled across the man, unconscious and submerged. Unger tied a rope under the scalded man's arms and carried him to the opening through which he had entered. He then handed the end of the rope to those waiting outside and Itzek was hauled up.

Unger, too, had to be lifted out of the cellar, and he fell, in a half faint, when he was safe on the street.

Charles Engert, a Brooklyn man, who left an estate of nearly $700,000, made a bequest of $48,000 to the native city of his father, Velbach, Bavaria. It provides that a kindergarten shall be established, teachers' salaries raised, and that certain amounts be given the turnverein and the gun club.

NATURE STORIES.

Homing Sense of Birds.

[Harper's Magazine:] About every thirty days new squabs appear in the pigeon-loft. And in another thirty days or so every one of them can perform one of the most puzzling tricks known in physiology. These pudgy squabs can be carried encaged in darkness many hundred miles, loosened in the air, and can fly straight back to the loft they know as home. All the homing pigeons can perform this wonder, and without any eye-memories to aid. Call it instinct, and you make no more progress than does an automobile running with its wheels jacked up. Sense memory is not an intellectual capacity, and is often greatest in minds markedly deficient in intellect. Such was Blind Tom, and such was an idiotic negro known to the writer, who could state in a few seconds how many times a cart-wheel would revolve going to town, or Jericho, and back. Such brains suggest an arid desert, soiled and fertilized in spots. Animal memories are lasting. The dog knows for weeks where he buried a bone or routed a rabbit. Interstate birds of passage annually return from distant winter visits to last year's nests.

If our conceptions of the functions of the semicircular canals are correct—that every start, direction in motion, and stop of living bodies excites an impression independent of all other impressions—we can at least suggest that the line of service of the semicircular canals is the nearest of any known function to explaining the homing performance—even though this seems next to impossible. We know that it is not an unsolvable puzzle before us; some physiologic resource must meet the problem. But apparently we must hold that the semicircular-canal impressions in the pigeon are as definite in conscious recognition as are eye impressions in us. Then we must grant the bird a marvelous memory of direction impressions, and even overload the marvelous by considering that the bird may be carried in a car backward, or move it to all points of the compass. Perhaps the act is vastly simple, and the bird is guided only by a very general sense of direction until it crosses known territory and converges to home; or perhaps there are magnetic and aerial currents and positions of the sun to guide. Whatever the solution, it is not supernatural—the vulgar alternative of ignorance.

Horse Pumps Water.

[Chicago Record-Herald:] An impromptu entertainment was given for the benefit of the town loafers the other afternoon by Frank Maxwell's horse, which had been left in front of a store at Peoria.

The horse walked over to the town pump and, holding the handle with his teeth, worked it up and down. There being no water trough, the animal stopped pumping occasionally and put his mouth under the spout to catch water.

Maxwell says the horse often pumps his own drinking water at home, and in the summer time if the water in the bucket is warm he will pump himself a fresh drink.

Horse Hunts Mushrooms.

[New York Tribune:] A high-stepping saddle horse which hunts mushrooms and finds them for its owner is a prized possession of Col. A. A. Thomas, legal counsel to the National Cash Register Company, at Dayton, O. Thomas, who is an accomplished mushroom hunter, on his excursions after the elusive fungi lately has been in the habit of going horseback.

The horse has developed a "nose" for the sprouts, and comes to a full stop when he sees one, to the rider to dismount and uproot the hits. The attorney has had handsome prices for the animal on many occasions, which gives no secret leaked out, have been doubled, but he will not listen to of them.

Dogs That Make Money.

[Tit-Bits:] In a southern suburb of London, on the edge of a common, lives a woman who possesses a fine half-breed terrier, which she has trained to find lost balls. So well is it taken out for a walk, and finding golf, cricket or tennis balls, and by selling all that are not claimed the dog's owner has been able to send every year a very handsome donation to a charitable society.

The uses of dogs are innumerable. When M. Lacambie, a Parisian police inspector, was searching a suspected house in a quarter where it was suspected that clandestine betting was being carried on, a dog barked at one side and scratched at the door.

The inspector opened the door and a large Newfoundland appeared. Around its neck was tied a bag, which seemed heavy. Opening it, the police officer found several bottles of francs and a list of bets, agreeing with the landlord of the house.

It appeared that the animal had been trained to go around to the clients, and the owner conducted his business by the aid of the dog he had trained, making a comfortable income of over £250 a year.

Few people who use a sponge to wash realize that the animal, if properly trained, is actually a source of income. A keen sportsman, who owns a remarkably clever retriever, noticed that which he broke himself, realized that this animal, apart from being a source of amusement, is actually worth at least £20 a year.

He puts it this way: "In the course of a season I shoot at least a couple of hundred birds and never fall in thick covert or are the birds wounded, and, but for my dog, would never be found. Floss finds them all, and I credit her with their value."

Mrs. Sarah Edmonds Seelye, of Paris, Tex., is the only woman member of the G.A.R. In 1861 she donned male attire and enlisted in the Second Michigan Infantry. She served as a private in that regiment and took part in the battle of Fredericksburg. She was later appointed hospital orderly and served in that capacity during the battle of Fredericksburg carrying messages between scouts.

Classified Liners.

Classified Rates: The rate for inserting Want Ads in The Daily Times is five cents for each insertion; in the Sunday Times, 10c per word each insertion, cash or charge. Nine cents per word except under following classifications, the rate for which is 5c per word each insertion, viz.: 9 cents: "Lost and Found Notices," "Personals," "Special Notices," "Church Notices, Miscellaneous," "Help Wanted Male" and "Help Wanted Female."

Strictly real estate advertisements, to be run properly, must be in The Times office before 9 o'clock Saturday night. Other "Wants," "To Lets," etc., received by mail or by telephone until 11 p.m. Sunday. Those received after closing hours will be inserted under the head of "To Lets to Classify." Rates, 5 cents per word.

The Sunday circulation of The Times exceeds 70,000 copies, and more "liners" are printed in its columns than in the columns of any two Los Angeles newspapers combined.

Readers of The Times will please remember that in letting contracts for their advertisements they are dealing with strangers, and should therefore exercise reasonable caution. While The Times will endeavor to protect its readers, it cannot guarantee accuracy or assume responsibility for errors of any kind in the publication of advertisements.

The Times will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion of any "Want" ordered for more than one time.

Advertisers should retain receipts given by The Times in payment for "liners," as these can be rectified without them.

ONE-TIME NOTICES—

This publication is especially intended to be a medium wherein the ELEMENT OF CONFIDENCE is an essential feature, such as notices of all kinds, assessment, and company-meeting notices, fraternities (funeral notices excepted,) legals offers, with notices calling attention to advertisements in some other part of the paper, and all events to occur on any certain date named. No standing advertisements for this classification.]

SPECIAL NOTICES—

THE ELECTRO-METALLIC FACE MASK removes all wrinkles and facial blemishes. (Only wrinkle remover patented by U. S. government.) Barnard McFadden in "Physical Culture," Nov., 1909, says: "This device suggests a method of removing wrinkles that certainly appeals to one's common sense and is well worth investigation." Orders coming in from Europe every week.

LEGITIMATE, SCIENTIFIC, ACCURATE DIAGNOSIS OF THE OCCULT INTELLIGENCE OF TRUTHFUL PALMISTRY, FROM THE HAND OF EACH CALLER. THE WORLD'S GREATEST PSYCHIC
BYRON L. STANLEY.
Others may come and others may go, Byron L. Stanley always remains at his own home, BETWEEN SECOND AND THIRD STS., NEAR ANGELS' FLIGHT.

ALL READINGS REDUCED FOR SHORT TIMES.
$1.00—READINGS—$1.00.
READINGS BY MAIL, $1.00. SEND DATE OF BIRTH AND FOUR QUESTIONS.
BYRON L. STANLEY.
fully appreciates that in this day of sensational advertisements there are more false claims and misrepresentations chaperoned through the columns of the daily press than the most hypenital tongue could utter in a lifetime, until one cannot be blamed for doubting almost everything they read. Therefore he says to you—come to him this very day and let him give you a complete reading, telling you every hope, fear or ambition, better than you could explain yourself. He will tell you the bad as well as the good; keeping nothing hidden from you. He will tell you everything upon matters of love, marriage, divorce, business, health; in fact, he will read your life like an open book.
Before you go into anything of importance or undertake anything serious—in business or love, or marriage, or before you make any change—you should consult the master mind of psychics.
ALWAYS CONSULT THE BEST. IT IS THE CHEAPEST IN THE END. IT IS BETTER TO CONSULT NO PSYCHIC THAN ONE WHO IS NOT ABLE TO HELP YOU.
DON'T FORGET
The name STANLEY, a double guarantee. See the real life reader who really tells what you desire to know or no charge. A foolish weakling only will pay for a reading that gives no benefit. Stop and think.
Don't struggle with a burden you can divide. A troubled mind begets a morbid conscience. Sympathy, consolation and timely advice heal the worst of wounds. Be advised and relieved of anxiety.
Realizing that this city has been overrun with pretenders, and that many of its best citizens are anxious to visit a genuine psychic, Mr. Stanley has decided to place his consultation fee within the reach of all.
Finding many deserving people who were not able to pay a large fee he has decided for a short time to place his readings within the reach of all at live and let-live prices. So if you wish to take advantage of this offer, call at once.
If you contemplate consulting a psychic several things should be taken into consideration—ABILITY, the HONESTY of methods, the FAIRNESS of dealings, the HIGHER degree of work, the ACCURACY of each prediction, the COMMON SENSE used with it, the INTEREST taken in each case, the RESPECT shown to each caller, the fact of SECRECY in consultation, the FEE charged for services. truth.
BEWARE of pretenders and partially-developed mediums. They copy his advertisements and in many smaller cities use his name. Please remember BYRON L. STANLEY can be seen only at his Los Angeles office.
To whom it may concern: We take great pleasure in recommending our brother, PROF. STANLEY, as a life reader of good standing, having to our knowledge been fully developed in all the various phases of mental physicism. We cordially recommend him to any individual or society that may need his advices.

PERSONAL—
PROF. C. IRVIN ALTHOUSE,
NOTED ASTROLOGER AND PALMIST OF NATIONAL FAME AND REPUTATION.
303½ S. SPRING, NEAR THIRD ST.
A RESIDENT OF LOS ANGELES 23 YEARS.
PROF. ALTHOUSE is an experienced practitioner in the science of modern ASTROLOGY, by which he has made many REMARKABLE PREDICTIONS. The horoscope shows the powerful influence of the planets in all affairs of life. It shows diseases, deaths, love and marriage, financial affairs, talents, environments, about children, relatives, when and where to travel, what to seek or to avoid, when in danger of losses, troubles, etc., also your good periods, advising dates of these events for the future.
PROF. ALTHOUSE read E. H. Sothern, Nat Goodwin, Mary Mannering, Gaddol, Admiral Schley, Dan Burns, ex-Gov. Pardee, ex-Senator Clark, Gen. Chaffee, Edison, Sousa, Modjeska, Julia Marlowe, Anna Held, Jefferson, Capt. Hobson, Lillian Russell, Calve, Admiral Evans, H. E. Huntington, De Wolf Hopper, Maxine Elliott, Ethel Barrymore, etc.
PROF. ALTHOUSE'S SKILLED WORK with his trained judgment must be in no wise be classed with that of other readers. Therefore do not waste your money on the idiotic advice and warning of HUMBUG astrologers, palmists, psychics—those doing it for the money only.
PROF. ALTHOUSE is an expert PALMIST, and WITH EACH PALM READING gives also an ASTROLOGICAL READING.
DR. J. A. LARSEN writes: "I want to say that your reading was the most satisfactory thing I have ever had in my life; I know a great deal about these sciences, and I consider your work as the most THOROUGH and reliable of any reader in the United States."
FREDERICK WARDE says: "Your reading was most SATISFACTORY. Your knowledge and skill is REMARKABLE."
MME. SCHUMANN-HEINK says: "I was greatly surprised to find how many of your warnings were well founded. YOUR READING WAS MOST MARVELOUS."
MME. BALDWIN writes: "The Horoscope you wrote for me is absolutely CORRECT. My friend, MME. NORDICA, the singer, first showed me her Horoscope, and recommended your work to me. Inclosed find check for four more Horoscopes—all friends of mine."
The interpretation of a Horoscope is a fine art; the percentage of "GENUINE" astrologers is exceedingly small. To know a little of astrology out of books, and to be a skilfully trained, EXPERIENCED ASTROLOGER, are two entirely different things. Therefore, in this work, it depends largely WHO it is that reads you as to the RESULTS obtained.
PROF. ALTHOUSE'S wonderful proficiency in the casting of HOROSCOPES and hand reading is brought to LARGE AND SUCCESSFUL PRACTICE. The most private confidences are reposed in him, and his advice is sought in the most difficult and critical circumstances. Personal attention. Strict privacy. HIGHEST GRADE OF WORK that time and many years of experience can produce. Therefore HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.
Daily and evening; Sunday, 10 to 2.

MRS. MASSON, the noted palmist of London, Eng., may be consulted at 323 S. SPRING ST. (over Owl Drug Store,) by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.
The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigation along psychological lines, that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.
PALMISTRY, HONESTLY PRACTICED, WILL LNOT tell you your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life.
Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions, and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.
MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.
HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

Partners.

WANTED — PARTNER TO PUT THREE thousand dollars in silver fox farm. Have spent ten years in Alaska and understand fur thoroughly. Will show you the land and do the work against your three thousand dollars. After three years expect partner to join me in work or give me salary.

Quoting from Government Bulletin 328, on this subject, we find that "the expense of raising foxes is comparatively small. After building yards and securing stock, running expenses are slight. Pure bred skins command almost fabulous prices ranging from $500 to $2000." Five to seven pups each year is the average increase. The best skins are obtained by selective breeding.

Quoting further from Bulletin 328: "From the foregoing it is evident that silver foxes can be and, in fact are being propagated in confinement." There are profits in this business. If you want to get into a money maker here is the chance, and Canada or Alaska the place. Can furnish first-class references. For further particulars address LOCK BOX 362, Highgrove, Cal.

Tailing dumps, gold and silver for evanid...

WITH THREE OTHERS I OWN A PARTIALLY developed mine at Allegheny, Cal., on same formation as the Tightner and Red Star mines. Have about two hundred fifty feet of tunnel work, showing one vein of beautiful white quartz, and the "blue jay" with every indication of getting into values soon. This property has only one fractioned claim between it and the Red Star. We are not incorporated, but are arranging to do so. We want some money to go on with development work. Will sell one-quarter interest to one person or a number of persons, incorporate, issue stock in proposition, spend the money in driving the tunnel; our partner now at Allegheny says people in the camp claim we have the best chance for a big paying mine in the camp. Will take subscriptions to the stock for not less than $100. I have been in business in Los Angeles twenty years, can furnish best of references as to integrity, business ability, etc. Money for subscriptions deposited in bank until at least half the sum desired is in hand before going on with the work. This is a legitimate effort to promote what we think a splendid chance to pen up a big vein and make the owners large profits. Address K, box 49, TIMES OFFICE.

IF YOU HAVE A FEW HUNDRED DOLlars to invest you can devote your services at good wages if you wish and help handle a very rich placer deposit with the new Giant Hydraulic Pump and the only known chines for handling the gravel FAST AND CHEAP and the most perfect concentrators in the world for saving the fine gold that the sluices lose. There is enough gold in this deposit to make us all well off in a very few years. No millions, but a good fair income for years. Call and see my new machine for saving the finest gold in the world. Please call at 2205 MAPLE AVE.

I HAVE 200 TONS TAILINGS PER DAY delivered without cost into our feeder; treatment and values proven; will give one-quarter interest a for $1,000; enough to complete plant and commence operations. A sure winner; can be operating in ten days. Will take fifty years to work out; can be right; leaving city Monday night. Telephone 47328 Sunday; A5362 Monday.

GROUP OF SIX CLAIMS HEAVILY TIMbered. Plenty of water power. Four thousand dollars worth of development work shows that the ledges go down and are in place, with excellent ore at grass roots on every claim. Northern California. Death of associate places half interest on market for $2000. You can't lose at this price. Sell only to party who will join in development of property. Address J, box 2, TIMES OFFICE.

GOLD QUARTZ MINES LEASED ON shares or tribute to miners; power and power drills supplied if desired. One day's ride from Los Angeles. Address P. O. BOX 343.

HAVE GREAT WATER POWER AND GOLD MINES, Mother Lode, Northern California and Mexico. Can sell bonds on this proposition. Want $2500, organize and promote company. Will give half interest. Address "WATER POWER," Box 543, Venice, Calif.

OWNERS, NOT AGENTS. IF YOU HAVE gold mine developed to be worth thirty to fifty thousand and will take five thousand cash, lease and bond for remainder, I can sell it, if all is merchantable. R. W. LANDRUM, 237 Coulter Block.

WANTED—TO INTEREST PARTIES IN A prospect that has about 600 feet of work done; vein 2 to 3 feet wide; will assay 20 per cent. copper; some gold and silver values; 9 miles from Ray, Arizona. For information write E. M. MAHILL, Winkleman, Ariz.

MASTER MECHANIC IS OPEN FOR ENgagement. Have been for several years employed in Mexico; familiar with mine and mill work; A1 references. Address H, box 366, TIMES OFFICE.

LONG BEACH OFFICERS RAID ALLEGED BLIND PIG.

LONG BEACH, April 27.—A posse of police, under Chief Moyer, tonight raided the tobacco store of Holmes & Son on American avenue, and arrested the proprietors on a charge of selling liquor in violation of a city ordinance. A wagonload of booze was confiscated and taken to police headquarters, cleaning out practically a wholesale liquor house. In addition to several bottles of beer and wine the police found between thirty-five and forty dozen of half-pint bottles of whisky, in various parts of the store. A safe behind the counter was packed full of the full bottles.

The police say that they have been trying for two years to land Holmes, but, although it was general talk that he was running a blind pig, his methods were so safeguarded that it was impossible to secure convicting evidence, but this was finally accomplished tonight. The police say that the trial will develope some sensations.

Later in the evening the pharmacy of J. C. Thorpe on Fourth and Almond streets was raided, and some liquor secured, together with the prescription file, which, the police allege, shows that Thorpe was violating the section of the ordinance governing drug stores.

Both Holmes and Thorpe were released on $300 bail each to appear for pleading Tuesday morning in Police Court.

COAST BOULEVARD.

The Coast Boulevard Association held a meeting tonight and welcomed delegates from civic bodies of Santa Barbara, Venice, Santa Monica, Redondo, Wilmington and Newport Beach, all of whim pledged hearty support to the movement to be made to see that the highway provided along the coast shall follow that line and touch as many coast cities as is practicable between Santa Barbara and San Diego. Senator Lee Gates was present, and explained the bill as it stands, and the legislation which the State legislators were able to give it by enlarging the scope of the State engineering law. He explained that the law was a flexible one, and it was up to the Highway Commission to use their best judgment in providing State highways that would satisfy the citizens of every community. Senator Gates also ventured the opinion that another bond issue of equal amount would be necessary to complete the State highways, as it would be found necessary, but he anticipated no opposition to this. State Senator Carter and Assemblyman Hinshaw also spoke on the subject. The general sense of the meeting was that active work must be continued and an effort made to get a coast road according to the most feasible route and not for the ambition of any one particular community.

SENATOR TALKS.

Senator Robert M. La Follette tonight addressed an audience of 5000 people at the Auditorium. It was evident from the silence which greeted some of his palpable hits that the greater part of those present were drawn there by curiosity and the reputation of the orator rather than any advocacy of his candidacy. Most of his speech was devoted to the tariff and the part Roosevelt took in allowing it to "stand pat." Referring to Roosevelt's reply last night to Taft's charge "that I made Taft and it does not become him to smite the hand that made him," La Follette characterized it as the coarsest remark ever coming from a candidate for the Presidency.

He charged that he had been approached with an offer to withdraw and take the Presidency in 1916 if he would support Roosevelt, to which he had replied that he would not swerve one hair's breadth from the course he is pursuing.

No reference, whatever, was made to Johnson.

BRINGS BACK HIS MAN.

Police Chief Also Visits Middle West Cities to Glean Information for Department.

After an absence of ten days, Chief Sebastian returned to Los Angeles yesterday, having in custody Charles Parker, who was recently arrested in St. Louis on the charge of passing worthless checks.

During his absence the chief visited Omaha, Kansas City, Jefferson City, and other towns in the Central West in quest of information that might tend to benefit the police force in this city.

Regarding the scandal connected with the Detention Home on account of innumerable escapes from the institution, Chief Sebastian declared that it would impose a burden on the police department to detail officers to guard the place, but that he was ready to use his best efforts in stopping prisoners from leaving, as well as to arrest visitors caught entering the home after nightfall.

"Although my trip was purely for the purpose of bringing back a man accused of crime, I am free to admit that I enjoyed the journey, despite the fact that I am almost worn out by the constant vigilance necessary to prevent any possibility of escape on the part of my prisoner," said the Chief after his arrival at police headquarters, last night.

Parker denies his guilt, but admits that the officers had good reason for suspecting him of being mixed up in the case.

The Hartford (Ct.) club will transfer its club members to a larger building on May 1.

BOVINE TRANSMISSION [illegible] TO HUMAN BEINGS.

Drector of Sanatorium [illegible] President of Creamery [illegible] sion of Tuberculin Test Before [illegible] City Club—Dairymen Say [illegible] tion Is Useless.

The tuberculin test for dairy cattle—the city's adoption or rejection of which will be decided at the special election to be held in May—the subject before the City Club at its meeting at the Westminster Hotel yesterday.

The speakers were Dr. Paul M. Pottenger, director of the Pottenger Sanatorium at Monrovia, and A. W. Carver, president of the Crescent Creamery company of this city.

The speakers were limited to twenty-five minutes each and presented papers citing exhaustive experiences and conclusions reached in regard to the efficacy of this test. Dr. Pottenger urged the adoption of the plan as a matter of public welfare, stating that the plan proposed gives the dairymen three years in which to clear their herds of diseased cattle.

He stated that as far as has been made it is estimated that one-twelfth of tubercular diseases of man are tracable to bovine transmission. With an annual tuberculosis death record of 200,000 in the United States and 5000 in California, Dr. Pottenger urged that every available means should be taken to cut down these figures. He stated that the conclusions of Dr. Koch are [illegible] ably most of the human tuberculosis that is not of the lungs is bovine transmission.

Dr. Pottenger, after citing the favorable conclusions for the tuberculin test, said:

"It would seem that the people are fighting the tuberculin test without reason. Producers say that tuberculin is a poison and that to prove injurious to their cattle. But that, as a test it is unreliable. Tuberculin is not a poison. It can be injected in quite large doses into human beings or healthy animals without doing the least harm. Infants have received large doses with no more effect than though it were so much water. It does not affect whatever unless tuberculosis is present.

"If tuberculosis is present and be injected in sufficiently large doses it produces certain symptoms which are known as a reaction. This reaction in the human being is accompanied by a feeling of nervousness, indisposition and aching in every part of the patient and is accompanied by a rise of temperature. In cattle we depend entirely upon the temperature rise for the reaction. When the reaction passes off in two or three days.

"All this talk about [illegible] stirring up latent foci and [illegible] the disease is more or less [illegible] I personally have probably given upwards of 300,000 injections of tuberculin and I have never [illegible] latent process started as a result of the injection. On the contrary I have seen most excellent curative effects follow its employment [illegible] on the part of the dairyman who has [illegible] layed."

Carver stated that the [illegible] berculous milk generally used by the public is based upon what seems to be a misapprehension, in that the dairymen object to the imperative application of a test that is subject to grave errors in its efficiency, and urged the necessity of practically all danger of infection [illegible] may be eliminated by a combination of medical inspection of dairy herds, efficient and conscientious veterinary service followed by the removal of the tuberculous animals and all [illegible] any suspicious abnormality of the herder, and by enforcing cleanliness.

"Many people have conscientious scruples against vaccination or any form of toxic and serum treatment," said the speaker, "and these scruples are as strong as those [illegible] against enforcing vaccination or religious dogmas. It is [illegible] American to attempt by law to force conformity to medical dogmas or religious dogmas."

The papers brought out some discussion between the two [illegible] Mrs. S. B. T. Watson, [illegible] local dairy, and Dr. P. Lyon, who made a special study of the [illegible] lin test.

A communication was [illegible] club from Senator Perkins [illegible] that he would present to the [illegible] the matter of the creation of a permanent non-partisan body, which was indorsed by a vote of the City Club at a meeting.

It was announced that the [illegible] of the club on May 11 would be in Griffith Park in order that members might familiarize themselves with the magnificent park owned by the city, but also that of its citizens know of it for inspection.

Investors are buying our shares in a manner never before equaled in the history of home-building companies.

The first buyers were those who knew the management and the men back of the Company.

The next buyers were those keen observers who are quick to recognize the earmarks of success.

Then come the watchful ones who had been looking for the successful launching of their kind of a company.

Next come the safe buyers who have waited until absolutely sure all starting risks (if any) are past.

The spirit back of each individual's act is not to buy a six or eight per cent possibility.

It is to buy a possible twenty to thirty per cent income with a practical certainty of at least twelve per cent.

It is to buy something that will double, treble and quadruple in value.

It is to get in at the beginning in what they know is right.

This is still the beginning. No young company has ever made such a record for sound progress.

Fourteen hundred and forty-six shareholders will soon be two thousand.

Holders of Small Lot Project "Chimney Block."

Seventh Street Skyscraper to Have Wafer Aspect.

Fifty-year Lease on Frontage Closed Yesterday.

That Los Angeles builders are beginning to realize the sterling value of even the smallest of the downtown parcels of real estate is made evident by a project which came to light yesterday. A piece of property on the north side of Seventh street, midway between Spring and Main, boasting only twenty-five feet frontage by a depth of fifty feet, is to be at once improved with an eight-story fireproof loft building of the most modern type.

The project is comparable with that of the famous "chimney corner" at Broadway and Wall street in New York, where an eighteen-story block has been erected on a site only twenty feet square.

The unique Seventh-street improvement will be erected by Emil Olcovich and Carl Stern and will occupy a site acquired under a fifty-year lease from the Dunlap estate. The negotiations for this lease were concluded yesterday morning through the agency of Metcalf and Ryan and call for an aggregate rental consideration of $324,000. The building itself will cost about $75,000.

The leasing contract will take effect November 1, immediately following which date a two-story brick building at present on the lot will be razed. This structure, erected about fifteen years ago, was long the finest brick block south of Fourth street.

The building to be erected by Olcovich and Stern will be of reinforced concrete construction and as modern in any structure of its type in the city. It will be served by both passenger and freight elevators and will be completely equipped with a sprinkler system and with other devices looking to safety from fire. The improvement will be unusually attractive for a building of its type. It will be of strictly class "A" construction throughout.

Director of Sanatorium Opposes President of Creamery in Discussion of Tuberculin Test Before the City Club—Dairymen Say Vaccination Is Useless.

The speakers were Dr. Frank M. Pottenger, director of the Pottenger Sanatorium at Monrovia, and A. W. Carver, president of the Crescent Creamery company of this city.

The speakers were limited to twenty-five minutes each and presented papers citing exhaustive references and conclusions reached in regard to the efficacy of this treatment. Dr. Pottenger urged the adoption of the plan as a matter of public welfare, stating that the plan proposed gives the dairymen three years in which to clear their herds of diseased cattle.

He stated that as far as tests have been made it is estimated that one-twelfth of tubercular diseases of man are traceable to bovine transmission. With an annual tuberculosis death record of 200,000 in the United States and 5000 in California, Dr. Pottenger urged that every available means should be taken to cut down these figures. He stated that the latest conclusions of Dr. Koch are that probably most of the human tuberculosis that is not of the lungs is from bovine transmission.

Dr. Pottenger, after citing many favorable conclusions for the tuberculin test, said:

"It would seem that the producers are fighting the tuberculin test without reason. Producers claim that tuberculin is a poison and likely to prove injurious to their cattle, but that, as a test, it is unreliable. Tuberculin is not a poison. On the contrary, I have seen most excellent curative results follow its employment. So this talk on the part of the dairymen can be disregarded."

Carver stated that the fear of tuberculous milk generally existing on the part of the public is based upon what seems to be a misapprehension, and that the dairymen objected to the imperative application of a test that is subject to grave doubts as to its efficiency, and urged that practically all danger of infection from cattle may be eliminated by a careful system of medical inspection of dairies by competent and conscientious veterinarians, followed by the removal of all tuberculous animals and all that show any suspicious abnormality of the udder, and by enforcing cleanliness.

"Many people have conscientious scruples against vaccination and every form of toxic and serum treatment," said the speaker, "and these scruples are as strong as those usually urged against enforcing conformity to religious dogmas. It is just as un-American to attempt by law to enforce conformity to medical dogmas as to religious dogmas."

The papers brought out some heated discussion between the two speakers, Mrs. E. R. T. Watson, owner of a local dairy, and Dr. Z. Levin, who has made a special study of the subject of bovine tuberculin test.

A communication was read to the club from Senator Perkins stating that he would present to the senate the matter of the creation of a permanent non-partisan tariff board, which was indorsed by a resolution of the City Club at a previous meeting.

ARCHITECT.

Wade Man Chosen as Official Engineer for New Industrial City at Torrance.

The Dominguez Land Company, owner and promoter of the new industrial city of Torrance, has established its own architectural department with Irving J. Gill of San Diego in charge. Gill was one of the five architects chosen several months ago to submit schemes for the general plan of the new town. Under the agreement just perfected he will have full charge of the architectural work on all the buildings to be erected by the land company at Torrance. Mr. Gill has established offices in the Title Insurance building on Fourth and Spring streets.

At present he is preparing plans for the new railroad station to be erected at Torrance. Among other buildings to be built as soon as plans are ready, are a city building, hotel, construction building, stores, rooming-houses and about 100 cottages. The company is considering the erection of only fireproof buildings, but the plan has not as yet been definitely settled upon.

A REAL SENSATION.

"Times" Story of Invasion of Keith Theatrical Interests Into Los Angeles Field Big "Scoop" of Year.

Probably the most sensational real estate transaction of the year to date was that reported exclusively in The Times of last Thursday in which representatives of the Keith Theatrical Circuit purchased from A. R. Mayne and Phillip Forve a hundred feet on the east side of Broadway about half way between Eighth and Ninth streets. The consideration, at first reported to have been $300,000, it has since become known was $375,000.

As reported in The Times, a theater building costing not less than $500,000 is projected by the buyers for the site. Plans for this structure will in all probability be prepared in the East, probably in New York City, where the Keiths have their headquarters.

Another big exclusive story covered in The Times was that concerning the leasing by a non-resident capitalist of sixty feet on the west side of Spring street for a term of fifty years and at a total rental of approximately $750,000. The deal was made through the agency of Bryan & Bradford. Since the publication of the story of the transaction in The Times last Thursday it has become known that the lessee will probably build a building of nine or more stories in height on the site instead of the originally contemplated six-story structure. This building will be started in two years, at the expiration of the leases held by the tenants of the small building now on the property.

Another transfer of note, reported in The Times during the past week, was the sale by a local syndicate to the Los Angeles Investment Company of 120 feet on the east side of Hill street just north of the First Methodist Church. The consideration given in this instance was $330,000 cash. The deal was made through W. W. Mines & Co. and Robert Marsh & Co.

TAKES "TIMES" FRONTAGE.

Site of Branch Office to Be Occupied by Cafeteria—"Times" Moves Farther South on Spring.

With the removal yesterday of The Times business offices from Nos. 531-533 South Spring street to Nos. 617-619 South Spring the former frontage was taken possession of by M. L. Godfrey, who will at once remodel the space secured into a model cafeteria to be known as the Godfrey Cafeteria, No. 2. The lease secured extends over a period of five years and involves a total rental consideration of $60,000.

The space to be occupied by the cafeteria will be 40x155 feet in size, a frontage of fifteen feet having been sublet by Mr. Godfrey to Dimond, the tailor, at a rental of $20,000. The property will be fitted up in the most approved cafeteria style and will probably be opened for business about May 15. William Garland is the lessor.

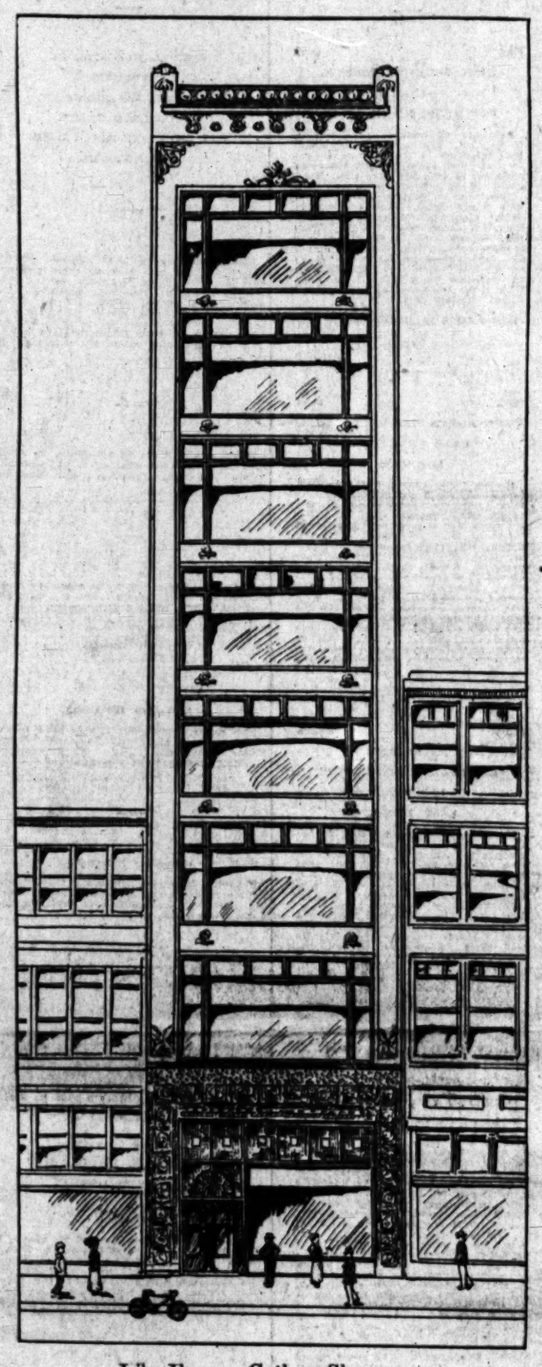
The frontage to be occupied by The Times is 40x150 feet in size and extends to a twenty-foot alley at the rear. The space has been taken for a period of ten years from Victor Dol. The room, which has been handsomely finished and conveniently arranged, will until the completion of the new Times Building at First and Broadway house the business office, advertising department, subscription department and information bureau of The Times. It will be permanently maintained as a regular down-town branch office.

The deals mentioned were all negotiated through the agency of Metcalf and Ryan.

FIGUEROA AND WASHINGTON.

One of the important deals in business property during the past week was the purchase by a local syndicate of the southeast corner of Figueroa and Washington streets through Richard M. Bishop, representing the owner, John Forthmann. The property has a frontage of 160 feet on Washington street and of 120 feet on Figueroa street. Bishop also sold his southwest corner of Western avenue and Sixth street, 74x150 feet, to Frank Schumacher, who intends to improve.

"Chimney Block" for West Seventh.



Like Famous Gotham Skyscraper.

Unique building, twenty-five feet wide and eight stories high, projected by Emil Olcovich and Carl Stern for downtown site. Metcalf & Ryan are handling the enterprise.

STIMSON-LAFAYETTE SCHOOL.

The annual meeting of the Stimson-Lafayette Industrial Association will be held on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30, at the home of Miss Mary E. Spencer, No. 721 West Twenty-third street, for the election of officers and directors.

PLAN FINE GARAGE.

Construction will be begun within a few weeks upon the fine garage that is to be erected at the southwest corner of Tenth and Hope streets for H. O. Harrison & Co., and plans for which have just been completed by Morgan, Walls & Morgan. The building, which is to be the home of the Peerless car, will be two stories in height and of reinforced concrete construction. It will be built by Mrs. S. H. Van Nuys, who has given a long lease on the property to the Harrison company. The cost of the improvement will be approximately $90,000. The structure will be handsomely faced with tapestry brick.

Lookout Mountain Park has been taken over by H. G. Holabird & Co. The arrangement of this subdivision provides snug home sites in the canyons and large sites on the heights of the mountains, back of Hollywood, which command an unobstructed view of the city of Los Angeles, the San Fernando Valley, the ocean, Catalina Island and twenty towns. A fine automobile road has been constructed about and to the top of the mountains. G. Holabird & Co. report the sales to the following: Mrs. R. L. Craig, John L. Brickles, Sebastian Kraemer, Mrs. Zaidee V. Smith, William P. Bolton, Mrs. Blanche K. Corby, Mrs. G. J. Engelke, Mrs. S. V. Dunham, Mrs. A. G. Steator and Elizabeth L. Kenney, Miss Edna Burt, and Paul King. Mrs. Houseman of New York City has purchased the mountain top known as "Wonderland Point," upon which she will erect a handsome residence this summer.

FACT AND COMMENT.

Of considerable interest to all who contemplate the erection of apartment houses in this city will be an opinion given by John W. Shenk, City Attorney, in response to a query by the Chief Inspector of Buildings respecting one of the puzzling provisions of the Burnett State Tenement House Act. The section in question, No. 70, reads as follows: "That no horse, cow, calf, swine, goat or sheep, chickens or poultry shall be kept in a tenement house, or within twenty feet thereof on the same lot, and no tenement house or the lot or premises thereof shall be used for lodging house or stable, or for the storage or handling of rags." The building department wanted to know if the act prohibited the official approval of a set of plans for a tenement in which single rooms for lodging purposes were contemplated, when these rooms were not provided with sinks, water closets or other conveniences usually required by a family. Information was also desired as to the applicability of the section to servants' rooms.

Incidentally, and if the diversion may be pardoned, it has always been a source of wonderment and curiosity to the Fact and Comment man as to the aim of Mr. Burnett in Section 7 of his act, especially in its comprehensive aspects. The people of Los Angeles, at least, do not maintain any such menageries in local apartments as are so expressly and so explicitly forbidden in the State building laws. And, notwithstanding the misleading impression that might have been created by the recent anti-rooster agitation, it is a fact that even chickens are not to be found excepting in the rather remote residential districts. (One rooster will go a long way.) A thorough search of the city, it may be put down as settled, would not reveal a cow, horse, pig, goat, sheep or chicken in a Los Angeles apartment house or on the premises thereof. It must be the Francisco that is hit.

Single Rooms Lawful.

The term, "lodging house," in the section of the Burnett act in question has several times been the stumbling block in the way of a projected improvement in this city. The Burnett act has in some way or another come to be regarded as even more stringent than it is. Certain vague and illogical provisions set in a law which in its entirety has many things to commend it have "queered" the act as a whole in the minds of a host of builders. The suggestion of the Chief Inspector of Buildings that the building ordinances be carefully revised is, in the light of recent experiences, a wise one.

The opinion of the City Attorney on the question of the right of a builder to provide for single rooms in an apartment house puts a new light on a section whose previous interpretation has deterred a number of would-be builders from substantially improving their vacant properties. Here is what he says: "It is my opinion that under the terms of said section of said act you (the Chief Inspector of Buildings) would not be justified in refusing to approve a set of plans for a tenement house building which contained single rooms, provided such single rooms did not occupy a considerable or substantial portion of said building. Single rooms for servants, whether located in the basement of such a building or otherwise, are not prohibited by the terms of said act."

It would certainly appear that the City Attorney's opinion, however it might stand a test at law, is a sensible one, the only sensible attitude in fact. Why should the builder of an apartment house be prohibited from including single rooms in his plans, or why should the builder of a lodging house be prohibited from including as many apartment suites as he desires as long as the provisions looking to ordinary safety and sanitation are carefully observed? It is a well-known fact that the Burnett act was patterned almost slavishly after the stringent building ordinances that were drafted by the New York tenement house department following the scandalous revelations of horrible and strictly local conditions prevailing in Manhattan. Single rooms were kept out of the New York tenements as a measure to keep prostitution out of the crowded tenement house zone with its myriads of growing children swarming from basement to attic of every building. The logic of incorporating the idea bodily into the California State laws has never become apparent.

Sensational Activity.

The men who are predicting that "Los Angeles is going to have another great building boom" are a bit mixed in their tenses. Los Angeles is right at this moment experiencing the greatest building activity in the history of this or any other city. Nor is it any "boom", that is fattening the statistics of the Building Department these days. The normal activity of the present prosperous time in Los Angeles is actually greater than that ever witnessed for any extended period in the history of the booms in any city on the continent. If there were anything like a real boom on here more noise would be made about it.

April, already boasting a total of 1299 permits taken out for new buildings, will in the two days remaining before May 1 unquestionably eclipse the highest record for the number of permits issued in any single month in the city's annals. With a valuation to date of $2,468,131, the month has a secure hold on third place in point of the money outlay for construction work in any month, and actually may be classed as the greatest month in the history of Los Angeles building operations.

April, 1910, with $3,360,577 valuation to its credit, included in its permits those for the $1,000,000 Alexandria Annex and the $425,000 Los Angeles Trust building. June, 1911, with $2,790,521, relied for $1,000,000 of its great total on the permit issued for the Van Nuys building, now nearing completion at Seventh and Spring. The $1,000,000 permit for the Los Angeles Investment Company block at Eighth and Broadway accounted for the huge valuation of $2,813,247 recorded in September, 1911.

The valuatio nrecord for the present month is conspicuous for the absence of any permits for great downtown buildings such as those named, and is a record of average, every-day building operations, and hence is the more remarkable. Permits issued for new homes alone aggreate over 600 and represent dwellings whose total cost will be in excess of $1,300,000. The officials of the department have estimated that one permit, representing a building to cost $1900, has been taken out every ten minutes of every working day of this month to date.

These statistics, so significant of progress, are quoted in the Fact and Comment column by way of graphic and convincing substantiation of the contention often made by the writer that the only time to buy vacant property within the present range of city activities was NOW. With over 1000 new building projects taking definite shape every month, how long is it going to be before desirable frontage at prices within the reach of the average man are going to begin to "inch" into the prohibitive cost classification? The close-in frontage of today is soon going to be the solidly-built frontage. The sites farther out are soon to be held as close-in property with a "future." The lesson of the present day activity is eloquent with suggestions for the wise.

HARBOR CITY ON SOUTHLAND MAP.

NEW TOWN SCENE OF GREAT BUYING ACTIVITY.

Investors Make Purchases Aggregating One Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars in First Week of Promising Industrial City's Existence.

Sales aggregating close to $150,000 have been made at Harbor City since that promising new industrial city was opened a week ago. The transfers include purchases of business and residence lots and industrial sites by men and women from all parts of Southern California and fairly represent the faith of the average investor in all the property that may be said to come within the zone of prospective harbor activities.

The Harbor City townsite is situated about four miles north of San Pedro, with which city it is connected by a car line operating on a 5-cent fare. It lies adjacent to the Lomita tract of 1600 acres, which was so successfully exploited by W. I. Hollingsworth and Company, two years ago, and which is today almost solidly built up with homes. The new town has a large frontage on Bixby slough and is prepared to profit to the limit by the future deepening of this depression to the edge of the West Basin at Wilmington, which at its nearest point is only 880 feet away.

The townsite comprises about 800 acres, of which 180 acres is now being placed on the market by W. I. Hollingsworth and Company, who purchased the whole property several months ago from Dumke and Lembke. The townsite proper lies entirely within the Shoe String Strip.

The San Pedro-Gardena car line runs directly through the tract and it boasts a large frontage on Weston street along the course of which the Main street boulevard from Los Angeles is to proceed westward toward Redondo Beach. Well improved lateral streets are to be laid out, and the new town will soon boast all the conveniences of a city. As a sort of "back-country" for Harbor City quarter-acre and half-acre pieces with water and particularly adapted to agricultural uses are to be laid out.

Following are the names of some of the purchasers in the new townsite as reported by W. I. Hollingsworth and Company:

E. A. Armstrong, Edward Frampton, Miss Margaret Pierce, H. Dumke, Mabel M. Freeman, C. S. Older, Jay D. Cassatt, James A. Frampton, Jr., Mrs. E. P. Quental, J. E. Dickson, J. J. Lawlaus, Mrs. Cora B. OUR idea of a home is one both PRACTICAL and ARTISTIC. By careful thought we manage to instill certain INDIVIDUALITY in each home.

It quite frequently happens that the PROSPECTIVE BUILDER'S IDEAS and PURSE do not correspond. In such cases our PRACTICAL knowledge comes to the rescue, and often where others have hopelessly FAILED, WE SUCCEED.

We build homes from the modern five-room cottage, at $900, to the most elaborate dwelling. It rests with the INDIVIDUAL, entirely, what his home will cost. By concentrating our PURCHASING POWER, combined with our PRACTICAL knowledge, and being in a position to DISCOUNT our BILLS, we can, for a given quality of work, discount our competitors' prices.

We build either by contracts on a fixed fee of 10 per cent. of estimated cost of work, or on our own lots in Los Angeles, Redondo and San Pedro, on easy terms.

We make no additional charges for our Architectural services, if we build, or if we fail to satisfy you both as to price and design.

FOR SALE—

$4000 cash will buy a well-to-do old maid and bought a fine lot, 60x128, in Highland Park, near the Arroyo Seco, amidst poplar and oak trees, where I could have peace and seclusion for myself, cats and property, and still be within two blocks of both the red and yellow car lines, and built for myself, by day's work, a beautiful modern five-room bungalow of artistic design, where I have had 4 years of peace, comfort and rest. Now, to my intense disgust, the city of Los Angeles is arranging to open the Arroyo Seco Park to adjoin my lot, and will thus destroy my privacy with park visitors, sightseers and tourists. In consequence, I will sacrifice $600 on my house, and offer salt cheap at $3400. Only $400 to $500 cash, and the monthly terms to suit. Apply to my agents, MATTHEWS & MATTHEWS, 329 Douglas Bldg., or at their branch office, 2240 Pasadena ave.

FOR SALE—

Don't miss this opportunity to purchase for $4000, which is half the original cost, an Arts-and-Crafts bungalow, modern in every style of its 5 rooms; has furnace and sleeping porch; 40 FT. FRONTAGE.

The grounds are beautifully laid out and contain many shrubs, plants and fruit trees. The property is located on 36th st., one block from the high-class 28th and West Adams st. district, and about one block from Hoover-ette line. Owners live in East and must dispose of L. A. holdings. We hold option on this property. See us at once. Must be quick sale.

WESTLAKE DISTRICT BUNGALOW.

$5750.

Here is what you have been looking for! A handsome eight-room bungalow, located on high ground near Westlake Park, about twelve minutes' ride from the center of the city. It was built by day labor under most careful supervision, and has two bedrooms on the second floor, tiled bath, etc.; a beautiful, big, wide, cement porch on two sides and the interior is finished to the dot. You cannot buy a lot in this location and duplicate the house for less than $6500. Insist on seeing this property.

See us about "Ridgewood Park," beautiful Wilshire section; lots 60x170, $1400 and up.

A GREAT BUNGALOW BARGAIN.

$6000.

We are proud to show this bungalow! Even such oldtimers as our salesmen grow enthusiastic when they see it. It's the biggest value for the lowest price in all Wilshire.

The location is Gramercy Place, east-fronting lot, 50x250 feet, among fine homes, half a block from car line, and the house is new. Seven splendid rooms; all hardwood floors; extraordinary finish and tasteful decorations; breakfast-room; three bedrooms, one all sunshine, too; furnace, water heater and laundry trays; a great big veranda; garage with lavatory and extra toilet (mark this!) and wide cement drive.

The owners are anxious to sell and have a good reason. They have a chance to get an acreage bargain if they can sell their home at once. You are the gainer thereby to the extent of $600! The price of $5500 is just that much below cash value. That's all!

See us about "Ridgewood Park," beautiful Wilshire section; lots 60x170, $1400 and up.

OWNER COMPELLED TO SELL.

WILSHIRE STORY-AND-A-HALF BUNGALOW.

$6500.

Eight rooms and sleeping porch, located on an east front, sixty-foot lot in splendid neighborhood and restricted district. Here's an opportunity to get a well-built home, built by day labor, at a great sacrifice. Owner's loss your gain.

You will find five delightful rooms, large hall and extra toilet and lavatory on the first floor, and upstairs are three bedrooms, with commodious closets, sleeping porch and bath. Good cement basement with automatic heater; delightful porch extends entirely across the front of the house. Garage, lawn, etc. And attractive terms are available. Let us show you this soap.

See us about "Ridgewood Park," beautiful Wilshire section; lots 60x170, $1400 and up.

NEAR FIGUEROA AND EIGHTH.

$7500.

Think of being able to purchase a home and an investment within one block of Figueroa and Eighth streets for $7500. George almost impossible, but we have it and can deliver it! Let it 60x187 feet, with a fine seven-room, two-story home on it. This property is right now ripe for an operator, which will show a splendid income; it is within easy walking distance and only three or four blocks from what will be the center of the city in a few years. Snap it up quick! $2500 will handle it, the balance to suit.

See us about "Ridgewood Park," beautiful Wilshire section; lots 60x170, $1400 and up.

WESTMORELAND SACRIFICE.

$11,000.

Fourteen-room home, east front, on a lot 70x250, easily worth $9000, and the improvements, built three years ago, cost not less than $8000, making a value of $17,000, which we are offering at $11,000, and the property will stand a loan of $5000. Don't forget the location, east front near Magnolia and 10th streets, in the Westmoreland tract; three baths, eight bedchambers—five on the second floor and three and a ballroom on the third. Cellar, large garage, furnace—in fact, everything is complete and at a real sacrifice! Let us show it to you and explain the necessity for a quick sale.

See us about "Ridgewood Park," beautiful Wilshire section; lots 60x170, $1400 and up.

HOME NEAR THE HARVARD SCHOOL.

$16,000.

Something new! Something different! Right up-to-the-minute! Cement marble dust Saltk, Colonial—it's a real beauty. Nine rooms, three tiled baths, two dressing-rooms, complete servants' quarters on the first floor, large cellar, furnace, Ruud heater and garage. The interior finish on the first floor is in quartered oak and mahogany, with seven-coat ivory enamel on the second floor. The sixty-foot lot commands a beautiful view of the mountains and is located near Dorchester and St. Andrew's. Terms may be arranged.

SHATTO PLACE HOME.

$20,000.

Think of it! "A home on Shatto Place for sale!" It doesn't happen often, and at $20,000! The lot, east front, speaks for itself, and this is the only location in the entire Wilshire where such a depth is obtainable. The home is perfect and must be seen; let us show it to you. The owner has left for the East and has ordered us to sell. Here is your opportunity! Act quickly! It won't last long. We can arrange most acceptable terms and the furnishings may be purchased at almost your own price.

SPLENDID HOMESITES

A FEW BLOCKS

FROM MAGNIFICENT

WEST ADAMS HEIGHTS

$600 UP

We can state conservatively that this is the most attractively situated property within or around Los Angeles—a fact that can be absolutely proven by anyone who will take the trouble to visit the property.

This property is the very best of West Adams—the last of the high ground—from every possible viewpoint, a high-class community. Building restrictions, $3000 to $5000. Public improvements of the highest possible character—already installed.

Overlooks the entire surrounding country and commands magnificent views of mountains, valley and sea.

This property lies between West Adams Hill and W. Washington st., and is not more than 30 minutes from the business center. If you are in the market for a home within the limits mentioned in Los Angeles from the standpoint of desirable home conditions—or if you want property that will inevitably make you money—investigate this at once. To reach it, take West Adams "through" car to Hill. Cross Drive, or Washington car to Hill. Cross Hill and walk north one block to West Boulevard. Representatives on the tract with automobiles will show you the property.

WE WILL MAKE VERY REASONABLE TERMS TO RESPONSIBLE PEOPLE—AND OFFER SPECIAL INDUCEMENTS TO THOSE WHO INTEND TO BUILD.

FOR SALE—

THE VERY CHOICEST

APARTMENT SITE IN LOS ANGELES.

WESTLAKE CORNER.

FRONTING BEAUTIFUL SUNSET PARK.

$22,500.

We have for immediate sale the most attractive apartment house site in this whole city, being the southwest corner of Hoover st. and Sunset place, 4 blocks west of Westlake Park, now improved with an $8000 residence for which no extra charge is made and which will afford a handsome home or income until you care to build apartments. It almost adjoins the $500,000 Rampart Apartments, and the $250,000 Wilshire Apartments, now being erected at Wilshire and Rampart blvds—the only fireproof apartment building in Los Angeles.

Any improvement placed on this lot will overlook Sunset—the only sunken park in the city—and will afford a panoramic view of the beautiful and exclusive Wilshire residence district, the mountains, the whole Cahuenga Valley and the Pacific Ocean.

It has no counterpart here as a high-class site for apartments; is only 17 minutes distant from the business center, is convenient to 5 car lines, and only a half block north of 7th st.—affording the best car service in the city.

Any one familiar with conditions here knows that the small territory bounded by Westlake and Sunset parks, W. 6th and W. 7th sts., is, and will always be the choicest and most exclusive family hotel and apartment district of Los Angeles. Witness the Hershey Arms, Shoreham Hotel, Trehor Apartments, Coronado Apartments, Wilshire Apartments etc.

This lot has not heretofore been advertised for sale, and a comparison with prices of other corners in this vicinity will prove this lot to be at least 33 1-3 per cent. lower in price and 50 per cent. better in location than any other corner offered thereabout.

There are other advantages. Come in and let us tell you about them; but come quickly, as the corner must be sold immediately.

100 FOOT FRONTAGE, WILSHIRE DISTRICT.

$2600 BUYS IT ON EASY TERMS.

Take the Pico street car to my tract office at the corner of Alta avenue and you will be at the south entrance to one of the best located tracts in the Wilshire district. Oxford Square, with its palms, planted parkings and electroliers, is one of the beauty spots of the city.

Think of buying 100-foot frontage with a depth of 171 feet, amid select neighbors for such a price as $2600. You're dealing with the owner direct when you buy from me in Oxford Square. I bought the land years ago and so can offer this unusual bargain at less than present acreage price of land much farther out. I have developed the tract to the very utmost of exclusiveness. Reasonable restrictions are enforced—that's why you'll find so many handsome homes there. Cement walks are 5 feet wide, and this bargain faces east on a 70-foot avenue. You won't find another hundred-foot frontage like this for $2600, with street improvements paid for.

Central properties we wish to improve to suit for store, loft, hotel and other uses.

If you know values, the prices of properties we offer will cause you to act quickly.

Los Angeles is certain to grow as Chicago only faster. We knew and do business for the men who were wise and bought when Chicago only had 400,000 people, instead of 2,400,000, and are now millionaires. Here in Los Angeles is your opportunity. We can invest from $100 up to millions for you and your principal be as safe as government bonds and far more remunerative.

We have investments in improved property you would be glad to get and we to tell you about.

FOR SALE— FOR SALE—

RESERVATIONS ARE NOW BEING MADE

For acres, half-acres, three-fourths acres and smaller lots in the new addition known as Tract No. 1835 of

EL SEGUNDO ACRES.

This land is considered the very choicest of this entire section, and its ideal location, overlooking El Segundo, the Standard Oil Refinery City, means added value. You can have your farm, your chickens and garden, and supply the El Segundo market. The demand at present for poultry an vegetables exceeds the supply.

The prices, which will be in force until May 15, 1912, are:

Large lots (75x145)	$400 to $ 700
Half acres	$550 to $ 850
Three-quarter acres	$650 to $ 900
Acre lots	$650 to $1300

EL SEGUNDO is a city which is establishing such a wonderful record for rapid growth. In eight months it has grown from a barley field to a hustling thriving little city, where big profits are being made by early investors. Remember, the acres at EL SEGUNDO are full size. When you buy an acre in this tract you are buying one acre net, exclusive of the streets. This is a matter that should be considered when you buy acreage.

These prices would be excessive for raw land only, but when you consider that there will be improvements including graded and oiled streets, walks, shade trees and an ample water supply piped to each lot, you will realize this is absolutely the best buy in this section for the money.

This opportunity will last for only 30 days. In the meantime, you can make the reservation at the above prices. After the 30 days expire, the prospects are for a considerable advance in the prices.

WERE YOU INVITED?

When the public call was made to purchase acreage or villa sites where the city of Pasadena now stands—were you one of those invited? Then that was your opportunity. It has gone!

When offerings of acreage where Hollywood or Glendale now stand were made in Los Angeles—were you among those invited?

We now invite you to a Villa site which by topography is the natural townsite of three charming residential valleys, only eleven miles from Los Angeles.

This is your invitation.

This is your opportunity.

We want you to join with the hundred members already joined to take over 400 acres of bare lands in the foothills, 11 miles from Broadway—to be a charter member and let the profits from the subdivision earn an acreage place or villa homesite for you in the region that surpasses all.

Do you ever expect to get invited, to locate in this way again on territory touching elbows with Los Angeles, but distinctly a social and commercial center of itself?

As an investor or home-maker can you afford to let the opportunity to investigate this week go by? You cannot!

Call, write or telephone for booklet.

Auto trips twice each week-day.

Books on second allotment will close May 15.

Valuable booklet with local map free. WESTERN EMPIRE VERDUGO ASSOCIATION, 108 Chamber of Commerce Bldg., Los Angeles.

FOR SALE—

We make it our special business to find what you wish to purchase. If you will call at our office and tell us what you want to see we either have it now or will procure it for you without delay. We have the choicest selection of orange and lemon groves, walnut groves, vacant, citrus and other fruit lands in Southern California.

SPECIAL BARGAINS.
135 Acres—This tract is a subdivision of the famous Baldwin Ranch and located within a few hundred yards of the thriving town of Puente and during any season of the year you can drive to Los Angeles dry shod, via the Valley boulevard. One of the good roads system. Think of what this means. The soil is second to none for quality, and will produce any California product. Nothing better for alfalfa, vegetables, peaches, strawberries or citrus fruits. As this tract is only 5 minutes' walk from schools, bank, stores, depot, it is unquestionably a fine homesite, or will readily if subdivided into small tracts. And, last of all, the water supply for irrigation is not surpassed by anything in Los Angeles county. Being furnished by a pumping plant operated by electricity and delivering 160 miner's inches of water. Will sell the tract as a whole or two parts at $100 per acre less than anything else of equal quality in the district. No use delay but investigate this opportunity at once. Let us show you what is going on in the vicinity of Puente as the coming city in the San Jose Valley.

$54,000—40 acres, South Arcadia; deep sediment soil; all in alfalfa, which is a perfect stand, and ready to be cut; 100 inches of water. This is a money maker and a real bargain. Terms, one-half cash.

$4400—16 acres, 1¼ miles from Puente, seeded to alfalfa; sediment loam; 12 inches of water; a snap. Terms, one-half cash.

$2800—12½ acres near Puente, sandy loam soil, all planted to walnuts, 5 acres alfalfa, balance fine crop of corn. 100 inches of water, small house, barn, etc. Terms one-half cash.

$4200—10 acres south of El Monte, subirrigated land, no irrigation required to grow potatoes, celery, alfalfa, etc. Terms $1000 cash, balance 3 years.

$8500—10 acres, a subdivision of the Baldwin Ranch, will grow anything without irrigation; good California home (new), 5-room bungalow, etc. Only 1½ miles south El Monte, 10 miles from city.

$10,000—10 acres full-bearing soft-shell walnut orchard, one mile from El Monte, one block from public school, ¼ mile from car line, fair house, barn, etc. This place is payting big income and cannot be duplicated for price, or quality.

$40,000—160 acres, 1½ miles south Buena Park; choice sediment soil; all alfalfa or walnut land; fine irrigation well. Terms.

$52,500—160 acres, solid to alfalfa, located in the El Monte country, very deep sediment loam soil, pumping plant on the ranch, pumps 175 inches of water with electric engine. Here is a money maker. Will sell 80 acres or all. Easy terms.

This is only a partial list of what we have to offer.

FOR SALE—400 ACRES.

IN OWENS VALLEY.

HOME OF THE APPLE.

The land in California that will grow apples successfully is limited in area. Most of the apples consumed here are shipped in from other States.

Up around Bishop, in the Owens Valley, near the headwaters of the famous Owens River, are located some of the finest apple orchards in the State. Here Winesaps grow to perfection.

APPLES MORE PROFITABLE THAN ORANGES.

One of the largest orange growers of Southern California has recently purchased 2600 acres of land in the Owens Valley, of which 160 acres are now being set to apple trees.

Owens Valley land also grows abundant crops of alfalfa—the yield for three cuttings being around seven tons to the acre, enabling a man to earn a living while his apple trees are reaching maturity.

400 ACRES FOR SALE.

ON FAVORABLE TERMS.

This land lies within four miles of Bishop. Adjoining are full-bearing apple orchards. No finer apple land in the State. Country opening up. Narrow guage railroad being standardized to Bishop. Excellent transportation.

It will pay you to get full particulars of this proposition. Large apple dealers in Los Angeles can tell you about Owens Valley. Full information of above 400-acre tract will be furnished by Bryan & Bradford. You deal direct with owner.

Better get in touch with us at once. This is an exceptionally opportunity. Call on or address

BETTER THAN A BANK DEPOSIT.

You ask what can possibly be better than a bank deposit? Our answer is LAND—good, rich, fertile land, well located and with plenty of water. Banks sometimes fail—land never. Begin right now and make your first deposit in a first payment on one of our little irrigated farms in FAIRMEAD COLONY on our yearly payment plan.

FAIRMEAD COLONY

Is a part of the famous Sharon ranch, well known on account of its fertility. It is located on the Southern Pacific R.R. in Madera county and in the very heart of the GREAT SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY.

The FAIRMEAD soil is a deep rich sandy loam, unexcelled for ALFALFA, FRUIT, GRAPES AND VEGETABLES. It is in a district famous for dairying and hog raising. We have more irrigation water than can possibly be used. 1200 acres have already been sold. A new town, FAIRMEAD, is building on the land.

EXCURSION.

Join our excursion to FAIRMEAD and see for yourself. The more thorough your examination the better we will be pleased.

ORANGE PLANTING
TERRA BELLA AND RICHGROVE

is now going on. Several hundred acres are being planted to oranges and lemons this season. The rapid strides made in the culture of citrus fruits in this district has awakened the interests of investors throughout the country. Terra Bella and Richgrove are absolutely proven districts. The past cold winter has proved it to be immune from frost damage. Experienced Southern California orange growers are planting oranges at Terra Bella and Richgrove. A careful inspection of these which are located in the heart of the early orange belt of Tulare and Kern counties, will convince the most skeptical. Buy now, while it is yet possible to secure the choicest and best land for $100 AND $125 AN ACRE.

EARLY ORANGE AND LEMON LANDS,

Our terms are within the reach of all. Many are buying on the monthly installment plan of $12.83 per month for ten acres of $100 land. This appeals to the wage earner and capitalists alike. It makes it possible for one to own an orange grove with a limited amount of capital. Excursion twice weekly. Call or write for illustrated folder and map.

GENTLEMAN'S COUNTRY HOME AND INVESTORS OPPORTUNITY.

160 acres of rich, silt, river bottom soil in Shasta county, on the banks of Sacramento River's crystal waters. There are 200 acres in French prunes of unexcelled size and quality in full bearing. 100 acres in alfalfa, 300 acres in grain and pasture; affording opportunity for ideal enjoyment, much development and profitable returns. Improvements consist of a good ranch house of 7 rooms, two large barns, a packing-house, drying-house, storage-house, steam plant and outbuildings; 9000 trays, 2500 lug boxes, full equipment of ladders, etc., for gathering and all necessities for caring for fruit. Present crop estimated at $25,000. This place is two miles from good country town and High School and near-by State highway. It also embraces electric railroad surveys, and spur of Southern Pacific Railroad. This is conceded to be the best cultivated and managed place of the kind in Northern California and although it is river bottom soil, yet it never suffers from injurious overflow. Beautiful lake, many 8 feet in diameter, give undeniable proof of the richness of soil. The place must be sold, and the necessity permits of easy terms. Price $150 per acre.

See and be believer.

FOR SALE—

AT A BARGAIN
LARGEST AND MOST UP-TO-DATE
DUCK RANCH
IN THE WEST.
$300 a Month Profits.
Winners of Seven Prizes at the 1912 Poultry Show.

There is more money in a Duck Ranch than in a chicken ranch. We sell all the eggs and ducks we raise at a good price and are making money. Only 20 minutes from the Los Angeles business district. On a main line of the electric railway. 3 acres of land, 5-room house, outhouses, incubator and complete equipment. Everything in the best condition.

Write and will expain why this money-making opportunity is offered. Don't miss this exceptional chance to get into a going business that will assure you a daily income and a good profit. For sale by owner. No agents.

Address G, box 59, TIMES OFFICE.

FOR SALE—POULTRY RANCH, WELL ESTABLISHED, profitable business, clearing over $3000 yearly; 5 acres sandy loam, in center of rapidly-growing locality, near Los Angeles; plenty water; excellent transportation facilities, all conveniences; over 2000 thoroughbred chickens, in fine condition, healthy and free from vermin; substantial buildings and practical arrangements all through; large incubator capacity, doing highly-profitable business in baby chicks, as well as with eggs for hatching. All eggs not thus disposed of are shipped to one firm at 6 cents per dozen above market price. The place is well known and advertised and the good-will of the business is a valuable asset, but for personal reason will sell below inventory. About $4000 cash required. This is the best bargain on the market today, and if you are thinking of going into the poultry business, why not step right in and make money from the start, instead of spending from one to two years' time and lots of work and money to bring a new place up to paying basis? Better investigate this if you have the cash. Address OWNER, P. box 302, Times Office.

FOR SALE—POULTRY RANCHES.

2½ acres at Pomona, all set to apricots, in fine condition, with good crop; excellent shade for poultry; 3 large chicken-houses, incubator-house, brooder-house, 8 large incubators, 900 high-bred laying hens, 500 chicks, several weeks old; city water piped to all the houses; feed barn, and small house; this is netting $150 per month; price $4500, easy terms.

5 acres, between Pomona and Chino, all in fruit; one of the best poultry ranches in the valley; several large poultry houses, with trap nests; water piped to all the houses and yards; about 1000 high-bred laying hens; a complete equipment; 5-room new house and barn; price $7000, good terms.

FOR SALE—ORANGE GROVES.
If there is anything good in the way of orange groves, we have them. Do you realize that there is going to be lots of money made in orange groves from now on? The Panama Canal will soon be finished and it will bring thousands of investors to Southern California. When it comes to cheap water and location they all take their hats off to us, as we beat them all. Results count; the proof of the pudding is in the eating.
We want you to thoroughly investigate anything we offer for sale.
The groves are situated at Azusa, 22 miles from Los Angeles, on the Pacific Electric and the main line of the Santa Fe roads.
Best of grammar and high school facilities. Six churches, no saloons; population 3000.
10-acre grove; one-third lemons, one-third Valencias and one-third navels. Average age 11 years. 5-room house, etc. A bargain at $19,000.
8½-acre grove; ½ navels, ½ Valencias; average age 12 years; 5-room house, barn, etc. A bargain at $17,500.
22-acre grove; part Valencias and part navels, average age about 12 years. Situated on the Foothill boulevard; beautiful location. Two good six-room houses and barns, etc. A bargain at $44,000.
8-acre grove. About all navels, about 12 years old; 5-room Calif. house, barn, etc. A bargain at $8250.
The above groves are but a few of the many we have for sale.

BUSINESS INVESTMENTS—

AN ABSOLUTELY SAFE INVESTMENT—
Timid investors here is an offer for you that has never been equaled. Why? Investigate and we will show you a chance to participate in the profits of a business that is making more money today than any other manufacturing business in the world, viz., the manufacture of motion pictures under new ways and special work. Our men are experts in this line and have to make a dollar for you before making for themselves.
For every dollar you invest with us we will secure you by depositing in your bank an equal amount, which is a secured bond. If we don't make you 500 per cent, in profits, the bond is yours. We are a company incorporated under the laws of California.
Shares now at $5 each. Apply at once and investigate. Address K, box 9, TIMES OF-FICE.

A REAL INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITY—
A prosperous machinery and pump manufacturing concern in Los Angeles desires to increase its capital and equipment by $5000.
We are now earning better than 30 per cent. per annum on our investment. The additional facilities we plan will largely increase this.
To the right man or men with $5000 cash we will make an attractive offer. Investigate this opportunity to get into a live, profit earning, permanent business; connect yourself with successful men of high standing and character. No brokers; principals only. See our attorney at 520 TITLE IN-SURANCE BLDG., between 10 and 12 a.m.

FOR SALE—
I offer for sale a corner lot in the center of the business section of Hollywood for $14,500, or $155 per front foot. This lot will more than double in value in the next three to five years. The finest business, apartment or hotel lot in the county for the price, frontage on three streets, including 25 feet on Hollywood Blvd. The best buy. Ask any body.

Hollywood Blvd. and Cahuenga ave.,
Hollywood.

AN INVESTMENT, NON-SPECULATIVE AND SAFE.
The poor man's or poor woman's opportunity to invest $25 to $100 so that will earn a bigger dividend and is safer than home builders or bank stock; and includes the privilege of borrowing money; under State supervision and as safe as a government bond; time and number limited; your opportunity is now. See MR. QUINN, 315 Byrne

MR. THEATER BUYER—
When you buy or lease a theater you want the BEST proposition in the market.
The only SURE way to get a COMPLETE list of available theaters is to see me, because I am exclusively a theater broker.
Putting all my energies in the one line I naturally know more about the local situation and have a larger and better list than is possible for a person who makes the theater business a mere side line. I am the best posted man on good theaters in Southern California. I have been in the business for years. I buy, build and sell more theaters than all brokers combined on the Pacific Coast. I have the largest list of good theaters to select from. It does not cost you one cent for my services. You will receive the benefit of my knowledge and advice along the theatrical line.

A LOAN FROM US
Saves Money.
If you want money on FURNITURE, PIANO, horses, wagons, live stock or other personal property, without giving up the possession or use of same, BORROW FROM US AND SAVE MONEY.
Our plan gives you a definite amount to pay each month, including both principal and interest, and you know just where you stand at all times, and if you find that you can pay before the loan expires you will receive a substantial rebate on the total cost. In this way a loan can be paid off much quicker and cost much less than the customary loan providing for payment of interest only. The reputation we have firmly established with those who know us is "HOME BUILDERS" GUARANTY SHARES have many privileges which distinguish them from the shares sold without the guaranty. They are convertible into cash under the written terms of the Guaranty and are assured an earning of at least 8 per cent. per annum. They may be used in the purchase of property or other securities held by the Company and have a standing loan value of 50 per cent. of the current selling price. This Guaranty is given only to original purchasers by "HOME BUILDERS GENERAL AGENCY," who issues it. Assets amounting to over $150,000 are held to assure the fulfillment of this Guaranty.

"HOME BUILDERS" stock, whether Guaranty shares or not, is the best investment in the local market today. If you can buy "HOME BUILDERS" shares without the Guaranty for less than the price of Guaranty shares it is a fortunate purchase, and will yield you a good dividend, but when you buy Guaranty shares you have an added protection and will participate in the profits of the GENERAL AGENCY which the other shareholders do not possess. Guaranty shares are sold only by MONEY SYSTEM NEEDS REFORM.

Legislation Suggested to Remedy Situation.

Panics Unnecessary Under Proper Conditions.

Local Banker Tells Credit Men How to Do It.

Stoddard Jess delivered an address on currency reform before the Los Angeles Credit Men's Association at a banquet Thursday evening. He spoke on "Some Needed Legislation," and said in part:

The business interests of the country demand the enactment of laws, providing for uniform bills of lading, allowing banks to accept drafts or bills of exchange drawn upon them, and for a rational revision of our monetary system. All three are vital questions and should receive the attention of the law making bodies of the nation without unnecessary delay.

For many years the American Bankers Association, through a standing committee, assisted by committees appointed by the Bankers Associations of many of the States working in conjunction with representatives of Chambers of Commerce and organizations of large shippers, have endeavored to secure the passage by Congress of an act to make uniform bills of lading and requiring that all bills of lading issued by any common carrier in the United States be governed by the act, and that such bill of lading embody within its written or printed terms the title of its issue, the name of the person from whom the goods were received, the place where the goods were received, the place to which the goods are to be transported, the statement whether the goods received will be delivered to a specified person or to the order of a specified person, a description of the goods or of the packages containing them, and the signature of the carrier time of financial unrest, when it is cost needed, but owing to a decrease deposits, which invariably accomanies such crises, the banks are orced to start liquidation, and in-rease the financial distress by calling oans, as the only available means of eeping up their required reserves.

CENTERED IN NEW YORK.

Another great weakness of our anking system results from the fact hat the surplus cash resources of all he banks become concentrated in the ew York City banks, attracted there y the custom of paying 2 per cent.
nterest on bankers' deposits. The ew York banks paying 2 per cent.
nterest on the enormous volume of urplus deposits of the country banks eld by them, must, of necessity, find ome employment for the money to eimburse them. The principal outt the New York City banks have for he use of this great volume of sur-lus money is to loan it out on call on tock exchange securities. When oney is plentiful, this frequently re-ults in developing a bull movement stocks. When this condition preails and financial troubles occur, it is tterly impossible for the New York ity banks to pay the balances due the ountry banks for the reason that in imes of panic stock exchange col-aterals are not available and have o cash market value; thus making necessary for the New York City anks to refuse payments in cash and r every other bank throughout the ength and breadth of the land to llow suit.

That our circulating medium lacks e elasticity necessary to meet the ver-changing needs of commerce, d to afford protection in times of nic, has been so much talked about at its deficiency in this respect is mmonly understood.

That our circulating medium was cured on our bonds, was the result an exigency of war, which deanded a market for the bonds, and e market was found by selling them the banks, with the condition that e privilege of issuing circulating tes would be extended to the banks olding the bonds. The issuance of r bond secured circulation was not cause it was considered the best thods, but because by adopting it it lved a serious problem at a critical ne in the history of the nation.

Banks with singular unanimity ree that the best possible remedy for e causes that contribute to the aknesses of our present monetary stem that has so far been presented, what is known as the Aldrich ill.

BILL FORMULATED.

After carefully considering and sift-g all of the opinions gathered by the netary Commission, a bill was rmulated to incorporate the National serve Association of the United ates and this bill was introduced in ngress early in the present year d still remains before that body for consideration. The central thought the bill is the formation of what is be known as the National Reserve sociation of the United States, all of stock of which is to be owned by banks in certain proportions. The siness of the National Reserve Asiation is to be confined to the govrnment and to the members of the sociation. In other words, it will be banker's bank, and by acting as the cal agent of the government, will ceive and hold the government funds well as the surplus money of the nks.

In times of need the banks can reve, through the National Reserve sociation and its branches, the same sistance and on the same security at the banks through the Clearing uses arbitrarily availed themselves in 1907, by issuing scrip or token oney; the only difference being, that der the provisions of the bill con-tuting the National Reserve Assotion, the money supplied to the nks will be real money instead of en money.

The proposed law will remedy the aknesses of our present system. By cking the surplus cash, both public private, available for use whenr and wherever needed; by the centration of the funds of the govrnment and the reserves of the nks; by furnishing the opportunity the banks to rediscount notes at times and to convert same into culating medium to meet the fluc-ting needs of commerce and to intain the financial integrity of the nks in time of stress.

t may be commonly thought that netary legislation affects banks ne, but after consideration it is dis-ered that the merchant, the manu-urer, and the business man, are as ch affected as the banks in times of ncial distress, and frequently find mselves stared in the face by bankey through inability to meet ma-ing obligations. When panics oc-the wheels of industry are slowed n or stopped altogether, throwing r out of employment. Panics e more distress to the wage earner to any other class. It is reason-to know that the business men of country other than bankers are encing a proper interest in the ect of monetary legislation.

he National Citizens' League ned in the city of Chicago by busi-men, to arouse a public demand proper monetary legislation, has ublished branches in all the princities of the country, and is do-effective work in educating the ple to a proper appreciation of the portance of the question. A flourish-branch of the National Citizens' ue has been formed in Los Ans and is actively engaged in or-ing sub-leagues in all of the princities and towns in Southern fornia, outside of Los Angeles.
hile the bill now before Congress ceived practically the unanimous roval of all bankers as the best asure for the ills of our financial em, the attitude of the National ens' League is to be commended, at it does not commit the league any plan. If I understand the rank e bankers of the country aright, attitude is practically the same that of the Citizens' League, in that stand ready to favor the best asure that may be brought forth.
e importance of the question of netary revision is so paramount every business man should regard a duty to join the Citizens' League use his influence with the Senate and Congressman that represents State and district, and show his ds and customers the importance ction by the law-making body

MAY YET BUILD PORT LOBOS LINE

Santa Fe Official Says Project Is Much Alive.

Allotments of Land Made to the Mohave Indians.

Phoenix Charter Commission Completes Its Work.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) April 19.—According to President Frank M. Murray of the Santa Fe Arizona lines, the Port Lobos Railroad scheme is by no means dead, though little has been done upon it of late, owing to the unsettled Mexican political situation and financial conditions in the East. During a late visit to Phoenix he stated that there is no other enterprise contemplated which would mean as much for Phoenix as the building of the Port Lobos Railway, affording an outlet to deep water for the agricultural and mineral products of the entire state. Mr. Murphy now is on an inspection trip to the Christmas mines, accompanied by B. P. Cheney, one of the principal directors of the Development Company of America, and by C. E. Flaney and E. W. Brooks.

ELECTRIC DEVELOPMENT.

Grading has been begun upon the line of the Salt River Valley Electric Railway, along Monroe street, west from First street, toward Scottsdale, Tempe and Mesa. The system is to be thirty-five miles in length, including passenger and freight service to a part of the valley hitherto occupied by a railroad, and city and suburban service to the northeastern part of Phoenix. Connection with the Santa Fe system is to be made in the southeastern part of the city. The controlling corporation has secured local franchises from Phoenix, Tempe and Mesa. Its road has been laid out in mainline style, with broad curves and with wide curves. Possibly on these indications there is a suggestion that it may be used by the Santa Fe in the egress of that railroad toward the southeast, to a connection at Tucson with the El Paso and Southwestern Railroad and at Red Rock with the Port Lobos-Silver Belt road.

ALLOTMENTS OF LAND.

Allotments of land on the Colorado River Reservation to the Mohave Indians will begin at once at Parker, the Indians being given the right to make temporary selections of land, pending the permanent allotments of ten acres apiece. They are making readily to the proposition and appreciate that the earliest selections will be of the best lands. Six miles of ditches have been dug by the government to carry water for the Indians, and a large pumping plant will be in operation within thirty days. The land preferred is along the mesa, where alfalfa already has been proven a profitable crop, enough as the ten-acre allowance goes to children and women, also some of the family heads will contract fifty or more acres each. The Indians are being helped in the work by an expert reservation farmer, who expects that the reservation hay crop next year will be both large and profitable. The Mohaves are among the most industrious of Southwestern tribes, and the men are pleased to get back to the land after employment as laborers in the mines and on the railroads.

The famous car which ran such a merry race in the last Los Angeles-Phoenix road contest, again has come into the limelight. At the time of the run the machine was owned by Dr. Francis Redewill of Phoenix, but it was driven by "Bill" Tremaine. Tremaine later purchased the car from Dr. Redewill family, using the machine in his work as agent for the company in this city. Yesterday the automobile seized the car, taking it from the curb while Tremaine was in a barber shop. The next heard of the machine it was passing Coldwater, twenty miles west of Phoenix, going at racing speed, evidently headed for California again. As a result, Cass and Victor Redewill have been arrested, the former for stealing the machine and the latter for resisting an officer. The resistance was last night, when Sheriff Jeff Adams effected the arrests, not without violence on the part of the defendants. They have been released on bonds. They allege that Tremaine had paid only a part of the agreed purchase price.

CHARTER COMMISSION.

The Phoenix Charter Commission has finished its work and has thrown its report into the hands of the City Council. The first consideration in the Council chamber was the cause of a rare disturbance, partly because of objections to a list of names of candidates, which had been submitted by the commission, and partly through the demand of a representative of the labor unions that "his union" be given representation on the committees which is to carry the matter further. Under the new charter, which will soon be presented to the voters for possible ratification, the city will be governed by a commission. One concession which the City Council extended to the labor unions was the repealing of an ordinance prohibiting the distribution of

According to local report, Hon. M. Sherman has just refused $400,000 for the Phoenix street railway system, in which he is the largest stockholder.

Hon. N. A. Morford, for years in charge of the Phoenix City Library, died yesterday in this city, aged 54. He has been resident here for about thirty years. Her husband, surviving, was for years publisher of the Phoenix Daily Herald, and was for a term territorial Secretary.

UNCLEAN DAIRY.

CLARE, April 27.—Mrs. R. Suffolk Wankens district was today arrested by C. A. Peairs, the dairy inspector of this county, charged with operating an unclean dairy. She was fined a fine of $50, this being her second offense. It is stated by the inspector, however, that the condition of the dairies is most praiseworthy in this county at this time and that after each inspection by the State authorities they were pronounced the best of any in this State.

MAKING SPLENDID HEADWAY.

Wilmington Basin Scene of Great Activity, Two Giant Dredgers Being Operated Continuously.

WILMINGTON, April 27.—Steady progress is being made in the important and extensive dredging operations in the Wilmington basin, both the Oakland and Turbine dredgers operating every hour of the day and night. The march of both public and private improvement is to be seen on all sides. The realty market is active and inviting, and building operations have taken on a noticeable activity.

With both big dredging machines working satisfactorily, rapid advancement naturally attends the work of deepening the harbor and filling in the land about the ocean front. The dredgers are averaging about 10,000 cubic yards of earth every twenty-four hours, which is regarded as record-making, all things considered. Both Capt. C. W. Jones of the Oakland and Capt. E. Johnson of the Turbine, said today that everything connected with the work was progressing nicely, the only semblance of trouble at any time being an occasional running into quantities of shells that somewhat clog the pipe line. Superintendent Gomer of the Standard-American Dredging Company, which has the contract also says that the work is in satisfactory shape.

"The Turbine has been working about two weeks now and is running first rate," said the superintendent to The Times correspondent. "Prior to its arrival here the Turbine has been operating in Pearl Harbor, at Honolulu. The Oakland has been on the job since last October."

As the dredging proceeds the big iron pipe lines grow in length, and now extend considerable distance from the shore line. As the big machines eat into the harbor depths and carry out the earth and debris, extensions of the pipe lines become necessary and are made with all possible celerity. Every modern convenience that will facilitate the making of these important improvements are employed under the guidance of skilled workmen.

Within sixty days it is expected the big fill back from the water front will have been completed, and already there are many indications of substantial buildings being started without delay. Capitalists from various sections have been here looking over the ground, as the importance of the harbor is becoming more generally appreciated, and investments promise exceptional security as well as splendid returns. Reports of probable new manufacturing interests locating in this section are to be heard.

"I have been giving Wilmington a good deal of consideration," said W. L. Camp, secretary and general manager of the General Appliance Manufacturing Company, with offices in the Union Oil building, Los Angeles. "There are enterprises that have been impressed with the commercial importance and unusual advantages that Wilmington offer, although I am not prepared to discuss them at this time. What we may do remains to be seen."

Mr. Camp was, until recently, secretary of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce.

NEED OF RAIN KEEPS FIRM.

Prices Generally Are the Same as Last Week, but Considerably Higher than This Time Year Ago.

While no immediate advance in flour and mill goods is predicted the market is still firm, despite the advance last week. Rains are needed in the San Joaquin Valley for both wheat and barley, a fact which is said to be keeping the market firm.

Local sugar prices are not so steady as they have been but it is impossible to predict the future. Until several days ago New York refiners were quoting $5.20 for the refined product. Then Arbuckles cut the price to $5.05. The other refiners ignored this cut and are still quoting $5.20. Within the past week raw products have lost the gain made the proceeding week, being quoted yesterday at $2.98 as against $4.11 seven days ago.

Sugar in Los Angeles is 55 cents higher than at this date last year, when it was unusually low, and is not expected to return to last year's basis. The conclusion is that sugar locally will go no higher unless New York recovers its losses of the past two weeks.

Several of the more common staples are cheaper now than on the same date last year, but the great majority of them are much higher. The following table compares yesterday's prices with those of the same day last week and the same day last year:

	Today	Last week.	Last year.

Tonopah Mine Changes Hands.

TONOPAH, Nev. April 26.—The announcement was made this evening that control of the Monarch Pittsburgh Extension, one of the centrally located properties of the Tonopah district, has been acquired by H. C. Brougher and S. H. Brady, the deal being consummated through the instrumentality of H. L. Griswold, recently of Los Angeles.

Brougher is one of the pioneer mining men of Tonopah, one of the largest stockholders of the Tonopah Belmont, president of the Tonopah Midway Company, and one of the wealthy and progressive mining men of the State.

Brady was formerly superintendent of the Tonopah Belmont and it was under his direction that the great orebodies of that property were developed. He is now general manager of the West End Consolidated and Halifax properties and will assume the entire management of the Monarch Pittsburgh, beginning its thorough development shortly upon a liberal scale. The property adjoins and is nearly surrounded by the Tonopah Extension and West End Consolidated properties.

DEATH OF MRS. DILLON.

Mrs. Mary Dillon, wife of Attorney Richard Dillon, died at the family residence, No. 445 South Commonwealth avenue, yesterday. The deceased, was a native of Ireland, and was aged 70 years. She came to California with her husband in 1869 and to Los Angeles in 1875. She leaves, beside her husband, four children, Richard J. Dillon, Dr. Edward Dillon, Mrs. Daniel G. Grant and Miss Milly Dillon, all of this city. The funeral will be held on Monday morning at 9 o'clock, with solemn high mass at the Cathedral of St. Vibiana. Rt. Rev. Monsseigneur Harnett officiating.

THE WASTE OF COAL.

The Abundant Resource of the Mines Creates a Prodigal Use of the Fuel.

[Popular Mechanics:] The latest estimate of the coal supply of England places the date of its exhaustion as 175 years hence. While this is a long period measured by the average life of a man, it does not look big compared to the history of that country. Our own coal supply is so large, and the expectation—at least in the mind of the layman—of continued discoveries of vast deposits of fuel, make it practically impossible for our own people to seriously consider the exhaustion of our own coal fields.

Our present method of generating steam power for stationary engines is absurd and extravagant as to at least 75 per cent. of all the power used in this country. We mine coal, we ship it and haul to our plant; we shovel it from the wagon, we shovel again under boilers; we fill our cities with smoke until they resemble a foundry on casting day, and then we must shovel ashes into wagons, cart these ashes through our streets, and after another expensive haul we give the worthless refuse a final shoveling—six handlings beside the freight and wagon haul. As pointed out ten years ago, the coal should come up from the mine to flow by gravity under the boilers of an enormous electric generating plant, and the power and heat should get to its final destination, not on coal cars, but on wires.

We pity the crude methods of our forefathers; we boast of our present-day achievements, but only a generation or two hence and many of the things we do will appear inexplicable and silly.

Queer Indian Graveyard.

[Wide World Magazine:] What is perhaps the most remarkable graveyard in the United States adjoins the old Spanish church in the ancient Indian pueblo of Acomo, N. M., and took more than forty years to construct. The village is situated high in the air upon a huge, flat-topped rock, many acres in extent and entirely bare of soil. In order to create the graveyard it was necessary to carry up the earth from the plain, 300 feet below, a blanketful at a time, on backs of Indians who had to climb with their heavy loads up a precipitous trail cut in the face of the cliff. The graveyard thus laboriously constructed is held in place on three sides by high retaining walls of stone.

Revival of Occultism.

[London Globe:] The mysterious, the secret, and the unknown have ever exercised a powerful attraction over the human mind, and the present craze for what we may designate comprehensively as occult research is no new thing. But it cannot be denied that apart from the merely superficial side which naturally fascinates the empty-headed, the frivolous, or the ignorant, there are aspects of occultism which make a very deep appeal to the more intellectual and spiritual among us. Whether this be a good sign or not, it is not our intention to inqure; but it is curious to note the grounds upon which the bitterest opponents base their objections to occultism in general. We need not trouble about the superior or matter-of-fact persons who, without the slightest inquiry, smile at such "superstitions," for no man has a right to sneer at another's beliefs, unless he can prove that other to be wrong. But the real enemies of occult science are those who, fully admitting the objective reality of occult experiences, hold that they are necessarily evil and harmful in themselves. On this point, again, we should not care to express an opinion, but it is clearly a remarkable fact that fancies which have for so many generations been looked upon as mere superstitions and old wives' tales should now be acknowledged by so many intelligent and thinking individuals as at least resting upon some foundation of fact. Who could have predicted such a tremendous reversal of opinion concerning these matters fifty years ago?

Energy Used by Typewriter.

[Harper's Weekly:] The girl who is operating a typewriter is compared with the individual in a stokehold who is shoveling coal into a hungry furnace. The stoker may be credited with handling one ton of coal an hour, or eight tons a day, plus the weight of his shovel. Adding the shovel to his 17,960 pounds of coal, he expends about 20,600 pounds of energy.

For each key struck on the typewriter there is an expenditure of something over three ounces of energy, or, say, one pound to the average word. A fair operator will average 1500 words an hour, or in eight hours 12,000 words—12,000 pounds of energy. To throw over the carriage for each new line requires on an average three pounds of force. Twelve thousand words will make a thousand lines, so there are 3000 pounds of energy to be added to the 12,000, making 15,000 pounds of energy expended—which compares pretty well with the stoker's 20,000, all things considered. A really fast operator would push the expenditure of energy up to 25,000 pounds or more.

WATER SUPPLY DECLARED BAD.

TRUSTEES ORDER COMPANY TO MAKE CORRECTIONS.

Residents Discover Dark Plot to Build a Soap Factory and They Rise as One Man and Put a Stop to the Nefarious Project—Short News Items.

GLENDALE, April 27.—Dr. Ray E. Chase, city health officer, has reported to the city officials that the water of the Verdugo Pipe and Reservoir Company is unfit for domestic use. This result was reached after a careful examination of samples of the water furnished by the company. He further stated that the company did not try to protect the water in any way. The examination was made as a result of the complaint of several of the patrons of the company residing in the eastern section of the city who were dissatisfied with the water being furnished to them.

The Trustees have informed the company that it will be expected to at once live up to the ordinance covering that question. This means that the company must cover its reservoir, which is located in the Verdugo Canyon, and put the water in condition fit for domestic use.

MAY ELECTION.

The following list of polling places and officers of election in the Glendale precinct has just been made public, these officers to serve at the election to be held May 14, when fifteen freeholders are to be elected to form a charter for Los Angeles county:

Precinct No. 1—Polling place, No. 247 Glendale avenue. Inspectors, W. C. Fraley, Frank Barr. Judges, O. C. Logan, J. A. Newton. Clerks, Garfield W. Jones, J. M. Banker.

Precinct No. 2—Polling place, northwest corner First and Brand boulevard. Inspectors, John A. Cole, A. L. Wright. Judges, C. A. Letts, Olin Spencer. Clerks, F. W. Pigg, C. L. V. Moore.

Precinct No. 3—Polling place, northeast corner Lomita and Brand. Inspectors, A. O. P. Offutt, H. T. Anderson. Judges, H. G. Dominy, S. L. Borthick. Clerks, C. H. Eudemiller, I. H. Russell.

Precinct No. 4—Polling place, southeast corner Sixth and Columbus. Inspectors, Wilmot Parcher, M. H. Frisbie. Judges, W. B. Kirk, C. H. Morrow. Clerks, C. H. Bott, F. E. Dupuy.

DOWN WITH SOAP.

A building permit was granted last week for a building on Isabella street between Second and Third streets and it has been learned that the owner intended erecting a soap factory instead of a residence, as was supposed was his intention. This week a numerously-signed petition was presented to the City Trustees asking that the permit be withdrawn and the factory prohibited. This the Trustees unanimously did. The proposed soap factory is within 200 feet of the $25,000 intermediate school, which is in course of construction.

SCHOOL NEEDED.

Once again the people of North Glendale and Casa Verdugo are going to try to wrest from the Glendale Grammar school district sufficient money to purchase a small piece of ground and to erect a schoolhouse thereon. For more than a year these people living in the northern end of the valley have been asking for a place where their children might be educated at home without having to travel a mile or so south to the Glendale city schools. The bond election has been called for May 21, when it will be decided whether or not $30,000 bonds will be voted for the establishment of this school.

About two months ago an election calling for the issuing of $40,000 in bonds for a school in this northern section was held and the bonds were defeated by only a few votes. Without doubt the reason why the bonds were turned down was because the residents of that section wanted to purchase five acres of ground at $3000 per acre on which to erect the school. As the demands in the coming election are more reasonable there is little doubt but that the bonds will carry.

Lynch, of the lighting department, raised from $150 to $200 a month; Miss Cross, assistant in lighting department, raised $10 per month; Miss Winifred Sadler, raised $5 per month; G. B. Hoffman, City Treasurer, raised $15 per month; making $100 per month paid this official; W. E. Evans, City Attorney, raised from $50 to $85 per month.

NEW CHURCH.

The members of the First Congregational Church of this city have surprised local residents with the announcement that they have purchased two lots at the northwest corner of Central avenue and Third street, with the intention of erecting upon them in the near future a handsome new edifice of worship to cost at least $20,000. It has not been made public the style of church that will be erected, and, although the time for the beginning of the work has not as yet been set, officials of the church have stated that work will start within a few weeks.

OPEN FOR THEMSELVES.

J. A. and A. W. Fults, who have been managing the real estate department of the Southwestern Sugar Company for the past year, have severed their connection with that company and are opening a new office at No. 623 South Spring street, on the ground floor, where they will do a general real estate business, making exchanges a specialty. The firm will be known as Fults Brothers.

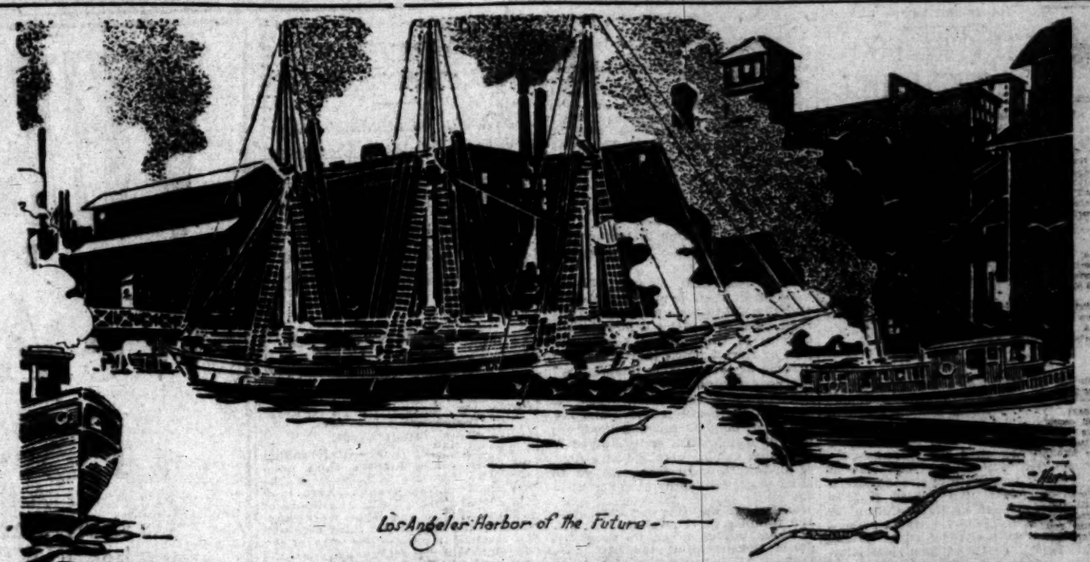
REDONDO BEACH.

REDONDO BEACH, April 27.—R. E. Matteson, J. P. Luxford, W. J. Hess and J. H. Cavanah went to Long Beach this evening to represent the Redondo Beach Chamber of Commerce at a conference of delegates from the beach cities, from Ventura to San Diego, concerning the proposed State boulevard. The several delegates are to present data and statistics regarding their cities, to be arranged to be presented to the State Highway Commission, at their meeting May 15, as an argument for routing the State boulevard along the coast from Ventura to San Diego, rather than by an inland route.

The Los Angeles Gas and Electric corporation of Los Angeles, has announced that the big mains which have been completed to Inglewood, will be extended at once to this city and that gas will be furnished here by that company shortly. The only gas distributing system here at present is that of the Western Fuel, Gas and Power Company.



Los Angeles Harbor of the Future

HARBOR CITY

"THE HUB OF THE INDUSTRIAL ZONE"

Harbor City---The "Ship of Profits" Is Now Here

GO DOWN TODAY WITH THE BIG EXCURSION LEAVING FROM LOS ANGELES STREET IN REAR OF PACIFIC ELECTRIC SIXTH ST. STATION AT 9 AND 10 A. M. ROUND TRIP FARE 25 CENTS.

VISIT HARBOR CITY NOW AND SEE HOW MUCH REAL VALUE YOU CAN GET FOR A SMALL PAYMENT DOWN and easy monthly payments. This is truly the OPPORTUNITY for the man with moderate means.

YOU KNOW that all of this comment in the papers everywhere, concerning the Harbor Development Work, will have one certain effect. That of RAISING VALUES everywhere in this district. We can state to you now that HARBOR CITY prices are way down below where they ought to be, considering the actual intrinsic value. These prices won't remain where they are very long.

Profitable investment is but the result of forethought. You know well that in only a few years, with the present rate of growth, Los Angeles will extend in an unbroken row of industrial, manufacturing, and residence districts clear to the harbor. These districts will all be built up and property values will have greatly increased.

Harbor City to be a Model City

The engineering and landscape plans call for ideal arrangement. The business section is laid out according to latest ideas. Harbor City now has a new Pacific Electric depot. This company is now double tracking its line through Harbor City. The water pipes have been laid and an abundant supply of sparkling water can be secured for all purposes.

New store buildings are being erected, and plans for many houses are being drawn. In one year from this date you will see a wonderful change in the Harbor City. This will be but the natural result of the growth of this district, Los Angeles and Southern California, as well.

It takes very little effort to imagine the time not far distant when Los Angeles Harbor will be lined with great elevators, warehouses, shops, factories, mills, and the headquarters of the many steamship companies.

THE SHIPS OF THE WORLD WILL COME.

Already the ships of many representative lines use Los Angeles Harbor. The American Hawaiian S. S. Co., Royal Mail Steam Packet Co., Harrison Line and Jebsen Line have now arranged to make this harbor a port of call. Many Oriental lines are getting data concerning the possibilities and it's only a question of time until they will be making Los Angeles Harbor a port of call.

LOTS AND HALF ACRES FOR $400 UP ON VERY EASY TERMS.

Special 10 per cent. discount will be allowed to all builders who erect buildings (costing $1000 or more) on their property. Construction of said buildings to commence within 30 days from date of purchase. On this basis you can get a $500 lot for $450 and a $1000 lot for $900.

THAT EXCURSION TODAY TO HARBOR CITY

leaves Los Angeles street in rear of Pacific Electric Station, Sixth and Main streets, at 9 and 10 a.m. On this excursion train you can go for a ROUND TRIP FARE ONLY 25 CENTS. Other cars leave regularly over the Gardena-San Pedro line to Harbor City. Tract agent on the ground.

NEW HOTEL FOR SOUTH HILL.

Building to Occupy Lot Near Second Street.

To Be Five Stories High and Thoroughly Modern.

Site Only Recently Acquired by Present Owner.

One of the most noteworthy of the improvements projected for that portion of the business section north of Fourth street is a five-story brick hotel building which is to be erected by Frank Strong on a site recently purchased by him on the west side of Hill street just south of Second street. The lot, which was bought from a syndicate headed by H. H. Cotton for approximately $110,000, is at present improved with a three-story frame structure known as "The Hotel Lincoln."

The holding has a width of sixty feet by a depth of 165 feet and has frontages on both Hill and Clay streets. It is the plan of the new owner to utilize a part of the present hotel building at the rear of the lot and back of the five-story class B structure contemplated. Plans for the new building are being prepared by the Western Building and Investment Company, of which Mr. Strong is the president, and this concern will have charge of the construction operations.

The front of the new hotel will be faced with glazed brick. The lobby will be handsomely finished in marble and scagliola and will have tile floors. The woodwork will be in oak.

The building will have both passenger and freight elevator service and every room will have a private bath. A roof garden will be an attractive feature. One hundred guest rooms will be provided. Construction will be begun within a month.

The building at its Clay-street frontage will face directly the fine new nine-story fireproof hotel now being erected by F. W. Braun at Second and Clay. Adjoining it on the corner of Second and Hill a fine improvement is contemplated by the Mason Company, while in the block just north, between Second and First streets, handsome apartment hotels are projected by Judge A. M. Stephens and Dr. S. G. Moore.

At Second and Grand, J. C. H. Ivins has long had under consideration the erection of an eight-story fireproof apartment hotel. Other noteworthy structures recently completed on Second street in the same vicinity are the nine-story Union League Club building at Second and Hill, the ten-story California building at Second and Broadway and the ten-story Higgins Block at Second and Main.

BUYS VALLEY TRACT.

Large Acreage Near Owensmouth to Be Converted Into Model Dairy Farm by New Owner.

The Rancho El Escorpion, consisting of 1109 acres of sightly mesa land near the new town of Owensmouth, in the San Fernando Valley, was sold during the past week by W. H. Allen, president of the Title Insurance and Trust Company, to G. E. Platt, president of the Los Angeles Creamery, for a consideration of $180,000. The deal, which had been pending for some time, was handled through the agency of the Lankershim Development Company. The new owner will change the name of the property to the Ferndale ranch, and will establish on it a model dairy farm.

Through the agency of the same concern the Title Insurance and Trust Company acting as trustee has transferred to local investors a tract of 294 acres near the Sheep Ranch, in the southern part of the San Fernando Valley. The consideration in this instance is given at $120,000. The latter holding is to be divided into five and ten-acre pieces which will be handled by the Lankershim Development Company.

NEW CITY BEING CREATED.

Inyo-Kern Trading in Indian Wells Valley Obtains the First Requisites of Civilization.

BAKERSFIELD, April 27.—The building of the Los Angeles aqueduct and the California and Nevada Railroad have opened up a new, farming country in the extreme northeastern part of Kern county, that promises to become of considerable importance in the near future. The district, which lies mainly in the Indian Wells Valley, contains between 75,000 and 100,000 acres of good farming land, one-half of which, it is stated, water for irrigation can be obtained at a depth of fifteen to sixty feet, and on the other half at depths ranging up to 150 feet.

At the present time there are nearly 100 families in the valley, nearly all of them having taken up their residence there within the last three years. At Inyo-Kern, which is the trading point, D. M. Shanks keeps a general store, and there are the other first requisites of civilization, including a restaurant, a saloon and several good residences.

Ten or a dozen pump irrigation plants have been installed recently, and a crew of well-drillers with a Keystone rig is kept busy sinking new wells. Horticultural Commissioner K. S. Knowlton, has just returned from the Indian Wells Valley, where he was called to inspect 2500 apple trees which are to be planted out by D. M. Shanks and John Beck. This is the first planting of fruit trees on any considerable scale, although many of entrymen have planted small home orchards. Mr. Knowlton says that most of the settlers seem to be from Southern California and they are making improvements of a character that will indicate their intention of remaining in the country.

Good rains have fallen in the valley, and some of the rye is three feet in height. Other grain grown without irrigation is looking well.

Tehachapi is keeping up its rate of progress in tree planting with the receipt this week of a carload of trees and nursery stock and ornamental shade trees for the park which the mountain town is laying out.

TO BE SPLENDID SHOW PLACE.

San Gabriel Camping Club Is Converting a Wild Canyon Into a Picturesque Vacation Park.

AZUSA, April 27.—The San Gabriel Camping Club, the membership of which is composed mostly of well-known Los Angeles people, has made extensive improvements on the land owned by it during the past winter. Work was started last September clearing the land, since then a large dining-room has been erected under a grove of live oaks, so arranged that the diners have an unobstructed view of the river while eating. Bathrooms and cottages have been built and a modern sewage system installed.

Among the members who have bought lots and who will build during the summer are: Henry H. Spencer, Judge Ray L. Chesebro, William Freeman, Charles Sholtz, Mrs. Edward T. Pierce, Milton Q. Stuard, Gene F. Gleason, Harry L. Stiles, Dave C. Swing, Mrs. Elizabeth Jones, John Caldwell and W. E. Groniger.

The San Gabriel Canyon has long been a favorite place for campers, partly on account of the excellent trout fishing and deer hunting and partly owing to the picturesque beauty of the scenery. The San Gabriel Camping Club is steadily improving its property and when completed according to present plans, will be one of the show places of Southern California.

ANOTHER VOTE.

TULARE, April 27.—Referendum petitions calling for the third bond election for the extension of the grammar school system have been completed and filed with the Board of Education and the legal work incident to the call of the third vote will be started at once. The date of the election will be set as early as the required publications of notices will allow. One of the unique features of the election will be the submission by the board, according to the present plans, to the voters of several alternative sites for the schools, the proposal to build two schools or one, and the choice between the different designs for the structures.

DINUBA.

DINUBA, April 27.—Sessions of the San Joaquin Baptists Association came to a close with an election of officers for the year, the 200 delegates from the valley churches selecting H. E. Wilkinson of Fresno as moderator, and Rev. J. J. Roach of the First Baptist Church of Porterville, secretary. According to the reports which were filed with the delegates there are at the present time 3500 members in good standing, the records for the current year showing an increase of about 15 per cent. in membership and about 20 per cent. in the value of the physical property of the church. Coalinga was chosen for the next convention, which will be held some time in April, 1913.

WATCH AND STRANGER.

"Never again will I trust a stranger with my watch," said James O'Brien, to Justice Summerfield, yesterday, after regaining possession of his precious timepiece. "I was about to mount a bronco at Arcadia when this man offered to hold my watch. He said I might break it. When I rode back to where I had left the man, he and the watch were gone." O'Brien told his troubles to Summerfield and the attaches of the office located the watch and the court ordered it restored to the owner. The stranger had pawned it at a cigar store for $25.

POLYTECHNIC VAUDEVILLE.

The Students' League of the Polytechnic High School will give a vaudeville performance in the Polytechnic auditorium on Wednesday evening, for the purpose of aiding in financing the great student banquet to be given in June. The programme will consist of several one-act plays, comical gym stunts, monologues, sleight-of-hand performances, clog-dancing and a diabolo exhibition. The best acts will be selected and put on the Temple Auditorium stage on May 18, in conjunction with acts from the other high schools, for the benefit of the same banquet fund.

Consumption Conquered

Noted German Scientist Discovers a Septic Treatment for Curing This Dreaded Disease.

United States Consul-General's Report Calls Our Government's Attention to the Wonderful Results Obtained in Berlin by This Method.

"Sartolin" is the discovery of Heinrich Neider, a noted European Chemist, and its remarkable results obtained by this method of treatment in Europe and elsewhere have created a profound sensation among medical men and scientists. The cure is achieved by following the methods propounded and used by the greatest physicians of old times. By vaporizing a compound of chemicals, the patient breathing the vapors in connection with the air, aided by external applications of the unusually penetrative "Sartolin Balsam," it is to be noted that there is nothing to be taken internally, nor any Serum Tuberculin injections, which are generally dangerous, as in most cases they have a toxic effect and poison the system. "Sartolin" goes to the root of the disease, cleansing and removing the germ passages the obstruction or feeling of weight responsible for Consumption, Asthma or Bronchial Catarrhs.

The "Sartolin" method sterilizes the tissues by the process of phagocytosis, the bacteria, being deprived of fertile soil, cannot thrive and multiply. They are "starved out" (destroyed) and the natural recuperative processes of the body then asserts itself.

With "Sartolin" no medicines are taken, no sanitarium treatment needed—in fact, with this antiseptic treatment existing cases are free of infection. You can sleep in the same room with the patient without danger during the treatment. A great advantage of "Sartolin" is that it permits the sufferer to continue his ordinary occupation, as it quickly overcomes the weakening causes and the patient feels and gains added strength.

The remedy has been indorsed by eminent men of Tuberculosis before the Medical Congress of Berlin, Germany, and the wonderful cures, even in most desperate cases, caused the Hon. Frank H. Mason, United States Consul-General to Germany, to make favorable mention of the same in a report to his government.

"Sartolin" is now being introduced throughout the country with miraculous results. Full particulars can be obtained free from the Sartolin Co. (Inc.), 248 N. Fifth-ave., Chicago.

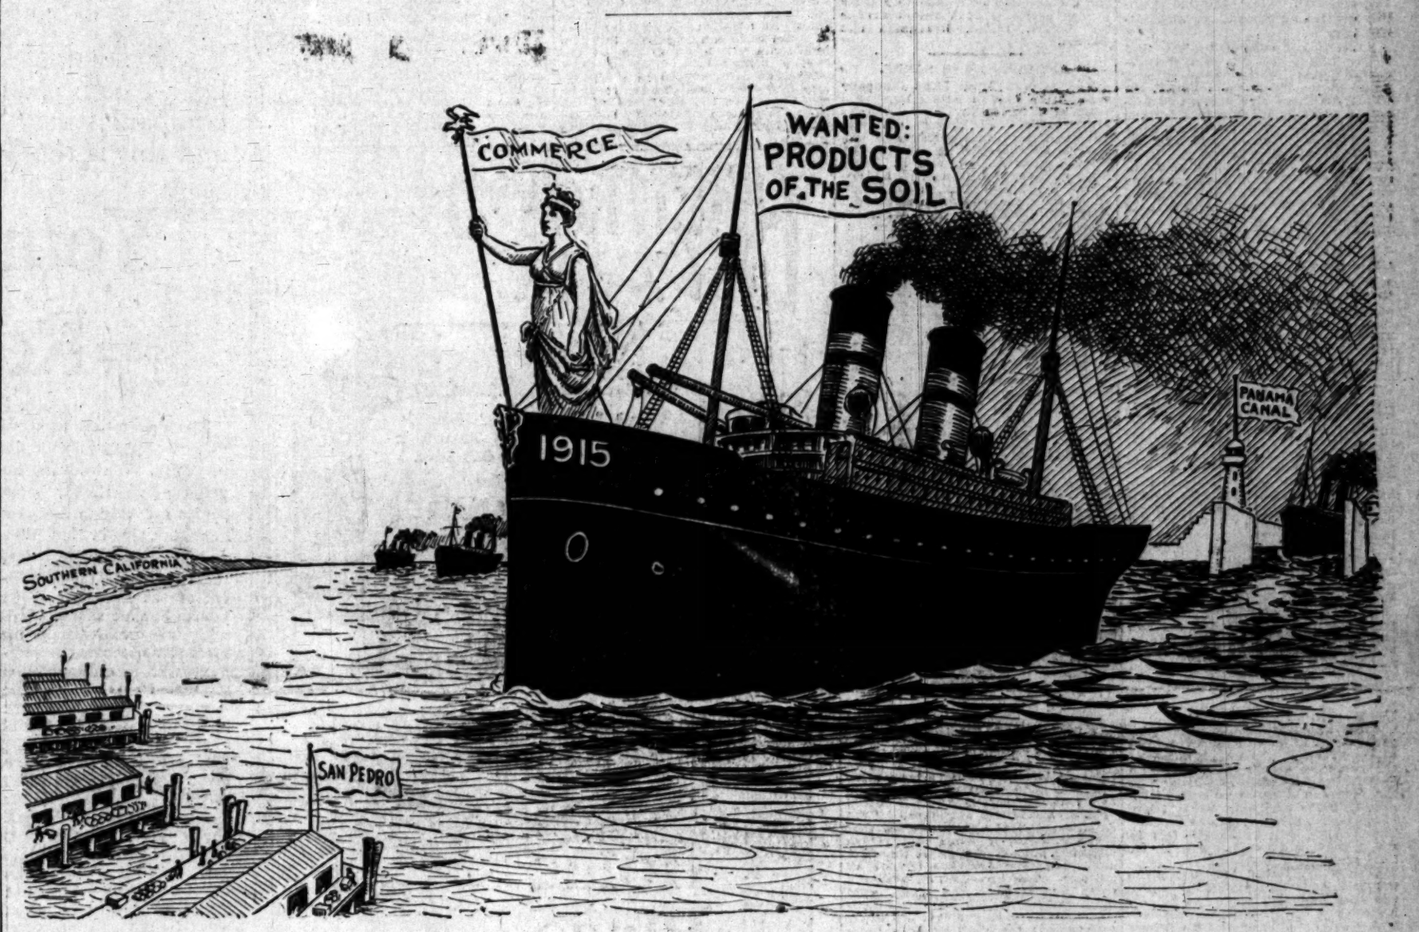
PANAMA CANAL COMMERCE WILL CALL FOR TREMENDOUS CALIFORNIA CROPS.

Influx of the Greatest Shipping Armada World Has Ever Known Will Tax Productive Power of Every Inch of Southern California Soil to Provide Cargoes for Yawning Holds---Los Angeles Will Be Queen City of Earth's Most Wonderful Garden Spot.



EVERY man has a ship out somewhere on the "tides of time." Every man among us in Los Angeles (and as the law says, "man embraces woman,") has a ship with all sails set, (or fire under all the boilers, as you please to put it,) headed straight for or own port. Her voyage is timed so as to reach the Isthmus of Panama about the time the gates go up to permit vessels to pass through this greatest achievement of human genius, energy and capital.

The coming of these ships to the harbor of Los Angeles is (to compare ridiculous things with majestic things, and small with great,) very like the trap the old darkey set for the coons. "It catches them coming and catches them going." We have referred in The Times frequently to the "Argosies of magic sails" on their inward arrival, and to the costly bales of various merchandise they will bring to us. We call attention in this article to the freighted wealth the departing Argosies will bear away with them, enriching us in the taking even more than in the bringing.

Consider the case of the farmer of any class, from the one who makes hay while the sun shines to the one who waits for the ripe fruit to drop from the tree. The incoming ships may carry costly bales to the warehouses and stores of the merchants, or raw material to the factory of the manufacturer. They will bear out with them the rich products of the farmer and horticulturist. Most of us have in mind some well defined conception of what these departing ships will carry away as merchandise to be disposed of in the markets of the world as food for the people of lands over seas. This is a great matter, looked at from any point of view, and being great has caught the eye of all intelligent persons who can see coming events in the shadows they cast before them. Think of the cargoes of beans and cereals that will go from this section to the Orient! The canal opens the world to all the surplus products of this abundantly fertile section. Turn around and face eastward, and you will see before you all our own Eastern States now reached by our products at heavy cost for transportation, and beyod the Atlantic, Europe with all its teeming millions of human beings whose lips are now watering in anticipation of the feasts they shall enjoy of fruits from the orchards and gardens of the Great Southwest. Directly toward the South Pole on each side of the American continent are our sister republics all waiting to be regaled with the products of our fields. The opening of the canal will about multiply by four the numerical value of the markets for our products in terms of human mouths opening to be filled.

But there is another side to this question largely important in the aggregate, but made up of a multitude of smaller items that may have escaped attention. These ships which will anchor in our outer harbor and tie up to the docks in the inner harbor will all have to be provisioned. They must take in here fuel if they are steamers, and water, whatever be their propelling power. They will all be manned by crews, and some of them will carry passengers. Every mouth in every ship must be fed three times a day. Take your grocery bills in a household for a year, and go all over them, and there would not be an item found which will not be called for to provision these ships that are headed for our harbor, and will get here before it is fully ready for them, unless the authorities bestir themselves. A large family comprises five or six persons, and the crew of a small vessel will number that many. Those who man the larger ships will number as many as several large families. As for the passenger steamers, with their long list of globe trotters, tourists and new settlers, emigrants and well-to-do voyagers, these aggregations sometimes make up a respectable village in population.

Now we begin to see that the truck gardener will need to bestir himself to be ready with an abundant supply to meet the demands of the ships, and the head steward will not ask for credit. He will buy on terms of cash down on the nail. There is not a product of our fields and gardens that will not be in demand. In fact, these ships will look to us first and all the time for supplies of this kind. If they provision in eastern ports or in those of Europe for about eight months of the year, they must draw on cellars and covered pits out of doors for vegetables more or less musty. Here there will not be a week in the year when vegetables of many kinds, fresh as a daisy bespattered by the morning dew, crisp and succulent, may not be had direct from the fields where they grow. We can produce celery and asparagus as products as common as cabbages and potatoes. We can furnish these ships with all they commonly call coarser vegetables, tender as marrow and flavored like "angels' food."

The same will be true of all the fruits that grow on all the trees, and shrubs and vines all the year round, in this land of pepetual summer. The ships that will come and go from our harbor will on the outward voyage fill their larders with supplies of all the fruits that we produce. The demand will run as steady as a clock, and after a short time, with the volume of a mill race.

The "American hen" of all the varieties that flourish so contentedly in the sunshine and among the flowers of California, cackling so gleefully on the accomplishment of laying an egg as if it were the first time in the history of the hennery will need to put in double time, and learn to lay two eggs where there is only one now. Of course no wise, self-respecting hen will lay double eggs. Twins in the hennery are taboo. And the demand will not be confined to "hen fruit," but will take "biddy" herself away with her nest and nestlings.

So with the dairy cow of commerce. She will do well to take cognizance of the loud call that will come up from the harbor for milk and butter. What should a cow be giving but her milk? She will have to be diligent, and her owner must feed her plenty of alfalfa.

Now let not the truck gardener plant potatoes tomorrow morning to meet this demand, for the ships will not be here in six weeks, when the tubers are "diggable." But grapevines planted tomorrow will not be in full bearing until long after the cry for grapes has come up from the harbor. The steward on these ships will be very grateful to the person who hands him a lemon, and the sourer the better. Many of the ships will have come and gone from all harbors of all lands before a citrus tree planted this summer will yield a single box of fruit.

There are many things to be begun at once—among them provision for fueling and watering the ships. Commission-houses established near tide-mark will scarcely be well equipped, before the stewards of the ships come knocking at the doors for supplies.

At Last.

ARMORY PLANS TAKING SHAPE.

Working Designs to Be Begun Coming Week.

Building to Be One of Finest of Type in West.

Bids Asked for First of New Occidental Structures.

The long delayed State Armory project will take definite shape tomorrow when Allison & Allison, State Architects for Southern California, will begin the preparation of working plans for the big exposition of Park Building. The preliminary plans for the structure have already been approved by the State military authorities and by the directors of the Sixth agricultural district as well as by the State Engineer's office.

The building will be one of the handsomest and most modern of its type in the West and architecturally will suggest the purpose for which it is designed. It will be 300x220 feet in size and will contain a drill hall 130x300 feet. Over the main entrance will be a large tower with battlements.

Another noteworthy project that is now taking shape is that of Occidental College for its new campus group in the Eagle Rock Valley, for which Architect Myron Hunt is preparing plans. The drawings for the Hall of Letters are now being completed by Mr. Hunt and bids for its construction will be taken this week. The building will be known as Johnson Hall and will be three stories high and of reinforced concrete construction. It will have a ground area of 80x180 feet.

MANY FINE APARTMENTS.

At no other time in the city's history have there been so many new apartment houses under way or projected as at the present. The total cost of these buildings amounts into the hundreds of thousands. It is noteworthy, too, that an increasingly large proportion of the builders are having plans drawn for apartments of over three stories in height, testifying to the growing recognition of frontage valuation in the apartment house zone. Following are some of the newest of the projects of this character on local draughting boards:

Plans for an unusually attractive apartment house to be erected at Washington and Union by Robert A. Fowler are being prepared by Architects Frederick Noonan and Chas. Kysor. The building will be of brick construction and four stories in height. It will contain 150 rooms in addition to an assembly room, billiard room and lobby. The suites will be of two and three rooms each with private baths and wall beds.

J. C. Austin and W. C. Penneli are preparing plans for a four-story and basement brick apartment house to be built at Valencia and Shatto streets for James M. Pattee. It will contain about 100 rooms in two and three-room suites with private baths and wall beds. The building will be 60x150 feet in size.

Allen Finch is having plans prepared and will build a four-story and basement brick apartment house at the northeast corner of Orange and Bonnie Brae streets. It will contain 110 rooms in thirty-seven suites with private baths and wall beds; lobby 30x40 feet, billiard room and parlors. The building will be 50x135 feet in size. Work will be started in about two weeks.

Charles W. Baker has had plans prepared and will build a four-story and basement apartment house on Hope street near Eighth. There is a frame flat building on the site which will be removed. It will be thirty days before construction is started. The building will contain 127 rooms in two and three room suites with private baths and wall beds. The structure will be 60x150 feet in size, and will cost about $55,000.

Elsen & Son are preparing plans for a three-story and basement frame and plaster apartment house to be erected at Tenth and Union streets for P. Fanta. The building will contain about fifty rooms and will be 50x100 feet in size.

A. B. Benton is preparing plans for a three-story and basement brick apartment house to be built at 1309 South Flower street for Edward F. Vail. The site is now being cleared. The house will contain about 100 rooms in two and three-room suites with private baths and wall beds, and will cost about $75,000.

Charles Von der Kuhlen has completed plans for a three-story frame apartment house to be built at No. 1113 Beacon street, San Pedro, for H. N. Stone. The building will contain fifty-three rooms in two and three-room suites, with private baths and wall beds.

Frederick Noonan and Charles Kysor are preparing plans for a three-story and basement frame apartment house to be built at No. 216 North Beaudry street for Mrs. Lillie M. Whiteside. There will be about forty rooms in two and three-room suites with private baths and wall beds.

W. H. Koopman has completed plans and will build a three-story fifty-room frame apartment house on Beacon street, San Pedro, for Mrs. Parker. The estimated cost is $20,000.

C. W. Pickell is having plans drawn for the remodeling of a three-story brick building at Pico and El Molino streets, which is to be converted into modern apartments. The structure when completed will contain about seventy-five rooms in suites of two and three rooms each, with baths.

NEW FLATS PROJECTED.

The following projects are reported in the columns of the Southwest Contractor and Manufacturer:

The Pacific States Investment Company will finance and erect a two-story frame apartment house at No. 1350 Wright street for Dr. Karl F. Ross. There will be thirty-one rooms in fifteen suites with private baths and wall beds. P. W. Ehlers is the architect.

W. E. Hull has been awarded the contract for the erection of a two-story frame flat building at Fourth and Chicago streets for Martin Yeager. There will be four flats of four rooms each, with baths and disappearing beds. The plans are by Fred Biren.

E. J. Cook has the contract to erect a two-story, twelve-room frame flat building on Twenty-seventh street, between Grand avenue and Figueroa street for Mrs. P. A. DeLavin. It will contain four three-room suites with baths.

Burt Chellis has the contract for the erection of a two-story, thirty-six-room apartment building at No. 627 East Adams street for the Corona Development Company.

The A. B. C. Company, Pasadena, has the contract to build a two-story frame store and apartment building at No. 6125 Moneta avenue, Los Angeles, for S. A. Leaverton. There will be two storerooms and five apartments of three rooms and bath each.

S. Tilden Norton is taking bids for the erection of the superstructure of a three-story reinforced concrete stable and hay storage building on Jackson street, east of Alameda, for the Pioneer Truck Company.

George F. Costerisan and J. F. Kavanaugh, associates, are preparing working plans for a one-story and basement brick plastered and concrete school building at Sulphur and Eureka streets.

The Hagan Construction Company has the contract for the construction of the foundation of the three-story and basement brick building to be erected at Santa Fe avenue and Seventh street for the H. W. Heinz Company. The building will be 45x140 feet. A. L. Haley is the architect.

F. L. Spaulding is having plans prepared for a moving-picture theater which he will build on the east side of Main street, opposite Eighteenth, for the Globe Amusement Company. Excavation has been started and Spaulding states that he will file application for a permit next week. Spaulding is both owner and builder. The theater will seat about 900.

H. L. Arnold contemplates the addition of one story to the two-story brick building at No. 830 South Main street, also an addition of twenty feet in the rear, making the structure 40x180 feet. Plans for the additions are now being prepared and the work will be done by the Union Realty Company.

May & Grimwood have the contract for the erection of a one-story brick garage at No. 2782 Vermont avenue for Messrs. Dillon, Bruckman and Burton.

ANGELES MESA SALES.

CROP ESTIMATES HIGH.

Representatives of fruit-canning companies have just completed an estimate of the crops for the season in the upper part of the San Fernando Valley, where the Van Nuys-Lankershim lands lie, and predict an unusual production as a result of the late rains and the satisfactory snowfall in the mountains. The delay in the rain is found to have been more beneficial than a normal precipitation at an earlier day. Figures prepared by the experts and announced by the Janss Investment Company show that these new valley lands will return 6,000,000 pounds of peaches this year and more than 4,000,000 pounds of apricots. The investigators prepared these figures from the green, solid fruit, and did not take into consideration the late blossoms that are likely to augment the yield of both these fruits. This district, jubilant over the conditions found by the fruit buyers, is planning to inaugurate a "Peach Day," similar in its purpose to Fresno's "Raisin Day," and to make this an annual feature of not only Van Nuys-Lankershim lands, but the entire southern part of the State.

VISITOR BUYS HOME SITE.

Miss Helen F. Adams of Chicago, a visitor to Los Angeles, purchased a large lot in the exclusive Gramercy circle, in the West Adams-street district, from the Braly-Janss Investment Company, just before her departure several days ago for the East. Miss Adams paid $3000 for the lot, and will improve it at once with a costly home, returning here to reside as soon as the building has been completed and the grounds laid out in accordance with her plans.

Thousands of dollars will be expended at Brentwood Park within the next several weeks in street improvements. High-class boulevards are to be laid in every street of the pretty subdivision, replacing roadways that need resurfacing, and opening up newer corners of the canyon-side district, on which recent purchasers are to build homes.

An order for ornamental lamp-posts has been placed, and these clusters of light will give effective display, in the day time by their artistic effect and at night by their brilliancy. New parks and gardens are being developed under the skill of a Japanese landscapist.

WESTWARD ACTIVITIES.

The Victor G. Kleinberger Company report sales in its new West Adams and Washington boulevard tract, as follows: Ferd R. Benton, $775; Mrs. Mary McDowell, $590; A. L. Warren, two, at $925 each; F. W. Binkley, $650; Harry Lamay, $675; Bert T. Kelley, $675; T. J. Cordon, $675; Leo Montondo, $1050; Alonzo and Sarah Wheaton, $750; George P. T. Annis, four lots for a total consideration of $3660; Catherine Hauverman, $800; Ward C. Esmond, two, at $750 and $1450; Alfred Winn, $825; Ellen Winn, $825; G. B. Clore, two, $650 each; G. B. Clore, $900; William W. Wilson, $1125; Allan T. Wilson, $1125; Thomas L. Tendomn, $625; W. N. Kraft, $725; Mary C. Kraft, $590; John P. and Ethel C. Bovard, two, at $975 and $590.

The street improvements are now well under way, and Thirtieth avenue, the widest thoroughfare in the district, and extending from West Adams street to Washington boulevard, is about ready for the cement work. Alfred L. E. Wilder, recent purchaser of two lots on Thirtieth avenue, near Adams, this week let the contract for an eight-room house, to cost $4750.

BUYS WHOLE BLOCK.

A. B. Chittenden reports the sale for Henry J. Kearney, Katherine C. Stoneman and others to John R. Vogel of 150 feet on East Seventh street at the corner of Lawrence street and including the entire frontage of the block between Lawrence and Atlantic. Arrangements have been made for the construction of a Southern Pacific spur track to the property. Chittenden has also just effected the sale of the property at No. 309 East Seventh street, with a frontage of thirty-one feet, to a local investor. The consideration is not given, but the property is appraised at $900 per front foot. The new owner is contemplating the erection of a concrete loft building of possibly six or seven stories and for which some prospective tenants are negotiating.

PLANS COSTLY CHATEAU.

Dr. Andrew Stewart Lobingier of Westmoreland Place has purchased two lots in Windsor Square, through G. F. Cimiotti, of R. A. Rowan & Co., for $22,450, and will immediately build a costly chateau. The lots are located at Linden avenue and Windsor boulevard. Dr. Lobingier has for a considerable time had plans ready for the house he is to build but has been hunting for a site that suited his fancy and gave proper environ for the home he desired. The final details of the architect's drawings will be completed within a few days and ground will then be broken for the chateau. It is an extensive structure and with the French gardens that are provided for, it was necessary to take two large lots. Street and improvement work that has been steadily under way at Windsor Square since last summer is nearing completion.

DESIGNS WILL VARY.

Designs for the first twenty bungalows for West Adams tract, the new subdivision laid out by Robert Marsh & Co., provide for typical Southern California homes, with ample out-of-door living space in the way of porches, balconies, open-air sleeping quarters, pergolas and screened kitchen annexes. These twenty homes will be well under way within the next ninety days. As rapidly as block after block of street work can be pushed through, bungalows will begin to rise on the rapidly selling lots. Most of these bungalows are designed by the property purchasers and others are to be constructed at the discretion of the tract projectors. Demand has already been made for space in three blocks for stores as that will be the shopping center for the subdivision. These store buildings are to cost about $5000 each.

MAY BE THEATER SITE.

Beachwood Park, a subdivision that winds up into the foothill canyons near Hollywood and laterally spreads out into several glens, may be the setting for an immense Greek theater proposed by the Gamut Club. The tract, it is said, is under consideration by a number of the club members. Charles A. Elder and Dr. Peter Janss, two of those interested not only in the site and plans for such a theater but, as well, in the project of financing it, have both visited Beachwood and declare that it is a site possible to a vast amphitheater where thousands could be cared for and where the natural environs would be in harmony with the spirit of such a theater.

TO FIFTH AND SPRING.

The engineering and architectural firm of T. Beverley Keim, Jr. & Co., has removed from the Wright & Callender Building to 236-239 Title Insurance Building, Fifth and Spring. Here handsomely appointed offices are being maintained by the company.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

After May 1 The Times Business Office, Advertising and Subscription Departments and Information Bureau will be located at 617-619 South Spring street, one block south of the present quarters.

The removal will be accomplished without interruption to business and, we trust, without inconvenience to our patrons.

The Best Company

The Prudential Improvement Co. is the best company by all comparisons now before the public. All other companies may be good, but there is always one best and this is the The Prudential Improvement Co.

Your Opportunity =Read and Act=

The Prudential Improvement Company is your opportunity. With all the experience of similar companies not only in Los Angeles, but also in New York and other large cities, before them as a guide, the organizers of the Company invite you to become shareholders, with full confidence in the profitable outcome to everybody who identifies himself with us and co-operates in building up another large and profitable association of home builders.

The Prudential Improvement Company is chartered to do a general real estate and home building business. Under this permission from the State it is proposed to purchase real estate in large units, subdivide in the most modern manner and improve with homes on the co-operative plan. By building these houses in groups, not only the usual contractor's profits, but a vastly larger gain will be realized, as has been evidenced by the operations of similar companies. This, with the natural profits of selling lots where acres were bought, will produce magnificent dividends for the stockholders.

The Prudential Improvement Company is the owner of the Kingstone Quarries. This is the only known deposit of Kingstone in the United States. It is of unknown depth, but there is more than 1,000,000 tons in sight, which nets a profit of over $5.00 per ton as it is sold from the quarry.

We have also purchased the Kingstone Cement Mfg. Co., with its factory at 1516 East Eighth street, where Kingstone is made into synthetically reconstructed stone, which is pure white and harder than cement. It is non-absorbent, waterproof, and does not crack nor warp. It is the best known material from which to make sink drain boards, porch and bathroom floors, mantels, vases, settees, flower boxes. It is the best plaster for outside work, and as a liquid it can be applied with a brush to wood, tile, brick or cement, making them look like solid stone, and it will not scale off.

The Prudential Improvement Company has something which is possessed by no other home building company. We can build better houses for less money, as we absolutely control the best material known for mantels, sink boards, porch floors and bathroom floors for our houses. We can plaster our houses on the outside with Kingstone, and they look like solid cement houses, but are better because dampness will not go through the Kingstone walls. We can finish up porch fronts and columns on rough wood frames so as to look like solid stone.

We can build a better house for less money, yet make the full profit on the house and lot, and all the profits on the Kingstone products in addition. You see what this means; we get profits added to profits, and still other profits from all Kingstone products sold to other builders. We are also arranging to ship Kingstone from our quarries to factories in other cities in all parts of the United States, and the profits from the quarries will also go to swell the dividends to the Prudential Improvement Company's shareholders.

Our Offer for a Short Time

We are offering for a short time only, a $100 share of 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock with a $100 share of common stock, which should pay at least 10 per cent., making a total of 17 per cent. on your money and probably much more.

Our sources of profits for stockholders consist of home-building, subdividing, Kingstone quarries, Kingstone factories, selling real estate, etc., etc. We have more and better opportunities than any other company.

The Organizers of the Prudential Improvement Co. Are:

The following well-known business men of this city and vicinity. This is a guarantee of good business handling:

L. J. BARR, President. Engineer and Builder; 16 years with U. S. Govt.; 10 years with ore carrying roads in Lake Superior iron districts.

ROL KING, Vice-President. Vice-President Kingstone Cement Mfg. Co. Inventor of Kingstone products.

JAMES DIX SCHUYLER, 2nd Vice-President. Consulting engineer. Formerly Assistant State Engineer. Member Board of Engineers, Owens River Aqueduct, 1905.

G. F. LATTER, Secretary and Treasurer. 26 years with Grand Trunk, Pennsylvania, Nickel Plate and N. Y. Central Lines.

INGALL W. BULL, General Counsel. General Corporation Counsel, L. A.

WIDOW BECOMES CIVIL ENGINEER

Carries Out Big Contract When Husband Dies.

Trained for New Work Attains Success.

Says Women Should Learn Husbands' Business.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

CHICAGO, April 19.—The profession to be followed by a woman is that of civil and consulting engineering, and to Chicago belongs the honor of furnishing the first recruit to its ranks. She is Mrs. Mary Ewing, widow of the late Wilson Ewing, one of Chicago's most prominent engineers, who died suddenly a few weeks ago.

The story of how Mrs. Ewing succeeded to her husband's business, becoming the active head of a large civil and consulting engineering company, forms an interesting chapter in the annals of woman's achievements. It also furnishes additional proof of the fact that the modern woman of intellect has nothing to fear in attempting to follow where her career her nature craves. She has reached her goal; she can do the work she likes, and is well paid for it.

Mr. Ewing had done much important work during his life, having been chosen to measure up the $60,000,000 Illinois drainage canal, managed by the State of Michigan in 1900 to measure up all the State railroads. At the time of his death he had under way or in course of planning work on sewerage systems and contingent work in nearly a dozen Illinois towns, the total cost of which ran up into the hundreds of thousands of dollars. His death left Mrs. Ewing facing a problem of unfinished contracts and a loss of family income with responsibilities to be met.

Only two courses were open to her; either to sell her husband's business to some other company or to endeavor the work herself. After consulting with some of Mr. Ewing's close friends, who were familiar with the work, she decided upon the latter course. A few days later she took her place at Ewing's desk, and every day since then she has been there conducting the business, looking after every detail of the office work and personally overseeing and directing many of the field operations.

It was necessary, of course, that Mrs. Ewing should first secure the consent of the companies and villages with whom her husband had contracts before she could continue the work. She accordingly appeared before each company and village board in turn, explaining her knowledge of the work and her qualifications to carry it on, and it is a remarkable tribute to her technical knowledge and her executive ability that each one unhesitatingly passed the contracts into her hands for the completion of the work.

EXPECTS TO BRANCH OUT.

That Mrs. Ewing will not be satisfied merely to complete the work started by her husband, however, but intends to branch out on her own Santa Monica Now Preparing World Noted Race Course For Probably Greatest Race Yet Held.

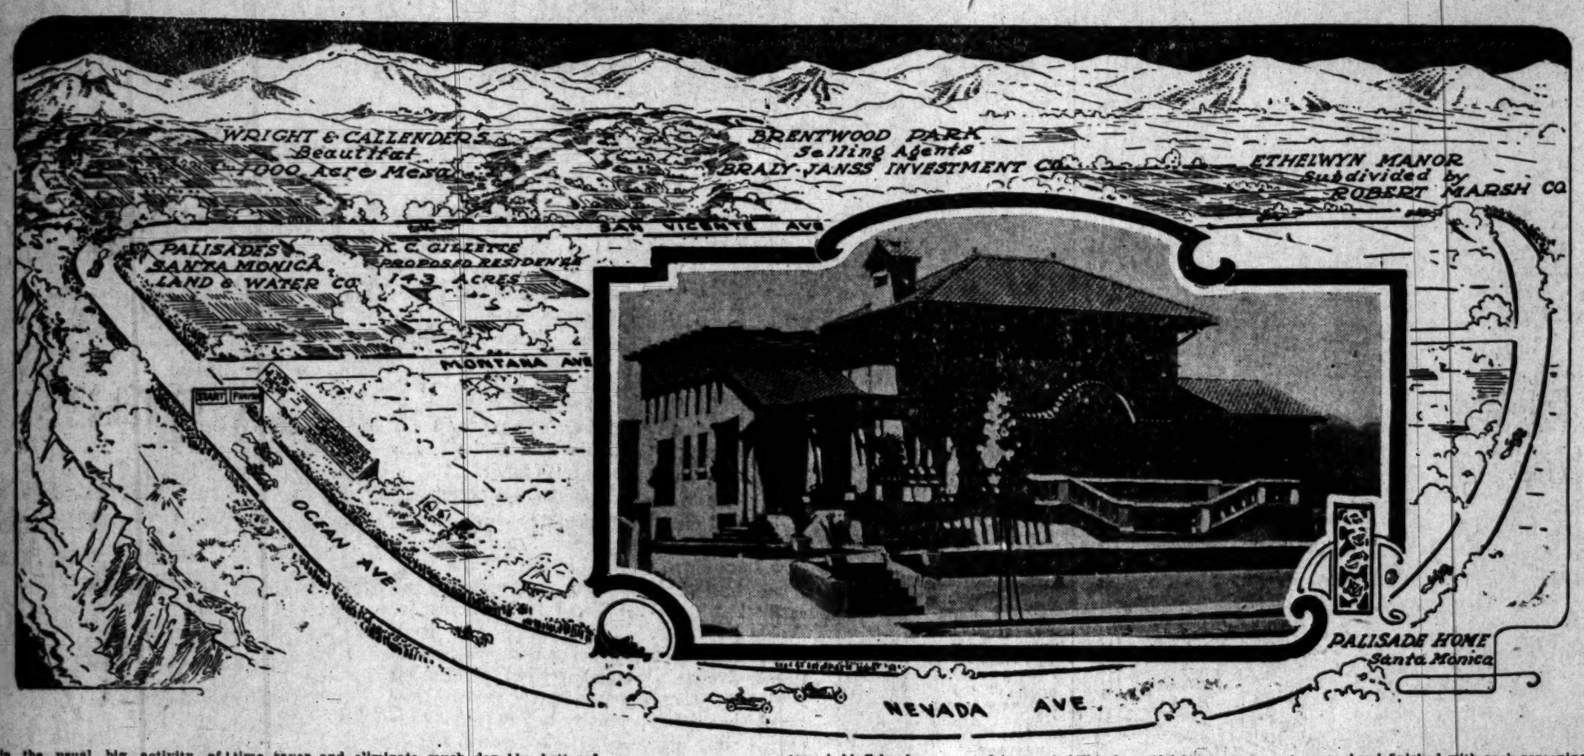
At Bridge Big Fill Now Being Made By Force of County Road Workers. Steam Roller Now Busy On Roadbeds of Remaining Streets.



Again the usual big activity of Santa Monica, the fastest developing city in the world, probably, per capita, is accentuated to the climax.

Gangs of men have been sent down by the county to finally complete the "Big Fill" so long looked forward to by autoists, and dwellers in this community. It comprises a space of about three hundred feet in length and twelve feet in depth, at the highest point.

This will establish in Santa Monica a much needed, permanent improvement, which will not only prove of the end of advantage to the year-round motorists, here; but will be a great time saver and eliminate much danger at the Annual Road Race. This spot, familiar to the majority of motorists, is at the bridge, just the other side of the Old Soldiers' Home. An additional feature to eliminate danger, will be the painting of the railings white, so there will be no danger of the contestants in the race, missing the bridge or running into the railing.

The roads throughout the course are now undergoing thorough overhauling and improvement, so that by the day the races are held, their usual superiority over other automobile roads throughout the world, will even be bettered.

SCENE OF RACES UNRIVALED FOR PICTURESQUE BEAUTY.

It is doubtful if those who chose Santa Monica as the ideal spot for, the annual meet of the motorists, could have found a more imposing scene, or one presenting so many sides of varied charm, anywhere on the globe, than this race course at Santa Monica.

The course begins on Ocean-avenue side of the famous Palisades, the judges' stand being just a block or so south of Montana avenue. Here sweeps on one side, the tree shaded Linda Vista Park, with its jagged, rough bluff border, mounted by rustic fences and strewn with rustic seats and odd pavilions. On the other side are the superb mansion homes, occupied by some of the elite of California.

Just beyond the Park, and faced by the beautiful homes, stretches the endless blue of the old Pacific, lashing itself into a white foam, 200 feet below.

Farther around the course, lying just between Nevada avenue and Montana avenue, is the superb new subdivision owned by Robert Marsh & Co., of the Trust and Savings Bank Building, called Ethelwyn Manor. This beautiful home spot most appropriately takes its name from the manors of Australia and England; due largely to its location, just an easy distance from the city, as well as from its picturesque natural environment.

One of the principal features that differentiates the present Ethelwyn Manor from the manors of "old country" is the fact that instead of the estate of just one individual occupying its entirety, as abroad, Ethelwyn Manor is becoming dotted with ideal bungalows, where many can enjoy its beauties. Another factor of importance in connection with Ethelwyn Manor, is its modernness. Its streets are oiled and finished with rock screenings. Its cement sidewalks, curbs and parkings are of the highest grade.

Not far from the Robert Marsh property, also with frontage on the famous Montana Avenue, lies another property of big importance in this community. This is the Elmer Cole sub-division, on which so many handsome new homes are to be built within the coming year. This property, due to its close proximity to the sea, within walking distance; also due to its frontage on the famous new automobile thoroughfare, Montana avenue, bids fair to become one of the most valuable in this community.

ANOTHER BEAUTY SPOT ON RACE COURSE.

Another far famed home spot, which many coming from remote parts of the East to the road races will ask to see, is Brentwood Park. Here is a park of homes that is conspicuous among Southern California sub-division homesites, for its rare good taste.

Instead of the straight, stiff lines of the usual sub-division, Brentwood Park has gracefully winding roadways, and meandering walks that bespeak the true country estate. Instead of each homesite occupying just one cramped, common size and shape, all are big, generous plots of ground, in graceful, easy sizes and forms.

Brentwood Park boasts also of some of Southern California's most ideal and beautiful homes, as well as some of the very cream of her society. It is owned by the Braly-Janss Investment Company of 320 Pacific Electric Building.

Still another place overlooked by the race course, which presents one of the most magnificent scenic spots on the globe, is the foothill property belonging to the Wright-Callender-Andrews Company and C. F. W. Palmer, which is to be later subdivided into villa homesites of a very unusual and a most picturesque nature. The homes that finally find themselves established in this glorious mountain protected retreat will command some of the most superb scenes possible in the United States.

The race course finishes with the San Vicente side of the Palisades, past the famous new subdivision, which is creating such a furore of excitement among investors and real estate men; due to its unusually low prices, for property in this strictly high class community.

Those principally responsible for the tremendous development and continued activity of Santa Monica, men and firms that have stood shoulder to shoulder with the big undertakings that have been accomplished there, are: Col. Lankershim, J. W. Mitchell, the Bank of Santa Monica, Merchants' National Bank, C. L. Bundy, J. B. Procter, Santa Monica Bay Home Builders, J. B. Van Winkle, Kisner, Shoemaker & Craig, W. J. Langley, Miles & Tegnar, Patton & Davies Lumber Company, Price-Roberts Realty Company and Sues & Cowan.

WIDOW BECOMES CIVIL ENGINEER.

Carries Out Big Contracts When Husband Dies.

Trained for New Work She Attains Success.

Says Women Should Learn Husbands' Business.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

CHICAGO, April 19.—The latest profession to be followed by a woman is that of civil and consulting engineering, and to Chicago belongs the honor of furnishing the first recruit of its ranks. She is Mrs. Mary E. Ewing, widow of the late William Ross Ewing, one of Chicago's most prominent engineers, who died suddenly a few weeks ago.

The story of how Mrs. Ewing has succeeded to her husband's business, becoming the active head of a large civil and consulting engineering company, forms an interesting chapter in the annals of woman's achievements. It also furnishes additional proof of the fact that the modern woman of intellect has nothing to fear in attempting to follow whatever career her nature craves. She has reached her goal; she can do the work she likes, and is well paid for it.

Mr. Ewing had done much important work during his life, having been chosen to measure up the $50,000,000 Illinois drainage canal, and engaged by the State of Michigan in 1910 to measure up all the State railroads. At the time of his death he had under way or in course of planning work on sewerage systems and contingent work in nearly a dozen Illinois towns, the total cost of which ran up into the hundreds of thousands of dollars. His death left Mrs. Ewing facing a problem of unfinished contracts and a loss of family income with responsibilities to be met.

Only two courses were open to her: either to sell her husband's business to some other company or to conduct the work herself. After consulting with some of Mr. Ewing's close friends, who were familiar with his work, she decided upon the latter course. A few days later she took her place at Ewing's desk, and every day since then she has sat there conducting the business, looking after every detail of the office work and personally overseeing and directing many of the field operations.

It was necessary, of course, that Mrs. Ewing should first secure the consent of the companies and villages with whom her husband held contracts before she could continue the work. She accordingly appeared before each company and village board in turn, explaining her knowledge of the work and her qualifications to carry it on, and it is a remarkable tribute to her technical knowledge and her executive ability that each one unhesitatingly passed the contracts into her hands for completion of the work.

EXPECTS TO BRANCH OUT.

That Mrs. Ewing will not be satisfied merely to complete the work started by her husband, however, but intends to branch out on her own responsibilities, is evidenced by the fact that she is now negotiating for municipal work in six or eight Illinois towns, and it seems likely that with the success she has already gained she will secure the contracts.

Mrs. Ewing's training for the work was secured by interesting herself in her husband's profession and keeping in close touch with his work throughout their married life—a period of twenty-four years.

Much of Mr. Ewing's planning for the larger contracts was done in the quiet of their home, and so she had an opportunity to see him draw the designs for the various pieces of work and to hear him discuss the details of his plans. They also read and studied many of the technical books together and Mr. Ewing would outline to her his solutions of the various problems that arose as the work proceeded.

WAS "OFFICE BOY."

In addition to this, Mrs. Ewing took care of the books, maps, blue prints and field reports, and in many other ways "served as general office boy," according to her own statement. She also went on many trips of inspection with Mr. Ewing and in this way was enabled to become familiar with the practical part of the work.

"These trips," said Mrs. Ewing, yesterday, "were, perhaps, the most interesting part of it all. It is absorbing to work out the various problems on paper, but when one sees the actual structure rising before his eyes, it gives such a tremendous feeling of pride and satisfaction in the material results accomplished. Of course, these trips furnished valuable object lessons, too, since they permitted me to see just how the work of construction was carried on and to observe theoretical solutions of problems put to an actual test.

"I am very thankful now that I became so much interested in Mr. Ewing's work and followed it so closely. It has prepared me to assume responsibilities which, before our marriage, I would not have dreamed of undertaking.

"I certainly advocate every woman interesting herself in her husband's profession and associating herself with him in his business. It not only draws them closer together but has the practical value of making a woman independent and fortifying her against emergency. It is a tragic thing for a woman to be thrown on her own resources when she has none.

CHANCES FOR WOMEN.

"My experience has led me to believe that all of the engineering professions offer splendid opportunities to women who want to work and who must work. Only first let them be certain that they are interested in it before attempting to embark upon such a career. Now the work I am doing—the building of sewerage disposal plants, water works systems, deep well pumps and the like—may not appeal on the face of it to the majority of women. But it is really fascinating, and I have yet to discover any part of the work that is outside of a woman's element, provided, of course, that she maintains her womanly dignity.

"I do not feel that I have accomplished any more than thousands of other women could have done under similar circumstances. But I had the good fortune to be well acquainted with the details of Mr. Ewing's work when I was called upon to take charge of it. Of course, I would not presume to think that I would have secured all of these contracts without the prestige of Mr. Ewing's name to aid me. But I do feel that if I had taken up the work on my own responsibility and had spent sufficient time in study and preparation, I could at least have made a reasonable success of it."

Mrs. Ewing is just completing an elaborate system of storm sewers and filter beds at La Grange, Ill. Although more than a hundred men are employed on this work, she seems to be fully as well acquainted as her field assistants, who are constantly on the ground, as to just what each one is doing and exactly what progress is made in the work each day.

SHE INSPECTS WORK.

A trip in Mrs. Ewing's company over the mile and a half of piping, tunneling and concrete construction serves to show how complete is her understanding of the work and her grasp of all the intricate details. Nothing escapes her attention. If she sees some part of the work that does not meet with her approval, the foreman in charge is immediately called and orders given for the correction of the faults. All of the men, from the humblest laborer to the highest in authority, seem to recognize intuitively in this silver-haired, immaculately dressed woman the real power and the guiding hand behind all this scene of activity.

Before her marriage Mrs. Ewing invented the first deodorizer for the odor of rubber in dress shields. On this she secured a patent, making more than $3000 from the sale of it in two years, and later selling her interest to a well-known New York manufacturer of dress shields for a considerable sum. She is now working on several other inventions which she hopes to perfect in the near future. But the engineering work comes first, she says, and that in itself is quite enough to occupy very fully the time of the average business man or woman.

In addition to her other duties, Mrs. Ewing finds time to give attention to an eighty-acre fruit farm in the famous Twin Falls district of Idaho. This farm is to be her recreation, as she expresses it, and each fall she will find relief from office cares by going West and overseeing the harvesting of her apple and other crops.

THE ENGLISH SPARROW.

Is Found to Be a True Enemy of the Alfalfa Weevil Which Kills he Crop When Unchecked.

[Washington Star:] One redeeming feature has at last been discovered in the English sparrow. He eats the alfalfa weevil—at least, he did last year. Whether this was a seasonal eccentricity or whether he was driven to it by a lack of other food is not known, but the officers of the biological survey in the Department of Agriculture are slow to believe that it is an honestly redeeming trait.

The alfalfa weevil has been causing trouble in the West for several seasons. Last spring it broke out in force in Utah, spread all over the State and even got across the line into Wyoming. This was a serious situation. The whole West depends on the alfalfa crop to put butter on its bread. The alfalfa weevil simply kills the crop when it is unchecked, and it is largely unchecked in this country up to date because it has none of the natural enemies that hold it in bounds abroad.

As soon as the seriousness of the affliction was understood the scientists of the department got busy. They scoured Europe and got the parasites of the weevil from Italy. But the parasites have a private parasite of their own that makes its living killing the weevil parasite. Therefore it will be a long time before the parasite catches up with the weevil.

The biological survey at once started to see whether there were any native birds or animals that ate the alfalfa weevil. That is where the English sparrow showed in the betting. It was found that of all the birds examined in the region infested with the weevil that the English sparrow was the most voracious of its native enemies.

The Department of Agriculture has been preaching the destruction of the English sparrow for years. He was regarded as the vermin, the rat of the bird kingdom. To find that he really has a mission in life was almost a blow to the scientists.

One of the regretable features of the situation also is that where the weevil most congregates the sparrows are scarcest. Just what the farmers will do about it is an open question. They may encourage the sparrow, but if they do he is sure to take heavy toll of grain at the harvest season to pay for his presence. If he is not encouraged, however, there may be no grain for him to take toll of.

Other methods of combating the weevil have not been neglected. Parasites are being imported to hold him in check. Dr. L. O. Howard of the bureau of entomology has received notice that Harry Smith, one of the department's experts in Italy, had just sent a large shipment of the weevil parasite and another of weevil-infested alfalfa that was known to be 40 per cent. infested with the eggs of the weevil parasite. Between the two methods it is hoped the alfalfa pest will be kept within bounds, but, all the same, it is a shock to find that the English sparrow is good for anything.

Earliest Use of "Strike."

[London Chronicle:] The earliest use of the word "strike" in the sense of stopping work occurs in the London Chronicle for September, 1765, in connection with a coal strike. This publication reports a great suspension of labor in the Northumberland coal fields, and the colliers are stated to have "struck out" for a higher bounty before entering into their usual yearly "bond." The time-honored illustration of profitless labor, "carrying coals to Newcastle," appears to have received its first slap in the face during this strike. The Chronicle reports that "several pokes of coal were brought from Durham to Newcastle by one of the common carriers, and sold on the sandhill for 9d a poke, by which he cleared 6d a poke."

Must Reach the Child.

[Philadelphia Record:] State Education Commissioner Kendall of New Jersey recently made a forceful plea before a county teachers' association for practical education in the public schools. He suggested that the school of today is endeavoring to teach every child and in so doing must reach every child individually. There was no such thing as an average child, declared the commissioner, no two pupils being alike, and it was absolutely necessary to teach the child and not the children. The fundamental act of the school, he urged, was to give the child the power to read intelligently. The mastery of the printed page is the greatest achievement in education. The schools cannot do everything for the children, for the child is not sufficiently long in the schools. Pupils should be given more particularly the command of the essentials of education, reading, writing and numbers. He held that children could not well be taught geography, history and hygiene if they cannot read. The commissioner also urged that the schools adopt manual training and agriculture, pointing out that children should be trained to the habits of industry.

TOWN CAREFULLY PLANNED.

Business Center of Chandler, Ariz., to Boast None But Fireproof Buildings—Casino to Start at Once.

Plans have been completed by Arthus B. Benton for the hotel, natatorium and casino and other buildings projected by the Mesa Improvement Company for the new town of Chandler, Ariz., in the heart of the Chandler ranch, in the Salt River Valley. Mr. Benton has for some months been engaged in working out the general scheme for the townsite, which its promoters intend shall be in truth a model city.

The new town is being laid out along distinctive modern lines, and its owners are planning to meet in advance the problems which confront all towns which are laid out in the ordinary haphazard fashion. Open spaces are to be provided in advance for all public buildings, churches and playgrounds. All business blocks fronting on the plaza are to be of fireproof construction. Light for the town will be provided for in a central plant which will be started at once.

The hotel projected for the new town will be of reinforced concrete and will eventually contain 200 rooms. Another noteworthy building will contain a casino, lodge room and public bath, together with a theater and dancing pavilion. Simultaneously with the construction of these two buildings, the main park of the town will be planted and laid out.

Chandler is in the center of the development that has resulted from the construction of the Roosevelt dam and is surrounded by about 100,000 acres of ranching land, nearly 50,000 of which is under the irrigation system. A postoffice has already been established at the place and a $10,000 brick school is nearing completion.

PILLAGING OF PEKING CITY.

SOLDIERS LOOTED AND BURNED GREAT AREA.

Hundreds Executed After Order Had Been Restored and Other Mutineers Were Ordered Out of the City—Cost of the Riots Between Three and Four Millions Sterling.

PEKING, March 12.—[Correspondence of Washington Star:] February 29 was as quiet a day as any that Peking has seen this winter. For months there had been the greatest uneasiness in the city, amounting at times to panic. Now the Manchus (who form the majority of the population) were going to rise and slaughter the Chinese; now the Chinese were about to exterminate the Manchus; now Gen. Chiang Kueiti, whose old-fashioned conservative army was encamped just outside the walls, was going to bring in his black-turbaned cutthroats and put both Chinese and Manchus to the sword. Business was paralyzed, officials and merchants brought their treasure into the legation quarter and deposited it in the foreign banks, foreigners living in outlying parts of the city came into the quarter for safety and Manchu princes and Chinese radicals, each party fleeing from the emissaries of the other, found a common refuge in a hotel. But nothing really happened.

THEN THE CATASTROPHE CAME.

Finally the Emperor abdicated, and Yuan Shi Kai was elected President of the republic. To the more sanguine it seemed that peace had come at last. Toward the end of February foreigners began to talk of leaving the legation quarter—some, in fact, had already gone—and it looked as if it would soon be possible for a foreigner to obtain a room in the hotel. Then, suddenly, on the night of February 29 came the catastrophe.

At 8 o'clock all Peking, or at any rate the foreign part of it, was at dinner, prepared to linger over the ceremony in the usual fashion of the European in the East, so that it was not until nearly 10 that the considerate Chinese servants gently called their masters' attention to the fact that there was a fire in the north.

And there was indeed a fire in the north. That whole section of the city seemed at first to be aflame. The sky was all aglow, and a long line of fiery tongues could be seen shooting up over the roofs of the intervening houses. It soon became apparent that the fire god was not the only demon at work that night, for a constant rattle of musketry could be heard in the direction of the Manchu city to the north and the Chinese city to the south, and the report began to spread that Chinese soldiers were looting the big shops in the district east of the imperial city.

PREPARE TO DEFEND QUARTER.

The alarm had been given earlier in the evening to the commandants of the various legation guards, and measures were at once taken for the defense of the quarter. All the streets leading into the quarter were hastily barricaded with sandbags and guarded by foreign troops with machine guns; sentries were placed on the Tartar wall, which separates the legation quarter from the Chinese city; and American marines took possession of the tower of the Chien Men, the principal gate of the Manchu city, in which the legation quarter is situated. It was not until morning that the exact nature of the disturbance was known, so that the greatest anxiety prevailed throughout the night, and the legations were kept busy sending out relief expeditions to bring in foreigners from the burning district.

What had happened was this: The soldiers of the third division (for reasons not yet clearly ascertained) had mutinied and turned themselves loose to loot and burn the city.

FOREIGNERS WITNESS CONFLAGRATION.

Many of the foreign residents mounted the Tartar wall to witness the conflagration. Looking out over the Manchu city to the north one could count nine great fires between the east wall and the imperial city. The air was thick with smoke, and against the lurid sky gleamed the yellow roofs of the palaces in the Forbidden city. Below, in the legation quarter, could be heard the tramp of the foreign patrols and the sharp commands of their officers, while from all sides came the sharp reports of rifle fire and the shouts of the excited population. Occasionally a bullet dropped over into the legation quarter, and one spent shell from a three-inch gun fell into the compound of the American legation guard, but fortunately no one was hurt, though a rifle ball struck the outer wall of the American legation within a foot of where the first secretary was standing.

WATCH LOOTING IN DISTRICT.

The temptation to find out what was actually going on was, in many cases, too strong to be resisted, and a number of foreigners went out into the burning district to watch the looting. The curious thing was the good humor that characterized the looting soldiers; they seemed like a crowd of unruly schoolboys out for a lark. There could be no doubt as to their determination to take what they wanted and burn the rest, but they evidently had no wish to do any more killing than was absolutely necessary. Most of the firing was into air, either for the sake of simply making a joyful noise or with the view of intimidating the shopkeepers.

Nowhere was there any apparent desire to interfere with foreigners in the streets or to injure foreign property. To show their friendliness to a party of marines who were bringing in some foreign ladies and children, the looters offered to shake hands with the foreign soldiers; here and there the rascals indulged in friendly chats with curious foreigners, and on more than one occasion they offered to share their plunder with residents of the legation quarter.

RIFFRAFF TAKES ITS SHARE.

After the soldiers had started the ball rolling the local riffraff, of course, began to take its share, and all through the night the work of devastation and pillage kept up. The streets were thronged with soldiers and coolies with bundles on their backs, and a continuous stream of rickshas laden with furs, bullion, rolls of silk, curios and other loot passed along on their way to the Chien Men Railway station, where later in the night the mutineers commandeered a train and made off with their booty.

Outside the Chien Men, in the Chinese city, there was a similar scene. There were two big fires in the Chien Men street, and from the tower on the wall the rascally work could clearly be seen. Here were the richest shops in Peking, and they were all, with few exceptions, completely rifled of their contents. Here, also, there was a skirmish between the looters and a party of loyal soldiers, but it came to nothing. Generally speaking, no attempt was made to quell the disturbance; the military commanders were afraid to act.

NEXT ATTACK WEST SIDE.

The next morning the rioters turned their attention to the west side of the city, and "all Peking" went out to visit the scene of the night's orgy. Whole areas had been swept by the flames. In some places the fire had not yet been extinguished; in others coolies were grubbing in the smoking ruins for what they could find; and every now and then a wall would fall with a crash and a cloud of dust, through which could be seen the fleeing forms of the treasure hunters.

Most of the shops that had escaped the flames were boarded up; in those that remained open there was to be seen only bare shelves and rubbish heaps. The whole district was a scene of desolation and despair. Flames were still shooting up from the east gate of the imperial city. During the night an attempt had been made by the looters to force this gate, but the imperial guards mounted machine guns on the bridge over the moat just within the gate and succeeded in repulsing the invaders.

The rioting in the west city lasted all day long, and at nightfall they began to burn again. As there was a stiff breeze blowing, the conflagration of the second night was even greater than that of the first.

HOW ONE BANK ESCAPED.

The west city was well worth looting, for in this section were situated the native banks, or "cash shops," and hundreds of pawn shops. The losses of the banks and pawn shops alone are said to amount to nearly a million sterling. Disdaining everything in the banks but dollars and bullion, the soldiers threw the smaller coins into the street, where they were greedily seized by the riffraff that followed in their wake. Some of these coins were picked up by foreign sightseers as souvenirs.

Few of the banks escaped. There was one, however, that got off very easily. It was entered by eight soldiers, who at once set to work in the usual way. The proprietor, however, reasoned with them and pointed out to them that if they undertook to loot the place they would soon be joined by a greedy horde, with the result that each would get comparatively little. He then promised them that if they would hold the place that night against all comers he would give them a thousand taels apiece in the morning. The men assented to the proposition and kept their word.

THOUSANDS ARE BEHEADED.

As the forenoon of March wore on, it looked as if the situation was steadily growing worse, for it was the avowed intention of the mutineers to sack the private dwellings that night. But in the afternoon Chiang Kueiti's "black turbans" were sent for, and the imperial guards, who had been sent out to summer palace after the proclamation of the republic, were brought in and rearmed. Both these bodies of men behaved very well on the whole, though it is true that in some places where the former were greatly outnumbered by the looters, they made common cause with them.

Little by little the rioting ceased, and then came the bloody sequel. Looters (unfortunately not always soldiers) were caught and tied together in little bunches of three or four and brought to the conjectured scene of the crimes to wait the arrival of the executioners. In one bunch was a boy of 10. Gen. Chiang Kueiti, followed by his headsmen, rode through the city and personally superintended the ceremony. It is not known just how many heads were removed, but the number must have been between 200 and 300.

PEKING IS NOW QUIET.

The third division, with the exception of one regiment that was not implicated in the mutiny, was ordered out of the city; but as the authorities feared to attempt to disarm them they were allowed to leave fully equipped. One train alone carried off toward the south, eight hundred mutineers with rifles, quantities of ammunition and fourteen Krupp field guns.

Peking is now comparatively quiet, but the disorders in North China do not seem to be over. Bands of mutineers and deserters have scattered all over the provinces of Chihli and Shansi; and the burning of the business quarter of Tien-tsin and the almost complete destruction of Paotingfu (the capital of Chihli,) which immediately followed the riots in Peking, are doubtless only the prelude to a long series of similar outrages.

The cost of the riots to Peking will doubtless never be known, but the loss could safely be stated as between three and four millions sterling.

CAUSES OF MUTINY MYSTERY.

The causes of the mutiny are shrouded in mystery. The official statement is that the soldiers' pay was in arrears and that they had heard that the northern army was to be disbanded. According to the native press, the northern army had expected to loot the cities of the south, and, being disappointed in this, decided to take what they could get in the north. It also is whispered that the imperialists have been tampering with the Chinese army, with a view to preparing the ground for a Manchu coup d'etat. The coolie in the street says that when the "Emperor's gate" in the Tartar wall was opened recently for the republican delegates from the south—this gate opens to the south—the fire-god, whose seat is in the south, came in.

Echoes from the riots are still heard. There is the story of the young American who was riding through the Chinese city on the first night. A soldier with a rifle and a bundle saw him, dropped the bundle and leveled the rifle. "What do you want?" he demanded. The quick-witted horseman replied: "I want to buy something. Got anything?" Down went the rifle and up came the bundle. "Forty dollars for this." "But I have only $2," was the reply. "Take it," said the man. It was a long silk gown lined with sable.

TAKES BATH DURING MELEE.

Then there is the story of the Englishman, who lived near the imperial city and whose family had just been taken by a patrol to the British Legation. They were burning a house on one side of his residence and robbing a bank on the other. Looters were on his roof and bullets were dropping into his courtyard. But in the midst of all this he proceeded to take a bath, saying that if he had to go to the British Legation he was going in clean clothes.

The most amusing story, however, is that about the republican delegates. These young men, mere youths most of them, had entered the capital through the Emperor's gate only a few days before and were living in the Noble's College. On the first night of the riots they had to climb over the back wall and drop down on the other side into the compound of the Y.M.C.A., where they spent the night. Now in America they used to sing a touching ballad which had the following refrain: "And he sat all night in the W.M.C.A., for he was afraid to go home in the dark."

But the riots were not funny. They have introduced an entirely new complication into the situation that was already bad enough. The authorities were evidently taken completely by surprise, and the end is not yet."

NEW CONSTRUCTION RECORD.

Magnificent Home of Los Angeles Investment Company Rapidly Nearing Completion.

Steel and structural iron work on the thirteen-story, million-dollar skyscraper of the Los Angeles Investment Company, at Eighth street and Broadway, will be complete by Tuesday, and the fact that the interior work is keeping pace with the superstructure will have established a record of construction speed when the entire building is complete.

One of the remarkable features of interest around this building is the wonderful increase in value that has been noted for the corner site, not only through many years of Los Angeles's great growth, but more especially lately, since the skyscraper district has been rapidly moving southward.

This lot was sold in 1880 for $2800. Twenty years later, in 1900, it brought $28,000. In 1903 it was worth $300,000, and in 1911 the Los Angeles Investment Company bought it for $450,000. It is now appraised at $750,000, the investment company's building and other high structures in the immediate neighborhood having raised values marvelously in the vicinity.

Partitions have practically been completed to the fourth floor and the plasterers are ending their work on the third. Rough interior work is complete to the seventh story. The elevators are being put in and stairways completed. The immense vaults of the Globe Savings Bank, with the largest doors ever put up in the West, are in the city, awaiting installation shortly.

The interior finish of the first floor is in solid mahogany, with grain marble pillars. The exterior ornamental belts have already attracted much attention.

PANAMA HATS.

Originated in Ecuador, and the Real Thing Requires Several Months' Time of Skilled Weaver.

When the summer comes lucky is considered the young man who can sport a "genuine Panama" hat, and yet, though these hats have become extremely popular throughout the United States, few people know that the term is a misnomer. These hats are not made at Panama, but in Ecuador, Peru and Colombia. It was because the great bulk of the export of these hats was shipped via the Isthmus of Panama that they got their name, which probably never will be corrected now. In Latin-America these hats are never called Panama hats, but "jipijapa," in honor of the town in Eucador where they were first manufactured.

It is popular error, also, to imagine that the straw out of which the "Panama" hats are made is very expensive. In South American countries the Panama hats are worn by rich and poor alike. The high prices we know are due largely to the import duties and to the fact that they pass through the hands of a number of commission men before they reach the ultimate purchaser. The finest quality of hat, made in the province of Manabi, Eucador, out of a fine, silky straw, is seldom seen in the United States, because the planters along the Ecuadorian coast are willing to pay from $80 to $100 for a hat so pliant and flexible that it can be folded up and carried in the pocket without injury.

During that Paris Exposition held during the reign of Napoleon III, two Panama hats from Eucador were sold for $200 each and presented to the Emperor and to Marshal MacMahon. One of the finest hats ever made in Ecuador was presented to the late King Edward of England and was so delicate and exquisitely woven that it could be folded into a package not larger than his watch.

The plant from which the straw for these hats is procured grows wild in the upper forests of the Amazon in Peru. The shrub resembles the palmetto, is fan-shaped, and when cut it is boiled, put in the sun to dry and then assorted for use. To make the straw white it is boiled in lime juice.

In June, 1905, a school for [illegible] hat making was opened in Peru and the pupils, who are taught by government officials, are obliged in turn to teach the art of hat-making to others. The United States is the largest purchaser of Panama hats, the imports of jipijapa from Peru amounting to nearly $1,000,000 annually. Germany, Great Britain and France come next in the order named.

The straw exported from Ecuador to Peru is shipped in bales weighing about eighty-five pounds each, the pound of the straw bringing from 40 to 80 cents, according to the quality of the unwoven straw. The manufacture of a Panama hat either of the finer grades requires the labor of a skilled weaver working five or six months in the late twilight or early dawn, the only hours available for making the finer grades of hats on account of the temperature.

SOUTHERNERS IN MANY BIG DEAL

Buyers from Vicinity of L Angeles Numerous.

Noted Doctor Adds to C trol California Holding

PORTERVILLE, April 27.—[illegible] realty business has slowed up c[illegible]derably the past week, although there has been an unprecedented influx of easterners and people from Southern California, searching for land. This slacking of the market doubtless only temporary, as conditions appear to be as good at any time in the history of this district and the interest of Southern California people in this district has never been greater than at this time. Realty men believe that the present lull will be followed by a compensating activity and that the southern and eastern men who are in the district at this time will be buying heavily within the next week or ten days.

Another was added to the long list of southern investors this week when Nelson Porter, of Pasadena, who recently came west form Albany, N. Y., purchased a 40-acre tract of the Modoc ranch just to the south and east of the city limits. Porter's land adjoins a forty recently bought by J. A. Fuller, also of Albany. Both tracts are in the same district with lands purchased by Smith & Wood of Pasadena. Porter will be placed in charge of the development of the adjoining tracts and will start work at once on his own forty if the proper stock can be obtained. He has been taking a course of study in tree breeding and he expects to plant only pedigreed oranges and grape fruit.

Frank Brundage, formerly of Farmersville, has just purchased the [illegible]-section of land from W. H. Cook and Dave Wishon. The property is situated in the heart of the alfalfa district. Brundage will develop the tract this spring, putting in a complete irrigating system and will plant the entire half-section out to alfalfa. Sixty thousand dollars is given as the price of the property.

H. E. Gilley and Thomas Swayne, both of Los Angeles, have purchased forty acres of side hill land just to the east of the Porterville city limits and will put the entire tract to oranges. Contracts have been let for the installation of an irrigating system and they have also contracted with a southern nurseryman for a supply of trees enough to cover the tract with oranges.

BUYS IN LAUREL COLONY.

J. S. Wise, a business man of Portland, Or., has purchased a [illegible]-acre tract of side hill land in the Laurel Colony. Wise is planning the erection of a fine bungalow home on the property and, as soon as he has disposed of his Portland interests, will come here to make his future residence. He will make of the tract an orange and grapefruit orchard.

Dr. W. J. Hunter Emory, the famous Canadian surgeon, who recently came to this district and invested approximately $75,000 in orchard property, has just disposed of Toronto property to the value of about $50,000 and expects to invest this in Porterville district land. As a part of his investment plans, he has just purchased a five-acre tract in Westfield and has ordered the plans for a beautiful bungalow, which will be occupied as his future home. The house will cost about $10,000. The five acres of land surrounding the house will be parked and landscape gardeners are already at work on the plans.

Dr. Emory has also, in company with N. M. Ball, purchased a 120-acre tract of Deer Creek land from D. A. Tughn. Work has started on the development of the property, a force of men being engaged at the present time putting down a well as the first step in a complete irrigation system.

NEBRASKAN BUYS RANCH.

Thirteen thousand dollars was paid this week by N. E. Perry of Clay Center, Neb., for the P. C. Johnson ranch in the Strathmore district. This is one of the highest prices paid this season for orchard property as the tract comprises but ten acres of young trees. In this sale there is an indication of the rise of price of young orchards, as $1000 was the standard price for young trees a year ago at this season. Perry has returned to Nebraska to dispose of business interests and will return here in three months to make his future residence.

Mrs. S. H. Swain has purchased 347 acres of land surrounding and including the old Tulare county experiment station, paying approximately $45,000 for the tract. The land was formerly the property of Sam Richardson. Mrs. Swain will cut the tract up into small holdings, suitable for small dairies or deciduous orchards.

F. M. Lord of Bairdstown has closed for the purchase of a twenty-acre tract of land in the Deer Creek district and expects to move here within a few weeks to make his future home. Lord will engage in citrus fruit culture.

BIG PIER UNDER WAY.

Pleasure Project to Be Opened to Public Late Coming Summer—North Beach Coming to Front.

SANTA MONICA, April 27.—The hum of the donkey engine and the dull thud of the pile driver as it hammers home the piles for the new pleasure pier were added this week to the clamor of the hammer and saw in evidence on this city. Work is being rushed rapidly with the building of the falsework for the new recreation pier, which is to occupy the entire ocean frontage, consisting of the block between Marine and Navy streets. While the falsework is being put in place, men alongshore are constructing the wooden and sheet steel moulds in which the interlocking reinforced concrete piles are to be cast. Unlike other concrete piers that have been built here, the piles for this structure will be cast as they are sunk. The work will necessarily be slow until the falsework is completed; then the builders expect to be able to make a showing. Their present plans are to have a part of the structure completed in time to assist in the entertainment of the crowds that come to the beach during the latter part of the summer season.

On Marine street, excavations have been commenced for the three-story brick building that is to be erected for Pirre Brothers of San Bernardino. The building will have a frontage of [illegible] feet, and will be one of the

Their present plans are to have a part of the structure completed in time to assist in the entertainment of the crowds that come to Santa Monica during the latter part of the season.

On Ocean avenue, excavations have been commenced for the three-story building that is to be erected for the Masonic order of San Bernardino. The building will have a frontage of 60 feet and will be one of the handsomest on the strand. The lower floors will be for stores, and the other floores will be converted into apartments.

The long-deferred rejuvenation of North Beach is on the eve of realization. E. P. Benjamin, a recent arrival here from New Jersey, has just been granted a permit for the construction of a $20,000 bath parlor on the Ocean Front walk, near the municipal pier. Benjamin bought the Elks Clubhouse for a home, and had no sooner taken possession of it than he concluded negotiations for the Edison Electric Company property, and some adjoining frontage at Colorado avenue. Here he expects to build a four-story hotel. The bath-house came as an afterthought, but will be operated with sun parlors, etc., as an adjunct to his hotel, which is to be in the form of a Maltese cross.

The home builders are busy from the canyon to the hill section, from the beach to the city limits. The following are among the latest permits issued:

Frank E. Lee, eight-room residence at No. 315 Seventh street, $4000; E. L. Randall, five-room cottage at No. 1336 Fifteenth, $1500; Mrs. de Baker, cottage at No. 1343 Fourth, $4000; Mrs. C. P. Schader, addition to Dixie apartments, $1000; W. C. Stone, bungalow at No. 735 Ozone, $800, and cottage at No. 727 Ozone, $800; H. H. Greider, cottage at No. 1544 Sixth, $1000; Mrs. Nell Pauller, residence on Ashland avenue, $2500; F. A. Talamantes, residence at No. 1318 Fourteenth, $1500.

FIELDS ARE ABLAZE.

Hundreds Seek Van Nuys District to Gather Golden Poppies—Building Activity in New Town Unabated.

VAN NUYS, April 27.—These beautiful spring days are attracting many people from the city to the golden poppy fields surrounding the new town of Van Nuys, in the San Fernando Valley. Nearly every car returning has people laden with the flowers, which may be gathered anywhere in this vicinity, without restriction. The trip over the Pacific Electric line through the Cahuenga Pass, and the orchards and along the famous Sherman Way, makes, in fact, one of the most delightful short journeys that can be taken out of Los Angeles.

Van Nuys is growing as rapidly as ever, and in the next few months bids fair to eclipse even its past enviable record in the building line.

Judge Cyrus McNutt has started work on his $5000 residence on East Broadway. The Southern California Edison Company has concluded arrangements to commence a substation on West C street, to be ready not later than July 1. Bids were opened for the new $50,000 school building on Friday, and work on it is to be commenced next week.

Among those who will start residences within thirty days are W. A. Jameson, Mrs. Towne, Mr. Cochran, Mrs. Wilbur, Mr. Sheppard, Mrs. Miller, F. A. Kellogg, Mr. Rosengren, N. B. Steadley, Mr. Smith, Mr. Winchester and Mr. Limoges. Work was started Monday on a handsome new bungalow for Mrs. Proal.

Work on the extension of the electric line from Van Nuys to San Fernando is well under way, and it is expected that it will be ready by July 1.

Four thousand sacks of seed potatoes have been planted around Van Nuys this season, 100,000 fruit and walnut trees have been set out in new orchards, and 7500 acres planted to sugar beets.

F. D. McGinnis, commercial agent of the Southern Pacific, was here last week figuring on the necessary equipment to move the beet crop to Oxnard, and estimated that it would require at least 3000 cars.

Recent sales of property in the new town of Van Nuys are reported by W. P. Whitsett, sales manager, as follows: France O. Rosengren, twelve lots, $3600; Lynlie Y. Seymour, $562; C. L. Denhis, $562; Elgin R. Shepard, twelve lots, $3800; Gertrude R. Keffer, ten lots, $3637; Amos Phillips, $600; Miss Josephine Schwerdfinger, $550; Board of Trustees, twenty-four lots, $7800; C. H. Weed, four lots, $1500; H. Miller, $500; Benjamin Limoges, eight lots, $2850; Marietta A. Neel, $700; Nolan B. Stadley, twelve lots, $3600; Peter Holmes, twelve lots, $3900; Fred J. Bushboom, two lots, $800; August Wilken, twelve lots, $4700; Lafayette Winchester, three lots, $4950; Emma Jones, eight lots, $2200; Mrs. Mabel Prather, four lots, $1600; R. H. Smith, three lots, $1500; Kathryn B. Snyder, four lots, $1500; Mrs. Mary S. Pitts and Miss Grace Baxter, two lots, $2450; Fred Kellog, twelve lots, $4350, and Decie May Blaine and Ethel Coulter, $750.

MONTH RECORD BREAKER.

Crown City Building Activities Reach High Water Mark—Columbia Street Bridge Soon to Be Opened.

PASADENA, April 25.—The present month has been a record breaker so far in building permits. While the amount represented by building permits issued in the month of April, last year, was $133,779, which in itself was thought to be a good figure, permits for improvements aggregating $155,864 have already been issued this month, and more are to be asked for tomorrow and next day.

The largest permit issued last week was for the erection of a handsome residence by H. S. Boice, at No. 1355 South El Molino avenue. It is to be a thirteen-room, two-story, hollow tile and plaster building, to cost $32,-900.

Other permits issued last week in which the amount of improvements is $1000, or more, were: Mrs. C. Nelson, four-room, frame bungalow, No. 645 Mentor avenue, $1000. A. Yingling, five-room, frame bungalow, No. 608 Winona avenue, $1500. John McWilliams, Jr., ten-room, frame dwelling, No. 625 Magnolia avenue, $7959. Dr. F. F. Rowland, foundation under house at No. 225 State street, $1000. J. R. Macintock, frame residence, No. 494 Bradford street, $1000. Kieft & Hetherington, five-room frame bungalow, No. 1259 North Michigan avenue, $2300. Marie MacCall, four-room, frame cottage, No. 1253 Summit avenue. Rev. J. P. Langley Bedfish, eight-room frame residence, No. 335 South El Molino avenue, $4500. C. P. Dierschdey, six-room, frame bungalow, No. 766 North Lake avenue, $2250. E. R. Stone, five-room, frame bungalow, No. 1163 Chicopee street, $2000. T. P. Anderson, six-room, frame bungalow, No. 877 Elizabeth street, $2000.

Three more weeks will see the Columbia street bridge open for traffic. The Salt Lake Railroad has already begun the work of lowering its tracks which will be put on a level with those of the Santa Fe.

This bridge, which was designed by City Engineer Van Ornum, is believed to be one of the most substantial pieces of concrete construction in Southern California. It is a $13,600 improvement, and the cities of Pasadena, South Pasadena, and the Santa Fe Railroad are uniting to pay for it.

A choice lot on Oak Grove avenue, Oak Knoll, belonging to Theodore Irwin, was purchased a few days ago by George W. Stimson for a consideration of about $25,000. It is the intention of the buyer soon to erect a handsome residence on the site. The sale was made by the William R. Staats Company.

The lot has a frontage of 300 feet and a depth of about 400 feet, extending back to the bottom of Mission Canyon. It is contiguous on the north to the grounds surrounding the home of Henry Gray.

BUSINESS CENTER SHIFTS.

Change Foreshadowed By Recent Building Developments—Bids Opened for Fine Public Improvemen s.

RIVERSIDE, April 27.—A new business center for Riverside is foreshadowed in developments planned by Charles L. Reynolds at the intersection of Ninth and Orange streets. Reynolds recently increased his holdings on Ninth street, east of Orange by the purchase of 157 feet. This space, in conjunction with 280 feet on Orange, will be covered over solidly with buildings. Reynolds has completed the purchase of the Backstrand & Grout lot and building at the northwest corner of Ninth and Orange, and the lot immediately west, making a total frontage of 100 feet. The corner building will be raised to two stories, and the entire frontage improved uniformly.

The lease of the Russ Lumber Company on the northeast corner will expire in the fall, and plans are being prepared for the improvement of this property by the erection of a two-story building with dimensions of 110 x220 feet.

With the alterations now under way on the two-story block at the southwest corner of the intersection, before the year is closed all four corners will be improved with buildings of the most modern type. The cost of the improvements now under way and in contemplation, will be in the neighborhood of $150,000, and the properties purchased in the last few days to make this programme possible involve a consideration of not far from $75,000.

Bids were opened this week for two public buildings, which are to be erected this spring. The contracts will probably be let within a very few days. The lowest bid for the Federal building at Seventh and Orange streets, was submitted by the Southwest Construction Company of Los Angeles.

The lowest bidder for the combined laboratory and residence building for the State Citrus Experiment Station at the base of Mt. Rubidoux was L. C. Waldman of Riverside. The appropriation for the building and equipment amounts to $25,000. Lester S. Moore of Los Angeles is the architect.

Among the outside purchasers of Riverside orange property this week is M. M. Cole of Pasadena, who secured the V. C. Littleton grove on Victoria avenue. This ten-acre property is regarded as among the best producers in the valley. This transaction involves an eighty-acre alfalfa ranch in the Perris Valley, which Littleton will develop into a stock ranch. The values concerned in the deal total $36,000.

PLAN FACTORY ZONE.

Venice Wants Industries Sent to Back Country — Building Activity of Beach City Growing Apace.

VENICE, April 27.—So far as industrial institutions are concerned, those that are on the eve of starting will perhaps be delayed until the City Trustees can make a decision relative to the request for the establishment of an industrial zone. Civic organizations, through their committees, have recommended that the industrial district be confined to the present territory occupied by them, in the vicinity of Rose avenue; but this decision is not appreciated by the large number who have bought property and are making homes in that vicinity. They believe the factories should be sent to the back country, where all would have better facilities for shipping. The matter will come before the Council Monday night for a final decision.

More than $100,000 worth of buildings, authorized under permits of recent issue, are now in course of construction and many others are about to be started. Plans for them have either been accepted or are being drawn.

One of the more pretentious of the proposed structures is the Fox Hotel, which is being planned for Rose avenue. The Palace apartment-house on Horizon at Speedway will be one of the most commodious along the bay, consisting of two and three-room suites, with many sun parlors and all modern accessories. J. F. Power has secured a permit for a two-story residence of ten rooms. This is to be built on Park avenue and will cost $8000.

Permits issued during the week included the following: E. S. Ellis, eight-room residence on Sherman avenue, $3500; A. C. Martin, two-story residence on Sherman avenue, $3500; W. J. Sander, six-room cottage at Nowita place, $1950; Mrs. C. A. Rader, cottage on Short Line Beach, $1000; M. H. Dekin, residence of eight rooms on Sherman avenue, $1900; H. Slater, cottage on Broadway at Fifth, $1500, and Fred Detmers; seven-room residence on Wavecrest, $3600.

Breeze avenue is to have another large apartment-house, the permit for it having been issued Thursday. It is to cost $20,000 and is to be built for J. A. VanDyke. Work will be started at once and the building will be ready for occupancy by the time the summer season is at its height.

BUILDING IS ACTIVE.

BUSINESS CENTER CHANGED.

SOUTH PASADENA, April 27.—Building activities in this city are keeping pace with increasing population, and the business center which for a long time, was a disputed point, has definitely settled at the corner of Mission and Fair Oaks avenue, rather than the corner of Mission and Meridian streets, where many of the older stores are located. The change has been cemented by the erection of the largest business building in South Pasadena, not as yet completed, at the corner of Fair Oaks avenue and Hope street, one block north of Mission street.

The building is 160x153 feet in size. The lower floor will contain a garage to be occupied by Pierce & Pierce on one side, and offices for the Record Publishing Company on the other. The second floor will be divided into two sections, one occupied by the Masonic lodge rooms, with a mezzanine gallery, and two suites of apartments. The third floor will have the Masonic banquet rooms in the front of the building and two more private apartments in the rear. This arrangement will make the building four stories in the front and three stories in the rear. The exterior will be finished in front, in white enamel brick, with massive pilasters at the entrances on Fair Oaks avenue.

To make the side of the building where the Masonic order will have its entrance, a new kind of brick, rustic in appearance, called red rustic, will be used, with trimmings of cream presed brick on the cornices. Cream pilasters will be used to relieve the appearance of a blank wall. The entrance to the Masonic quarters on Hope street, will be separate and private, with folding iron gates.

The show windows in the garage and printing offices will be of heavy plate glass and the building throughout will be modern in every detail with gas and electric lights. O. C. Williams the contractor, will try a new roof composition of sanded rubber.

The Sparks Realty Company, reports the sale for the Bank of Ellicottville, N. Y. to N. Ledgerwood of this city, of a lot of 125-foot frontage on Mission street, between Elm and Stratford avenue, for a consideration of $3000. This property was purchased as an investment, but may later be improved with business property if conditions make it advisable

THIRTY SALES REPORTED.

The James R. H. Wagner Company reports the sale of thirty parcels at its Inglewood Acres subdivision, in the Inglewood-Hawthorne district, during the past week, to the following buyers: S. P. Williams, Joe Grannis, M. Robinson, M. Ziegman, A. J. Mertins, O. Lieberman, J. A. Murray, T. M. Ellis, Francis McBride, Mr. Dietrich, C. H. Crawford, J. Gackmier, J. F. Stair, W. F. Reisch, A. M. Carter and L. M. Rose. The first half of the property being nearly sold out three weeks after the opening sale, the company is preparing to place the second section of Inglewood Acres on the market in a short time

A DIVIDEND OF OVER
$200,000.00

This dividend will be paid to every Los Angeles Investment Company stockholder on the Company's books at the close of business, Tuesday, April 30th. Part of it will go to you if you buy stock on or before that date.

Eleven thousand or more stockholders will participate on May 15th in the regular quarterly cash dividend of the biggest dividend-paying corporation in its line in the world.

This Company has been a dividend-payer in Los Angeles for its stockholders for over sixteen years. Its record in the dividend line for a corporation in the real estate and investment field is unequaled.

The Los Angeles Investment Company owns today, clear, millions upon millions of dollars worth of the choicest Los Angeles property obtainable. These holdings include six down-town business sites and over 3200 acres of subdivision property, some of it partially developed. A recent appraisement made by Robert Marsh, W. W. Mines, and C. F. W. Palmer, three leading realty men, showed that these holding were carried on the Company's books at nearly $3,500,000.00 under their value. The business of the Company is based on the ownership of land,—the rock-bottom of all wealth.

With the wonderful growth of this metropolis of the Southwest, with its increasing population, and rising land values, an investment of $1, $100, or $1000 in Los Angeles Investment Company stock is today as good an investment as it was sixteen years ago.

Bank Holds Money Back Fund

The Globe Savings Bank of Los Angeles gives, as manager of the Guarantee Fund, as positive a guarantee against loss as can be devised. The bank holds over $100,000.00 ready to buy Los Angeles Investment Company stock from those who wish to sell. It has invariably returned on demand, to every stockholder in the Los Angeles Investment Company, his money in full if he wished it. To date this fund has purchased more than $1,000,000.00 worth of the Company's stock, buying every share offered it. During the panic of 1907, the Guarantee Fund paid spot cash for every share of Los Angeles Investment Company stock handed it for sale. One hundred thousand dollars is ready. If you want your money back, take or mail your stock certificate to the Globe Savings Bank.

No investor in the Los Angeles Investment Company, or in any of its securities has ever failed to have his investment returned to him in full on demand. This is the record of sixteen years.

THIS DIVIDEND FOR YOU

If you had started with $10 when this Company was organized in this city, and had added only $10 a month, and had reinvested your dividends, you would be worth today $45,353.38. You would be able to draw $3,250.00 a year in cash dividends, and your investment would be increasing in value $4,650.00 a yar.

The money-making possibilities of the Los Angeles Investment Company are almost unlimited. You can participate in its next dividend if you buy your stock this month. The return on your money in the first dividend alone is liberal and quick. Buy your stock now.

CONTEMPORARY PRESS COMMENT.

President and the Colonel.

[New York Herald:] We are now assured by our Washington correspondent that the country is going to be given an exhibition of how a judge can fight after his judicial veneer has been knocked off. Mr. Taft for several months has permitted the colonel to go about the country denouncing him for the very things in which the colonel himself stood eminent. Mr. Taft has not replied. He has permitted the colonel to make it appear that he was the associate of all that was loathsome in political life when these very associates were first discovered by the colonel himself as fine companions. Mr. Taft has remained silent. He has permitted the colonel to distort his views, misquote his utterances and generally to bear false witness. But he has not corrected the colonel. But the giant has awakened. The result of this campaign of misrepresentation undenied has suddenly come home to Mr. Taft. He sees that Maine has followed Illinois and Pennsylvania has followed Maine and that many persons are forgetting that the colonel was the greatest chum of bosses when he was in his hey-dey, and unless some one interferes, the leopard will change his spots. Mr. Taft might make the statement issued by his campaign manager about the colonel's former connections shorter by merely referring all to St. Luke, xviii, 11.

Taft Must Not Surrender.

[Springfield Republican:] It should be taken for granted that President Taft, in view of the very disastrous week he has just experienced as a candidate for renomination, will now make his opponents understand, as they have not before, the unalterable purpose which inspired his statement that "nothing but death" could remove him from the contest. If such a spirit on his part was appropriate two months ago, it is much more appropriate today. He should now press on, determined to have justice at the hands of his party, or to force it to trample him, to his political death. There should be no compromise, no withdrawal, no surrender.

The character of the campaign Mr. Roosevelt is making leaves the President no honorable alternative to an inflexible, stubborn maintenance of his position as a candidate who will stay a candidate, if necessary, to the last gasp. There might be a dozen reverses like those in Illinois and Pennsylvania and still the President would be under a heavy moral obligation, not merely to his friends and himself, but to the country, to continue this battle to the end. The issues that have been raised between Mr. Taft and Mr. Roosevelt are so important in themselves, they transcend personal interests and considerations so completely that the Republican party should be forced to choose between them even if the act of choosing involved its own destruction.

An Adroit Politician.

[Baltimore American:] Theodore Roosevelt has met with success in Illinois and Pennsylvania. In neither case has he manifested the fact that interest in his candidacy for a third term is the cause of the results; in neither case has he demonstrated that interest in the policies he stands for counted in the outcome. He was astute and went into both States to do one thing, and did it. That was to energize the masses of the voters in their protest against the domination of machine influences. The local conditions in both States were decidedly favorable, and Roosevelt took advantage of these conditions, stamped them with his name, and brought about a result that might be construed into an acclamation for him, when it was in reality merely an overturn of organizations by the masses of the voters. The actual issue of Roosevelt for a third term cut no prominent part in the contests; the proposal of the recall of judicial opinions or any of the other nostrums Roosevelt advocates in a noncommittal fashion played no important part.

The shrewd and adroit politician, the man with ability to turn to his own account the issues and situations that weight the people—this was the man who won the victories in the two States. Where such conditions do not exist Roosevelt cannot prevail. There has never been an instance of a showdown for the third-term principle itself in which the votes have been cast for him or when the convention has supported him. Had he been content to work in the ranks for reforms within the party and to bring about the triumphs of one or another progressive principle, he might have been a useful man and would not have found it necessary to resort to such extremes as he has gone to in order to secure new and spectacular issues. The overweening ambition to be President once more, to secure the prize of a third term, was too strong for him, and this will be his undoing. In no case have the people indicated a reversal of their opposition to a third-term President; in no case have they given their sanction to the extraordinary reversal of position by Roosevelt.

Facts Are Against Roosevelt.

[Baltimore American:] Roosevelt will not be nominated at Chicago. The Republican party will not commit the folly of naming the man who would place upon it the supreme incubus of its history. He will not be nominated, and the party will have to come out from under the handicaps that he is imposing upon it. The noise and the clatter may be emphasized by the toppling over of a party organization in a State here and there, but when the national convention is held Taft will have the votes. The man at the head of the nation has done more actual work of reform and progress than that which Roosevelt talks about. But, as a matter of fact, the power of a President is limited by the co-ordinate branches of the government. Neither Roosevelt or any other President working within constitutional bounds could possibly bring about the reformation of the government in all particulars. The measure of success Taft has had is due largely to the fact that he could bring Congress to his way of thinking vastly better than could Roosevelt.

The hard practical facts—the facts of sense and balance, the facts that defy refutation—are against Roosevelt, and he cannot make headway against them by the froth and foam of wordy emanations. The Illinois and Pennsylvania results are only the exceptions that point to the rule. Roosevelt cannot win and Taft will.

Revival of Old Charges.

[San Francisco News Letter:] Theodore Roosevelt possesses many rare faculties, and one of them is the facility and the airiness with which he brushes away charges that would make any other man suffer. The "rape of Panama," the allegations that he is a shining candidate himself for his Ananias Club, such incidents as his striking a young girl's horse with his riding whip when she passed him on the road, and other acts calling for better explanation than he has ever furnished, do not seem to worry him in the least. He just naturally seems to butt through them.

With the growth of his movement toward a renomination for the Presidency the colonel may find fallacious his belief, very apparent, that the American people quickly forget ugly charges. "Ryanbacks" are one thing, but the revival of old stories are apt to cause considerable embarrassment to the colonel's managers. That the colonel likes a fight we all know, but a fight in a righteous cause and one in an unrighteous one are quite different things.

Watch the rejuvenation of many charges that were dropped when Roosevelt formally withdrew from the arena a short time ago. There are some things that will not down, and the lapse of time has given opportunities to complete the evidence in many of the cases laid at the rough rider's door.

The People Do Rule.

[Portland Oregonian:] Mr. Roosevelt's superlative egotism has led him to the extreme of assuming that, if he be elected President, the people will rule, but that, if Mr. Taft be elected, the people will not rule. Whenever Roosevelt gets the delegates he proclaims that the people have chosen. If any other man gets the delegates he accuses the bosses of defeating the will of the people.

The plain truth is that the people rule, whichever leader wins. They choose as leaders those men whose policies they favor and whom they believe to be able and willing to carry out those policies. To call a rival political leader a boss and to accuse him of defeating the will of the people is to "play the baby act." No man can become a leader without the active choice or the silent assent of the majority. When men achieve leadership who betray the public interest it is usually through the silent assent, or inaction, of a large proportion of the people. When opposition takes the place of apathetic assent such a leader is quickly deposed.

To assert that the people will not rule if they choose some other leader than himself, as does Roosevelt, is to deny undeniable facts. Even the initiative and referendum, which are designed to bring about the direct action of the people without the intervention of representatives, are ineffective unless some man or group of men invoke them and thus take the lead. If the people adopt the measures thus submitted to them the author of those measures is their leader; if they reject those measures he has no excuse for denying that the people rule.

Roosevelt has invented a false issue by his "let-the-people-rule" cry. The people do rule. The issue is whether the people shall continue to rule by the means now used or by the new means which Roosevelt recommends.

Roosevelt Then and Now.

[San Francisco News-Letter:] In his St. Louis speech Col. Roosevelt fairly outran himself in gathering beautiful sentiments to throw at his hearers. He made the roof tremble as he hurled at the people what President Lincoln once said: "This is a government of the people, for the people, and by the people." That is what the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution say in substance, only that the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution have been saying it all the time, whereas the colonel has often flung these instruments to the winds to be torn into tatters. For instance, in his literary masterpiece, "American Ideals," a book written by himself at a time when the Presidential bee was not buzzing publicly in his bonnet, and when the dear "common people" looked like King David's "cattle on a thousand hills." In that book the colonel was constrained to give his opinion of a government the American people were fitted for in this wise:

"Governmental power should be concentrated in the hands of a very few men, who would be so conspicuous that no citizen could help knowing all about them, and the elections should not come too frequently."

That sounds more like Alexander Hamilton than Abraham Lincoln.

THE WONDERS OF LIGHT.

Still Delving at the Method of Its Transmission—Density of the Light-Bearing Ether.

[Popular Mechanics:] Even more wonderful than light itself is the medium by which its waves are carried. And what is this medium? It is not air, it is not a gas, it is not a liquid. Is it matter? In order to be matter, as we understand it, a thing must possess two characteristic properties. One of these is inertia, the other is weight. Inertia means the active resistance shown by all matter to a change in its condition of rest or motion. Weight is the measure of the attraction one body has for another, whether they be atoms, or suns. The medium that bears light from star to star, or from a candle to the eye, so far as we know, has only one of the properties of matter—inertia.

Are we not justified, therefore, in saying, with our present knowledge of the subject, that the light-bearing medium, called by scientists the luminiferous ether, is probably not a material thing? The various properties it must possess and without which it could not do all the wonderful things that are claimed for it, are more or less contradictory in their nature. Nevertheless, luminiferous ether is believed in by a majority of scientists, even though they do not pretend to understand its nature.

It is supposed to be everywhere, not only filling the interplanetary spaces and the vast abysses between the stars, but also entering into the very heart and between the very molecules and atoms of what is known as matter.

Gold, for example, one of the densest substances known to man, is permeated completely by this strange, space-filling ether, and platinum, another extremely dense substance, is as the lightest, filmiest mist, when compared with the vast density of the ether itself. It has been estimated that the density of the light-bearing ether is fifty thousand million times greater than that of platinum.

"Home Builders"

Building 4 City Blocks of Houses

—You may share in this Profit Making—You will receive your first cash dividend next Tuesday, April 30 and regularly every 3 months thereafter—

[86]

AT THE present time "Home Builders" has under course of construction, more than $75,000 worth of houses. Estimating each house at a value of $2000 and situated on an average sized Los Angeles home site of 50 feet frontage, there is a continuous string of 1850 feet of frontage, which is equal to four average city blocks. This would be 37 happy homes which, if each had the usual five members, would be supplying 185 people with shelter.

These houses are not all in a string, but, by "Home Builders" plan of building for the buyer anywhere he owns his lot, they thus are widely situated throughout the city.

"Home Builders" builds no houses before they are sold. It has perhaps ten contracts offered for every one it is able to accept, finance and build. It is always sure of its profit and knows the security is ample for the funds it invests in the contract.

Dividends Every 3 Months

[87]

YOU can share in this great city-building enterprise. It is as sure as first mortgage or trust deed security can yield. The profits are large because the volume of business is large and the cost of administration is small.

Those who have owned shares in "Home Builders" for the four years it has been in operation have already received more than $600 in cash dividends upon each $1000 invested in shares and the $1000 worth of shares have a market value today of $2600.

"Home Builders" has paid these cash dividends every three months. On April 30th will be declared the seventeenth dividend, and you can share in this if you purchase shares before the office closes on that date—next Tuesday.

Remember "Home Builders" is different from any other building company operating here. It is not dependent upon real estate sales for its profit. It has all of the safety coming from mortgage or trust deed investment. It is conservative and it is wisely, profitably, progressively managed.

THE issuance of a written guaranty by the "General Agency" to every share buyer is done, to give additional protection through supplying definite resale arrangements and facilities whereby the share-buyer can convert his shares into cash. The guaranty assures at least 8 per cent. earnings on your money while invested, and also creates loan facilities whereby you can raise money on your shares without selling.

No one ever lost a cent through investing in "Home Builders" shares and the "General Agency" takes pride in continuing that record.

This was the view expressed by Frank Hedges Butler, who has just returned from a big game hunting expedition in that country, in company with Mr. Colby.

"For every animal shot," he continued, "there are about ten animals born. Mr. Colby and I got rhinoceroses, hippopotami, antelopes, lions, zebras, elands and others. We had the usual excitement which is inseparable from a big game hunt, but we had no serious adventures, except perhaps one.

"East Africa is a country which calls you back. There is a sort of fascination about it. Although you have to drink bad water in which animals walk and wash themselves, and to put up with other inconveniences, yet the country has a great attraction for the visitor. I shall certainly go again when the opportunity offers. East Africa is quite a white man's country, with practically every sort of climate, including that in which cocoanuts and bananas are grown."

TRAMP SIGNS.

[EDITORIAL.]

EVERY I-Won't-Worker who is a traveler carries with him a piece of chalk with which he can make a mark which rain will not efface. He uses this on the front gate posts of the farmhouses where he has sought and obtained—or been refused—entertainment. A single circle without any line across it means that you can obtain food and clothing in the house behind the gate on which the mark is made. A similar circle with a single line across it indicates that you can obtain food there, but no clothing. A circle with two lines across it signifies that you will find a dog there who is a barker but not a biter. A circle with three lines across it states that there is a dog there of the "yaller" variety, and that an ill-clad man who enters the premises will receive neither food nor drink, and may expect to leave the seat of his breeches as a souvenir.

The frequency of the triple barred circle marks on the gate posts in Oregon and Northern California led the army of I-Won't-Workers not to attempt to reach the sunny Southland by the Walker and Legit, rob-hen-roosts-as-you-go line, but instead to board freight trains, intimidate the train hands and ride without tickets to the nearest large town. This practice was discouraged in Nevada by the train hands running the train upon a siding on the desert, uncoupling the engine and wiring to headquarters, with the result that the travelers could abide where they were without food or water, or foot it for thirty miles over the desert to the nearest station.

In some towns the authorities have arranged for receptions to I-Won't-Workers of a hydrostatic character. The Sheriff of Fresno was a pioneer in the water cure treatment, and the Chief of Police in San Diego emulated his example. Mention Fresno or San Diego in the hearing of a traveling I-Won't-Worker and watch him shiver and chatter his teeth.

The Times agrees with the Socialists that tramps ought not to be locked up and fed at the public cost on roast beef, rice pudding and coffee. It would be better for the public treasury and better for the health of the I-Won't-Workers to give them plenty of cornmeal mush for a diet, with all the water they can drink, adorn their legs with light, but sufficient, steel hobbles, put picks and shovels in their hands and give them wholesome exercise where they would learn to mend the highways and mend their own low ways at the same time.

Labor's Unrest.

STRIKES ON AND OFF AND STRIKES COMING.

DURING the Lawrence (Mass.) strike the landlords lowered all rents 50 per cent. to help relieve the sufferers. As shown by the occurrences during that strike the I. W.W. criticises trade unions for contenting themselves with partial, temporary advantages (though the Lawrence I.W.W. settlement was only partial.) What it wants is simply the whole business, the earth and the machinery. And it makes no bones about it either, says the Sun of New York.

In the first thirty working days (March 1 to April 5) of the British coal strike the workers' loss was:

	Working days Lost.	Wages Lost.
Miners, coal and iron	28,500,000	$37,905,000
Other industrial workers	16,800,000	16,750,000
Agents, travelers, clerks, warehousemen, etc.	2,730,000	5,250,000
Totals	48,030,000	$59,395,000

Just think of it! Nearly fifty million working days lost in thirty days of the strike and almost sixty million dollars in wages. This fearful loss is considerably larger than the whole loss of time and wages in British strikes and lockouts during the first ten years of this century, says the Times of London, an incontrovertible authority. Even the relief money paid was also a further loss on the labor as a whole, and a very heavy loss at that. And all this does not nearly represent the entire loss which Britain suffered as a result of the calamity. Millions of pounds (not dollars) were drawn out of the savings banks for living expenses and are gone forever. Then the losses incurred by expensive loans and by the forced sale of securities at disastrous sacrifices. As previously shown the losses to the railway owners by reduced freights and fares also amounted to millions, to which can be added the vast amount of business and private losses never made known. All told it can be very safely estimated that the calamity cost Britain at least one hundred million pounds, or five hundred million dollars, with, practically no real gain to the strikers, or to anyone except the mine owners, who sold their stocks of coal at enhanced prices. The trouble may break out again any day in any mine region where the miners and the district boards cannot agree on a minimum wage. The miners' disappointment in the settlement is keen and growing and is expressed by them in these words: "Why did our leaders in Parliament vote against the minimum wage bill when almost the next day they advised us to accept it?" That question unanswered, or insufficiently answered, will rankle and may culminate in a change of leaders and another strike. Bad leadership can always be found behind every strike.

The suffering by the British strike is not over by any means. The pottery trade may never completely recover, says the London Times, from the exhaustion brought about by the coal famine. Numbers of orders were diverted abroad and they may never again return to the British pottery firms. One hundred thousand workers were idle and the trifle of relief they got cost $20,000 a week. A pint of milk a day had to be found daily for 22,000 babies under 2 years of age. Thousands of older children actually starved, while women cried in the streets for the bread which could not be found. Strikers always seem to forget that it is always the women and children who suffer first and most.

Further strike trouble is expected in the British shipping trade in the early summer. The demands will be to make more room for 30,000 more workers by increasing the crews in proportion to the size of the vessels, and by excluding from British ships Lascars and other Asiatics to the number of 3000.

The Passaic (N. J.) textile strike is about over as 4000 of the 5000 idle operatives have gone back to work. Haywood of the I.W.W. says he is going back there to organize another strike.

London shop clerks, bartenders, milkmen, bakers, waiters and other workers are holding mass meetings and saying: "If the miners got the minimum wage, why not others." In England the union labor leaders threaten a record-breaking strike of all industrial workers on May 1.

A lockout against all union workmen was declared by the General German Employers' Union for Tailors on March 9, 1912, as a result of the failure of workmen who had been on a strike in thirty cities to accept the wages offered at the meeting of the arbitration committee at Frankfort-On-the-Main. The workmen demanded a wage increase of 20 per cent, and the employers offered a raise of about 5 per cent., the highest being 7 per cent., offered in Berlin. The employers' organization has branches in 158 cities, with 2500 members. More than 24,000 workmen are affected by the lockout. While the non-union men are not locked out, many of them have quit work.

A large majority of the soft-coal union miners in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania have voted to accept the offer of 5 per cent. more wages. They will end the strike there. This will be followed by a settlement in the soft-coal fields of Central Pennsylvania.

Thirty-four thousand men will be affected if the eastern railroad engineers go on strike. Nearly two thousand of these are non-union men. The vote was 93.1 per cent. in favor of a strike, but "strike votes" are often taken for use as a club to get terms and not strike.

Turned Upon Him.

UNION ZEAL CAUSES SUICIDE.

THEATRICAL MANAGER CRUSHED BY HIS OWN CREATIONS.

Was Instrumental in "Organizing" Jewish Trades Workers of New York but Was Finally Ruined by the Insistent Demands of the Unionized Actors.

[New York Herald:] Driven to desperation by the exactions of labor organizations of his own creation, Michael Mintz, manager of the Lipzin Theater, No. 237 Bowery, put a bullet in his brain on the stage after yesterday's matinee, and died later in Gouverneur Hospital.

News of his death spread rapidly through the lower east side, where he was a beloved leader, and soon there was a crowd of more than three thousand persons at the doors of the theater. Loud wailing and tears bespoke their grief, and knowing the excitable temperament of the crowd the reserves from two stations were sent to maintain order.

Michael Mintz came to New York from Russian Poland nearly thirty-five years ago. He had been well educated and saw the need of his people for guidance in the new country to which they were flocking. He founded the Jewish Herald, for many years the leading organ of the New York Ghetto, but his success caused rivals to enter the field, and five years ago he was forced to abandon his publication.

Meanwhile he had been active in preaching the gospel of organized labor, and through his efforts most of the Jewish trades were unionized. He carried his zeal for organization to the point of banding the actors in the Yiddish theaters into a union.

Previous to this the stage hands, the electricians, the carpenters and the property men in these same theaters unionized under his guidance. He did not dream he was creating a Frankenstein that one day would crush him.

He had married Fanny Lipzin, one of the leading actresses of the Yiddish stage, and after abandoning his newspaper he undertook the management of the Windsor Theater. He was successful there, and later acquired the Thalia Theater. When that property was sold he obtained a lease three years ago on the property at Bowery and Prince street, which since has been known as the Lipzin Theater.

From the start of his theatrical ventures he met with troubles from the Yiddish theatrical unions, but he was not in a position to oppose their demands.

This season, to eclipse his rival managers, he engaged Mlle. Kaminsky, the Bernhardt of the Yiddish stage, and brought her and her entire company from Warsaw. The local Actors' Union opposed the move, as it meant the loss of a lot of jobs, and Mintz was forced to maintain two companies or fight a boycott or a walkout of his mechanical staff.

The drain on his resources was too much for him, but he stuck by his contract with Mlle. Kaminsky, and kept her and her company from March 10 to September 10. The engagement was an artistic success, but the manager's profits for the last five seasons were swept away.

Saturday night Mintz told Frank Coren, his treasurer, that he feared he had reached the end.

"The unions have ruined me," he said. "I need $3400 next week and $1000 of it I must have on Monday. But even if I had it I couldn't go on. It costs more now to run the theater than I can take in."

Yesterday there was a crowded house for the matinee performance of "True Love," and Mme. Lipzin, knowing her husband's financial straits, hurried to the box office after removing her costume.

Mintz, who remained on the stage, remarked to Mrs. Sarah Perlman, the wardrobe woman, that the electrician had left the stage lights burning. Then he walked to the switchboard and turned them out. A moment later a shot was heard. Mintz was found lying with the revolver in his hand. Dr. Gridansky hurried with him to Gouverneur Hospital, but he was beyond aid.

Mme. Lipzin, who is in a state of collapse at her home, No. 1433 Madison avenue, could make no coherent statement regarding the causes for her husband's act.

REPORTS ON WAGES AND CONDITIONS

Timely Bulletins from All Parts of the World.

It is shown by the Bureau of Railway Economics that in 1911 no less than $1,000,277,249 was paid in wages to the employees of our various steam railroads, distributed as follows:

General officers	$ 12,649,727
Other officers	17,852,412
General office clerks	55,873,729
Station agents	22,842,569
Other station men	81,033,692
Engineers	79,836,834
Firemen	49,151,135
Conductors	44,077,929
Other trainmen	99,154,674
Machinists	42,714,414
Carpenters	41,181,235
Other shopmen	129,182,632
Section foremen	25,697,524
Other trackmen	115,667,923
Switch tenders, crossing tenders, watchmen	19,350,982
Telegraph operators and dispatchers	20,236,586
Employees—several floating equipment	5,070,797
All other employees and laborers	122,994,116
Total wages paid in 1911	$1,005,277,249
By combined classes:
Officers and clerks	$ 85,376,868
Station men	103,881,195
Engineers and trainmen	282,068,575
Shopmen	214,047,731
Trackmen	141,270,252
Telegraph operators and dispatchers	20,236,586
Switch tenders, crossing tenders, watchmen	19,350,982
All other employees and laborers	129,064,900
Total wages paid in 1911	$1,005,277,249

This 1911 pay roll is $41,868,822 (4.3 per cent.) greater than the pay roll of 1910, and $69,297,678 (7.4 per cent.) above that of 1909.

By classes the sharing in the 1911 increase of $41,868,822 over 1910 was:

	Extra pay in 1911 over 1910.	P.c.
Officers and clerks	$ 870,140	1.0
Station men	3,668,603	3.7
Engineers and trainmen	17,764,208	6.7
Shopmen	6,540,155	3.2
Trackmen	3,977,297	2.9
Switch tenders, etc.	714,827	3.8
Telegraph operators, etc.	1,348,972	4.7
All other employees	6,975,295	5.7
Total	$41,868,822	4.3

It will be noted that the engineers and trainmen got by far the larger share ($17,764,208) and the largest percentage increase of this 1911 extra pay.

The sharing (dollars and percentage) in the $69,297,678 pay roll increase in 1911 over 1909 was:

	Extra pay in 1911 over 1910.	P.c.
Officers and clerks	$ 3,319,102	4.0
Station men	4,926,214	5.0
Engineers and trainmen	26,444,032	10.4
Shopmen	12,483,595	6.2
Trackmen	10,810,977	8.3
Switch tenders, etc.	569,676	3.0
Telegraph operators, etc.	1,309,745	6.0
All other employees	9,624,387	7.5
Total	$69,297,678	7.4

Again it will be noted that of this extra pay in 1911 over 1909 the engineers and trainmen got by far the larger share ($26,444,032) and also the larger percentage of increase—10.4 per cent., against an average increase percentage of 7.4, or well on to 50 per cent. more than the others. Yet it is the engineers of fifty eastern roads who now ask for an increase of $7,259,000 a year, or $10,000,000, more, as the Sun of New York says.

All the figures quoted above apply only to railroads of 5000 or more miles long. Doubtless there were also considerable increases in 1911 and 1910 in the pay rolls of the shorter roads. The figures properly do not include increases or decreases in wages paid, which were due to variations in the number of employees. These were left out.

It is a fact that on June 30, 1911, the roads were employing 31,037, or 2.1 per cent., fewer employees than on June 30, 1910—one year previously—while the total wages paid in 1911 was really $49,976,216, or 5 per cent., greater. This increase in wages in 1911 exceeded the increase in gross earnings by $22,595,121, or 82.5 per cent., while the net revenue of the roads declined by $40,988,529.

In view of the foregoing actual facts where was there any justice in the railroad strikes which occurred in the year ended June 30, 1911, or since? Or in the present threatened strike of engineers and (possibly) firemen on the fifty eastern roads whose figures and results are included in this showing of our eighty-three railroads of 500 or more miles in length? When it comes to striking, why should not the shareholders of our railroads just as fairly strike against putting up any more money for wages-costing extensions and wages-costing new equipment, because, while their employeers got $49,976,216 (all told) more wages in 1911 than in 1910, they (the shareholders) had their net revenue cut down by $40,988,529, giving the employees an advantage over their employers of over $90,000,000 in that one year? What is fair for the goose ought to be fair for the gander, but in the case of unreasonable wages demands and unjust strikes, union labor (or rather its self-seeking dominating leaders and agitators) never looks at it in that just way.

California's Wages-Producing Rank.

This is how the census of 1910 puts it:

Wage-earners in California factories	115,296
Yearly pay roll	$109,731,000
Value of products, year	529,761,000
Value added by manufacture	304,523,000
Increase in wage-earners, census period, per cent.	49.3

California's manufacturing wages-producing rank is higher than for any other State, west of the Mississippi River, other largely-populated Missouri, including the old and big manufacturing city of St. Louis.

Dress Coat Wages in Mannheim.

The wages paid for making evening dress coats in Mannheim, Germany, are:

Class 1	$5.95
Class 2	5.47
Class 3	5.12
Class 4	4.78

Repair work for classes one and two, 13 cents an hour; the hours being from 7:30 to 7:30 o'clock, with one and one-half hours off at noon, and fifteen minutes for coffee in the forenoon and afternoon. Each worker pays 12 to 24 cents weekly to his union.

Wages in Bohemia.

	Per hour.
Metal trades.
Skilled workman	$0.464
Assistant foundryman	0.278

Only one half-holiday is paid for, and that is the afternoon of the day before Christmas. The working hours are fifty-four per week.

A STRIKE THAT FAILED.

Firm Stand of Oakland Employers Put an End to Demand for Closed Shop.

[Pacific Coast Mechanic:] On March 6, 120 men in the employ of the Union Gas Engine Company on the Tidal Canal, Oakland, went out on strike.

It was not a question of wages or hours.

It was a strike for the closed shop. It was waged over the right of one lone man who was in good standing, who had his local dues paid up, but who refused to pay the McNamara fund tax of $25.

The ultimatum was that he be discharged or that his employers force him to pay the union's demands. The command was that the employer become a collection agency for the business agent of a labor union.

The employer refused.

Hence the walkout.

The Union Gas Engine Works is a member of the Metal Trades Association.

The Free Registration Bureau of the Citizens' Alliance was appealed to and by the opening time of the works on the 7th eighteen men responded to take the place of the striking crew. The bureau had forty-eight more in reserve for that day and twenty for the next.

By 1 o'clock the striking crew came back to work.

But they came back as individuals.

$100 for a Home

Here's the Open Door to Real Independence and Solid Comfort for YOU

Our proposition is a very simple one. You ought to have your own home. You will agree with that. You ought to have your own home now. You will agree with that, too. You can have your own home now,—and we'll prove it to you. This is the most important problem in your life,—you must face and the sooner the better.

Rodgers Park

solves the Problem

Come out to Rodgers Park. Take your choice of over fifty 1, 1½ and 2-story bungalow homes, with roomy front porches, screen porches and sleeping porches, beamed ceilings, open fireplaces, cabinet kitchens, white enameled bathrooms, built-in features of every modern description. The floors are polished, the lighting fixtures artistic, the hardware exceptionally fine. Even the shades are up. Each is on a big, full sized lot, and fenced in with it is the adjoining lot of which we give you the free use, and a free two years' option on at its present price, thus giving a double frontage.

$100 cash down and then from $24 to $30 monthly pays not only for your home and lot, but all the interest, the taxes, the insurance. There are no mystifying conditions, no ambiguous wording, no unsatisfactory obstacles in our propositions or our contracts. You buy here in a large, level subdivision, reaching from Vermont to Normandie avenues, on 5c car line, in midst of one of the best developed residence sections of the great Southwest. Water, gas, electricity, telephones, oil-paved streets, cement work—all are here, ready and waiting for you. You owe yourself an investigation.

Take the car today, right now if you will; come out to Rodgers Park and let our salesman show you about. You will enjoy the inspection trip. You will find it a trip well worth while. It will not take long and will give you a most satisfactory answer to the most important problem, as we have above stated, that you will face at any time.

How to Reach Rodgers Park

We'll be glad to have you come to our office and ride out in an automobile. Or take a Florence Avenue car on Hill Street, between Third and Eighth to Florence Avenue; 10-minute service. Or take a Vermont Heights car on Broadway, south of Fourth, to Seventy-sixth Street. Plenty of salesmen on tract.

Choice Lots at Low Prices

At Rodgers Park you secure the wonderful advantages to be gained from the time, money and brains used in laying out this, the cream of southwest subdivisions. A lot here cannot help but spell satisfaction and future profits in the way of increased value. See them, terms are as liberal as on our houses.

ANGELES MESA

Prices Advance on May 1st

An advance in price of Angeles Mesa lots is absolutely imperative. No subdivision in or near Los Angeles is offering such splendid values for the money. No subdivision presents so many residential advantages—not even the highest priced residence sections of Los Angeles. Nearly one thousand people visited Angeles Mesa last Sunday. What other subdivision is attracting so much attention?

The reasons behind Angeles Mesa's prosperity are as follows:

1. Absurdly low prices, adjoining raw acreage actually being held at higher prices than our handsomely improved property.
2. Magnificent elevation—highest and most picturesque in the city.
3. Finest view of mountains, valley and city obtainable in any section of Los Angeles.
4. Tremendous amount of value-giving public and private improvements in and adjacent to Angeles Mesa, including schools, colleges and important public development projects.
5. Wonderful increase in property values at Angeles Mesa during the past year.
6. Remarkable building development. Lots in Angeles Mesa Subdivision No. 4 may be bought now at $600 to $750—for inside sites. Terms, 10% cash and $10 a month—10% discount on first two lots sold in each block—5% on next two sold in each block—5% discount for all cash—10% discount for first two houses built in each block. Paved auto road is now completed and open to Angeles Mesa, via Vermont and Slauson. Car fare to Fifty-fourth street and Mesa Drive (via Hawthorne car line) reduced to five cents. Extension of Grand avenue 48th street line via Second avenue to Mesa Drive is also now opened, with five-cent fare. Take Hawthorne car on Spring street, or 48th street car marked "Mesa Drive" on Broadway.

BIG CAMPAIGN ON FOR NEW TOWN.

ADVANTAGES OF TORRANCE TO BE HERALDED AFAR.

Dominguez Land Company to Advertise Latest Industrial Center to All Portions of Country—Big Plants Now Being Contracted for by Manufacturers.

H. H. Sinclair, general manager of the Dominguez Land Company, which is building the new town at Torrance, has begun one of the most important campaigns for expansion of the industrial system of Southern California that has ever been undertaken.

The first step has been the mailing to every important manufacturing concern in the United States of maps of the new city together with a summary of the advantages to be gained by locating plants in Southern California near Los Angeles Harbor.

The letters also give a short sketch of the plants of the new city, together with a history of the growth of Los Angeles Harbor and of the city, as well as complete data in regard to freight and water transportation which will be furnished those wishing to locate near Pacific tidewater.

Following the letters already sent out it is the intention of the company to send out industrial agents, fully armed with data covering Southern California industries, who will work with the Chamber of Commerce and the transportation companies for the closing of contracts with big companies desiring to enter the western manufacturing field.

The plants already contracted for at Dominguez include new $750,000 shops of the Pacific Electric which will employ 1400 men, the $400,000 shops of the Union Tool Company with 800 men, the $100,000 plant of the Pacific Metal Products Company with 100 men, a $500,000 automobile truck factory with several hundred men and a traction plow factory of the Union Tool Company which will cost $60,000.

Already the steel framework of the Pacific Metal Products building is nearing completion, and as the Pacific Electric is rushing the work on the building of the industrial trackage in the new district the completion of the main plant of the Union Tool Company is assured before January 1.

At the same time plans for a steel and concrete, tile-roofed electric railway station at Torrance are being rushed to completion, while the grading for the 2,000,000 square feet of street paving to be put in at once has been going on.

At the present time camps for 500 laborers have been established at the new town and work is being carried on as rapidly as materials can be put on the ground.

It was announced at the offices of the company yesterday that as soon as the natural gas pipe line of the Midway Gas Company is completed from the north natural gas will be put in at Torrance not only for lighting and heating but for use in the furnaces of the great factories that are springing up.

A force of architects in the employ of the company is also rushing the plans for $1,000,000 worth of homes for the factory employees in the new city. These homes will be of the highest type, and Sinclair has made a personal tour of the Coast to familiarize himself with the various types of bungalows and chalets which have been constructed in the various cities.

TO PLANT LARGE AREA.

Hundreds of acres of the Rancho La Puente are being prepared for tomatoes, a product which attains perfection in the San Gabriel Valley. One packing firm has leased several hundred acres, on which will be grown this vegetable. Sweet corn will also be raised in large quantities. The water system at the rancho is now completed, according to Sterling W. Banks, manager of the land department of Purcell, Gray & Gale, subdividers of Rancho La Puente. Mr. Banks reports the following sales in this tract for the week: Charles Darwin, ten acres, $5000; William Anderson, five acres, $2750; Albert C. Williamson, five acres, $3000, and Charles P. Williamson, five acres, $2000.

LEASE ENTIRE BUILDING.

The Birnbaum Investment Company, reports the leasing of the entire three-story building at Nos. 416, 416½ and 418 South Spring street to the L. M. Holman Cafeteria Company for Boaz Duncan, for a term of years at a total rental of $40,000. The lessees will immediately re-model the entire building, making the two stores and stairway into one large store room, using practically the entire ground floor and second story for a cafeter Shrewd Men are Making Money at San Pedro. Why Not You?

Here is Your One Best Opportunity

LOTS at Los Angeles Harbor

There never was a better time to invest at San Pedro than TODAY—right NOW, while all the newspapers of the land are devoting column after column of publicity to this wonderful locality. Capital is interested because big men know that great things are bound to happen when the ships of the world come here through the completed Panama Canal. Big projects are under way, and the man who FORESEES the tremendous increases in prices that are sure to come, and ACTS NOW, will surely thank himself some day.

GRAND VIEW Lots are in the center of gigantic commercial possibilities. Yet the high commanding location of this property assures you of clean, pure atmosphere, ABOVE all the noise and smoke of coming commerce. On every side is a view simply entrancing. From GRAND VIEW you can see the whole harbor, including the breakwater to the Inner Harbor, and the entire horizon all the way around to Long Beach. The prices, however, are still within easy reach:

Lots $500 Corners $700

$50 Down; $15 per Month

YOU KNOW that big advances are sure to come soon. One or more of these lots may prove the best investment of your lifetime. The opportunity is here now—NOT to buy undesirable, raw land, but to secure lots beautifully situated, with improvements consisting of oiled streets, curbs, electricity, ornamental shade trees, artistic corner posts—with water piped to every lot. Grand View is only half a dozen blocks from the new center of business activity.

A little money invested in Grand View today will work for you right alongside of dollars invested by the capitalists. You know WHAT THAT MEANS! All we ask is that you investigate. Let this property stand on its own merits. It costs nothing to get the details at our office. You owe it to yourself NOT to hesitate when a "Main Chance" like this comes your way.

GERMANY'S FAST GROWING FLEET MENACES THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

Kaiser Wilhelm Would Like to Challenge the Right of Uncle Sam to Shut the Fatherland Out of South and Central America—Excited Papers Call Upon Foreign Office to Assert Its Rights to Do as It Pleases.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, April 16.—"If Germany's fleet were big enough and Uncle Sam's small enough, the Monroe doctrine would be challenged tomorrow," said a well-informed German, who lately retired from official life, to the writer a few days ago.

Germany does not want South American territory, despite the columns upon columns that have been written about the Kaiser's ambitions in that part of the world. But what she does want and undoubtedly would demand if her navy were strong enough to back up her bluff, is the right to deal directly and freely with the South American States with which she may quarrel, without interference by Uncle Sam. Germany does not object to the construction of the Monroe doctrine which denies the right of European colonization, but she bitterly resents the implied and newly-developed doctrine that no European state can do anything anywhere in South or Central America without Washington's permission. And as her commercial interests and her immigration into that part of the world increase, the chances of her openly challenging the Monroe doctrine increase also.

For months past the Pan-German press has been nagging helpless Willhelmstrasse to exact retribution for the murder by Mexicans at Cavadonga, near Puebla, of Frau Boer, her husband, and two other Germans, all of whom were last summer hacked to bits with machetes. After months of vain protest the assassins were thrown into jail at Puebla. In March they were allowed to escape by a tunnel. The newspapers ridicule the pusillanimity of the German Minister at Mexico and the "Berliner Zeitung" puts the German case against the Monroe doctrine in these notable words:

"It is regrettable that the German government has done nothing to exact vengeance for the bloody deed of Cavadonga. The objection that to send German ships to Mexico would violate the Monroe doctrine is absurd. In any case the United States are not masters and possessors of the whole western continent and when in an anarchical American State, German citizens are butchered to pieces by a murderous mob, the German Empire has the right to demand satisfaction without first asking the permission of Uncle Sam."

AFRAID OF SUSPICION.

That is the secret attitude of Willhelmstrasse and of Kaiser Wilhelm. In Wilhelmstrasse, like all the European chancelleries, is mortally afraid of rousing suspicion at Washington on any score of the Monroe doctrine. It is known, however, that Washington would rather give Europe a free hand to chastise unruly Latin-American states, so that she should take responsibility for their unruliness, apply the "Big Stick" policy, in fact, and see that her subjects and interests are protected. "The present system," says Herr Jenach, for example, "is that Washington gets all the profit but Europe bears the responsibility. It cannot last much longer."

While it cannot be said that Germany is directly aiming at the United States and the Monroe doctrine, in its naval programme, yet the astonishing growth of the German navy has something to do with it.

FRANTIC ABOUT IT.

Germany is frantically building ships and would be building them still more frantically had she got the money. The obstacle is that eleven Reichstag parties, though nearly all standing for a strong navy, all want to put the financial burden on someone else. That is why it is harder to get money for armaments in the Reich than to get $100,000,000 in England.

At present, with the active support of all patriots but the dread of the tax-payers, the Imperial government is preparing a new navy law, and, if it can provide, it is expected, for three Dreadnoughts, and for the early commission of all eight ships of the First Reserve Squadron. Moreover, there are to be two new ships for the already gigantic fleet and hundreds of naval and military experts are writing articles to show that these increases are not enough.

This is mainly the fruit of the Franco-German quarrel over Morocco. It has set Germans in a fiercer heat than they have known during recent history. While the misguided British government has the delusion that the Haldane mission in Berlin will prove the path to peace, many Germans believe that the two nations are hurtling headlong into war, and while the simple-minded British government, despite its rosy assurements, is not an inch more ready, or in any more simple as to negotiations, the whole German people is being "educated" into the belief that war is in sight. During the last few weeks that have elapsed since the olive-branch-bringing Haldane left Berlin, nearly twenty books and pamphlets have issued from the press, all more or less warning Germans that their only logic for future arguments with England is to arm, to arm more, and still to arm. The booksellers' windows burn with vari-colored brochures entitled "Germany Wake Up!" "Peace or War With England!" "The German Luxury-Fleet!" and "The Inevitable War!"

QUARREL WITH ENGLAND.

The German quarrel with England is purely one of rivalry and competitive strength and it can be expressed far better in a table of navies than in a hundred historical treatises. The cause of the quarrel is that England, twelve years ago, had a fleet six times stronger than Germany and that she has now a fleet only twice as strong and fears that twelve years hence she may not, despite assurances and patriotic efforts, have a fleet equally strong. Leaving out obsolete or semi-obsolete warships, the relation of German and British navies is today as follows:

	Eng.	Ger.
Battleships ready	58	29
Armored cruisers	39	11
Of these dreadnoughts	16	9
Battleships building	11	9
Armored cruisers	5	3
Of these dreadnoughts	16	12
Battleships total	69	38
Armored cruisers	44	14
Of these dreadnoughts	32	21

Germany is today the second naval power in the world, stronger, if only "Dreadnoughts" be considered and the older types of battleships and armoured cruisers be left out of account, than even the United States. She has reached this threatening position almost automatically; partly owing to the decay of the French navy and to the extirpation of the Russian. Her own statesmen did not expect it. In 1903, when the Socialist Reichstag member, Bebel, complained that German officers were preaching that the fleet must be big enough to destroy England, Prince Buelow retorted:

"On the face of it that is fantastic . . . How fantastic it is may be judged from the fact that even after the completion of our present plans, the Germany navy will be only fifth or fourth of the navies of the world."

THE PROGRAMME.

The "present plans," i.e., the Navy Law programme, have not yet been completed, yet Germany has already caught up France, Russia and America. All that happened in nine short years. And when she now declares that she has not the least intention of rivaling England, naturally England does not feel safe as to what may be the fact nine years hence.

The growth of the German navy is splendid evidence that a nation, which sets resolutely to work can effect most things. Hard work, individual talents, and assiduous organization have made the German navy what it is. The greatest of the individuals is Admiral Alfred von Tirpitz. By virtue of what he has accomplished Tirpitz has had more influence on modern European history than all the chancellors, ministerial presidents, and foreign secretaries of the six great powers put together. Chancellors, and ministers come and go, but Tirpitz, the indispensable man, goes on for ever. He is a 63-year-old sailor hailing from Kuestrin, the once famous fortress town; he has been everything in the navy from cadet to commander of the East Asiatic squadron and now, for fifteen years, he has been Minister of Marine. He is a "grand admiral," and was ennobled by Kaiser Wilhelm; but these are the only ornamental things about him; for he is a quiet, serious man who does not advertise but prefers secretly to run the whole Imperial policy. Tirpitz was mainly responsible for the recent downfall of the Secretary of the Treasury, Wermuth, who had the cheek to say "No ships till we get the money," whereas Tirpitz retorted: "Give me the ships and beg, borrow, or steal the money where you like." Tirpitz does not believe in good relations with England; he believes that the only way to attain good relations is to build good ships. When necessary he does not hesitate to fight the Anglophile tendencies of Kaiser Wilhelm and usually intolerant Kaiser Wilhelm puts up with it, which shows Kaiser Wilhelm's good sense.

NAVY LEAGUE.

The second factor responsible for the German navy is the Navy League. "The Navy League," as said Prince Henry of Prussia, "is Germany's schoolmaster." Thirty years ago Germans did not want a fleet. They had hardly recovered from the abortive attempt to create one in 1848, or from Lord Palmerston's threat that "a German warship on the high seas would be treated as a pirate." The progressive classes were Pacifist and "Little German," while the conservative classes were Prussian, particularist and Agrarian; they relied on the army, and regarded fleets, colonies and world-policy as shopkeepers' perilous inventions. The Navy League changed that. The league was started in 1898 under the presidency of Prince Wilhelm zu Wied, with Prince Henry of Prussia as protector. Today it numbers 1,100,000 members; has hundreds of branches, and publishes a journal with 500,000 subscribers. The league is locally organized in the shape of State or provincial committees, which usually have high officials at the top. The top of all is Grand-Admiral von Koester, a son of Hans Koester, the patriotic dramatist and poet, who sat as member of the first German Reichstag. Koester is an indefatigable propagandist, who follows the Tirpitz line that nothing but an irresistible fleet will keep Germans on good relations with other powers.

Another educative organization almost as important is the "All-Deutscher Verband"—the Pan-German League. The Pan-German League exists for the general purposes of policy and armaments, and in particular for advancing "Weltpolitik." Like the Navy League it is an offshoot of Anglo-German rivalry; for it was founded after the 1891 Zanzibar treaty with England to prevent further such sacrifices of German interests. The league has 400 provincial groups. It aims at keeping up Teutonic national feeling in Austria, Switzerland and Russia and desires to see the German race solidified by a customs union with Austria, into which Switzerland, Holland and Belgium might later enter.

The Pan-German League is backed by numerous minor associations which "educate" the German people in a patriotic and anti-British sense and it is backed better still by the "Kriegervereine" or "warriors' unions" of time-expired soldiers, which now count 2,500,000 adherents, all pledged to stand for Kaiser, empire and militarism against the disruptive Pacifism of social-Democracy.

FREDERICK WESTON.

Grand Admiral Koester,

President of the Navy League of Germany. The league has been called "Germany's schoolmaster" by the Kaiser's brother, Prince Henry, and has more than a million members.

Grand Admiral Alfred Von Tirritz,

Kaiser Wilhelm's Secretary of the Navy. He is responsible in a large measure for Germany's extraordinary naval growth of the past decade. He is more powerful than chancellors and ministers and does not hesitate to oppose heady Wilhelm II when necessary.

Coalinga.

SHALLOW FIELD ATTRACTS MANY.

FOUR CONCERNS MAKE PROFIT AT LOW COST.

Territory Once Pronounced Barren of Oil Now Yields Valuable Product from Twelve Three-hundred-foot Wells—British California Company Lands Casing at Great Depth.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

COALINGA, April 27.—Interest is centering in what is called the "shallow territory," on section 2, 21-14. Four companies are now operating on this section, namely: Berkeley-Coalinga, Spokane-Coalinga, Washington-Coalinga and the White Creek Company.

During the early history of the field this ground was prospected and finally given up as barren. A seepage, however, led to the belief that oil bearing sands existed and several companies were organized to test the theory.

Now there are twelve wells on the section, with an average depth of 300 feet. These wells are all flowing at an average of fifty barrels a day. The oil is 19 gravity and contains about 5 per cent. lubricant, considered the very best in the State. On account of the shallow depth the cost of drilling wells in this territory is about $2000 a well, a fact which is considered with favor by oil men.

LANDS LONG STRING.

One of the most difficult casing jobs in the history of this field was completed this week when the British California Company, section 16, 20-15, landed its special 6¼-inch 28-pound casing at a depth of 4206 feet in a sticky blue shale formation and then cemented off.

Last September the string was dropped. Some time was spent attempting to screw on and fish out the casing, which had parted in several places. It was found necessary to sidetrack 1013 feet of the casing. Previous to this mishap a deal of trouble was experienced in trying to put in an 8¼-inch casing, the hole for which was drilled originally with a rotary.

The management says the well will be finished within a few weeks as indications are that the oil sand lies within fifty feet of where the 6¼-inch casing was landed. Work will be resumed about May 15.

Prince Adalbert of Prussia,

Sailor son of the Kaiser. He is a serious young man and is deeply interested in the development of the German navy.

480 ACRES
Of Date Trees

That's what we're aiming for. We own this much land in the Coachella Valley, midway between the two Government experiment stations. We have already planted thousands of date trees, and they're thriving. We have gangs of men at work planting other thousands. We're raising, now, alfalfa, hogs, grapes and grain, and the ranch is a paying proposition. 250 miner's inches of water have been developed.

THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT has found, however, after three years of experimenting, that soil such as that on our ranch is ideally adapted to the growing of the finest varieties of Dates. It has furthermore been discovered that dates will pay over 200 per cent. profit annually. How to plant them, 50 to the acre, and how to rear them to the point where they will produce 200 pounds of fruit, per year, to a tree, are both problems that Uncle Sam has worked out.

Twenty-four thousand Date trees giving that yield will mean a net profit of $500,000 annually.

200% a Certainty, 300% a Probability

In order to complete the developing of the ranch and to do it at once, we offer for sale a limited number of the shares of this company, at $1 each. And the man who invests will have these points assured:

First—He has the word of Uncle Sam for the fact that Date-growing is a wonderfully profitable proposition and a safe one.

Second—He is investing in a property that is yielding enough, right now, to pay 8 per cent. in a year.

Third—He is absolutely and unqualifiedly safe in his investment.

200 PER CENT. PLUS SAFETY. Isn't that worth looking into, right away?

Write, call or phone today for our literature. It means much to all investors.

makes it easy, convenient—and the cost is only 2c a bath.

Invigorating and healthful! Makes a new being of you.

Many startling results have been produced by the use of the Robinson Thermal Bath. It is revolutionizing the treatment of disease. Prominent physicians are abandoning drugs in many cases for this new treatment. Those who have tried them, are astonished at the change in their condition.

Open up the pores and the change seems almost miraculous; nerves are strengthened at once, kidneys get well; eczema, pimples and skin diseases vanish; bad colds, lumbago, rheumatism, dyspepsia, throat and lung troubles; insomnia and constipation disappear as though some wonderful force had lifted them away.

Write today for Free Book, "The Philosophy of Health and Beauty," and learn what Turkish Baths at Home will do for you. Address Robinson Mfg. Co., Robinson Bldg., Toledo, Ohio.

For the Thin and Bloodless!

The thin and bloodless, with pale cheeks, white lips and frail angular physique, of this community, have been much interested in the reports of physicians and others concerning the effectiveness of the treatment for increasing the red and white corpuscles of the blood, thus adding color and weight with its accompanying vigor to the depleted system. A gain of from 10 to 30 pounds is not at all unusual where the treatment is regularly used for several months, while the color improves almost from the beginning. Most good apothecaries supply it in the form of 3-grain hypo-nuclane tablets, put up in sealed packets, with directions for home use. Its action very promptly aids assimilation and absorption of the food eaten.

ANCIENT BEAUTY RULES.

Five Centuries Ago Women Observed Certain Rules for the Enhancement of Their Charms.

[New York Times:] In the course of the annual revision of the catalogue of the Bibliotheque Nationale, Paris, a remarkable ancient manuscript, setting forth rules for feminine beauty, has come to light.

The book, which is Italian and dates from the fifteenth century, has attracted a great deal of attention, not only in learned circles, but also from the sex with which it deals.

One of the most curious passages is an ingenious classification of female charms in groups of three.

"To be beautiful," says the work, "the women must have the following three white things: Skin, hands and teeth; three black things, eyes, eyelashes and eyebrows; three pink things, lips, gums, and nails; three long things, life, hands and hair; three short things, teeth, ears and tongue; three wide things, forehead, shoulders and intelligence, three narrow things, waist, mouth and ankles; three delicate things, fingers, lips and mind; three round things, arm, leg and dowry."

Another interesting find, made in the cellars of the Bibliotheque Nationale, is a lost ballet by Gluck on the theme of "Don Juan."

It is composed in four parts, the first of which deals with the duel between Don Juan and the commander, the second, with Don Juan's fete, the third with the statue of the commander, and the fourth with the descent into hell.

From notes found with the music it appears that the ballet was played in Vienna in 1765 and never repeated. The find has aroused much interest in musical circles, and the music, which is pronounced by those experts who have seen it to take a high place among the master's compositions, will be presented at a special concert at an early date.

SIX SKYSCRAPERS FOR SAN DIEGO.

SOUTHLAND CITY CONSTANTLY FORGING AHEAD.

Buildings for Downtown Sites to Range from Six to Fourteen Stories in Height—Two to Be Occupied by Big Financial Houses of Growing Port.

SAN DIEGO, April 27.—San Diego's wonderful building activity continues, and new projects are constantly being announced. One of these reported is the early erection of a six-story fireproof office and bank building at the northeast corner of Fifth and E streets. The lot is 50x100 feet. A two-story building that has done service for years is to be wrecked for the more modern structure, the ground floor of which, it is stated, will be occupied by the San Diego Savings Bank. The building will be erected for Nathan Watts at a cost of about $300,000.

The present building activity calls for six skyscrapers in the heart of the business district. The largest contemplated will be fourteen stories in height. The site is at the southeast corner of Sixth and D streets and its projectors are Louis J. Wilde, W. E. Gilbert and S. A. Reed. The building will occupy 100x100 feet and will cost approximately $300,000. A trust and banking company, with a $1,000,000 capital, is slated to occupy the ground floor.

Another big building is to be erected at the northeast corner of Seventh and D streets by Edward H. Post, a capitalist of Wilkesbarre, Pa. It will be eight stories and will cover an area of 150x100 feet and cost $500,000. Post also plans to erect at the southwest corner of Eighth and D streets a modern hotel of seven stories on a lot 150x100 feet, to cost $300,000.

Louis J. Wilde and a syndicate are having plans prepared for a twelve-story fireproof building to be erected at the northeast corner of Second and D streets and to cost $300,000.

A contract has been awarded for the erection of a six-story reinforced concrete building, 100x100 feet, at the northeast corner of Sixth and E streets, for Mrs. Amelia Bridges, a member of the Timken Investment Company. The cost will be $150,000. A six-story fireproof building to cost $100,000 will be erected on the west side of Third street between D and E for the Southern Title Guarantee Company. It will be 50x100 feet.

Listed in new building projects not heretofore mentioned are the following: An apartment-house of fifty rooms to be erected at the northeast corner of Seventeenth and D streets, for the Weinberger Building Company, at a cost of $20,000; a three-story apartment-house and store building to be erected for George Ibs at Sixteenth and L streets, to cost $20,000; an eighteen-apartment building of three stories to be erected on Front street between Beech and Cedar, to cost $20,000, for K. J. McRay; a three-story building to contain stores and rooms, and to be erected at the corner of State and E streets, for W. H. Sweeney, at a cost of $20,000.

The Moose Lodge has plans drawn for a three-story clubhouse to be erected on Twelfth street between D and E streets, at a cost of $35,000. The lot was recently purchased for $13,000. L. E. Drysdale of Chicago has bought of W. L. Jaxon a nine-room residence and a lot 50x100 feet on First street between Ash and Beech, for $8500.

WILL SPARE TREES.

A contract was let this week by the National Home and Town Builders for the subdivision of the Gail Borden ranch, and work will begin immediately. The plan is unique. A large portion of the tract is covered with eight-year-old walnut trees, and in the plan of subdivision the streets are so arranged that a row of these trees will be in the parkway between the curb and the sidewalk on every street. A portion of the tract will be cut into acre, half-acre and quarter-acre lots, and the balance into fifty-foot residence lots.

WATER COMPANY FORMED.

It is announced by the Charles F. O'Brien Company that the Whittier Acres Water Company has been organized by the present owners of Whittier Acres. To this company will be conveyed the entire completed irrigation system, including the well on the property, the pumping plant and piping.

VAN NUYS

The Wonderful Year-Old Town That Was Sarted Right

The many investment and home-building offers now on the market present a bewildering array.

Let us help you solve the problem of selection in the easiest, safest way.

Let us take you out to the new town of Van Nuys, the year-old metropolis of the San Fernando Valley.

Where millions are being spent.

Where railroads are being constructed.

Where hundreds of homes have been built and scores are under construction.

Where business blocks are being erected.

Where a First National Bank was opened March 30th, 1912, with a paid-up corporate stock of $50,000, surplus $5,000 and over $70,000 deposited the first 48 hours.

Where bids were opened on April the 26th, 1912, for a $50,000 school building.

Where a Telephone Exchange opens May 1st, 1912.

Where $7,000 has been subscribed toward a $10,000 Church.

Where a Passenger Depot for the Southern Pacific costing $10,000 has been erected.

Where a Union Electric Depot costing over $5,000 will soon be commenced.

Where a complete water system has been installed.

Where a thriving Newspaper is published.

Where a good Hotel is being conducted in a first-class manner.

Where you will find one of the finest Garages in the State.

Where four miles of streets have already been macadamized and miles of cement sidewalks and curbing built.

Where over 18 miles of streets have been graded and planted to ornamental trees.

YOU OWE IT TO YOURSELF to see Sherman Way—the $500,000 Boulevard, which runs through the center of Van Nuys.

Go out and see the immense sugar-beet fields of the American Beet Sugar Co. See the thousands of acres being planted to orchards and vegetables; where hundreds of men are being employed and hundreds more wanted.

These are but a few incidental factors that not only contribute but assure the stability of Van Nuys as one of the coming cities of Southern California. And when you have seen it and all these other things, you will do as others are doing, you will buy at Van Nuys—You will build at Van Nuys—You will live at Van Nuys; because it has the best soil, the finest climate, good water and the grandest scenery in California, and is just the right distance from Los Angeles. See for yourself and be convinced.

We are making one of the most liberal and attractive propositions ever offered to the homeseeker and investor.

Our 2-acre, 10-lot subdivisions in the heart of beautiful Van Nuys, on our liberal payment system, enable the person of limited means to make the maximum profit.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

FRANKFORT, April 10.—Europe is losing her last thin figments of chivalry. No more do brave cavaliers carry swords and pink their friends over disputes about the weather; no more do they dance the stately minuet, or kiss the ladies' hands. And now the duel is doomed.

The church, the state and, worst of all, the humorists are against it. Parliamentary parties are clamoring for more punitive laws against it, learned jurists, whose own faces are scarred from students' Mensur fights, are devising substitutes for it, and M. Lagasse, an erudite swashbuckler, who has fought six duels and written seven books about duelling, says that French duellists by failing to kill one another have ignominiously killed the duel.

The duel is perishing because it has grown common and fraudulent. Only in Germany it is taken seriously. There duels are rare, but when they happen someone gets killed. The survivor is sent to a fortress, and the corpse's mother's uncle raises the question in the Reichstag. In France nobody raises the question in the Chamber because nobody gets hurt.

And now comes George Dubois, a well-known Paris maitre d'armes, to explain the reason why. Because practically all French duels, says M. Dubois, are fakes in which honor gets a maximum of satisfaction with a minimum of risk.

The fake duel is ancient, and played a role in literature long before the French transferred it to life. Some one has described the bulletless duel between the poet "Little" (Tom Moore) and the critic Jeffreys at Chalk Farm in London, in 1806:

"When Little's leadless pistol met his foe, and Bow-street myrmidons stood laughing by."

BLOODLESS DUEL COMMON.

Dubois's revelations are enshrined in a book called "A Duelville." He says that most French duels are like Tom Moore's. The average French duel costs from $150 to $250. This includes the lessons which the combatants take beforehand, in ignorance of the fact that their seconds have arranged that no blood shall be shed. Dubois says that among French "men of honor" there is a tacit understanding to act as seconds only if a duel is to be faked. They do this because they dislike blood, because the adversaries are their friends, and because death or serious injury may bring down penal servitude. The seconds usually do not know that their seconds have made this agreement, and they imagine they are fighting furiously.

In the arrangement of the bloodless duel there is a whole array of mummery, practice and etiquette. The seconds ignore the old rule that the challenged shall choose weapons. If the combatant is a good swordsman, the seconds choose pistols.

In different wars the pistols are made harmless. The pistols are loaded either without any bullets, of with friable bullets, made of a special composition which looks like deadly lead. The mere shock of firing transforms the bullet into harmless powder; no one is hurt and honor is satisfied.

M. Scholé, who backs up Dubois's statements, says that sometimes the bullet is made of gunpowder paste, painted with lead. When the powder charge behind it is fired it also undergoes combustion, and only smoke, flame and gases issue from the pistol's muzzle.

TRICKS OFTEN USED.

Sometimes the seconds do use bullets, but they load the pistols so as to make them harmless. The seconds agree that the loading shall be done by the most "expert" among them, declaring demonstratively that they have confidence in him.

The "expert" second is one who has officiated at past duels and saved the lives of many foolish hotheads. He either puts in too much powder and rams it down too hard or he puts in too little and does not ram it down at all. The first method may cause injury to a looker-on, but it saves the duellists. In the other case the bullet barely covers the twenty or thirty paces measured and makes a gentle, caressing tap upon the hero's courageous breast.

As this method is not infallible, the average second prefers no bullets at all. He drops the lead into his waistcoat pocket, looks desperately in earnest and says in a stage whisper to his own side, "don't aim at his heart." An explosion follows, the duellists look pale but undaunted and honor is again satisfied.

That is the French duel. It survives in quantity only because it has lost in quality. In Germany the quality of the duel is all right, but the quantity is sadly falling off.

In 1911 only fifteen German duels were fought, but two duellists were killed and four badly wounded. That is 40 per cent. of casualties, as against the estimated French 1½ per cent. In Germany the students' Mensur sword fights are as prevalent as ever, but these are prearranged trials of courage and skill and are not duels.

COURTS OF HONOR.

The old genuine student duels are now replaced by semi-judicial courts of honor. Like the duel, which arose out of trial by ordeal, the court of honor is a German invention and had its origin in the "Judicia heroica" which formerly settled affairs of honor between Teutonic nobles. The aim of starting courts of honor for civilians has made progress without waiting for legal sanction. Darmstadt, Hanover and Munich already have such courts, which try some amusing cases. They have prevented the sanguinary slaughter of men who have brushed against each other's elbows, stolen kisses from other men's womenfolk, or rubbed other men's silk hats the wrong way.

At some universities the courts of honor oppose the Mensur fights and the Kaiser's fourth son, Oscar, three years ago made a stir at Bonn by backing the students' court of honor as against the duellists. Oscar also made a stand against excessive beer drinking and thereby gained the reputation of being a foe to all kindly human weaknesses. This reputation sticks to him today.

The German law is more lenient to a duellist than the French. It never inflicts dishonoring punishments.

"Simple duels—that is, duels fought with seconds—are punished by fortress imprisonment from three months to five years. Serious injury does not increase the punishment, but for killing a man the minimum punishment is three years in a fortress.

The "serious" class of duels are those fought without seconds. For them the imprisonment term is lengthened by half. In Germany the ordinary criminal law applies to duels only where killing or wounding results from a breach of fair play.

Austria's anti-duel law is severer, and punishes with ordinary imprisonment up to twenty years. Just now Germany is running a strong agitation to follow the Austrian model.

ANTI-DUELLISTS ACTIVE.

The Radicals and Social-Democrats in the new Reichstag have agreed to back up the petition of the Anti-Duel League asking for new legislation. The main demand is that the Reichstag shall follow the example of Austria, Italy and Spain, and create courts of honor for citizens of all classes.

Another demand is to increase the penalty for offenses against honor and reputation. In Germany a man who accuses another falsely of serious misdeeds gets off with a fine of a few hundred dollars, whereas in England he would if rich pay damages amounting to tens of thousands. The Anti-Duel League wants the Reichstag to legalize fining in proportion to wealth.

The pro-duel party laments that even the military duel is half extinct. In Austria in 1910 there were only five military duels, in Italy five, in Spain two and in Germany three.

The decline is taking place despite the law and the tradition which practically encourage, and even enforce, officers' duels. No officer dare refuse a challenge or neglect to challenge an insulter. Even the anti-duellites admit this.

Don Alfonso of Bourbon and Austria-Este, who is president of an anti-duel society, lately defended an officer who, despite his own conviction, allowed himself to be forced into a duel. German officer-duellists are court-martialed, and the Kaiser in January, 1897, issued a Cabinet order against duelling, but these measures are fictions.

Shortly after the Cabinet order, Minister of War von Gossler explained to the Reichstag that killing in a duel is not murder, and added that duelling has its foundation in justice and in the church. Before being accepted by a regiment a German officer aspirant is cross-examined as to his soundness on the duelling question and if he holds the opinion of Prince Oscar of Prussia no regiment will receive him.

MILITARY DUEL DECLINE.

But this does not prevent the decline of the military duel. The army also has courts of honor for all classes of officers and Kaiser Wilhelm, himself, nominates the members of the court for generals. Every challenge to a duel, or possible cause of a duel, first comes before these courts. The courts are expected to arrange a reconciliation if that is possible. If the injury is one which cannot be forgotten, the court orders a duel. It is obliged at the same time to explain to the adversaries that duelling is legally punishable. Members of the court must attend the duel and act as judges.

In practice, military courts of honor often order "needless" duels. A lieutenant named Blaskowitz was called out and killed for a slight offense committed when drunk. The Kaiser dismissed the members of the court of honor from the army for wrongly deciding that the case required a duel. This did not prevent a Landwehr lieutenant from being dismissed from the army for not challenging a brother officer who insulted him.

The Reichstag keeps up a special agitation against military duelling. The Center and Radicals lately demanded that every duellist should leave the army. They held up as a model for imitation the means by which England abolished army duels. That was forty-eight years ago, when Prince Consort Albert declared that to render an apology is not beneath an officer's dignity. Thereupon, British officers themselves formed an anti-duelling league. But what better helped to kill British duelling was probably the fact that the last English duellist who killed his man was sentenced to be hanged.

MANY OPPOSE DUELS.

Europe has now everywhere anti-duel leagues. After Prince Alphonse of Bourbon, a brother of Don Carlos, started the first, Germany soon joined the movement, and within a few months leagues sprang up in Hungary, Italy, Belgium, Spain and Portugal.

Since 1908, the anti-duel societies have held international congresses. An enthusiast named Jantez, who played an important part in the first anti-duel congress, fell two years later by the pistol of a man who trod on his toe. The German-Austrian League publishes a magazine called "Ehrenschutz," or "Protection of Honor."

Continental churches are all at present fighting the duel. The proposal is made that evangelical clergy shall refuse to perform the funeral service over duellists. The Greek church already anathematizes the duel and Pope Pius X threatens all participants, including even doctors, with excommunication and with the refusal of a Christian burial.

Fourth son of the Kaiser, whose opposition to dueling and excessive beer drinking has earned him the reputation of being the foe of all kindly human weaknesses.

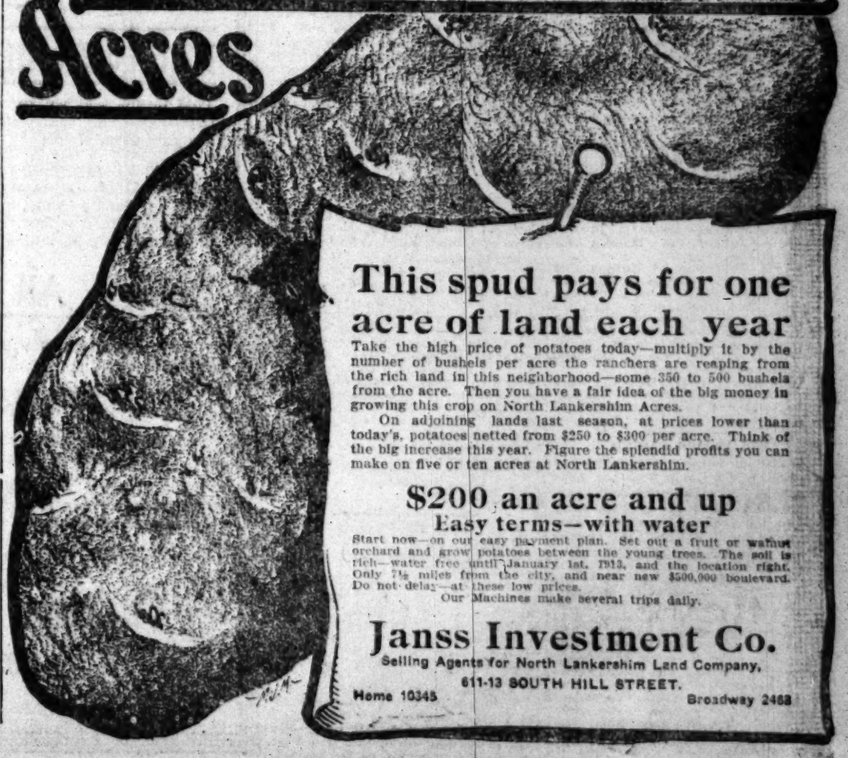
North Lankershim Acres



This spud pays for one acre of land each year

Take the high price of potatoes today—multiply it by the number of bushels per acre the ranchers are reaping from the rich land in this neighborhood—some 350 to 500 bushels from the acre. Then you have a fair idea of the big money in growing this crop on North Lankershim Acres.

On adjoining lands last season, at prices lower than today's, potatoes netted from $250 to $300 per acre. Think of the big increase this year. Figure the splendid profits you can make on five or ten acres at North Lankershim.

MEXICO PLANS NEW RAILWAYS.

Tampico Line Will Open Good Deep-water Port.

National Railroads to Open Several Branch Roads.

Revolution Does Not Affect Building Activity.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

TAMPICO (Mex.) April 22.—An engineering force, headed by E. B. Gaither, is setting stakes for the grading contractor who will begin in a few days the construction of the new line of the National Railways of Mexico that is to run from Altamira, a station on the Tampico-Monterey division, sixteen miles from here, to Matamoros, opposite Brownsville, Tex., a distance of approximately 200 miles.

Material for the proposed road is arriving at Tampico in large quantities and it is announced that the construction work will be pushed forward rapidly.

One of the results that will come from the new road will be the opening of a new deep-water port near the mouth of the Soto la Marina. With the building of railroads and the development of other ports, the old harbor and landing became almost forgotten.

The Soto la Marina River is a wide and deep stream and is navigable for ocean-going vessels for a distance of more than fifty miles from its mouth. By the construction of jetties and dredging of the bar at the mouth of the river an ideal harbor can be obtained, according to the report of government engineers.

The new railway will also open for settlement a broad scope of territory, which is known to be of great virgin richness in soil and other resources.

One of the interesting construction features of the new lines will be the building of a bridge across the Panuco River, near Tampico. This structure will be one of the largest railroad bridges in Mexico. The new line will bring Tampico in much closer touch with the United States than it is now.

It is authoritatively announced at Alpine, Tex., that construction of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient from Granada, Tex., to Alpine, will be resumed as soon as receivers' certificates for the purpose have been issued. About 125 miles of track remains to be laid to finish the road to Alpine, where connection will be made with the transcontinental line of the Southern Pacific.

A considerable part of the grade on this stretch of road is finished. The outfits of the grading contractors are still on the ground and will again be put to work as soon as the order is given.

The road will be completed into Alpine some time this fall, it is stated. It is reported that receivers' certificates will also be issued to finish the branch line of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient that was under construction from San Angelo south to Del Rio at the time the financial difficulties of the property arose.

Much of the grade of this branch road is also finished. It will be about 125 miles long and will also connect with the Southern Pacific.

It is considered important that the latter stretch of road be finished as soon as possible as the National Railways of Mexico is preparing to construct a branch line from Allende, Mex., to Las Vacas, opposite Del Rio.

The two roads will be connected by means of a bridge that will be built by them jointly across the Rio Grande. By means of the branch line the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient will obtain a direct outlet to Mexico.

The revolutionary disturbances that are seriously affecting industrial and business conditions in different parts of the country have caused no interruption of the construction of the railroad which the National Railways of Mexico is building between Durango and the station of Canitas, on the Mexican Central division of the government-owned system.

It is announced that about fifty miles of grade of the new line are finished and track-laying will soon be started. The road will be about 225 miles long and will give the city of Durango a much shorter route to the capital and the more remote parts of the country than it now has via Torreon.

Besides the importance to a broad scope of territory that will come from obtaining a direct outlet to the interior the new road will serve to open for development rich mining districts and extensive tracts of agricultural land.

BRICK BLOCK SOLD.

STORE SITE IN NEW HANDS.

AZUSA, April 27.—W. P. Barnes reports the sale for Clifton J. Platt of Pasadena, of a fifty-foot lot and the brick building now occupied by the I. D. Roach and Company's dry-goods store, to Charles E. Gidley of El Monte. The property is on Azusa avenue, between Ninth and Center streets. The consideration was $10,000. The sale of two lots on Azusa avenue, between Ninth and Tenth streets, for Mrs. Chester R. Plye of Pasadena to John A. Hanson for $1650 is also reported.

W. A. Spaulding of Kansas City has bought from George G. Matthews twenty-two acres at the corner of Ben Lomond and Gladstone avenues, set out to young Valencia orange trees. The consideration was $40,000. Spaulding is a brother-in-law of W. R. Powell, and buys for his son, who will live on the property.

Contractor Charles W. Crawford has just begun the erection of a six-room for David Davies, on Soltaol hr room bungalow for David Davies on BIG PUMPS SHIPED.

A new 125-horse-power engine and a large turbine pump have just been shipped to Perris Valley by Emil Firth. These are to be used in drawing water for the irrigation of the extensive alfalfa and orchard lands in Orange Vista. The engine, which was designed and built by the Commercial Engine Company of Los Angeles, is of the "tandem" type, operated by distillate. It furnishes power for a four-stage, high duty turbine pump, which was designed and built especially by the Jackson-Church Pump Works of this city. The wells are bored to a depth of 190 to 210 feet. The plant is estimated to irrigate 900 acres. The project embraces a plan for the ownership of the plant and use of the water by the farmers. To this end, the Perris Valley Irrigation Company has been incorporated, and one share of stock is issued with each acre of land sold at Orange Vista and Perris Irrigated farms.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

After May 1 The Times Business Office, Advertising and Subscription Departments and Information Bureau will be located at 617-619 South Spring street, one block south of the present quarters.

The removal will be accomplished without interruption to business and, we trust, without inconvenience to our patrons.

THE TIMES-MIRROR CO.

ADD TO KENILWORTH TRACT.

The Edwards & Wildey Co. reports the purchase from Pasquale Ghiglia, of eleven acres in Glendale, fronting on Sycamore avenue, and lying between the original Kenilworth tract and the second addition of that subdivision. The property is beautifully situated, with magnificent views in every direction, and is partially improved with orchards and vineyard. The price paid was $20,000. The consummation of this purchase by Edwards & Wildey Co. represents the last and final addition to Kenilworth, which will now consist of some eighty acres in one solid body of land, divided into 400 lots, all protected by identical restrictions. The Kenilworth Tract now represents an investment of almost $200,000, the eighty acres of land costing $126,050, and the street improvements, water supply, etc., $68,412, making a total of $194,462.

HOTEL IN NEW HANDS.

E. W. Cason & Co., Associated Hotel Brokers, report the leasing of the Hotel Netherlands on West Seventh street, near Garland, to T. W. Reimers, formerly owner and proprietor of the Richmond apartments. The lease is for a period of five years and represents a total rental of $20,000. The Netherlands contains about forty rooms. Reimers is refurnishing the house throughout with a high grade of furniture and has leased his cafe for a period of years to A. Pommers.

BEACHWOOD SALES.

The Albert H. Beach Company reports Beachwood sales as follows: Virginia Starner, two lots, $1600; L. De Los, two lots, $550; S. A. Kenneth, two lots, $1000; George A. Fair, two lots, $1400; and one lot each to W. Lowrey, $350; G. G. Allen, $1000; Dennis Kelly, $275; J. E. Towers, $1500; John Kennedy, $600; William J. Kennedy, $325; Margaret Fitzgerald, $600; C. R. Stover, $600; Josephine Walker, $325; M. Neitzel, $650; and T. F. Manthey, $900.

AT ATHENS-ON-THE-HILL.

Watkins & Belton report the sale of four lots in Athens-On-The-Hill to R. H. Mouser and P. J. MacDonald. These lots are situated just west of the harbor boulevard on Argos street, and are each 50x182 feet to a 20-foot alley. The buyers expect to erect four modern bungalows which will cost approximately $10,000. Construction upon these will start as soon as plans and specifications can be completed.

ANGELENO BUYS RANCH.

PLACE WELL IMPROVED.

CORONA, April 17.—The 160-acre ranch known as the Ben White ranch, at the southern end of Main street, in this place, was sold yesterday to J. Cotton of Los Angeles, for a consideration of $110,000. Sixty acres of the tract is in oranges and lemons and the rest in grain.

On the place are a fine residence and two smaller dwellings. Three reservoirs supply the necessary water.

A Suffragette Cook.

[Newark News:] In a wealthy home in Forest Hill is a cook who announces dinner as follows, shouting up the front stairs:

"If any of you people want any food you'd better come down." ? -

After a minute, if no one responds, Bridget addresses her employers again thus:

"What's the matter with you up there? Do you want your dinner to get cold, after all the trouble I've had to fix it hot for you? Say!"

Sometimes the members of the family are slow in descending, even after this appalling warning, in which case they are likely to hear the cook's voice rising to them in such language as this:

"If you people fool around up there much longer you won't find any dinner when you come down, because I'm going to clear it off. You've got to eat on time if you want me to cook for you. Everything is stone cold. Do you hear?"

Pious Man's Whimsical Thought.

[Newark News:] A Newark gentleman, who for sixty years had led a righteous and noble life, was suddenly stricken with pneumonia. For two weeks he lay between life and death, caring not to live, fearing not to die, his conscious moments filled with the whimsical thought, "What a poor time this would be to make my peace with God!" He believes that the satisfaction of having attended to the matter beforehand helped him to get well.

Siam's Guard of Amazons.

[London Globe:] Siam is one of the few countries which boast of a corps of women police. The members of this Amazon guard are all old and ugly. They wear a uniform though they are not armed. Their chief duty is to act as gatekeepers of the Inner or women's palace at Bangkok. They follow any stranger who enters the palace and remain with him until he takes his departure. They see that there is no mischief done and that no one makes love to the royal wives and court ladies. Men who have business inside the palace—docters, architects, carpenters, electric light fitters, etc.—enter the palace freely, but are always accompanied by some of the Amazon guard. The palace has some difficulty in recruiting these guards, as the work is hard and the pay poor.

Leap Year Event.

[Harper's Weekly:] "Henry," she said, her languishing eyes fixed maddeningly upon him, "I could never do anything so unmaidenly as to propose marriage to any man even though it is my leap year privilege to do so, but one thing I can say."

"Go on, Gladys," he whispered.

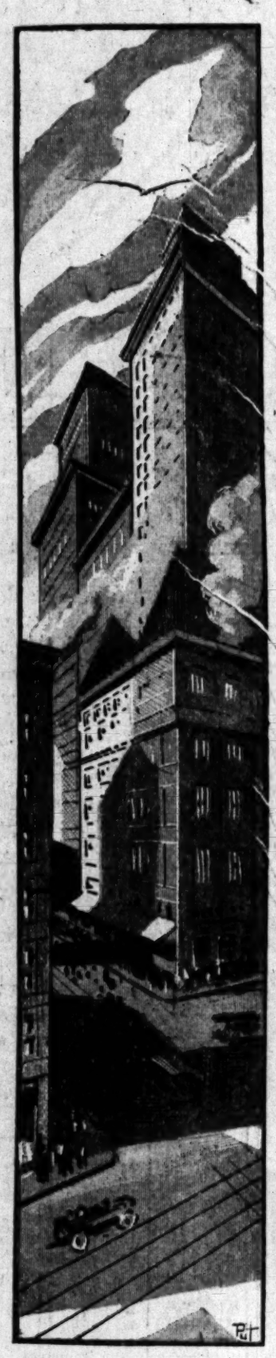
"If by some odd chance you were to ask me to be your wife," she went on.

"Yes," he cried eagerly.

"I should not say no," she replied, the blushes mantling her fair young cheeks, and when he left two hours later there was just a little touch of face powder upon his manly bosom.

A Conservative Advertisement On "City Heights," San Diego

By a Los Angeles Business Man



Some of my friends insist that a real estate advertisement cannot be successful without "blue sky." I'm going to attempt to prove the contrary. I believe there are enough intelligent people in Southern California who can discriminate between fact and fiction—and make conservative advertising out-pay the "blue sky" kind.

I went down to San Diego a few weeks ago to look over the real estate situation there. I had always taken "with a grain of salt" the glowing reports I had heard of San Diego's progress—but San Diego certainly made me sit up and take notice.

Harbor Activity

The activity in the harbor was amazing, and I learned that the city had just voted a million dollars bonds for its further improvement, in anticipation of the coming commerce, which the opening of the Panama Canal is certain to bring.

It is difficult for one who does not actually visit San Diego and study its relation to the Panama Canal, to realize what the opening of this great waterway means to this thriving city of the Southwest. I am a Los Angeles taxpayer and enthusiast but I want to say to my Los Angeles friends that we've got to look after our spurs—or San Diego with her natural geographical location and her full cargo of ambition, will make us go some.

The New Railway

Another thing that impressed me as of vital importance to San Diego's future was the building of the great San Diego & Arizona Railway. While the cost of this railway is going to be enormous, it means more—to my mind—than any other project now on foot. It will bring San Diego in direct quick touch with the great Imperial Valley, and it will afford the shortest—easiest grade route for transcontinental traffic from the East to the Pacific Coast.

The Exposition

I visited the site of the great 1915 exposition, where extensive work is already under way. The administration building is already finished, the grand entrance nearing completion, and acres of nurseries developing trees and shrubbery which will adorn the exposition grounds. They are making large preparations for this, the greatest event in San Diego's history, spreading the news the length and breadth of the country, and getting ready in advance as the wise man does, for the hundreds of thousands of visitors that will be San Diego's guests in 1915.

Significant Activity

The tall business blocks that are rearing their heads on every side in San Diego would do credit to New York. I read the announcement just the other day of a new 14-story building that is to be erected there. I looked up the San Diego records and found that her building permits had jumped from $150,000 in 1900 to $5,700,000 in 1911—her bank deposits from $1,830,000 in 1900 to $15,605,000 in 1911—her Post Office receipts from $40,000 in 1900 to $181,805 in 1911—her population from 17,000 in 1900 to an estimated population of over 50,000 today.

These figures are facts—they certainly tell a wonderful story and yet any observing man can see that San Diego is merely in the dawn of her greatest development.

If I had $100,000 to invest today—I'd put it into San Diego property—for I believe San Diego stands today in regard to her future just where Los Angeles stood 10 or 15 years ago in regard to her future.

The Buyer's Cue

The one thing in San Diego from an investor's point of view that impressed me above all others was the peculiar geographical situation of the city. There is practically only one direction in which San Diego can expand.

The bay cuts off growth to the West—and North and South the valleys and canyons limit expansion. The East is the one direction open to growth—but the beauty of the community that lies here more than suffices for the limitations elsewhere. This entire section is known as

City Heights

It is less than 30 minutes from downtown by through electric carline, 5c fare. Gas, electricity, water, telephones, are already installed, protective building restrictions are enforced. Through most of the property—sidewalks and curbs are already in. But the surprising feature, however, is yet to come—the price. In this beautiful section, where San Diego is being forced by nature—a man can buy

Beautiful Lots for $150

He can buy other good lots for $100, $75, and even for less—and very choice locations for $200, $225, $250, $300 and $325. No interest—no taxes. Terms as low as $10.00 down—$5.00 per month.

If there ever was a substantial real estate buying opportunity in Southern California this is surely it—for, with the marvelous developments that I have outlined in this advertisement—the great future of San Diego is a certainty. I believe that there is no question but that a man can at least double his money here in a couple of years at the outside.

The property is owned by the Pacific Building Company of San Diego, who stand ace high in San Diego's financial circles, and who have assets of over three-quarters of a million.

DAIRY LAND

In California's Greatest Dairying District

$85 AND $90 PER ACRE

If you want high class, well located alfalfa, dairy and general farm purpose land, all irrigated and ready for immediate farming operations, in fact, now in cultivation, at a price under $100 an acre, come to my office and talk business.

I am offering, on the Santa Paula Rancho in Kings County, California, splendid 40, 80 and 160-acre parcels at $85 and $90 an acre. The water proposition is right, the prices are, conditions considered, way below market, and the terms are extremely favorable.

I consider this the very best offer in the San Joaquin Valley—and I'm ready with facts and figures to prove my contention. Come to my office tomorrow and get latest map of Central California.

AT YOUR OWN PRICE

Come and see one of the finest tracts of residence property anywhere within easy reach of Los Angeles, at HIGHLAND PARK, near the well-known Cawston Ostrich Farm, on Saturday, May 4th at 10 A. M.

This tract is cut up into lots, many of which are covered with large sycamore and oak trees and some big eucalyptus and pine. All about them are pretty bungalows, real homelike homes, residences that are attractive for their true California features, their true California atmosphere. You will find an opportunity of buying a lot here which is equally attractive from the viewpoint of a homesite as it is from that of an early rise in valuation.

Many of these lots front on the proposed Arroyo Seco Park.

HIGHLAND PARK is really and naturally a logical direction in which the city will develop with a line of homes, for HIGHLAND PARK lies between the business city of Los Angeles and the pleasant city of Pasadena. It lies between the business city of Los Angeles and its educational center around Occidental College, which is destined to be the largest co-educational institution on the Pacific Coast within a comparatively short term of years.

HAVE WE A REAL ARMY?

In the form of an interview given [illegible] Kibbe Turner of McClure's magazine, Gen. Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the United States Army, makes a striking and authoritative statement regarding the military condition of our present military establishment, and shows how, already perfected, if favorably acted upon by Congress, will make the complete reorganization of the military forces, substituting efficiency for inefficiency and waste for the annually increasing present waste.

Although the United States spends $100,000,000 a year on the army, it may be said that the organization is as strong today as it was years ago, when much less was appropriated for it. So much of the army as is required for service in the Philippines and in other distant possessions is made up into detachments averaging 1,000 men, which occupy the fifty military posts constructed at great expense in our western reservations. The garrisoning of the villages and parks into which the military posts have largely transformed absorbs the energies of the troops to a great extent, so that the army has really been, as Gen. Wood puts it, "split up into companies, battalions of sanitary cleaners, battalions of bakers, and regiments of patrolmen." From the point of view of the commander of a unit, the common soldier the army is a mere gardening crowded out by the work of the post.

Gen. Wood calls attention to the fact that the peace strength of one of our companies is only sixty-five men, and that very frequently only twenty or thirty men are available for instruction. Under such conditions effective instruction is very difficult.

Gen. Wood concludes, therefore, that our army is not organized as an army, and under the present scattered location of posts, there is no way to organize it. "Individually we have, perhaps the best officers and enlisted men in the world—a fine body of men largely diverted from their ordinary military training by their duties as landscape gardeners and caretakers of so-called military posts, which we maintain not because of military efficiency, but as the inheritance of a vicious system. In the larger movements of an army they are, from the standpoint of actual experience, entirely untrained.

Gen. Wood maintains that our present system of enlisting men for three-year periods, and offering inducement for re-enlistment so as to keep a man continuously in the army, is a most wasteful system. Suppose, for instance, the full term of thirty years' service is rounded out. At that time you would have, according to the existing cost figures, over $30,000 invested in a man who is too old for war. The European method, on the other hand, is to train as many members of the population as possible to the use of arms just as they are entering manhood, at the age when the training will create the least possible interference with their economic career. From the regular service the soldiers pass into a reserve of trained men subject to a recall in case of war. It has been computed that by the adoption of such a policy and the employment of the militia, this country could be provided with a possible army of 460,000 men, and that the cost of this army could be kept down so that the total expenditures for our military establishment need not exceed what they have been during recent years.

TRUE FRIEND OF SOLDIER.

Veterans Explain Real Attitude of President Taft—Extract From His Message.

That there has been a "systematic and willful perversion of President Taft's attitude" toward the veterans of the Civil War, and that the President has always been a real friend of the soldier, is declared in vigorous language by a committee of veterans who achieved brilliant military records in the great struggle to preserve the Union. This committee is composed of Gen. Richard N. Bowerman, Baltimore, Maryland; Gen. Samuel S. Burdette, Washington, D. C.; Gen. Louis Wagner, Philadelphia, Penn.; Lieut.-Col. Robert B. Beath, Philadelphia, Penn.; and Col. John C. McElroy, Washington, D. C.

If any soldier doubts the true attitude of President Taft toward him, this committee states in an open letter to their comrades, he is asked to consider the following sentiment expressed in President Taft's annual message to Congress, December 6, 1910, with the assurance that all doubt on that subject will be dispelled.

. . . To the man who risked everything on the field of battle to save the nation in the hour of its direst need, we owe a debt which has not been and should not be computed in a begrudging or parsimonious spirit. But while we should be actuated by this spirit to the soldier himself, care should be exercised not to go to absurd lengths or distribute the bounty of the government to classes of persons who may, at this late day, from a mere mercenary motive, seek to obtain some legal relation with an old veteran now tottering on the brink of the grave. The true spirit of the pension laws is to be found in the noble sentiments expressed by Mr. Lincoln in his last inaugural address, wherein, in speaking of the nation's duty to its soldiers when the struggle should be over, he said we should 'care for him who shall have borne the battle, for his widow and orphans.'"—(Congressional Record, third session, Sixty-first Congress, page 28.)

THE CHINESE REPUBLIC.

Financial Integrity of the People Gives Promise of a Long and Happy Future for the Government.

[North American Review:] The Chinese have enjoyed during many centuries the practice of self-government and majority rule under the very eyes of the worst despots that ever sat enthroned. For in sheer self-defense against official corruption the people organized all sorts of secret unions, the most widely known of which among Americans and Europeans are the trade guilds. These unions dispensed justice between man and man and governed the conduct of trade. Their leaders inaugurated and enforced the policy of honesty that gives Chinese financial credit today the highest standing in the world. I believe that the world has never seen a more dramatic proof of this fact than the present status of the Chinese government bond.

The imperial Chinese government 5 per cent. Hukuang Railway sinking fund gold loan bond was offered for public subscription at 97 and accrued interest. After more than three months of revolution, when the Peking government has lost nearly fifteen provinces out of the eighteen of China proper; when not only the Peking treasury but also the revolutionary republicans are bankrupt, are actually without money to pay their soldiers and administrative expenses; when the whole country is overrun with armed bandits, business strangled to death by anarchy; when there are said to be 3,000,000 of people without food; . . . when the Ta Tsing dynasty and the glories that were Kanghi and Kuellung are ready to give up the imperial ghost as eagerly as any scared burglar—today, when all these things and more are true, what is the price you will have to pay for the Chinese bond? Ninety-four—only three points of the original price! It is a financial miracle. . . .

The real author of the miracle is the traditional reputation of Chinese commercial integrity. Whatever happens—so the faith of the foreign capitalists seems to say—the Chinese know what commercial and financial obligation means; they understand the meaning of a contract as no other race of people does; our money is safe whatever happens. . . . Do not such facts promise a long and happy future for the infant Chung Hwa republic??

Victim of a Wag.

[Tit Bits:] A wag, entering an empty railway compartment lately, happened to notice the legend, "Wait until the train stops," above the door, and, thinking to have a joke on somebody, he dexterously erased the "t" in "train." At the next station an old county dame got in and seated herself.

A very heavy storm of rain now came on, and when the train drew up at the next station the good lady looked anxiously out of the window. After a short stay the train started on its way, to the old lady's amazement.

"Yer's a purty go, sir," she said, turning toward the heartless wag. "An' my old man was waitin' on the platform. Why won't they let 'e get out when it's raining?"

Louise Moilainen, of Hancock, Mich., who measures seven feet six inches in his stocking feet, was nominated for justice of the peace in Hancock township. He claims the distinction of being the largest magisterial candidate in the country.

PACIFIC HOME BUILDERS are now paying dividends at the rate of 10 per cent. annually on par value. Stock is now selling for $1.25 per share. Figure it out yourself. Are you satisfied? Why not make your money work for you instead of for some one else?

Collective capital has been and is now the great developing force in the United States, and money invested in a strong industrial corporation is considered by wise financiers to be the best earning proposition.

The building of Greater Los Angeles has just begun and the really strong building companies of today will have a greater earning power as they extend their activities.

Pacific Home Builders will keep pace with the growth of the city along conservative business lines.

An investment of great merit. PACIFIC HOME BUILDERS not only offer exceptional money-making possibilities—but stands upon its record as a dividend-paying proposition—having paid dividends since the first quarter after organization.

Do It Now!

We want your co-operation—and in receiving it—know full well that it will be mutually profitable.

Call tomorrow—we will extend all information on our simple dividend-earning proposition—that in short meter, can be expressed by saying, "We Keep PACIFIC HOME BUILDERS' capital working all the Time."

Share in the current quarter's dividend of 2½ per cent. by buying your stock before May 1st. All mail orders post-marked April 30th will be accepted and participate.

SUFFRAGE BILL IS STAGGERED.

Arizona Constitution Also Gets a Severe Jolt.

Similar Fate Also Likely to Overtake Prohibition.

Labor Bills Appear to Have Benefit of Spotlight.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) April 24.—The Legislature is playing "hob" with the most sacred features of the thrice-venerated Constitution and is doing things without giving its masters, the people, a chance to object or approve. The latest outbreak of this nature concerns woman's suffrage, which has been killed in both houses, despite the protests of the Republican members, who urged that the Democrats stand by their guns and let the people rule, a doctrine eloquently defended by the Democracy at large upon the stump last December. So, unless a great light breaks upon the Legislature before the end of the session, there will be no referendum vote upon suffrage, though an initiative petition from the people at large may demand such submission. Ordinarily the Democratic majority in the Legislature has been entirely willing to "slough" responsibility to the voters, but on suffrage, despite the strongest of lobbying on the part of hundreds of suffragists here gathered, and despite pathetic appeals from the Republican minority, equal rights have been slaughtered ruthlessly, without right of appeal and without benefit of clergy.

It is probable that much the same fate will overtake anything like prohibition. With the exception of the abrogation of the six-mile-limit law in favor of Tucson, the liquor question has been carefully sidestepped thus far. But the dreaded question-mark again has reared its head in the shape of a bill, introduced by request by Mr. Jones of Maricopa county, providing for repeal of the present segregation act and making local option districts conform to county lines. As an instance of the effect of such a bill, Phoenix would be voted "dry," as is the rest of this county. The bill is being pushed by the Arizona Anti-Saloon League, which undoubtedly will demand that it be turned over to a referendum vote of the State's electors.

LABOR BILLS RAMPANT.

The "labor" bills have been having an inning lately. The Governor has signed a bill prohibiting the employing of inexperienced telegraphers by the railroad companies in train service and similar action is probable on bills compelling three years' prior service in subordinate positions by conductors and engineers. These are very lovely measures from the standpoint of labor unionism, as they would very effectually cripple service upon Arizona railroads in the event of a strike. Not even the superintendent of a road could act as telegrapher, engineer or conductor and any new man imported could be complained against and made to prove in every lota the prior service which alone would entitle him to employment in the position specified. It is understood that union representatives at the capital denied that they were pushing the bills with any view toward future strikes; all they wish for is to better safeguard human life. It would appear that the railroad bills had had enough indorsement, for one legislator tartly observed at a committee hearing, whereat facts concerning transportation were being presented by railroad men, "What's the use of wasting all this time? We are not here to listen to talk; we are here to pass bills."

Along the same line are bills providing for a semi-monthly pay day, for a workman's compensation law, limiting the hours of employment of hoisting engineers and furnace men to eight a day, providing that mine employees shall count within their eight hours the time spent in getting to and from their work within the mines. A bill limiting the six hours underground employment where the temperature exceeds 110 degrees, or above ground where it exceeds 120 degrees, was reported unfavorably by the committee. Unfavorable action also was taken on prohibiting barbers from working Sunday, while a bill proposing an eight-hour day for women has been amended to nine hours.

A 2-cent railroad fare bill has been presented and would have good chances for passage were not the Corporation Commission considering something along the same line.

"SPIKING" THE MILITIA.

A commission of officers of the National Guard has presented a militia bill, which contains a number of restrictive features prohibiting the use of the citizen soldiery to a considerable degree in the handling of labor disturbances. Despite these limitations, however, there is considerable opposition to the measure as a whole, possibly founded upon opposition to the guard itself, though mainly cloaked under the assumption that the $18,000 a year appropriated for the support of the militia would make the organization overly expensive.

The recall measure, the first to be introduced, still is hanging fire and is being kicked from house to house, though the Democratic majority was pledged last December to enact the measure as the very first, as a rebuke to the President. But thus far the President has not been rebuked and many measures have been passed ahead of this, which expresses the latest "ism" to be swallowed by the party locally in power.

For the next week it is probable that county division will occupy the center of the stage. Bills have been introduced to cut the county of Coconino in half, with Williams as the seat of government of the new county of Hunt, thus to perpetuate the name of the first State Governor. Backed by a petition of 800 names, Hayden, Christmas and Winkelman seek annexation to Pinal county and segregation from Gila county. The latest cut is to cut Maricopa county in twain, the division line between Tempe and Mesa, the latter point to be the center of the proposed new county of Orange. A similar bill was defeated in the last Legislature, but the former measure sought to annex everything beyond a line four miles east of Phoenix.

INSURANCE MEN SCORE.

The foreign insurance companies have scored a signal victory in the defeat of a bill which demanded local investment of three-fourths of the amount collected within Arizona in premiums. This bill was warmly supported by insurance companies organized in Arizona, California and New Mexico, but the old-line companies promptly established a strong lobby and so vigorously pushed their work as to score success by a large majority. Another attack is to be made upon them in a bill which provides for an occupation tax, which can be reduced to those companies which see the wisdom of making investments in Arizona.

The House has passed a bill giving the State the right to engage in industrial pursuits. The measure, in the language of one of the members, "grants the State the right to compete with trusts that might be formed and might bleed the people." The only objection appears to be on the part of representatives who fear that prison labor might thereby be used to the prejudice of outside toilers.

A lengthy school code is under consideration and if passed probably will embrace provisions giving women the right of election to the office of County School Superintendent and segregating negro children from the whites.

A Senate bill prohibits the employment of teachers afflicted with tuberculosis, and another pensions school teachers who have had thirty-five years' service. A provision of $5000 is to be made for the education of deaf-and-dumb children or persons at the State University. Another bill appropriates for a State home for destitute, homeless and depraved women and neglected children.

SCHOOL CONSOLIDATION.

For several months a movement has been pushed all over Arizona for the consolidation within the university at Tucson of the State Agricultural College, School of Mines and mechanical schools, which benefit in land grants by the statehood enabling act. This consolidation appears to be favored in the Legislature, despite efforts made by Mesa for the establishment of the agricultural school in that thriving agricultural locality.

Senator Wood of Maricopa has proposed a bill requiring all newspapers which print public notices to publish continuously in such papers the names of their owners and stockholders and their indebtedness. This, it is explained, may serve to indicate the reason why certain journals in Arizona oppose the will of the people, as expressed from pure Democratic platforms.

Senator Henry Lovin of Mohave has a bill in which prize fighting is prohibited, but which, in the interest of pure athletics, of course, permits scientific exhibitions, not to exceed twenty-five rounds, with gloves as heavy as five ounces.

The rising cost of necessities was the ostensible reason for favorable consideration in the House of a bill raising the salary of penitentiary chaplains from $100 to $300 a year. It was not alleged that the bill had anything to do with Gov. Hunt's plans of prison reform.

A State Inspector of Scales, Weights and Measures may be created, permitting cities of 5000 inhabitants the privilege of selecting their own inspectors. It is claimed that the appointment of such an official in Tucson effected a saving of $12,000 within the last year. Under the provisions of the bill the inspector will have authority over the meters of all public-service corporations.

GLENDALE SCENE OF ANIMATION.

REALTY MARKET LIVELY AND BUILDING ACTIVITY.

Valuable Ranch in Northern Portion of City to Be Subdivided. Valley People to Co-operate With Railway Company in Building of New East Side Line.

GLENDALE, April 27.—Probably the most important realty sale made in this valley for the past several months was that of the property located at the corner of Sixth street and Grand View road, known as the Moncton ranch and owned by David S. Moncton, the property being sold to E. W. Brown of Illinois. The place consists of ten acres of valuable level land, with a commanding view of miles down the San Fernando Valley, and the price received was reported as $22,000. About half of this land is planted to an excellent kind of orange, which are now yielding bountifully. The sale includes a seven-room home with outbuildings, garage, chicken corrals, etc. The place was considered one of the finest in the valley. It is understood that Brown's intention is to subdivide the property into building lots and place it on the market. This place is located in the northern portion of the city.

Another important deal was the transfer of the Spinks property from Dr. Spinks to Mrs. M. J. Summers. This property consists of six acres of high and sightly orange land on Kenneth road, and the price paid is reported at $12,500. The place is in excellent condition and the price includes a house and outbuildings.

The following building permits were issued in this city this week: J. H. Regan, Central avenue, between Sixth and Seventh streets, residence, $2500; Valley Lumber Company, corner Fourth street and Maryland avenue, one-story brick block, $3000; D. J. Green, No. 560 Orange Grove avenue, residence, $2500; M. E. Hyde and A. E. Mills, Seventh street, near Pacific avenue, residence, $1000; Glendale sanatorium, laundry building, $1000, corner Third and Isabelle streets; E. H. Kerker, No. 1024 West Seventh street, two dwellings, $1100 each.

Communications have been received by the promoters of the extension of the Pacific Electric line up Glendale avenue from Paul Shoup of the Pacific Electric Company, to the effect that within a few days a proposition to build the line would be made by the company to the people on the east side of this city. The people have expressed themselves as being willing to donate at least $10,000 toward the building of the line. The company has expressed its preference to run over the tracks of the Salt Lake branch, which runs from Los Angeles to this city, rather than construct another track along Glendale avenue.

Col. Lewis Ginger of Colorado Springs and Capt. Philips were in Glendale during the past week, endeavoring to secure a right of way up the southern slope of Verdugo Mountain for the newly proposed incline scenic railway. It is understood that they are meeting with some opposition, but the promoters are confident that everything will be satisfactorily settled within a few days.

The small brick building at the corner of Broadway and Maryland avenue is being moved to Maryland avenue, between Broadway and Sixth street to make room for the brick block to be erected by the Valley Lumber Company, which will occupy the corner of Maryland and Broadway. It is very probable that this company will put up buildings soon on all of its property fronting on Broadway.

Now that all legal proceedings in the Superior Court were ended this week in reference to the fixing of the amount of money that property owners of forty-one pieces of property along Brand boulevard should receive for their holdings, it is the intention of the Glendale city officials to proceed as rapidly as possible in the widening and repairing of Brand boulevard from Sixth street to Lomita avenue. For several months this case has been in court and settlement was reached early this week. The total sum that will be paid to the property owners is $4152. The improvement work includes the laying out and widening of the boulevard.

Orange and lemon shipments are being made from this valley at a rate of about ten cars every week, and as the season progresses the shipments are becoming more numerous. F. W. Kinney, manager of the Sparr packing-house, stated this week that that company has shipped so far this year thirty cars of oranges and thirty cars of lemons and that the fruit was in an unusually good condition. He stated that very litle damage was done this year by the frost, but that the unusually heavy winds caused considerable loss. The fruit is of a good size.

"Buy me without cash--- I will pay for your land."

IT is not very often that a great, responsible company like this one comes to you with as liberal an offer as the one we now make you. For when you buy land from us, we furnish you with EVERYTHING—cows, farming implements, ALL the things necessary to insure your success. You merely make a small payment down, then you have eight years in which to meet the balance. Even the interest is at a low rate.

EVERY kind of co-operation that human ingenuity can devise is offered you. Our expert agricultural superintendent and engineer right here on the property will show you WHAT to plant and HOW to plant to make the biggest profits. YOU PAY NOTHING FOR THIS SERVICE. You take practically NO risk. Our plan protects you so that you cannot lose!!

YOU will never believe how wonderfully things GROW here until you see for yourself—fruits, vegetables, alfalfa, grains. Alfalfa alone runs 10 tons to the acre, with a market price of $9 to $17 per ton, baled. An acre of alfalfa will support two cows. In this way $140 to $180 can be produced in butter fat. Oranges ripen early. Crops can be raised between the rows while the trees are maturing. Chickens do well and eggs pay big, as do bees. You can capture the bees wild here. Gardens grow all winter.

Abundant irrigation water by gravity is brought in from the pure mountain streams and never costs more than $2 an acre. Life is worth living here at Los Molinos in the beautiful Sacramento Valley. Work is a pleasure because you know that your efforts will be well rewarded. The nearby rushing mountain streams are alive with trout, and plenty of wild game is within easy reach. The climate is as near perfect as the Creator ever made it anywhere. Good schools and good transportation—both rail and water.

Two Crops Here Pay For the Land

We invite you to come and talk the matter over with us. It is wrong to let an opportunity like THIS pass you by without at least INVESTIGATING. If for any reason you cannot call at once, write your name and address across this advertisement and mail it TODAY to our office.

Where a Little Money Works Wonders

Is every dollar you earn daily buying "full value" for you? How about your rent money? Are you better off feeding it out every month to the hungry pockets of some other investor, or is it more wise to own your own home and so really pay rent to yourself? You can't blame yourself for not owning a home when up to this time it has taken $1000 or thereabouts as a first payment. Here at College Tract a little money works wonders. Homes here range in price at from $2500 to $4500. $250 in cash moves you into choice of a lot of College Tract homes. They are wisely planned, substantially built, well finished, and present altogether artistic, comfortable, satisfactory permanent homes. Your small monthly payments cover principal, interest, taxes and insurance—that's a very important feature of College Tract homes. You have no extras to pay. There are no hooks or crooks to our proposition. Come and investigate. You will be mighty well pleased and wish you had come sooner. Every day you postpone looking into this owning-a-home question, you are losing money. You mar your future happiness.

How to Reach College Tract

Come to our office and ride out in an automobile today; or take a Grand Avenue-West Forty-eighth Street car on Broadway, Seventh or Grand to Denker Avenue, Gramercy Place or Arlington Street, Today!

—or, Buy a College Tract Lot

Then you are ready to build a home thereon most any time you feel like it, or you can probably turn your money over to advantage. College Tract lots have increased from 50 to 75 per cent. since the tract was opened. $950 to $1200 buys one. Easy terms on lots.

Before the Gringo Came.

FIRST GRIZZLY BEAR HUNT OVER THE TEJON RANCH.

BY W. H. HOLABIRD.

[One of a series of Ranch Stories to be contributed to The Times by Col. Holabird.]

BEFORE the "Gringo" came, grizzlies were the easiest of all big game to find in the hills and valleys of Southern California. Flocks of flocks and herds suffered from depredations. Their tremendous vitality and thick fur rendered useless for the hunter with his old muzzle loading rifle, charged with poor black powder, to kill a bear weighing 800 to 100 pounds, without hazarding his own life.

Cowboys skilled in throwing the "lasso" or "rope," as it is now called, with reckless bravado not unfrequently roped and killed with their "six shooters," some of the largest grizzlies known. Naturalists rightly classify the Ursus Horribilis.

Bears are not particular about their food, their feed largely upon roots, such as berries, honey, insects, and putrid flesh of any kind.) In fact, in my rather wide experience during a period of twenty-five or more years in the mountains of the Pacific slope, I have never heard of a well fed that a bear will refuse if offered, and they are generally

The grizzly is nearly extinct, and soon will be, unless he can be preserved in Yellowstone Park, he should be allowed to increase and multiply, owing to his fondness for the fat sheep and hogs of the settler. In the early days before the settlement of the country, the grizzly's favorite autumn range was in the valleys of the Coast Range, where the California oaks yield abundantly their acorns.

A particularly favorite locality in those days was the Tejon Mountains, at the intersection of the counties of Los Angeles, Kern and Ventura. The hills are covered with groves of magnificent white oaks, a most beautiful sight still, well worth a visit. The old stage road winds through the hills from Elizabeth Lake past Liebre Station, where the country opens out into a picturesque mountain valley between Castaic Lake and Fort Tejon. The Bec oak tree, where Ft. Tejon was built during the Indian wars, is now a half century ago.

In 1835, an indistinct inscription was found in the bark of the largest tree near the old fort; believing that it had reference to some early event, personal information was given by Gen. Beale, the owner of the land, and the bark was then carefully detached from the tree. From the following legend on the inner side of the bark was, by the aid of a mirror, plainly readable:

"Here Le Bec, killed by a Bear, 1835."

Who Le Poter was no one knows, unless a trapper connected with the Hudson Bay Company, who in the first part of the nineteenth century was the most venturesome of explorers.

To this Gen. Edward F. Beale acquired a large estate in the Ft. Tejon valley known as the "Tejon Ranch," its total area aggregating 270,000 acres.

It was my privilege to know Gen. Beale well and to enjoy the hospitality of his capacious and picturesque ranch home. The general was a fine type of the old school gentleman; an officer of army and navy and a diplomat (having been Minister to Austria under Gen. Grant's administration.)

It was a rare treat to ride horseback with him through the splendid oaks to the old fort and listen to stories of personal adventure during the early days of California's history.

Gen. Beale, while an officer in the army, made a reconnoissance along the thirty-fifth parallel from Missouri to the Pacific Coast, the precise date I have forgotten, but it was about 1850. At that time the West was an unknown country; its agricultural, timber and mineral resources unappreciated; inhabited only by wild animals and Indians, all treacherous and warlike.

His escort was a company of camels (as one branch of the cavalry was called in these days.) I will not now dwell upon the thrilling incidents with Indians, nor their intense suffering while crossing the deserts of Arizona and California, but will tell you about the biggest bag of grizzlies ever made by a hunting party on the Pacific Coast.

It was early in November, the detachment had rested and recruited its animals after the crossing of Mojave desert, at Willow Springs, about ten miles southwest from the present railroad junction called "Mojave." Here was abundant water, fine grass and thousands of antelope. In that day the largest band of antelope in California ranged in what is now known as Antelope Valley, the extreme western portion of Mojave Desert, in Los Angeles and Kern counties.

Game enough was then laid in an abundant supply of "jerked" (dried antelope meat,) and the saddles and harnesses, repaired, wagons, moulded bullets and carefully prepared to meet the ugly mood of Indians that infested the upper end of the San Joaquin Valley.

The entrance to Ft. Tejon Pass leading to Canada de las Uvas is exceedingly picturesque. The great grassy hills gradually merge into mountains more or less rugged, covered with scattering oaks. Just over the low ridge called the Pass, Little Lake lies hidden away in the hills like a huge tear drop from the eye of the mountains. Gen. Beale had joined the cavalry on the margin of this little lake, when riding ahead from the front, came one of the scouts, who were always kept on the flanks of the column.

Hastily saluting, the scout excitedly exclaimed, "We've run into a flock of bears, sir, a regular herd of them. I've never seen nothing like it in all my experience on the plains."

Following the fellow a little, the general found that just over a low rise of the ground, the little valley widened out and was covered by a scattering growth of large oaks. Acting with caution, he learned from a scout in an Indian manner, he had discovered a large number of grizzly bears feeding upon the acorns that covered the ground.

Accompanied by the scout and the lieutenant, Gen. Beale reconnoitered the ground, witnessing, to his astonishment, a large number of bears feeding. An arroyo, dry at this season, crossed the valley and afforded a means of approach for the hunting party.

Selecting the most skilled hunters, each with his rifle freshly loaded, and accompanied by a number of Mexican vaqueros with their rawhide lassos in hand, he and his party cautiously crept up the arroyo into the grove where the bears were feeding. It was impossible to estimate the number of bears, but it is sufficient to say that there were plenty.

Gen. Beale followed the party of mounted men to approach within shooting range, as they had evidently not yet learned how deadly an enemy man was. The first fire brought five grizzlies down, with three more badly crippled. The crippled ones were taken in hand by the cowboys and quickly and securely roped by two rawhide lassos. The trained horses holding taut the rope standing on opposite sides of the bear, made it easy to finish the kill with a pistol shot.

In the meantime the hunters had reloaded their rifles and were after the now fleeing band of grizzlies. Several more were severely wounded and three killed. Inside of thirty minutes from the first attack, the hunt was over, with ten dead grizzlies.

A more perfect camping ground could hardly be found, so, bringing the outfit forward, camp was pitched, the bears skinned, and soon after a dinner of bear steak was indulged in. It was a truly remarkable hunting experience, never again to be repeated.

Responsibility.

SHIPPING LAWS INEFFECTIVE.

AMERICAN SHIP WOULD CARRY MORE LIFEBOATS.

United States Enforces the Maritime Laws of European Countries Instead of Requiring Their Ships to Conform to American Regulations.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—[Special to Brooklyn Eagle:] Had the Titanic been an American-built ship, flying the flag of the United States, she would have carried lifeboats with a capacity of 2567 persons. There would have been room for all and more than the total of her crew and passengers, after she had beaten her life out against an iceberg.

But the Titanic, being a British ship and flying the British flag, was required—to carry lifeboats and life rafts with a capacity of only 1242 persons, room for a little more than half of the people she carried on her first and only voyage, and which, for some strange reason, were apparently not freighted with all the human lives even they could have contained.

While less than 10 per cent. of the commerce of the United States is carried in American vessels, it is a fact that in some respects our shipping laws are better and more stringent than those of Great Britain, particularly in those features which have to do with the preservation of life in case of accident.

There is an agreement between the United States and foreign countries with regard to the enforcement of shipping laws, but it is not uniform. In the case of Great Britain, Germany, France and several other powers, the United States accepts their shipping laws as governing vessels flying their flags, when they make port in this country. United States officials inspect them, but they inspect them with a view to learning whether they comply with the law of the country from which they hail, not the American law. In the case of other countries, among which are Italy and Spain, ships which fly their flags must conform to the rules provided in our own shipping laws, if they are permitted to enter our ports.

Thus, we enforce English shipping regulations in our own ports, even though the English vessels may violate the American laws, which are not held to apply to them. No vessel of the magnitude of the lost Titanic could fly our flag and put to sea with lifeboat accommodations for only 1200 persons.

LAWS REGARDING LIFEBOATS.

The American laws are very strict with regard to lifeboats. They specify in much detail the manner of construction of lifeboats and their equipment, and they regulate their capacity on a basis of cubic feet. Ten cubic feet of capacity must be provided for each person. Thus, a twenty-foot lifeboat, with six feet of beam and two and a half feet in depth, is allowed to carry eighteen persons, if it be part of the equipment of an ocean, lake or sound steamer, and twenty-two persons, if it belongs to a river steamer.

Ocean going passenger vessels of 150 tons or over are required to carry lifeboats of sufficient capacity to take care of their entire complement of crew and passengers. A 5000 ton ship must have a lifeboat capacity of 3870 cubic feet, or 387 persons. The ratio increases somewhat with the tonnage of the vessel, because of her greater passenger capacity.

Thus a 10,000 ton ship will have a lifeboat capacity of 8145 cubic feet, or 814 persons, while a 20,000 ton vessel must have 12,645 cubic feet of lifeboat capacity, or room enough for 1264 persons. For each additional 500 gross tons above that, 225 cubic feet of lifeboat capacity must be added, or room enough for twenty-two and a half persons for each 500 tons. Under this rule the Titanic, as an American ship, would have been compelled to provide room for 2567 people in her boats.

Damages for Survivors.

[New York Commercial:] Survivors of the Titanic will not be able to collect damages in this country for their losses in money or personal property. They must bring suit in the British courts as the Titanic flew the British flag and their tickets were purchased in England.

Attorneys versed in admiralty law said yesterday that to constitute grounds for suit the nearest relatives of those lost upon the Titanic must make it appear that death was caused by negligence on the part of the ship's officers or crew. Proof that she was proceeding at an immoderate speed under conditions unfavorable to navigation would furnish such grounds. This fact was established to the satisfaction of the court which reviewed the collision of the Cromartyshire and La Bourgogne and the main point at issue was the extent of liability.

"To prevent the incuring by steamship companies ruinous damages from loss at sea their liability has been definitely fixed by statute, and is limited to the value of whatever is left of the vessel and all moneys derived from the transportation of freight or passengers on the voyage in which she meets with accident," said one lawyer. "It is customary for the owners to turn this fund over to a trustee named by the court and from it judgments are paid pro rata. In the case of La Bourgogne, which came up to the Supreme Court nearly ten years after her destruction, her owners claimed that the amount of this fund—about $100—was represented by the lifeboats and rafts which were all that survived of the vessel.

"Their contention that the mail subsidy paid by the government could not be included in the fund was sustained. But the court held that the passage and freight money for the last voyage must be surrendered to the trustee if a limitation of liability was to be secured. Exactly this same ruling will apply with respect to the Titanic."

Admiralty lawyers say the courts have in several cases decided that the insurance money cannot be reached to pay for loss of life or cargo and that the contract of insurance is for the benefit of the owner alone and not for the shippers who were able to protect their own shipments by insurance.

On the cargo which the Titanic carried no claim for damages will lie according to the same authority. The Harter act of 1893 provides that if it can be proved that at the onset of a voyage a vessel is seaworthy, well found, properly manned, and laden, she may not be made liable for the welfare of her freight thereafter, even if damage results from error or carelessness.

Maximum Liability.

[New York Journal of Commerce:] "Under the English liability statutes the owners of the Titanic may be held for a maximum liability of $75 a registered ton, or about $3,375,000," said Mr. E. E. Benedict.

"If the Titanic's cargo had been saved, or if she had reached an American port in any condition whatever, the situation would be entirely changed," he continued. "But there is positively no equivalent in the United States for the clause in the British law making a steamship company liable to the extent of £15 per ton for the registered tonnage of the vessel. Thus a litigant is left here with practically nothing to levy on. In England he has all the property of the company that the law has not specifically exempted.

"As the result of the loss of more than seven hundred sailors of the crew which manned the Titanic when she sank, the White Star Line may have to pay more than £500,000 to the relatives of the seamen as compensation under the provisions of the British Workmen's Compensation Act. The provisions of that act referring to sailors as workmen say:

"'If the workman leaves any dependants wholly dependent on his earnings an amount equal to his earnings in the employment of the same employer during the three years next preceding the injury or £150, whichever of these sums is the larger, but not exceeding in any case £300, shall be paid, provided that the amount of any weekly payments made under this act and any lump sum paid in redemption thereof shall be deducted from such amount, and if the period of the workman's employment by the said employer has been less than the said three years, then the amount of his earnings during the said period shall be deemed to be 156 times his average weekly earnings during the period of his actual employment under the said employer.'

"It is estimated that the families which were dependent upon the wages of the lost sailors will receive an average compensation of from $750 to $1500 each. Those families which were not wholly dependent upon their earnings will have their compensation fixed by arbitration."

PLAN TWENTY-THREE HOMES.

Building Company Acquires Sites in Growing Neighborhood and Will at Once Erect Several Bungalows.

The Angelus Building and Investment Company, for which the Braly-Janss Investment Company are selling agents and general representatives, has purchased from the Janss Investment Company twenty-three lots, on which bungalows are to be at once erected.

These lots comprise fifteen in Palma Heights, four in the H. T. Hazard East Side Addition and four in Aurora Heights. They are in a neighborhood that has been quickly and thickly populated in recent months. The lots were sold at an average of $600 each, or about $14,000 for the transaction.

STREET PLANS GROWING.

Lateral boulevards from Sherman way and to cost more than $75,000 are to be spread in the new town of Owensmouth as quickly as possible. The recent sale of business and residence property has demanded the completion of these streets in addition to those already finished. Broadway, the wide thoroughfare running north and south through the entire townsite, is to be made especially attractive, hundreds of the rare cedar deodora evergreen trees having already been set out in the curb parks. Many shrubs have also been placed along this thoroughfare. Numerous purchases in the town are reported by the Janss Investment Company. Work is being rushed on the store, bank and other business buildings, as well as on the first homes.

APPLE LAND SALES.

Representatives of the Redlands & Yucaipa Land Company, report sales of Yucaipa Valley red apple land for the past week amounting to over $25,650. Following is the list of buyers: S. Taylor, eight and one half acres; J. A. McCanse, 21 acres; J. E. McCrea, seven acres; W. C. Koehne, six acres; A. Von Brockman, 11 acres; J. M. King, 10 acres, and H. J. Guldburg, 10 acres. B. S. Hawley bought 10 acres planted to apples, one year old at $500 an acre. General Manager Atwood of the Land Company is preparing to improve the hill known as Grandview Park, lying in the eastern end of subdivision No. 1, townsite of Yucaipa. The park has been laid out and terraced under the direction of Franz Hosp of Riverside. It is the intention of the management to set this place to various ornamental trees and shrubbery.

ARE YOU WATCHING THIS?

Have you kept your eye on this little barometer and watched its steady rise since the first day of January?

Are you going to keep watching it as a stockholder and see your investment gradually double and treble in value?

The way is open to you, if we fail to make you comprehend it is not because we are not trying to show you what we believe to be the best investment in Los Angeles. Our faith and money are in it and we consider that the best indorsement we can give it. The assets of this company are now more than one-half million dollars, and include such subdivision properties as GLASSELL PARK, HIGHLAND HEIGHTS, RENDALIA ACRES and the GAIL BORDEN RANCH on Florence avenue.

When you stop to consider that this great showing has been made in one year's time and that each month's business is showing a substantial gain over that of the previous month, you will understand why this stock is advancing so rapidly and where it will be selling at the end of the company's second and third year. Don't wait until a stock is selling at two and three times its par value, buy it when the success of the company is assured, be an insider and get the insider's profits; this is the way all our big fortunes are made. This stock advances to 60c on May 1st, until that time all subscriptions received by the company or posted in the mail prior to that time, will be filled at the present price of

50 Cents a Share

Is this not an opportunity to make 20 per cent. on your investment in a few days' time? If you don't thoroughly understand the situation, write for our illustrated booklet or any other information; it will be gladly sent you.

What Co-operation Has Done In Los Angeles

Few men are able to erect a million dollar sky-scraper. But, by co-operation, no project is too large for small investors.

Building the Los Angeles Investment Company's magnificent future home at Eighth and Broadway is the direct result of co-operation. It has made possible the erection of this splendid million-dollar structure and at the same time has supplied the means whereby over 1200 Gold Note owners draw 6% interest quarterly or semi-annually.

The Gold Note

The Gold Note is a 6% investment security issued for $100 and up to $5000, for 90 days, 6 months, or 1 to 5 years. It pays interest quarterly or semi-annually. You can also buy a Gold Note on small payments of $1 or more, every payment drawing interest.

The Gold Note is secured by a paid-in capital and surplus of over $8,650,000.00. This, and the Company's millions of dollars' worth of choice real estate holdings afford every protection to the Gold Note purchaser.

The Gold Note is a sound investment. Buying a Gold Note is co-operating with the Los Angeles Investment Company in erecting a money-making, million-dollar structure, and, at the same time, receiving as your share of the profits, 6% interest paid quarterly or semi-annually, as you may wish to draw it.

A Gold Note will make money for you, and your principal will be safe. Buy one NOW.

JUDSON HARMON'S MANAGER.

Edmund H. Moore, a Conspicuous Figure in the National Political Campaign—The Man and His Ideas and Claims.

BY JAMES B. MORROW.

COLUMBUS, April 22.—Whenever an Ohio Democrat grows to be over a foot high, Allen G. Thurman once exclaimed in wrath, there are those among his party associates at home who want to chop off his head. After the fourth word he could have added, and thus completed his observation: "Or an Ohio Republican."

Interests oftener clash in Ohio than in most States. "That's because nearly all of us are great men," the natives explain with a puzzling smile, which leaves the stranger in doubt as to whether they are jocular or serious. And the irritating phase of the matter is that they can call off the names, even though practically all the men they mention are dead.

Traditionally, Gov. Judson Harmon could not escape censure and attack. Practically, he has been compelled to bear with both. "Every one of the grafting legislators in the State is fighting him," Edmund H. Moore, the managing politician of the Harmon campaign, said to me with a sneer on his face and a knife in his voice. Even so, but some of Harmon's enemies in Ohio are not boodlers, to use a common local term. They are original progressionists, reaching back in their principles to the glorious, but unfortunate, days of 1896. The peerless leader is still their captain and their priest.

Judges, they hold, should be dragged from the bench now and then. The decisions of courts, they insist, ought to be put to a vote of the electorate at times. They call for the initiative and referendum, which Senator "Tom" Carter of Montana used to say requires that all the people shall gather under a tree and legislate. Mr. Bryan has been here and they were assured by him that they are justified and are soundly orthodox. Thus the second group of Gov. Harmon's home antagonists can be catalogued. They say, and it is enough for them, that he has the nod and countenance of Wall street.

MADE $50,000 A YEAR.

Another group has been deprived of hoped-for sustenance. It is a grave offense, as President Taft has learned, to withhold public office from a waiting and anxious Ohio man. Then Judson Harmon has been successful. He made $50,000 a year practicing law in Cincinnati. Again, he is the only Democrat since the Civil War who has twice been elected to the Governorship. Envy is said to be cumulative. It piles up in finance, in politics, and in one's profession as one goes along. Centered finally for an occasion or a contest, it can make considerable noise. Nevertheless, the Democratic party of his State wants Gov. Harmon-nominated for President. And an old Bryan leader, the same Mr. Moore, is the unseen worker who is digging the secret trenches and planting the mines where they will do "Uncle Jud" the most good.

When he is engaged in his own business, Mr. Moore practices law at Youngstown, the chief city of a manufacturing district that is ablaze and roarding with rolling mills and blast furnaces. He is a "good Democrat" by his own description. No living man was ever more passionately vocal—and irrationally vocal, some say—in behalf of William J. Bryan than was Moore himself. He led the fight in 1904 against casting the vote of Ohio as a unit for the nomination of Alton B. Parker, but was whipped 25 to 21. Bryan was still his demigod.

Here his headquarters are in a skyscraper. Harmon literature, some of it in green covers, is pinnacled outside his door. Messengers with rubber heels and leather hats bear his orders afar. Telegrams rain in and pour out. Postmen come with striped bags across their gray shoulders. Gentlemen in tall hats, in black coats vanished by years and in trousers a little ragged around the feet float in, argue arrogantly with the clerks, and disappear. A half-dozen telephone bells ring at once. Washington calls and so does Chicago. "Oh, Moore." "Here, Moore." "Say, Moore." "Are you there, Moore?" "Is that Moore?" "Where's Moore?" Amid it all he gives me an hour. He is square, bodily, energetic, magnetic, shrewd and intense. In Youngstown he tries cases in court for a living. So his wit is nimble and his tongue, like Col. Roosevelt's lance, knows no brother when there is a bit of work to do.

HARMON WILL HAVE 400 VOTES.

"I am willing to bet that Gov. Harmon will have 400 votes on the first ballot," he said, taking up a pencil and scratching the figures on a piece of paper. "Prof. Wilson's friends claim 500," and Mr. Moore laughed. "As it will require but 729 votes to nominate," he continued, "it's all over now, if Prof. Wilson's friends are right, except the usual motion to make the nomination unanimous. Reminds me of a Republican at Heck's Corners who was a candidate for Governor. There were eighty-four voters in the township, all but five of whom were Democrats. 'I'm nominated, by golly,' shouted the candidate when he heard the news. 'I have polled the full strength of my party at the Corners with all the rest of the State to hear from.'

"So far," Mr. Moore went on to say, "we are sure of Kentucky with twenty-six votes, Tennessee with twenty-four votes, West Virginia and Maryland each with sixteen votes, Michigan with thirty votes and Ohio with forty-eight votes. We have plenty of support elsewhere, which I am unwilling to locate just now. No matter what is said or printed Ohio will be solid for Harmon. There is a faction against him, it is true, but it has lost the confidence of the public and its opposition will not figure in the results. We are running a safe and dignified campaign, and are not trying to injure any other candidate.

"States having favorite sons we are purposely leaving alone. Nothing is being done in Indiana or Missouri because of our respect for Gov. Marshall and Speaker Clark. We have kept out of New Jersey so far, but the Wilson literary bureau is busy in Ohio. Wilson's managers, by the way, are spending more money than are the managers of all the other candidates put together. Where do they get it? That's what I should like to know.

"We do not say that Gov. Harmon is as brilliant a man, for instance, as Joseph B. Foraker, but he is industrious, wise, a remarkable executive, and a physical and mental giant. He is 6 feet tall and weighs 210 pounds. Some of his enemies say that he is too old to be President. He was born February 3, 1846, but he can outwalk and outwork you or me.

TRIED A $3,500,000 LAW SUIT.

"After being elected Governor he told his clients they would have to hire other lawyers so long as he remained in public office. He stayed in one case, however, as a matter of duty. It concerned a contract and the sum in dispute amounted to $3,500,000.

Edmund H. Moore.

The case dragged for several years and was only tried recently. Gov. Harmon went to Cincinnati and for three weeks bore the principal burden on his side of the case at the trial table. When he returned to Columbus he looked as fresh as a daisy. I was amazed. 'I didn't feel the effort in the least,' he said. 'I worked all day in the courtroom and then slept all night without waking up.'

"Moreover," Mr. Moore continued, "Gov. Harmon would be stronger before the country than any other Democrat. There will be 531 votes in the electoral college of 1912. Therefore, 266 votes will be a majority. The Democratic candidate, no matter his name, is almost certain to receive the votes of the Southern States and of Missouri and Maryland, although they were carried by Taft in 1908, and of Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico—187 in all. He would need, however, seventy-nine votes more. Where could he get them? New York, Ohio and Indiana, with eighty-four votes, now have Democratic Governors. The Democrats, it would seem, should center their fight in the three States I have mentioned. Harmon, we believe, could carry every one of them.

"If, however, the main battle is fought in the West, the Democrats must win in Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Oregon, California and Kansas. Those ten States will have seventy-nine votes in the electoral college, which is exactly the number required by the Democratic candidate. All of the States named but one have Republican administrations. Should the fight, then, be made in the East or the West? I leave the answer to any man who knows the elementary principles of sane politics.

IS SURE OF HIS OWN STATE.

"Now, as we figure out the results in advance, Gov. Harmon is sure of Ohio. Taft, running for President in 1908, was given a majority of 69,000. It was a Republican year. Harmon, up for Governor the first time, in the very same Republican year, was given a majority of 19,000. In 1910, running for re-election, he increased his majority to 100,377, receiving, I may add, 78,214 more votes, on the average, than the rest of the Democrats on the ticket. He is stronger today in this State than he was eighteen months ago. Indiana is our neighbor. The voters over there understand what Gov. Harmon has accomplished. It is admitted, I believe, that Harmon's possibilities of getting the electoral vote of New York are better than those of the other Democratic candidates. If there is anything in logic, or in strategy, or in the common sense of a situation Harmon will be nominated."

"You say all this," I remarked, "as a progressionist, and not as a reactionist?"

"No," Mr. Moore answered, "I say it as a Democrat. I despise the word progressionist. When a Republican progresses far enough he becomes a Democrat. Roosevelt may join us by and by; also Senator La Follette. There are only two kinds of Democrats in my dictionary—good ones and bad ones. It makes the Democrats of Ohio weary to hear outsiders say that Harmon is standing still with old doctrines and obstinately refusing to go forward with the thought of the time. He has made more progress than any six Governors we have had in recent history. I am not talking as his friend, but as a citizen of Ohio. The greatest of all his achievements has been with respect to taxation. He has actually reduced the taxes on homes and farms, and at the same time has increased their valuation. It is impossible now in Ohio to collect more than 1 per cent. on property, no matter whether it be real or personal, unless by a vote of the people of a community or municipality a higher assessment is authorized for special purposes, and even in that event the rate cannot exceed 1½ per cent. Formerly there were districts where the rate was as high as 6 per cent. Our taxes were growing at the rate of $4,000,000 a year. Gov. Harmon stopped the increase. The tax spenders naturally objected. Neither they nor the grafters want him to be President.

We Cannot Be Too Careful.

[Philadelphia Ledger:] "I want," explained the advertising man—"I want a picture that has the idea of speed in it—real speed. I want it to go at a regular marathon. But it's got to be new."

"Yes, I see," and picked up a pencil. "How about Mercury? Something like this."

He sketched, rapidly, the figure of the messenger of Olympus, winged sandals, winged cap, symbolic staff and all. The advertising man looked it over approvingly.

"Seems all right," he commented. "But what does it mean?" Who's Mercury?"

"Oh, Mercury? He was the speediest thing that ever lived," the artist declared. "Mercury was the god of speed, you know."

But the advertising manager gave one long regretful look at the sketch and shook his head.

"Too bad," he murmured sadly. "Too bad; I like its looks, but it won't do. It won't do, young man. We can't get mixed up with anyone's religion like that."

We Offer a Home For Lazy Money

Where It Will Earn More Than Is Ordinarily Received

Opportunities

If you have been in Los Angeles for five or ten years you well know the possibilities that have existed for the making of phenomenally profitable investments. Of course, seven years ago, you did not realize that Los Angeles would be the city it is today, or you certainly would have taken advantage of some of the opportunities presented to you.

Remarkable Increase

Seven years ago this concern began business with $2350—it is now worth over a quarter of a million. It is earning now profits on lands and homes right here in Los Angeles at the rate of $100,000 yearly. It is growing rapidly and yet conservatively. There are almost a thousand owners of its issued stock and every one of them is gratified with the results of his investment. For six years regular and generous dividends have been paid from legitimate profits.

SAFETY Most Important

You may say: "There were several hundred home building and investment companies started during 1905 and 1906 that are not in business today. How was I to know?" Here is just the point we want to bring out. The Original Home Builders of Los Angeles was started more than seven years ago—has passed through the experimental stage—has been successful and is able to convince you that it is an absolutely safe investment today.

A Settled Fact

No need to tell you what Los Angeles will be in seven or ten years from now. It is a settled fact in your mind. You are convinced that Los Angeles will grow, and now you must realize what your investment in the Original Home Builders of Los Angeles today will be worth seven or ten years from now.

Say I Will

The simple question on making such an investment is—how much can you spare now. If you can save it now, you can probably do it again. None of the monthly payments will be much harder than the first. Isn't it only a question of saying "I will," and paying a small saving off your income? You have seen the advantage of co-operation—you realize the tremendous growth and value of compulsory savings. Is there any reason why you should not start today?

Advance in Price to $1.60

Shares advance in price to $1.60 on May 1st, 1912. This means you save $10.00 on every 100 shares purchased now; you also receive the next regular quarter's dividend of 3 per cent. (at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum,) payable May 10th, 1912. You may buy for cash or on easy payments, as follows:

Until May 1st You May Buy at $1.50

CONSERVATION OF NATURAL GAS.

IMPORTANT STUDY BY THE FEDERAL BUREAU OF MINES.

By a Fractioning Process Four Commercial Products May Be Produced from the Gas Too Often Allowed to Escape from the Petroleum Fields of the Country.

The Bureau of Mines at Washington has just issued technical paper No. 10, "Liquefied Products from Natural Gas: Their Properties and Uses," by Irving C. Allen and George A. Burrell, in an effort to show how natural gas, which is being allowed to escape almost without restraint in almost all of the petroleum fields of the country, may be conserved. The authors of the technical paper, in outlining their investigations, say:

"By fractioning natural gas, either during or after liquefaction, four products can be commercially obtained. Roughly, these four products may be described as follows: (1) The gaseous product, the common natural gas of commerce; (2) the semi-liquid product, known as the new 'wild' product, which should be used only as a liquefied gas and should be held in high-pressure steel containers only; (3) the light liquid product, or light gasoline used for blending with heavy naphthas, and (4) the heavy liquid product, or ordinary high-grade gasoline.

"The possibility of handling the second product in the way that Pintsch and Blau gases are handled, enabling small towns, hotels and country estates to have the advantage of gas illumination, manifestly opens a new field of comparatively great importance in the natural gas industry, and should add materially to the investments made in the so-called 'natural gasoline' industry.

"The liquefaction of gases by pressure is not a new industry, but only recently has its application to natural gas been recognized as practicable.

"Up to the last two years the general practice in the manufacture of liquid natural gas was to make the product by compression of the gas on the single-stage compressors operated at a pressure of 150 to 250 pounds per square inch. The one product obtained, so-called 'natural gasoline,' was run into a tank and 'weathered.' The weathering consisted in allowing the lighter portions to volatize spontaneously and escape into the open air until such time as the boiling away of the liquid had practically ceased. Thus the process involved a loss of 25 to 50 per cent., or even more. This loss was an absolute waste, not only of power and of cost of operating the engines and compressors, but of the product itself.

"The next step in the industry was to pass the waste gases (of which only the small quantity used for power had been utilized) from the single-stage compressor through a higher-stage compressor, thereby getting a second and more volatile product—a 'wilder' liquid—which was run back into the first and mixed with the first or heavier condensate. This mixture was then again weathered to a safe degree, whereby it lost the greater part of the more volatile product that had been condensed in the second stage.

"Recently the process had been improved another step, in that the first stage compressor product is run into one tank and handled as ordinary gasoline; the second compressor product is run into a second tank and handled as a lighter gasoline, with which the heavy refinery naphthas can be enriched or enhanced.

"The last-mentioned method of using the second stage compressor product should receive wide recognition, and a market for the product should develop that would be no mean factor in the industry. Blending in the proportions of, say, one part of the product to four or five parts of the refinery naphthas makes these heavy naphthas more volatile and of greater value as fuel for automobiles; it also greatly increases their general usefulness. The proportions to be used in blending, however, must be determined more definitely by test.

"The natural gas of this country frequently contains light products that do not condense in the second-stage compressor, and for which it is practicable and necessary to install three, four, and even higher stage compressors. These light products—true gases at ordinary temperatures and pressures—can be compressed and liquefied, but the liquid gases so obtained must be handled as gases and not as oils.

"The mistake heretofore made in the 'natural gas gasoline' industry, as some have recognized, has been the attempt to handle the light gaseous products as oils and not as gases. Until the manufacturers of this light-test third or fourth-stage compressor product recognize its gaseous nature, the absolute necessity for insuring the safety of the public involve certain restrictions in its transportation, and not until the realization that this extremely volatile liquid should be handled only in strong steel containers capable of withstanding high pressures will it be transported with safety."

Diamond Cutting Industry.

[London Globe:] At one time the diamond cutter's industry was confined almost entirely to Antwerp. There were in 1870 about 300 diamond cutters in the whole of Belgium, but today the number has grown to 16,000, their earnings on the average being forty francs a week, or about 32 shillings. Workshop and apparatus for the most part belong to the Syndicat Anversois. Many of the workers come from Holland, Germany and Switzerland. There are specialists who deal with the stones according to size and quality. It is estimated that the Dutch houses find employment for 8000 cutters, Germany for 800, Switzerland 400, America 200, while Paris and London reckon only 100 each.

Hardness of Diamonds.

[New York Press:] A carpenter runs his plane over a piece of wood and out come the pretty, curly shavings. Now, if a plane is made with a diamond blade instead of a steel blade, and the blade is set just right, the plane when run over glass will turn out fine, thinnest shavings, something like those made by a plane on wood. This gives some idea of the wonderful hardness of a diamond, yet there is something harder than a diamond; it is another diamond or even the same diamond, for a diamond may be very hard in one part and not so hard as it ought to be in another part.

BUILDING STOCKS are admittedly good investments—if you pick the right ones. It stands to reason that Preferred Building Stock is more desirable than Common Stock. Right there is the secret of this Company's immediate success. IT OFFERS THE ONLY PREFERRED BUILDING STOCK IN LOS ANGELES. Our Preferred Stock is selling now at par. It pays straight 7 per cent. Dividends, but it has no limits. Increasing assets and profits will permit the interest rate to rise indefinitely. The selling price will rise, too, so that purchasers NOW will naturally reap the biggest returns. Keep that in mind.

Unlimited Possibilities of This Stock

The Preferred Stock has first call on ALL earnings. Your 7 per cent. Dividend is the Company's first obligation on all Profits. These Dividends are paid you in cash.

The Common Stock receives no Dividends until 7 per cent. has been paid on every share of Preferred Stock. The remaining Profits are then paid on the Common Stock until 7 per cent. has been reached.

7%

When 7 per cent. has been paid on both the Preferred and Common Stock, both share equally in all remaining Profits. It is evident that a much greater Dividend than 7 per cent. can be paid on this Preferred Stock.

Present Price, $1 Per Share, to be Advanced

The public's immediate appreciation of the advantages of this stock over all others has made its first sales sufficiently large to make an advance in the selling price imperative. No date for this has been set by the Directors, but it will be SOON. Find the time to come to our offices tomorrow for further information. If it is impossible, fill out this Coupon and mail it immediately for booklet.

News From the Great California Oil Fields.

McKittrick.

DRILLERS ACTIVE ON NORTH FRONT

Construction Work Expands in New Territory.

Energetic Operators Invade Promising Field.

Numerous Wells Are Started About McKittrick.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

MCKITTRICK (Cal.) April 26.—The principal activity of the present week in the way of development has been on the North McKittrick front and contiguous territory, where the construction of new rigs, the building of tanks, the spudding in of one or two wells and miscellaneous work has kept many men busy.

In the McKittrick field proper general work has been prosecuted with the usual energy. Some additions to the mechanical equipment of some of the leading companies have been made, the construction of several rigs was begun, while the output of oil was maintained a steady average.

The Reward Oil Company, which operates one of the principal leases in the McKittrick district, has initiated development work on the North McKittrick front, thus adding to the interest manifested in the probable outcome of the area in which the Beiridge Oil Company has been operating successfully the past twelve months. Other concerns are at work on the North McKittrick front, with prospects more or less promising.

The Kern Trading and Oil Company on Thursday of this week began the erection of rigs Nos. 51 and 58, on the Davis lease, located in the McKittrick field. The company recently completed the building of rigs Nos. 107 and 122 on the Buena Vista lease, in the same district, and has brought in wells Nos. 47 and 50 on the Davis lease. Each of these wells is producing 150 barrels a day. The company is keeping two strings of tools running all the time, and work will continue indefinitely.

The Tumbadour Oil Company, on section 23, 31-22, is about ready to start up No. 7.

The General Petroleum Company has erected a rig on the northwest corner of section 2, 29-21, and has built one on the northwest half of section 11, 29-21; has put up another on the northeast quarter of section 11, 28-21, and is working on the second row of plates for a 55,000-barrel steel tank on section 2, 29-21.

REWARD ERECTS RIG.

The Reward Oil Company is putting in a rig on the southwest quarter of section 1, 29-21. This is the property purchased several months ago from Mrs. J. A. Chanslor and F. W. Kimble of San Francisco.

One of the new rigs to be seen on the North McKittrick front is owned by the Combination-Midway Oil Company. It is located on the southwest quarter of section, 6, 29-22.

The Pittsburgh-Beiridge Oil Company has spudded in its first well, on the northwest quarter of section, 30, 28-21.

Two new rigs are being constructed by The Beiridge Oil Company on section 24, 28-21.

The Union Oil Company, operating in new territory, on section 20, 27-23, twenty-two and one-half miles northwest of McKittrick, is drilling its first well, the depth of which is at present 800 feet. This property is located seven miles southeast of Lost Hills.

A standard rig is being put up on section 6, 26-22, three miles from the Union Oil Company's property.

The Associated Oil Company has added a new boiler to the equipment of station L, in the McKittrick field. The United States Oil Company has a new crew at work on its second well, on section 6, 30-22. The water has been shut off.

M. H. Whittier of Los Angeles, one of the most prominent oil operators in the State, a director of the Associated and largely interested in the Beiridge and other properties, was in the city this week on a tour of inspection.

Earl Bailey, who was formerly connected with the Mays Oil Company, has become superintendent of the General Petroleum Company's properties in the territory between the North McKittrick front and Lost Hills, succeeding F. W. Kimble, resigned. Mr. Kimble is one of the best known oil men in this section of California, and has taken a prominent part in the development of the new field. Mr. Bailey is also well and favorably known throughout the West Side districts.

Among the visitors in the city this week were Messrs. F. F. Hill, W. W. Orcutt and Alexander Work, prominently connected with the Union Oil Company. They visited the scene of operations of the company at the camp recently established in the country not far from Lost Hills and found work progressing in a very satisfactory manner.

Work of development was begun this week on the old Majestic property, on section 23, 31-22, situated eight miles south of McKittrick. The tract comprises forty acres.

OLINDA FIELD DOINGS.

STANDARD RIGS COMPLETED.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

FULLERTON, April 27. — Two rotary rigs are in readiness for drilling on the property of the Standard Oil Company of the Emery ranch.

Large interest is taken in this lease throughout the field, the general belief being it will make good in a big way. This belief is strengthened by the success of the Murphy on adjoining property.

The erection of the rig was finished last week, and the setting up of the machinery has just been completed. Two boilers are being erected on rig No. 62. Work is about completed on three 1000-barrel tanks, three bunkhouses and a cookhouse. Thirty men are employed on the lease.

It is anticipated that drilling will begin early this week. The fine equipment put upon the property gives assurance that the Standard will push work here, as it has done on all properties since its advent into the field.

A. H. Brown, production foreman, and Mr. Pickering of the field staff of the Union Oil Company have received a patent covering a new topping process they have installed on the property of the Murphy Oil Company, and from which satisfactory results have been derived.

The arrangement comprises a pan and coil system, the latter separating the oil and by-contents. With the plant now in operation they are cleaning 3000 barrels daily. The success that has been attained gives ground for the belief that through the use of the system the Murphy will save a large amount of oil that previously was considered certain of loss from the total production.

Santa Paula.

SITE FIXED FOR WADLEIGH WELL.

RALPH ARNOLD AND FRIENDS MAKE PREPARATIONS.

Casitas Field Will Be Tested Out by Noted Engineers—May Prove New Oil Territory—R. J. Tarbell Leases Quarter Section in Piru District.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

SANTA PAULA (Cal.) April 26.—The site was fixed last Tuesday for the first well to be drilled on the Wadleigh ranch, in the Casitas, acquired lately by the California Counties Oil Company.

The President, H. M. Bacon of New York, Dr. Ralph Arnold, the oil expert, and noted geologist, J. O. Lewis and R. B. Morgan, the engineers of the company, located the property at Casitas.

Work will be started soon on the property and as soon as the roads are in condition, a rig will be erected and drilling operations begun.

R. J. Tarbell has leased 160 acres in the Piru district, belonging to the Bardsdale Canon Oil Company. One-eighth royalty is what the lease was given for. The company was originally capitalized in 1900, under the laws of California, for $500,000, but has recently been reduced to $25,000.

NEW POSSIBLE OIL FIELD.

Geology of South End of San Joaquin Valley—Report Republished by United States Geological Survey.

A preliminary report on the geology and possible oil resources of the south end of the San Joaquin Valley, Cal., by Robert Anderson, of the United States Geological Survey, has just been republished as Bulletin No. 471-A-5, an advance chapter of the survey's annual bulletin on economic geology. The first edition of the report was almost immediately exhausted.

The vast stores of petroleum discovered in the rocks along the foothills of the Temblor Range on the southwest side of the valley and in the foothills of the Sierra Nevadas, near Bakersfield, on the northeast side, at once suggest, says Mr. Anderson, the possibility of oil occurring, in the continuation of this foothill belt, around the south end of the valley between these two productive districts. Very little attention has been given to the geology of this intermediate region, and no tests of its oil possibilities have been made.

With a view to obtaining a general idea of the geologic features and the possible oil resources the geologist made a reconnaissance around the south end of the valley during the early part of October, 1910. His conclusions, as presented in the report, are necessarily of a general and preliminary nature.

The main conclusion is that a continuous productive area joining the present developed fields on the two sides of the valley is by no means to be expected, but that two or more areas situated near the border of the foothills at the south end of the valley offer favorable conditions for the accumulation of oil. It is believed that the oil-bearing formations lie too deep beneath the level portions of the San Joaquin Valley, between Bakersfield and Buena Vista Lake, and the San Emigdio region, to be accessible. Around the foothill belt that fringes the valley the possible oil-bearing formations are not continuous and the structural conditions are not uniform, so that if oil is to be found at all it must be sought in areas where the presence of oil-bearing strata and the occurrence of favorable geologic structure combine to make the accumulation of oil possible. One such area containing peculiarly favorable conditions is to be found in Wheeler Ridge, which extends into the valley east of Pleito Creek. Another promising area lies farther west, along the edge of the valley north of the mouths of Muddy and Santiago creeks and northwest of the mouth of San Emigdio Creek. The latter area bids fair to form an eastward extension of the Sunset field, but it does not appear likely to be continuous with the prospective Wheeler Ridge field mentioned above.

These areas, as well as other parts of the region, are described in the report, and it is possible that when studied in detail areas other than those just mentioned may prove to have stratigraphic and structural conditions favorable for the accumulation of oil. The paper is accompanied by a sketch map.

A copy of the report may be obtained free on application to the Director of the Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

Mineralogical Groups.

LOS ANGELES, April 6.—Q.: (1) To what group is serpentine scheduled? (2) Give an example of a subsilicate with a reference. (3) Name the principal members of the epidote group, and likewise (4) of the feldspar. (5) What method do you use in the test for fluorine?

"PUZZLED."

A.: (1) The serpentine group, and a unisilicate. (2) Chondrodite; gelatinizes in acids, and reacts for iron and fluoride. (3.) Epidote group; epidote, allanite and zoisite. (4) Feldspar group: Labradorite, oligoclase, albite and orthoclase. (5) The chemistry method: Fluorine when combined with little water and weak gases can be tested by heat, the sample being in a closed tube, and in which tube insert a slip of Brazil wood-paper, moistened. The paper changes to a straw-yellow color, and "a ring of silica is deposited near the assay." Fluorine in any combination can be detected by mixing some of the suspected substance in pulverized form with salt of phosphorus first fused on charcoal and powdered, then heat the mixture in an open glass tube, so that the flame can be sent into the inside of the tube by the air current; further recognized by its effect on glass, and its pungent odor. The mineral fluorite in a bath of sulphuric acid gives off fumes of hydrofluoric acid which corrode glass.

STANDARD GETS A HUGE GUSHER.

Thirty Thousand Barrels Is Daily Estimate.

Company Constructs Sumps for Production.

Producers Finish Pipe Line in Lost Hills.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

BAKERSFIELD, April 27.—The Standard's gusher in the southwest corner of section 36, 31-23, which broke loose Thursday morning, is estimated to be flowing at the rate of 30,000 barrels a day.

The well is known as McKee No. 4, and was brought in with ten-inch casing.

The company is busily engaged in building reservoirs and sumps to take care of the huge production. The oil sands were entered at a depth of 2406 feet. The well started to gush when the drill was at 2520 feet depth. It is situated in the narrow valley, separating the two ranges of the Buena Vista Hills, through which the Standard's pipe line runs, and is a mile north of the main pumping station.

FOREIGNERS INVESTIGATE.

Indications are that foreign capital is looking for investments in the California oil fields to a greater extent now than ever before. Proposals of purchase of the Bear Creek holdings in North Midway, involving more than $1,000,000, was recently turned down by the directors, because of certain proposed restrictions, which the company was not willing to grant. The Bear Creek holdings are in shallow territory, the wells there ranging from 100 to 300 barrels a day production.

PIPE LINE IS READY.

According to advices from Lost Hills everything is in readiness for the reception of oil at the Producers' Transportation Company's pipe line, from the General Petroleum's camp on section 4, 27-21. The General Petroleum's pumping plant is installed and reports are that the first run will be made today.

The company has between 18,000 and 20,000 barrels of oil in tanks, with four wells completed and the fifth drilling.

Other Lost Hills companies have contracted with the Union, owner of the Producers Transportation Company, for their output, and with the oil already on hand and the estimated production from new wells the pipe line will have plenty of business to attend to.

The Universal started Monday with a 50,000-barrel run to the Associated. The company has a production of about 135,000 barrels a month, with 70,000 barrels in storage.

SELLS CHOICE LAND.

What is known as the "Derby Section," forty acres, on section 16, 32-24, has been sold by J. H. Corcoran to the Munroe Oil Company of Los Angeles for $40,000, or $1000 an acre. The land adjoins that upon which is located the Standard gasser.

The Munroe was organized for the purpose of acquiring this land, developing it for gas, and for oil, should that be struck. Among the stockholders of the company are W. C. Price, George H. Walker and J. M. McLeod, all of Los Angeles.

WELL ALMOST FINISHED.

The Californian Amalgamated, on section 28, 31-23, Midway field, has drilled in well No. 1 to a depth of 3100 feet, despite obstructions, and has but 100 feet to go to finish at original bottom. This was a good flowing well before the casing collapsed. Therefore a large production is expected as soon as the reconstruction work is completed.

The K. T. & O. has just completed a well on the north line of section 13, 32-23, Midway, at a depth of 3000 feet. It is flowing by heads 300 barrels a day of 24-gravity oil. The company has succeeded in shutting off the water in No. 35 well, section 31, 12-23. It drilled too deep and the shutting off of the water was accomplished with difficulty.

In the vicinity of this well the Midnight has been cemented at 2685 feet. The Daybreak, adjoining the Midnight on the north, was cemented three weeks ago and they are now preparing for test of the job. The Daybreak was drilled to a depth of 2760 feet.

Lone Star to Reorganize.

Sherwood Aldrich has resigned as president of the Goldfield Lone Star Mining Company, succeeded by W. W. Watterson, and plans are now being made to reorganize under the name of the Lone Star Consolidated on the assessable basis, to take over the property of the old company. Operations, it is announced, will be placed under the direction of a competent superintendent.

Santa Maria.

PINAL COMPANY NEEDS CAPITAL.

ERSTWHILE DIVIDEND PAYER CALLS MEETING.

Corporation on the Market for Two Years Discontinued Operations When Option to Sell Was Given—Long Idleness Necessitates the Raising of Large Sum.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

SANTA MARIA, April 26.—The Pinal Oil Company has issued a call for a stockholders' meeting June 6 for the purpose of voting on a proposed increase in the capital stock from $200,000 to $2,000,000. This, it is announced, is for continuing developments of the properties of the company and to expand.

The company has been in the market for over two years, at which time a proposal to sell the company was turned down by the stockholders. Several tentative buyers were secured, option money deposited, and the property put in shape for a transfer, but to date these overtures have only tended to make a many-sided market.

Almost $1,000,000 has been paid in dividends during the lifetime of the company, but during the time of pending negotiations for a sale, development work has been discontinued, and now a large sum is needed to put the company on a substantial basis.

TO DRILL NEW GROUND.

Work will soon begin on the northern end of the Corral de Quati rancho, in the lower Foxen Canyon district. The first well will be drilled a short distance from the Associated pumping station, six miles from Los Olivos.

The tract is considered one of the largest undivided areas in the country. It is owned by R. B. Canfield of Santa Barbara. Other drilling in the neighborhood has been confined to the Princess and Dome wells to the northwest, both of which succeeded in getting a live oil showing but which have not yet been put on a producing basis.

The entire tract comprises 9900 acres. It has been leased by the new operators, whose names have not yet been made public. Work is to begin as soon as a site can be prepared and the company will then be organized on a permanent footing.

PRODUCES AT LAST.

After two years of unsuccessful effort, the Los Alamos Petroleum well is now proving a substantial producer. This property is west of the Dome in Cat Canyon and has long been the center of dispute as to its oil possibilities, owing to the fact that results were not obtained sooner.

The hole was drilled through more than 150 feet of oil sand in 1910 and when finished a heaving sand clogged the pipe at each attempt to put it on the pump. Every means was used to induce this oil to flow, the work continuing for two years. A mixture of distillate and high gravity finally loosened the sand and the well started at the rate of 2500 barrels daily. After settling down, it was placed on the pump and is now doing between 700 and 1000 barrels a day. The oil is 13 gravity. The Palmer Annex controls the property.

NEW VERMONT SQUARE.

Fifty bungalows, either completed or under way, dot the New Vermont Square Tract, which was recently added to the Vermont Square subdivision by the Southwest Land Company.

Following is the list of most recent builders: Mrs. Jennie Schweichew, corner of Halldale and Forty-ninth street; Otto M. Ekman, north side of Forty-seventh street, between Normandie and Halldale; F. N. Halgren, north side of Forty-fifth street, between Vermont and Kansas; D. W. McLean, north side of Forty-sixth street, between Harvard and Western avenue; Fred W. Brokate, south side of Forty-fifth street, between Normandie and Halldale; A. O. Johnson, south side of Forty-sixth, between Halldale and Denker; Mrs. Ada L. Deuel, north side of Forty-first place, between Gramercy and Arlington; James B. Moser, north side of Thirty-third place, between St. Andrews and Gramercy place and James B. Moser, north side of Vernon, between Gramercy and Arlington.

Robert L. Borden, the Premier of Canada, who is at the Virginia Hot Springs, is known as the earliest riser at the springs. He is up at 6:30 every morning, and from that hour on is likely to be found on the golf links

Largest California Orange Grower Will Raise Apples in Owens Valley

One of the largest orange growers in Southern California, whose name we are not at this time permitted to disclose, has purchased 1600 acres of land in the Owens Valley. One hundred acres of this land is now being set to apple trees.

That the Owens Valley is especially well adapted for growing the famous Winesap Apple is thoroughly demonstrated by the full-bearing orchards to be found in that section. The fruit is firm, is a good seller and a fine keeper—rivaling the best varieties grown in Washington or Oregon.

As only certain localities in California are adapted for Citrus Fruits, so only are other sections suited to growing apples in a commercial way.

It is a significant fact that a number of orange growers are going in for the raising of apples, it having been proven that the latter is already a strong rival for preference over the golden fruit, and that the industry promises to be even more profitable than orange growing.

One of the most favored sections for apples is in the upper portion of the famous Owens Valley, near the headwaters of the great Owens River Project that is soon to furnish Los Angeles with an almost limitless supply of pure water.

This section is being rapidly developed. Contract for grading, which will convert the narrow gauge road to Bishop into a standard gauge road has been let. Not only will this open up that part of the State, but it will furnish easy and quick transportation for all the fruit that can be raised.

Water conditions here are ideal, the supply coming from the melting snows of the Sierra Nevada Mountains.

Not only do apples grow here to perfection, but the land will yield seven tons of alfalfa to the acre in three cuttings.

The largest apple dealers in Los Angeles will substantiate every claim that is made for Owens Valley. One tract of 400 acres, within four miles of Bishop, is now offered for sale on very attractive terms. One hundred acres of this land has been cleared, and about forty acres seeded to alfalfa.

The above tract is well situated and is ripe for subdivision. Owner wants to dispose of it as a whole; part cash, balance on easy terms. Full particulars may be obtained by applying to Land Department of Bryan & Bradford, 202 to 212 Trust and Savings Building, corner Sixth and Spring streets, Los Angeles. Tract deal direct with owner.

Rushing to Completion--- Extension of $500,000 Boulevard

Mr. Business Man! Mr. Homeseeker and Mr. Investor! Here is your opportunity to own a country home where values are bound to increase. Big improvements mean quick profits. A great stretch of this magnificent $500,000 boulevard has been completed. The land on either side placed on the market about a year ago is held by the purchasers at prices far above the original figures. The extension of the big boulevard is NOW being rushed to completion. Gangs of men and huge steam rollers are at work rapidly forging it into shape. When completed a beautiful park driveway 15 miles in length and centered by the electric road, will stretch through the VAN NUYS-LANKERSHIM LANDS. Now is your opportunity to invest — before this boulevard and the other vast improvements are completed.

In a Few Days, Prices Will Be Advanced

The great improvement work demands it. Get in now—5, 10, 15 or 20 acres and share in the increased profits. Here's the cream of Southern California land, right at the gates of the fastest growing city, with greatest improvements. Come out and see the young orchards planted, the splendid homes building and the wonderful new town of Owensmouth. You must ack quick. RICH STRIKE IN PLUMAS COPPER.

Eagle Encounters a Twelve-foot Ore Body.

Bunker Hill Disburses Its Seventieth Dividend.

Local Oil Men Take Option in High Grade.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

SACRAMENTO (Cal.) April 25.—The richest strike ever made in the Plumas copper fields is reported from the Eagle mine, in the Greenville district. At a point thirty-two feet from the main adit a twelve-foot body of ore has been intersected, averaging 30 per cent. copper. In addition, gold and silver values occur, the ore running about $10 a ton in the precious metals. This gives a total approximate value of $100 a ton. The vein has been followed for several feet and gives every indication of persisting to great depth.

The discovery is considered the most important in the history of the district, and has created considerable excitement.

The Eagle Copper Company is operating near the town of Taylorsville. The properties have been developed by means of a 500-foot adit and comprehensive lateral workings. The principal ore body averages sixty feet in width, and is said to assay 30 per cent. copper throughout. Work has progressed for several years, and a large tonnage of ore is blocked out. Beside the copper content, gold and silver values also occur. The company recently completed the erection of a modern 100-ton smelter, and expects to begin the production of matte at an early date. The company is composed principally of San Francisco and Southern California capitalists.

ACTIVITIES AT KENTON.

The Kenton Mining Company, operating in the Alleghany district, announces arrangements have been made to operate its ten-stamp mill with electricity. Power will be received from the wires of the Middle Tuba Hydro-Electric Company, and the change will enable the company to continue milling throughout the year. In the past lack of water has often forced suspension of milling in the Alleghany district during the late fall months.

Considerable work is being done at the property, and ore conditions are said to be eminently satisfactory. The Kenton lies in the rich gold belt demonstrated by the Tightner, Rainbow, Red Star and other noted Alleghany mines. It is believed the extension of the Tightner-Rainbow vein system continues through the Kenton estate. T. R. Garnier and associates of Los Angeles control the company.

DIVIDEND FOR BUNKER HILL.

With the payment of the regular monthly dividend of 7½ cents on April 15 the Bunker Hill mine, near Amador City, marked the seventieth consecutive monthly dividend disbursed. Prior to the advent of 1911 most of these dividends were at the rate of 5 cents, but since that time the present figure has been maintained.

The property figures as one of the most profitable operated in California, and the manager's report indicates a long and prosperous future. The forty-stamp mill is operating principally on ore from the 1750 and 1950-foot levels. The ore bodies are of immense size, in places running up to ninety feet in width. At the 1950-foot point the vein develops exceptional strength, and arrangements are under way to open it at a lower point. In addition to the mammoth main ledge an excellent vein recently encountered in virgin territory is receiving attention. The property is being operated under the superintendency of Elisha Hampton, the expert who opened the world-famous Hampton stope in the Goldfield Consolidated.

SINKING AT THE LIGHTNER.

The shaft at the Lightner mine has attained a depth of 825 feet, and is rapidly approaching the 1000-foot level. From this point drifts and crosscuts will be sent out to pick up the veins demonstrated in the upper levels. The old shaft opened the property to considerable depth and proved the existence and persistent nature of several ledges, and the new stations will open these further down and render ore extraction more favorable, with a reduction of costs.

The Lightner is one of the big mines of the mother lode, and for years has figured as one of the best producers in Calaveras county. The property is equipped with a sixty-stamp mill and excellent mine equipment.

TAKE OPTIONS IN HIGH GRADE.

The option to acquire the Sunshine group of claims at High Grade has been transferred to B. N. Dawson of Los Angeles by James Llewellyn, both Los Angeles men. It is reported Dawson and associates have decided to exercise their option and take over the claims. The Sunshine is the famous property that first attracted outside attention to the High Grade district, following the discovery of bonanza ore.

The shoot is said to be seven inches wide and has been opened in places to a depth of twenty-two to 180 feet by shallow shafts and surface workings. As the strike was made late in the summer it became impossible to operate the claim extensively owing to the approach of the winter storms. Most of the quartz thus far extracted has been taken from the seventy-foot level.

Dawson and associates have acquired the Yellow Jacket and Garcon claims and are planning developments as soon as weather conditions permit. These properties lie near the proved ore zone and give promise of development into good holdings. It is understood interests connected with the Tonopah Oil Company are largely concerned. Llewellyn holds options on several claims and with Los Angeles associates plans active development as soon as the melting snow permits.

HYDRAULIC MINES ACTIVE.

The Brandy City mines at Brandy City, and the Neocene at Scales are operating at full capacity. The late rains assure the continuation of active work beyond the anticipated season. Everything indicates an eventful year. Both properties report the finding of excellent gravel, and extensive deposits of long-neglected material are yielding golden wealth.

Recent complaints that hydraulic mines were depositing debris in the navigable streams led the operators to invite the Anti-Debris people to make an investigation. The Anti-Debrites reported the hydraulic men were complying with regulations, and there is no danger of interference with activities from that source. Both the Neocene and Brandy City hydraulic mines are controlled largely by Los Angeles people.

PASADENANS ACQUIRE PLACERS.

Options on placer claims in the North Bloomfield section have been secured by A. B. Call and associates of Pasadena. Arrangements have been made for comprehensive prospecting and it is said work will begin within a few weeks. The claims lie in the heart of the noted auriferous belt. North Bloomfield was at one time the center of California hydraulic activities, but of late years has attracted little attention. It is understood Call and associates plan to work the deposits by the drift mining method.

IMPORTANT DEAL IS PENDING.

It is reported the Craige Mining Company is about to close a deal for the acquisition of the Globe group of gold mines near Dedrich, Trinity county. The holdings include the Bailey-Chloride group, in addition to the original Globe claims. The properties have been consistent producers for twenty-five years, although generally operated along restricted lines. The veins are of fair size and carry gold milling values.

The Craige interests acquired the Mason & Thayer properties last fall and have conducted comprehensive developments during the winter months. It was recently announced the company had decided to erect a ten-stamp mill. Water and timber are abundant, with natural conditions particularly favorable for economical operation. With the acquisition of the Globe group the properties can easily be operated from a central point. Eastern and California people are interested.

RAINS HURT MINING.
WORK IS SUSPENDED.

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) April 26.—The severe weather of the past month has been the cause of suspension of work on a number of mountain mines around this city, in localities where the snow lay three feet deep upon the roads. The same weather has been of great benefit to the placer miners and old-time rockers have been set up in many gulches, where water is flowing in abundance. Placer miners are thick in the Big Bug district, where rich returns have been reported already from localities unworked for years on account of drouth.

The eighth carload of silver ore from the Silver Prince and Black Warrior mines in the Bradshaw Mountains has passed through Prescott, with an estimated value of $5000. These mines now are owned by the Swastika Development Company, which has realized over $50,000 from ore shipments within the past half year. The Black Warrior was one of the famous mines of the Peck district in early days and from it came ore that was nearly all silver.

KEANE WONDER MAY BE SOLD.

Latest Official Statement Indicates Change.

Improvements Planned That Would Double Output.

Death Valley Mine Destined for First Rank.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

GOLDFIELD (Nev.) April 26.—The Keane Wonder mine of Death Valley which has been the football of rich men since the failure of the State Bank and Trust Company of Goldfield, five years ago, is about to change hands, according to reports received from Philadelphia.

These reports have been circulated in various forms for the last year, but every time they have been received withincredulity owing to the fact that the title was not, apparently, definitely settled in the hands of the company. At the time of the failure the bank held a huge block of the stock as collateral for a loan.

This stock was taken out of the assets and apportioned among creditors who, under the laws of Nevada, claimed the right to any share of the assets which they thought deserving of their notice. In this way a large percentage of the business was liquidated to the sorrow of the depositors who found themselves left with a mere shell of the former property.

Then the matter was taken up between the claimants and the courts with the receiver acting as a friend of the depositors but the collateral remained in the strongest hands and the title was confirmed through some sort of compromise between the litigants. The buyers are said to have acquired possession of the stock held by Thomas B. Rickey, former president of the bank and the complete transfer of the mine and mill is likely to occur at any time the buyers are satisfied to exercise their option.

According to the reports Homer Wilson, who has been in charge of the property, will remain as manager. He is credited with holding 5000 shares of the company. The stock has never been of the speculative order, owing to the uncertainties hedging its ownership and it is estimated that not more than 80,000 shares are afloat.

REPORTS ARE MEAGER.

Reports from the Keane Wonder have been meager since the destruction of the aerial tramway, which compelled complete suspension of work and a stoppage of revenue. With renewed activity it is said the output, on a conservative basis will not exceed $20,000, although the old management always contended it was producing at the rate of $30,000 a month. All reports were forwarded to the headquarters at San Francisco and the general public was kept in the dark so far as actual operations and results were concerned.

The ore is free milling and is said to carry about $22 a ton values. The tonnage can be materially increased with small additions to the plant and it is said improvements are projected which will double the output. This can be done at a comparatively small cost and the only mine in Death Valley which has continued to be a steady producer may yet compete with some of the more northern mines in Nevada for first rank.

NEW MILL FOR KLONDYKE.

James Golden has completed arrangements for installing a twenty-five ton concentrating mill at his property at Klondyke, on the outskirts of Goldfield, where he has been operating for years with a small force, taking out and shipping to the Salt Lake smelters. This expensive proceeding will be dispensed with as the mill can take care of all the product at a minimum of cost and the operator be saved the enormous cost of freighting to the reduction plant.

The change is made in accordance with the suggestion of the smelters which are sorely in need of silicious ores and are eager to contract for ores bearing silicate at a special low treatment rate. The plant will be in operation within ninety days.

The equipment will include one crusher, two rollers, the Australian pan treatment, reducing the fines to 200 mesh and a complete cyanide plant. On the surface now there is estimated to be 15,000 tons that will average around $10 a ton. These dumps have been worked over and the high-grade shipped, but the remaining material will yield a good profit from milling. There is an ample supply of water for milling but the first two stages of the process, crushing and rolling, will be a dry process and will not require any water.

BLACK BUTTE LOOMS UP.

Reports from the Black Butte Mining and Leasing Company's property on the Black Butte at Diamondfield are of the most flattering character. The owners are employees in the offices of the Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company, and are all well versed in the mining game.

The latest report from John K. Turner, their consulting engineer, reviews the work accomplished in the past six weeks and states it is the best and most economic performance in the district, with the average cost for drifting, raising and timbering being but a few cents below $4 a foot.

The work is now approaching a stage where actual results may be expected. Developments are in progress at four points in the mine and one of the faces is just entering the great quartzite vein which made such a large production in early operation.

Mr. Turner recently returned from the old Panamint where he directs the operations. He spent several days in Denver purchasing machinery and equipment for a mill and for the treatment of a considerable quantity of ore from the mine in order to determine the cheapest manner of building the concentrator and handling the concentrates. A mill of large capacity will be erected at the mine shortly.

AT JACKSON MOUNTAIN.

Over at Jackson Mountain, within twenty miles south of Goldfield, a couple of Belgian engineers are examining a high-grade copper property which has been optioned at a figure which guarantees development on a large scale if the option is taken up.

The estate comprises some forty claims opened with a couple of shafts which disclose good bodies of ore running as high as 20 per cent. copper, but the wealth of the showing staggers belief. Therefore the pros-

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY, CHEMISTRY.

INQUIRIES FROM AND ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Baryte.

YUMA (Ariz.) April 2.—Q.: I have read many times in your valuable paper, of analyses you have made. Please be kind enough to let me know the analysis of this rock.

C. F. G.

A.: The sample is composed approximately of baryta (oxide,) 60 per cent., with sulphuric acid, 21 per cent. Iron oxides (ferrous and ferric,) with sulphur, occur in the specimen as impurities. The sample is not pure enough for use in the paint trade.

Natrolite.

MANSE (Nev.) April 2.—Q.: This sample was picked on the desert from a chalk formation southeast of Manse. It may be crystallized mineral of some kind, and of value. Please give me a description of the substance in the usual column. T. T.

A.: The sample is in acicular crystals, with a radiating fibrous structure. Color, reddish-brown. Of a lustrous pearly appearance, inclining to vitreous. Translucent. Streak white. Fracture uneven-conchoidal. Brittle. Sp. gr., 2. Hardness 5. Approximate composition: Silica, 47.4; alumina, 26.9; soda, 16.2; water, 9.5 percentages respectively. Before the blowpipe fuses easily to a transparent glass (natrolite is No. 2, in the scale of fusibility.) Dissolves in hydrochloric acid forming a residue of jelly-like silica. Natrolite is a zeolite, and zeolitic minerals form a jelly with acids.

Botryoidal Limonite.

LOS ANGELES, April 3.—Q.: I am sending you a sample that I picked from a small cave northwest of Flagstaff, Ariz. You will observe that it has a beautiful color and looks like a kidney of fire-opal. Does the sample give test for uranium? Please explain this to me. T. E.

A.: It does not clearly appear what you want explained. There is no uranium present in the sample, and your description comparing the specimen to Girasol is not a mineralogical comparison, in fact. Limonite when botryoidal makes fine cabinet specimens, especially so when "peacock-iron" is present as is the case with the sample submitted. Limonite, as you probably know, is hydrated iron peroxide.

Cinnabar.

PARKFIELD (Monterey county) April 3.—Q.: Is a deposit of black quicksilver ore more valuable than cinnabar, the red ore? Will you classify the enclosed sample? Is a large outcrop of this worth sinking on? Do you think a sedimentary deposit of more value than serpentine deposit? Is there a good future for a quicksilver mine? C. F. F.

A.: Mineralogically, black quicksilver ore can be referred to as metacinnabarite, and it carries more "quick" than cinnabar does. Cinnabar often occurs associated with quartz and marcasite, and we have often found a "black" cinnabar ore (carrying altered marcasite) that was far inferior to the red variety. The sample you submit carries low per cent. protosulphide of mercury with sulphur, and specifically shows the mineral (cinnabar,) under the glass present in traces only. The sample is chiefly gray and black in color; the black content is iron oxide; the gray color is the result of smoke, at one time o' day, and bitumen is present with aluminum silicate. A large outcrop of mineral represented by the sample is "worth sinking on," but do not sink too deep unless you strike higher grade cinnabar.

The greater per cent. of the mercury of commerce is distilled from cinnabar, and it occurs in beds and veins and the primary and secondary formations. It is most abundant among the softer rocks, such as shales, slates, limestones, etc., and least abundant among the granites (hard granite especially.) porphyritic rocks, etc. When we were called to the cinnabar fields of Brewster county, Tex., some twelve years ago, it was carefully noted that much of the capping, on the hills near Terlingua, was composed of crystallized calcite. A high authority accompanied us on the examination of the country and we remember distinctly that he objected to the "country rock" because the mountains were not capped with sandstone (sedimentary.) Serpentine is found abundantly in company with primary rocks. Serpentine "amounts to an eruptive rock all by itself, showing in dykes and round-backed ridges and hills." To completely, and specifically, reply to your question relating to serpentine and sedimentary deposits. It would call for the information: What variety of serpentine do you refer to? There is a good future for a quicksilver mine, provided that it is a "good" high-grade proposition.

Zircon and Epidote.

SAN DIEGO, April 6.—Q.: The two samples in separate, numbered envelopes inclosed, were found by me. No. 1 in a dry-wash and No. 2 in the shape of a little branch-like formation and located in San Diego county. What I desire to know is: What are these little yellow-colored crystals? Is the beautiful greenish and reddish-colored sample tourmaline? W. E. J.

A.: Sample No. 1 is zircon. No. 2 is not tourmaline; it is a very handsome variety of epidote. It would be well to prospect a little in that dry-wash.

The Glass Industry.

LOS ANGELES, April 4.—Q.: I am sending to you under separate cover a sample of sand from the Monterey district, and herewith propound two questions, as follows: (1) Is this sand pure enough for use in the manufacture of glass? (2) What materials are required in the manufacture of glass?

F. C. H.

A.: (1) Yes. (2) "The chief materials used in bulk in glass-making are lime, silica, and soda, with smaller quantities of other materials, such as potash, lead and alumina. Glass consists of an acid like silicic acid or boracic acid, combined with an alkaline earth, as lime, barium, or strontium, and an alkaline metal, as soda or potash. Of these materials, silica and lime are cheaper than any of the others, hence are commonly used in ordinary glass, and soda more commonly than potash." Calcite (carbonate of lime) is distributed widely, and somewhat evenly, at a great number of localities in California. Minerals carrying sodium and boron also occur plentifully in the State. Minerals and waters carrying potash, in percentages that would pay costs of extraction in a commercially prosperous basis, as yet, are undiscovered in the territory of our good, old United States; the United States Geological Survey to the contrary notwithstanding. Silica (from quartz or opal silica) occurs plentifully in California, but much of the quartz, and the quartzites (sand and sandstone) are of too impure a grade for use in the glass industry.

"There is a large sand deposit at Monterey of sufficient purity to make good glass, and it is used for that purpose to the extent of 5000 tons per year. At Tesla, in Alameda county, is another large deposit of sand that is used for glass-making. So far as could be ascertained there is no sandstone used in this State for the manufacture of glass." ("Structural and Industrial Materials of California, P. 276.")

Graphite Present.

CIMA, April 5.—Q.: I am sending you two samples of rock, marked Nos. 1 and 2. Will you kindly give short description of No. 1? I have an idea that it carries graphite, and it occurs in the contact between two different classes of rock, and some of the rock looks like decomposed dioryte. I have a stringer on the surface like sample No. 2, and have done considerable tunnel work trying to cut the vein which is alongside of a dyke of dioryte, and in several different places have found matter like No. 1. The rock comes from the Kelso district. T. S. J.

A.: The thought occurs; why not follow the hint given by nature, and follow "matter like No. 1?" Sample No. 1 is a talcose schist with graphite present. No. 2 consists of four specimens; one of the samples is high grade lead ore, shown by the galenite, cerussite and plumbic ochre present. One other sample of No. 2 can be made up of the remaining three specimens, and all carry copper carbonates, chalcopyrite, "peacock-iron," pyrite, and pyrrhotite (magnetic pyrite.)

Interesting Minerals.

LOS ANGELES, April 5.—Q.: I am sending you herewith four samples of mineral taken from a lead located in the eastern part of San Bernardino county, Cal., each sample is marked within a slip containing the number and an inquiry. I also enclose two samples of bismuth ore taken from same lead but 1000 feet away from where these samples were taken; these samples; however are in small kidneys or stringers; whereas the other samples come from a large body of mineralized matter. This is so different from anything that I have ever encountered in my prospecting before, that I thought it might be interesting to your readers. I know many of "the boys in the hills" read your "In the Earth" columns with a great deal of interest and much benefit. The samples marked from Nos. 1 to 4 are all from different strata in the lead, and in the order as encountered in cross-cutting from foot-wall towards hanging-wall. The sample with so much sulphur comes from a four-foot stratum, and it is so full of sulphur that one can set it on fire with a match—on the dump, or in the tunnel before being broken down. I think that from the color, etc., that all of these samples may carry bismuth, as well as alum and sulphur. Looking forward with pleasure to learn from you about this very odd occurrence in nature, and to learn definitely about the bismuth and the minerals submitted. J.S.

A.: Glad to know that our humble efforts are appreciated. Your letter is of an interesting nature, and the minerals? No. 1 is impure limonitic alunite with bismuth absent. No. 2 "Bismuth from same lead as samples;" The sample is ochreous and hematitic (iron and not bismuth ochre.) No. 3 is limonitic with sulphate (iron.) Second No. 4 is composed of sulphur, sulphate of iron and aluminum with negative results for bismuth. No. 4, straight, is a grayish silicate of aluminum carrying iron oxides with sulphides present. No bismuth in straight 4. From your letter the fact appears that you have "struck" a good claim of sulphates, sulphur, and iron oxides from which acids, copperas (ferrous sulphate,) and sulphur can, probably, be obtained at a commercial profit when worked, and surely so if sufficient water is near at hand.

Hematite.

TEHACHEPI, April 5.—Q.: The sample that I inclose in this wrapper was taken from the top of a small cave about two miles from Tehachepi. It is so beautiful in appearance, together with its quite heavy weight, that I submit the sample for name and description. A. M. E.

A.: Specimens obtained from the roof of a cavern are known as stalactites, and those obtained from the floor of caves are stalagmite. The sample you submit is botryoidal; between iron-black and steel-gray in color, of metallic luster and splendent, opaque, but slightly translucent; in thin laminae (such as occurs in the variety micaceous-iron ore,) is of blood-red color by transmitted light. Streak cherry-red, and the color of the streak distinguishes hematite from magnetite, the last-named being black. Of subchonchoidal and uneven fracture. Some specimens are feebly magnetic (your sample is not magnetic.) Hardness 5.5., sp. gr., 5. Composition, when pure, iron 70 per cent.; oxygen, 30 (peroxide or sesquioxide of iron.) -Soluble in hot hydrochloric acid. Powdered hematite is used for polishing gold, silver, tin, etc. The specimen is almost as beautiful as the world-renowned hematite of Elba.

China Products.

NATIONAL CITY, April 6.—Q.: I am sending you by this mail package containing three samples of mineral, and marked Nos. 1, 2 and 3; they are found along the new San Diego and Arizona Railroad, near Campo. Will you kindly advise what they are, their commercial value, etc. I would like to know approximate percentage of alumina in No. 1. M.

A: There is but little approximate percentage that we would stand for without a thorough quantitative analysis combined with kiln work. Alumina is present in No. 1. No. 2 is an impure aplite with traces of beryllium. No. 3 (the linonitic stained sample,) is a silicate of alumina, impure, with magnesia present.

Dolomite.

RIVERSIDE, April 7.—Q.: I send you a sample of what I have always believed to be limestone, but upon submitting the sample (half) to an assayer I get the news that the sample is not limestone, together with the information that "I am not a mineralogist." Will you please tell me what is the name of the sample? Of what is it composed? Has a two-foot vein of the material any commercial value?

L. T.

A.: The sample is magnesium limestone (dolomite.) Fracture uneven, concholdal; hardness 4; sp. gr., 2.8. Of vitreous and pearly luster, color white, in small pieces slowly soluble in hydrochloric acid; after ignition reacts alkaline, and made up of calcium carbonate, 54.35, with magnesium carbonate, 45.65, percentages respectively. The sample is high grade; Epsom salt and other chemicals can be manufactured from mineral represented by the sample, and it is a source of commercial carbonic acid.

PIONEER PLANT TO BE BLOWN IN.

Smelter Will Start With Large Tonnage.

Ore for Initial Run from Plumed Knight.

Arizona-Belmont Acquires Sixteen Claims.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

TUCSON (Ariz.) April 26.—The Pioneer smelter is to be "blown in" before May 1, according to General Manager A. L. Waters. The company now has about 8000 tons of ore on hand and has fuel in the bins for a long run. Most of the ore is from the Plumed Knight property, owned by the same company. A crew of smelter men is being engaged at Douglas.

The Mineral Hill Consolidated Mining Company's property, twenty miles south of Tucson, is to be reopened at once, the management being assured of profit through the rise in the copper market. The mine was idle four years. E. M. Ray, of Denver, will be in charge. It is proposed to install an electric concentrator.

Work has been started on the Grijalva property, sixty miles south of Tucson, on which a bond lately was taken by W. A. Clark, Jr., general manager of the United Verde Copper Company of Jerome. Development work is being rushed with three shifts of men.

Sixteen claims in the Silverbell district, adjoining the mines of the Imperial Copper Company, have been included within the property of the Arizona-Belmont Mining Company, capitalized in Philadelphia and Los Angeles. At the head of the corporation is W. P. O'Meara, a Los Angeles mining man. The property is said to have a large body of copper ore with fair values also in lead, gold and silver. It is well situated for working, being close to a broad-gauge railroad.

WISH SUIT TRANSFERRED.

Attorneys Joseph Scott and Ben Goodrich of Los Angeles, on behalf of the Costello estate, have asked at Tombstone for the transfer to the Federal Court of the million-dollar suit of Gleeson against Costello. Decision upon the application will be made by Judge Cooper of Pima county.

Notable activity is reported from Lordsburg, N. M., owing to the shipment of a large tonnage of ore from near-by mines, within seven miles of the village. About 500 men are employed in the vicinity, and shipments of about 8000 tons of ore a month are being made to El Paso, representing a value of over $100,000 a month. The principal property is the "Eighty-five," sold a few years ago for $75,000 and now valued at more than $800,000, this price having been refused. It is said that the controlling company has ore blocked out worth more than $2,000,000.

W. S. Sultan of Globe is to have charge of the "Three R" mine in Patagonia district, lately purchased by the Shannon Copper Company of Clifton. This Patagonia district is known as one of the richest in Arizona and was one of the first worked by white men in the Southwest after the Spanish conquest of Mexico. Its ores are largely refractory. A few years ago the Westinghouse Company installed a magnetic concentrator, but the process failed of success when tried on a large scale.

KEANE WONDER.

pective buyers are acting with the utmost deliberation before deciding on their plan of action.

If the water rights can be controlled and the estimates of the quantity of ore on the property come anywhere within the statements of the owners, the project will be carried out on a gigantic scale.

DEAL MADE IN LUNING.

One of the most important mining deals consummated in the Luning section was just closed by Frank Everett, who has been carrying on extensive operations in the Atwood district. He has taken over the Shipper Copper group of claims from H. R. Wagner. The location is within a few miles of Lime Point. The ground first attracted attention through a big strike of high-grade copper at grass roots. A shipment was recently made to the new smelter at Wabuska. It yielded good returns. The ledge has a width of twenty-three feet with numerous stringers of sensational ore running through it which can be plainly traced for a distance of 3000 feet.

DIAMONDFIELD DISTRICT.

In the Diamondfield district the Goldfield Belmont is making progress at several points, having exposed on the 400-foot level the rich ore-shoot from which a large tonnage was taken out and shipped from levels above. The ore is said to be of better quality as depth is attained.

The management plans to make regular shipments and may at any time plan to sink a deep shaft on this ground. On the Vernal the main shaft is being sunk rapidly and a station is being cut from which the northern extension of the Belmont vein will be explored. It is expected that the ore shoot exposed on the 100-foot level will be found on the 200 within less than 100 feet south of the shaft.

The big Merger shaft continues to be sent down at the rate of 140 feet a month and has reached a depth of 900 feet. The management does not expect to perform any lateral work until a depth of 1200 feet or more, possibly 1600 feet, has been attained. At intervals in this shaft strong bodies of quartz have been cut and later these will be explored with drifts on the chances of opening shoots or lenses of pay ore.

The quartz here is similar to that of the producing mines of the district and rich ore has been found near the surface in these veins.

The Jumbo Extension has started to make regular shipments from workings below the 900-foot level of the Poleverde claim, adjoining the Claremont of the Consolidated, and the best ground of the Merger Mines Company. The main shaft and manway, known as the Annex shaft, is 1060 feet deep, the lowest level being at 1030 feet deep. Stoping is now in progress at the intermediate between the 900 and the 1030-foot levels and will be started on the latter level.

WILL VIEW PARADE.

The Los Angeles Investment Company will play host to its hundreds of employees by making special arrangements for them to witness the pageants of the Mystic Shrine during the coming convention. For the exclusive use of 450 employees inclusive of the big office force, a private grand stand will be built on the northwest corner of Ninth street and Broadway, one of the numerous downtown pieces of realty recently bought by the company. This stand will seat 900 persons, so that each employee will receive two tickets. The 950 persons employed on the big investment company's skyscraper at Eighth and Broadway will view the parade from the upper floors of that structure, seats being provided for the occasion. The Globe Savings Bank, which will later occupy part of the ground floor of this same building, will also provide seats there for its large number of employees

GIANT CARS GROOMED FOR SANTA MONICA RACE.

Ready to Start.

MANY MIGHTY MOTORS ENTER SANTA MONICA GRAND PRIZE RACE

World Record Awaits the Premier Racing Car Drivers Who Will Pilot Twenty-six Motor Cars Over the Fastest Course on Earth--Full Card for Each Event.

BY BERT C. SMITH.

GIANT motors and midget racers entered in Grand Prize Santa Monica Road Race.

The light and medium events will be started together at 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning.

The free-for-all cars are to be sent away at 1 o'clock and Fred Wagner of the A.A.A. will officiate. Roy P. Hillman will be referee. The big race will be 303.012 miles. The judges are Walter Chanslor, Jacob Jepsen and Dick Ferris.

There is every reason to believe that a new world record will be established on the day of the big race.

Light car event, for motors of 161-230 cu. in. displacement—distance 101.004 miles:

Car—	Driver—	Entered by—
Reo	H. C. Krouse	Reo Pacific Co.

Twenty-six entries for the Santa Monica road race Saturday. This breaks all records for any previous event held on the fastest road race course on earth. When the lists closed at midnight the fastest cars on earth and the greatest drivers now in the spotlight of motordom had been carded for the big speedfest.

Santa Monica Road Race Course,

The fastest automobile speedway in the world, ready for racers. This is the course over which more world records have been smashed than any other. The mark on this roadway is now held by the National which was driven into a world record October 14 of last year by Harvey Herrick. Every race fan believes that another world mark is to be established this year on this fast course. It is ready for the trial dashes this week. Fast work will be commenced tomorrow.

David Bruce Brown, the college boy who is in this race for the sport of the 300 miles fight, is here with his big Benz. He is one of the starters who will go away a favorite in the big free-for-all. A world record is the prize which Brown will fight for. The purse is only a small item, yet it would feel comfortable in the pocket of the big fellow.

Caley Bragg, the Pasadena millionaire, who says so little, is to drive the big Fiat, which is picked to beat Brown. This giant motor car entered by Attorney Eugene E. Hewlett is one of the fastest machines on earth. It won the grand prize stake at Savannah and established a world record for the long distance. This car was driven to victory by Brown. Now Bragg has taken the helm. Can he drive as fast and as well as the big man on the Benz? This question will be answered Saturday.

Two men loom in the limelight for the first time. Eddie Maier, with his Fiat, the car he has named the "Select Kid," and Dr. Edwin Janss, with another Fiat, which he has called the "Owensmouth Baby." These two machines have been entered by these men with a bid for first honors.

Barney Oldfield will drive the car entered by Eddie Maier. This Fiat is good for 120 miles an hour. Oldfield is good for all the car will stand. Never before in his existence has Barney been in better shape. He will not boast however. As a matter of fact he will not start as the favorite of this race.

OUTLAW BARNEY.

Why will Oldfield not be the favorite? The answer is easy. Eddie Maier's car is fast enough to win. Oldfield has the nerve to drive it into first place. He is out of practice, however. This makes a wonderful difference in a road race. He has not been on a racing car for a year. He is an outlaw.

This term outlaw has ceased to be a joke. When Barney raced against Jack Johnson at Sheepshead Bay he was placed on the blacklist of the Automobile Association of America. Now the ban has been raised and Barney can drive in the Santa Monica road race. But he has been prevented from practicing on any sanctioned track. Now he is given a handicap which he may not be able to overcome.

Still in his prime, and with the nerve of a lion, Barney is training every day, but the time is short. With Eddie Maier, in the strictly down-to-date athletic rooms at the Maier brewery, Barney is fighting hard to keep his weight down. He is in better shape physically than he ever was before. He does not touch a drop of liquor.

With a face as clear as a milk-fed baby, Barney looks to be in the pink of condition. With Orvall Overall and Eddie Maier to help him in his athletic tryouts, the former world's speed king is enjoying himself every minute, but at the same time he is counting the cost of this big race.

Will Barney place? He will have a host of friends at Santa Monica when Starter Fred Wagner sends him away, but they cannot help him. He is pitted against the world's best drivers, each in shape and practice for the race of his life. Barney has a job on his hands such as he never faced before. It will be interesting to watch him. If he drives a consistent race at first he should win.

The man who is to drive Dr. Edwin Janss' car is Teddy Tetzlaff. He must fight it out against Oldfield. Well, Teddy knows what he is up against and the experience of the race last year seems to have taught him a lesson. He will drive a heady race, at least.

DINGLEY'S SIMPLEX.

Bert Dingley, on the Simplex, is the dark horse of this big race. He slipped one over on his peers last week by showing his disgust, but that smile that will not come off broke through and gave away his secret. Bert is getting 105 miles out of his car. That is fast enough to earn a world record for the Simplex and the coveted honor of being the premier driver of the globe for Dingley.

Experience should count. Bert won the light car race in 1909 with the Chalmers-Detroit. He is a great driver, but for the first time this year he is mounted on a car that has a chance to win first place. He has a strictly down-to-date Simplex equipped with the Miller carburetor, one of the fastest of gas-mixers and Bert is in trim. Look out for the Simplex.

There is not a man who will overlook the two Stutz cars on the day of the big race. Both of these beauties are entered in the free-for-all. Walter M. Brown of the Brown-Symonds Company showed his nerve by entering these racers against the world's fastest cars. He has a chance to win.

STUTZ RACERS.

Dave Lewis will drive one Stutz and Earl Cooper the other. These two lads have had experience and certainly have the nerve. They love their cars and the two Stutz racers are fast enough to make ninety miles an hour. Look out for them.

FIRST RACE.

Two classes of cars will be sent away in the first race of the day—the light car event and the medium car event. In the medium car race the entries are so grouped that it is practically impossible to pick a favorite.

Two Mercer cars are in this race. One of them is to be driven by Ralph De Palma. It is a hummer and may come bouncing over the line first. Rupert Jeffkins will handle the other. This team of speedsters looks good to a great many and may look even better at the finish.

The local agent has shown his sportsmanship by entering the Mercer with Ralph De Palma in the free-for-all. This car is one of the flyers and it will be most interesting to watch De Palma as he sails over the course to a possible victory with a smaller car than any other, except the Case.

A. J. Smith has entered the Elmore in the medium event. This is the car that made such a remarkable showing in the Fresno road race and "A. J." will be here to handle the car. He will manage his end of the race and will watch the Elmore every minute. He should be here tomorrow ready for business.

The light car event is to be started at 10:30 o'clock. Eight fast cars will be sent away. This means a race in which some of the fastest cars in the small class will be started and the crowd is to be given a run for the money every second of the speed battle.

Hannibal, Mo., now has an automobile club.

ADDITIONAL SPORTS Page 8, Part I.

TETZLAFF IN FIAT FLIRTS WITH DEATH.

Teddy Tetzlaff in the Fiat racer, almost lost his life early yesterday morning during the only fast dash of the first day's practice on the Santa Monica road race course. Through a misunderstanding Tetzlaff let the big Fiat out and the car skidded, tearing off a tire. For the fraction of a second the Fiat seemed about to be dashed into a mass of wreckage. Then Tetzlaff applied his brakes and brought the car to a full stop. It was a hair-breadth escape for the plucky driver.

There will be no practice on the course today. This is the edict of Mayor Dow of Santa Monica, and of Manager A. M. Young. Tomorrow morning the giant cars will be unleashed and, from 6 o'clock until 8 o'clock will be sent over the roads at terrific speed. Barney Oldfield in a Fiat, David Bruce Brown in a Benz, Caley Bragg in a Fiat and Bert Dingley in a Simplex, appear to be the favorites.

BODIE'S HARD DRIVE PULLS UP THE SOX.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 27.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Timely hits by Bodie and Weaver, today the Coast recruits kept Chicago in the first position in the percentage column. The White Sox scored two runs and the recruits figured in both of them. In the fourth Bodie's drive to center sent the first run home. With one dead in the fifth Weaver singled, went to second on a wild pitch, and scored when Block knocked one out over Vitt's head. Vitt got his hit in the sixth with no one out. He stole second, but a double play engineered by Weaver killed off a chance to score.

Frank Perry had a chance to distinguish himself in Detroit's ninth inning with men on second and third a pinch hitter. He lifted an infield fly for the final out.

In the Cleveland-St. Louis game Buddy Ryan helped the Naps' cause by ramming out a triple which sent two runs across. He also had a single to his credit. From his berth in the outer garden, Ryan also started a double play. Hogan and Hallinan, the Coast recruits in the St. Louis line-up, played good games in the field.

With his team-mates bunching their hits in one inning, Groom of Washington had no trouble shutting out New York. He allowed but three hits and two of them came in the first round. He did not issue a pass.

Tris Speaker poled out three hits, batted in two runs and scored three of Boston's markers himself in the engagement with the world's champions. Duffy Lewis and Hooper also helped along with timely hits, one of Lewis's swats being a double.

AUTOMOBILE EXPERT DEAD.

Marmon Technical Engineer Passes at Glendale and Body Will Be Sent to Indianapolis.

A. L. Swiggert, technical road expert for the Nordyke & Marmon Company, builders of Marmon motor cars, passed away in Glendale yesterday. Swiggert leaves a wife and two children who are in Indianapolis, where the Marmon factory is located. Only a few weeks ago Swiggert came here in an effort to regain his health. He failed rapidly, however, and died in spite of the efforts of physicians, who had hoped to prolong his life until he could return to his wife and children.

C. E. Gilhousen, local agent for Marmon cars, will leave this morning with the body for the East. He was one of the best friends of Swiggert, who was known to the motor men here as an expert mechanician and technical man. Gilhousen will remain in Indianapolis for the funeral and then after a brief visit at the factory, where he expects to secure several of the new six-cylinder Marmons, will return to this city.

Due to the recent injury of several cavalrymen by horses being frightened by automobiles, the military authorities at New Orleans, La., have prohibited speeding and the sounding of signals when automobilists pass divisions of cavalry on the road.

Nothing to It.

TIMELY SWATS BEAT ANGELS.

Halla Is Knocked All Around the Ball Pasture.

Lopsided Score Robs Game of All Interest.

Heaver Williams Is Original Tight Wad on Hits.

BY GREY OLIVER.

The ambulance should have been backed up to the ball grounds yesterday afternoon to carry off some of the Angel pitchers. A few of them are on the shelf from various injuries or in the hospital, and the others have joined the sore-arm brigade.

Two of the brigadiers got out on the firing-line yesterday for the Senators to shoot at and were shot all right. Slagle tried it first and was nicked for four hits and three runs and in the fifth Halla took a chance and was poled for nine hits and seven runs.

Williams for the Senators was a terrific hard nut and the Angels broke all their teeth trying to crack him. He allowed one of them to get by and this one needed a hit, a sacrifice fly and a pass in order to score.

Like Ismay, the Senators simply sneaked in when no one was looking and they knocked everything out of the way to get in. They cracked Halla with no mercy. About everything he had they pulverized. Wrecking Crew Swain knocked one of his best over the left-field fence in the fifth, sending in Shinn ahead of him and in the eighth they fell on him for three more runs. It was a regular slaughter.

It was not baseball, for the score was 10 to 1 in favor of the Senators and the game ended in the fourth inning, when the score was 3 to 1. After the second inning it was a clouting match for them and that's all there was to it.

The hitting feature of the game was the work of Cheek, who made a double and three singles in five times at bat. The big thing was Swain's homer, but Williams and Miller also took their turn at rapping the ball.

Williams was in fine form and never had any trouble in standing the Angels on their heads. Although he gave five passes, he kept the six hits off him scattered to one in any inning and the locals were helpless. Four of the six hits were good for real blows and two were scratchy, so it can be observed there was little doing in the run line.

The Angels got their only run in the fourth on Dillon's pass, Core's drive to right and Brooks's sacrifice fly to right. In sliding to the plate Dillon hurt one of his hands and retired from the game, Rossback, the Vernon castoff pitcher, being put on first base.

Halla was also stuck in to pitch in this fifth inning, but his arm was sore and the Senators slammed him all around the lot as a result. Shinn was the first man up and walked and stole second. After O'Rourke popped to Halla, Wrecking Crew Swain went to bat and banged the ball high over the left fence for a home run.

Then the Senators laid off him until the eighth, when Heister singled and ran to third when Cheek hit to right. Then they worked a double steal, Heister scoring. Cheek scored when Madden singled to right, and after Madden had gotten to second on the throw-in, he scored on Shinn's bouncing infield single.

The final two arrived in the ninth on two singles, two steals and Heitmuller's muff of Heister's fly to center.

The best thing you can do is to forget about this kind of a lop-sided struggle.

One of the favorites in the medium car event. This is the fast thirty-horse-power car which may be started by Racing Manager J. Aleck Sloan in the free-for-all at Santa Monica and which will be sent over the boards of the Motordrome against some of the big ones. This car made the fastest lap in its class at the Savannah Grand Prize races.

WORLD RECORD IN BIG RACE.

Santa Monica Classic to Be Greatest Ever.

History of Road Racing Is Summed Up by Scribe.

Flanders Booster Has Words of Good Cheer.

BY PAUL HALE BRUSKE,

Contest Manager Studebaker Corporation.

Everyone agrees that the entry list of the Santa Monica road race in all its five classes is a marvel of completeness. The most famous of the big racing leviathans and their noted pilots are on deck, even including Barney Oldfield, whose absence during his period of suspension has robbed so many recent events of a considerable share of interest. As for the medium and smaller powered cars, the fields are enough to arouse the envy of those motor-wise folk who are kept from watching the events by their distance of residence.

The Santa Monica prospect is lacking in no particular. Speed, earnest rivalry and daring driving are all insured. The crowds are certain of their thrills while every competitor is awaiting his chance of renewed fame. Experts predict that the big road-locomotives will average 76 miles an hour or better. Even the lightest cars in the event are expected to do better than mile a minute speed for their century run.

The absorbing interest which the people of Southern California are showing in their great carnival of speed carried Barney Oldfield and the writer back to the old days of ten years ago, when Detroit, not Los Angeles, was the center of the country's racing interest; when men destined to become world famous as manufacturers of motor cars, drove their latest creations on the Grosse Pointe track; when the people looked solely to the trials of speed as evidence of superiority of the new models; when Barney himself was known to fame as merely a fairly good bicycle rider—when, in short, the industry and the sport were new.

We found many of the novelties of that day, firmly installed as tried engineering practice now. But we found more points of contrast than of similarity.

OLD TIMERS.

In those days 1 minute 10 seconds for the mile was simply flying. Now cars of even the smallest class regard that as play.

Then, mile tracks, built for the trotting horses, furnished the speed arena, and a dangerous place it was both for drivers and spectators. Now we see speed contests at their best on a prepared roadway, policed and protected, and affording straightaways that will hold speed of which the drivers and engineers of days gone by never dared to dream.

The old Grosse Pointe course is cut up into building lots and is already becoming a popular suburb of a city whose main industry used to be the building of stoves. Of the men who starred as drivers, Barney alone survives, as a competitor. We who chronicled the speed battles of those days are scattered in many lines of endeavor. To some of us the fascination of the sport was so absorbing that we finally allied ourselves with the great industry which was then purely a game.

In those days great manufacturing firms were in the building. Racing gave birth to the Ford, of whose "999" Barney was himself the pilot; the Maxwell, with Mr. Maxwell himself at the wheel; the Winton driven by Alexander Winton himself; the Packard whose "Gray Wolf" was always in the thick of the fray; the Oldsmobile whose rakish "Pirate" alternately made us laugh and hold our breath in admiration; the White whose "Whistling Willie" used to burn up the stretches with scorching blasts of steam.

Alanson P. Brush, now Chief Engineer of General Motors, used to turn off fast laps in 1:35 or thereabouts, with his pride, the single-cylinder Cadillac. The Wayne—predecessor of the E. M. F. "30"—with Joe Gardham at the wheel, since renowned as a Glidden pathfinder, was another contestant for fastest honors.

The successes of those days made Detroit and its automobile factories. The lessons learned in those races made the first practical American motor cars.

The Day After.

BIG MOTORDROME MEET TO FOLLOW BIG ROAD RACE.

WHAT promises to be the most brilliant chapter ever penned in the world's motoring history will be written next Sunday, when the greatest group of speed annihilators in the gasoline kingdom will meet on the Los Angeles motordrome battlefield, in contests of speed that will be marked by a great slaughter of records, and many sensational features.

Daredevils that are conceded to hold the palm for death-defying courage and racing creations that are admitted to be the superior of any, any space-eating monsters ever before seen in action on a board motordrome, are to furnish a programme of hair-raising stunts which will outshine anything ever before seen on any sort of a circular track.

Heretofore the motordrome speed meets have always lacked interest, because of the small number of entries. This year the big Santa Monica race, which takes place the preceding day, has attracted to the city a great group of stars and practically all have agreed to enter into the board track contests with the same energy that they are displaying towards the road race.

The 2 fastest track cars in the world will compete for the time honors and, as the electrical timing device will be working, every figure hung up will be official. Louis Disbrow, the head of the Case racing team, with his big 230-horse-power Jay-Eye-See racer and Caleb Bragg, the young millionaire amateur, who won the world's motordrome championship a couple of years ago, will pilot the wonderful Fiat and his Prince Henry Benz, Teddy Tetzlaff, Bert Dingley and most of the other noted space-eaters have already signified their willingness to compete for the big purses hung up by the management.

A big list of the little cars have also entered the meet. Joe Nikrent at the wheel of the Fiat Case, and Louis Nikrent, at the wheel of the model 10, Buick, Shane and his Schacht, Jack Tower and Bob Evans with their Flanders, and the two Stutz machines, driven by Dave Lewis and Earl Cooper, will all compete.

Many of the Shriners, who will arrive too late to witness the Santa Monica races Saturday, have already reserved grand stand seats for Sunday, in order that they may see the cars in action which competed in the road classic Saturday, to say nothing of the several speed machines built for circular track work.

Fred Wagner, the official starter of the American Automobile Association, is very enthusiastic over the motordrome meet and predicts that not only will many of the present world's records fall, but the racing will be the best it has ever been since the inception of the Los Angeles motordrome as a factor in the speed world.

The entry list will not close until Tuesday night, when a complete list of events and the names of the drivers and the makes of cars will be announced.

VANCE CASE MAN, GETS UNIQUE OFFER

Warren Vance of the Vance-Canavan Automobile Company, agents for the Case car, may desert Los Angeles, and become the representative of the Case automobile in Australia.

The big Case company has held out the bait to the hustling Los Angeles representative of the Case car, and if he accepts he will leave shortly for the Antipodes.

The Case machine is well known in the island kingdom across the Pacific, where the J. I. Case Company has established a great warehouse for storing its American-built machinery and the Case automobiles.

The Vance-Canavan Company only recently took up the Case agency, but the name of the machine needed no introduction, as Case-made goods have been coming into California for the past fifty years.

SEVEN AUTO CUPS.

New Orleans autoists are showing their appreciation of having been awarded the A.A.A. reliability tour by offering additional trophies. Seven cups have been offered and a number of others will be tendered at a later date. These cups have been turned over to the Committee of the Louisiana Motor League so that they may specify under what conditions they may be won. Arrangements for the entertainment of the tourists already are taking form. A liner will be chartered especially for those of the party who will visit Panama. All of the cars will be left here, as no attempt will be made to carry out the suggestion that the party motor across the isthmus.

T. H. Jacobs has purchased the Christian Science Church building at Wausau, Wis., and will remodel it into a garage and salesroom.

That Million-Dollar Engine

On Exhibit Here Tomorrow for Two Weeks

We want you to see this, the famous Knight motor, as it is used in the Stearns-Knight car, the greatest power plant ever put into an automobile.

The Stearns factory expert is here to explain it, and he has a sectional motor working so you can see practically every part in actual operation. You can see how the sleeves move and how the ports open and shut; why no poppet valves, timing gears, etc., are required; why the engine is quiet and why it is strong. You'll see at a glance why this engine has caused a world-wide sensation in motoring circles.

Don't miss it. The sectional engine is here for two weeks only. And there is no other way to get such a clear idea of its advantages.

In 10,000 Cars

The greatest motor car makers have spent $1,000,000 in perfecting the Knight-type motor. The Stearns Company has spent over $200,000.

Just because they know that this new type is bound to supplant the old. It has already supplanted it in more than 10,000 of the world's best cars.

It's a vast mistake to buy a high-grade car without knowing this Knight-type engine.

Come and find it out.

The Attraction

The first discovery when you ride in a Stearns-Knight is its wonderful silence—at any speed. That is due to the lack of valves, timing gears, cams—to the simplicity of this great engine.

And the Stearns-Knight car shows 50 per cent. more than its rated power.

There is immense flexibility. And that persistent power for which electric motors are famous. This luxury of motion, this bird-like power gives a sensation like that of flying. There is no such sensation in any car that uses the old-type motor.

Improves With Age

The old-type engine begins to depreciate from the day it goes into use.

It becomes more and more noisy, less and less efficient. When carbon accumulates much of the power is wasted.

The Stearns-Knight engine becomes better with use. It becomes more and more powerful. Its smoothness increases. Its silence is absolute always.

This has been proved by Knight-type engines which have covered millions of miles in the aggregate.

The Stearns-Knight is regarded as the best of the Knight-types.

Mr. Knight himself purchased one of these cars. He has taken it to Europe to show makers there the perfections wrought out in the Stearns shops.

Are you going to be one of the last with the old type Motor, or one of the first with the new?

Come and See

Come judge this car for yourself. See the sectional engine working. Have it explained by the factory expert. Ask him questions.

An engine adopted by the world's greatest makers is bound to be the future type.

An engine so silent, so flexible, so economical can't well be disregarded.

Don't buy a car of the passing type until you know what the Knight-type means. You won't really know till you've seen this sectional motor and have ridden in the car.

Manager A. M. Young, who has staged the Santa Monica road race in a gentleman and a true sport, has decreed that all parking space shall be free. In so doing he has won a host of friends. The expense of pulling off this great race is large. The prize money is larger than ever before in the history of motor racing in the West.

There is no city on earth that gets such free publicity from the race as Santa Monica. Manager Young says that he is only anxious to pay the expenses of bringing this large assemblage of fast cars and racing men to the Pacific Coast. Thousands of motor fans are willing to guarantee this expense.

According to a Santa Monica man some individuals are trying to collect money for the rent of lots near the grand stand for parking spaces. The race is too large to be spoiled by any persons who are seeking to make the big affair for private gain. It is too big to be made small. Manager Young is the man who must raise the money and his word must be law. The latter from the Santa Monica man follows in part:

"The successful races, in which Santa Monica extended her hospitality to the world, and especially to all lovers of automobiles in Southern California, brought Santa Monica's name and fame before the public to a greater extent than any other event, advertising or publicity could possibly have done.

"It is not the right public spirit. Every man who has done this is to be immediately notified by the Race Committee of both Los Angeles and Santa Monica that not a dollar will be paid to them for parking space.

"Last year, the Santa Monica committee raised something like $3000. After the expenses of fixing road, stakes and turns, policing course, etc., had been paid, money left to give a present to naval officers.

Tube in an E.M.F. Are Hauled Without Casing, Much to the Surprise of the Passengers, Who Marvel at the Strength of the Rubber Tube from Regular Stock.

In an effort to prove a statement made by E. K. Allen, Republic tire salesman in the Northwest, that the Republic Black-Line Red Inner Tube was strong enough to pull an automobile, a demonstration was made recently in front of the Republic Rubber Company's agency in Portland. An E. M. F. "30" was started from a standing position and towed by a Ford "30," being connected with a Black-Line Red Inner Tube. The car was pulled from No. 334 Burnside to Washington street.

Two men were in the E. M. F. and the spare was removed, so that nothing could be done by the passengers to direct the car's course. When the car started the tube gave nearly a block length, but when the slack was eased, half the extra tube was taken up. The inner tube was stretched to the two cars by means of ropes looped through the rims. Cylinders wrapped in burlap were placed around the rope where it was to maintain the natural curve of the tube and not double it. The tube was made with a tube taken from regular stock.

The Republic tubes are made from the finest and purest of Para rubber. In the process of making the tubes they are mixed in, producing a quality of wonderful heat resisting, and extreme durability. Heat resisting qualities are of great importance in summer. The heat of the sun, coupled with that generated by fast driving, makes an ordinary tire sticky and causes it to adhere to the outer casing. The Republic tubes will stand. No test has ever been made to determine how much heat would be necessary to break down the tubes, but a test had been made by suspending a tube from the roof six men hanging to it and stretching it to its full capacity.

PEERLESS ON MOTOR MART.

Innovation Causes Stir in Auto Circles.

Dan Dome Lights to Be Part of Equipment.

Fore-doors and Inside Drive on All Models.

A new Peerless model for 1913 has been just made. The Peerless Motor Car Company becomes the first maker of high-grade motor cars to place its product for the coming season before the public.

There has been a growing demand for the new types early in the spring. Most purchasers prefer to buy their cars at this season rather than at midsummer or early in the fall. To support its policy in this regard the Peerless Motor Car Company has made special preparations to fill orders for immediate delivery.

The line includes five standard chassis, three with six and two with four-cylinder motors. They are the "25-six," "48-six," "60-six" and the "40-four" and "24-four." The latter is fitted only with an enclosed body for use as a town car. All of the standard body forms are offered. They include the roadster and coupe—with the "38-six" only—touring car, torpedo, limousine, landaulet and Berline limousine.

The "38-six" has a wheel base of 125 inches, cylinders four inches by five and one-half, interchangable tires 36 by four and one-half. The wheel base of the 48-six is 137 inches, cylinders four and one-half-inch bore by six-inch stroke, front tires thirty-six by four and one-half, and rear tires thirty-seven by five inches. In the "60-six" the wheel base is 140 inches, cylinder dimension five inches by seven, tires thirty-eight by five and one-half inches forward and rear, and the price is $6000. Cylinder dimensions of the "40-four" are five by five and one-half inches and tires thirty-six by four and one-half forward and thirty-seven by five rear.

DOME LIGHTS.

One of the marked characteristics of Peerless construction has always been the attention this company has given to details. This is again evident in the 1913 cars, and particularly in the bodies. Dome side lights set in the dash have been adopted to increase the smoothness of the design and the new windshield stays turn back to the body parapet eliminating the slanting bars across the bonnet.

The effort has been to preserve the body lines straight and unbroken. For that purpose a hollow has been fashioned in the running board into which the extra tires are set that the top surfaces may not extend above the body line. Chair seats in the tonneau fold down out of sight. The tops, when closed, are held tightly by a new toggle rest so that they follow the gradual elevation of the parapet at the rear. When open they are snug and low. All bodies have fore-doors with inside drive and in order that there may be no discomfort to the driver in handling the levers, they have been made particularly wide. This width continues to the rear and results in exceptional spaciousness throughout the car. The combination of the body effect with the long wheelbase and the low center of gravity produces that individuality of appearance that has come to be recognized as distinctively Peerless.

NEAT AND TRIM.

The same refinement is evident in the mechanism. This year a damper throttle has been installed to replace one of the piston type. It makes the responsiveness of the motor more certain. There is a new and improved wire bar, in which all the wires of the ignition system are contained. The engine is thus given a neat, trim, appearance, while the connections are so marked that no mistakes can be made. Dual ignition with a single distributor and a single set of spark plugs replaces the double system.

The irreversible steering gear makes it impossible for the front wheels to be turned from side to side unless the impulse comes from the steering column. Road obstacles cannot deflect the car from its course nor can the roughest road cause the steering wheel to jerk about in the driver's hands.

The dynamo electric lighting system is installed on all cars. There are electric head lamps, dash, tail and interior lamps. When the car reaches a speed of eight miles per hour the dynamo is operative either to supply the lamps or charge the storage battery. The system requires no attention; it is controlled from the dash so there is never any need to leave the car because of the lights; and it operates practically without expense.

A power driven tire pump is another convenience. It inflates quickly and cleanly, saving much hard work when a tire must be changed, and thereby it makes unlikely on Peerless cars the several kinds of tire trouble that are due to insufficient inflation.

INSIDE DRIVES.

One troublesome problem of design forced upon motor car makers by the adoption of fore-door bodies with the drive inside was to supply plenty of room for the operation of the various levers and to relieve the driver of the discomfort of a cramped position.

This difficulty has been overcome completely in the 1913 cars of the Peerless factory. All the superstructures have been made exceptionally wide from the dash through to the rear of the car. They extend over the chassis frame fully six inches on either side.

This gives ample room for the manipulation of the control levers and at the same time endows the entire body with a spaciousness that is a great aid to comfort. The fore-doors give the exterior of the body free sweeping, unbroken surface and permit of a lever parapet which greatly increases the beauty of the construction.

Safety in the models of Peerless motor cars for 1913 which have just been announced is greatly increased by the irreversible steering gear. It prevents any change of angle in the front wheels unless the impulse comes from the steering wheel.

This means that no matter what the speed of the car, no road obstacle can deflect it from its course. A stone in the road or a jolt that is more severe on one side than the other is always a serious thing to encounter unless this device is used.

The Sydenham Hospital authorities of Baltimore, Md., have found it necessary to substitute the horse-drawn ambulance with motor power, and are advertising for a chassis on which to place the present hospital ambulance body. The hospital is under the supervision of the Health Department of Baltimore.

supporters. Some have continued to race systematically and often. Still others have maintained an interest racing in a select series of events each year for the purposes of keeping their cars and their improvements up to the standard which only racing can establish.

This last attitude has always been maintained by the Studebaker Corporation whose Los Angeles branch has two of its Flanders "20" cars in the Santa Monica's light car race. L. J. Ollier, manager of the Los Angeles branch, believes that it is due California to demonstrate the strength, stability, safety and speed of the cars on such a course as the Santa Monica, and, without any regular racing team, entered the cars and is having them tuned up at the branch headquarters on East Seventh street.

SHETTLER PLANS FLORAL PARADE FOR SHRINERS.

WORK will be begun immediately by Leon T. Shettler, who is chairman of the committee representing the automobile division of the big Fiesta floral parade, which will be held May 10, to secure entries. The Motor Car Dealers' Association has pledged its support and at least fifty cars are assured for the display. Shettler is enthusiastic over the interest aroused in the motor parade and says he expects to see every make of car sold in Los Angeles, represented.

The Automobile Club of Southern California will also have about fifty cars entered and with the forty representative dealers with their machines this would make a list of nearly a hundred cars. The dealers division will be unusually attractive as much time will be spent on the decorations. Some have already planned their displays.

One of the interesting features of the automobile division will be the women drivers, who are much interested and will enter their cars in the great parade. A great many of the women drivers, of which Los Angeles boasts several hundred, are planning the decorations of their machines.

There will also be an electric division which will be a pretty feature. Volney S. Beardsley is on the committee and will look after this department. This means a large number of entries as Beardsley is in close touch with the electric car business, and is an enthusiastic worker. Many pretty effects can be secured in the electrics with floral decorations. Most of the electrics will be driven by women.

TOURING CLUB LEADS FIGHT FOR SANE TRAFFIC LAWS.

GREAT advancement is being made in securing uniform State motor vehicle laws by adoption in many leading cities throughout the country of ordinances regulating motor vehicle traffic. Many measures advocated by the Touring Club of America have been taken by some of the larger cities. The city of New York recently adopted several of these recommendations, and last week the Aldermen passed the muffler cut-out ordinance, which was drafted by the club's Technical Committee.

Another of the regulations which was recommended at the American Road Congress was that all vehicles carry lights from one hour after sunset to one hour before sunrise, prohibiting the muffler cut-out in cities and villages and providing for the use of non-dazzling headlights on all motor vehicles in cities and villages where the streets are lighted.

Another important recommendation which has been adopted in many cities prohibits the unnecessary use of warning signals, and that an adequate signal should produce an abrupt sound sufficiently loud to be heard under all conditions of traffic, and that its use except as a warning of danger should be prohibited. It is predicted that in another year, through the work of the Touring Club, the traffic regulations will be substantially on a uniform basis.

St. Louis recently purchased an American Traveler for the use of Fire Chief Swingley of that city.

BROWN BUICKS LOOK NIFTY.

Pair of Racers Groomed for Santa Monica.

C. S. Howard Coming Here for the Big Speedfest.

Bucking Snows of Skyland Is Joke for This Car.

Manager F. S. Howard of the Howard Automobile Company has adopted a novel method of distinguishing the two Buicks entered in the Santa Monica road race. These cars will be painted the distinctive Buick brown.

It will be recalled that the Buick "Twenty," which made such a remarkable showing last year when it carried off the honors of the light-car race, and also broke the world's 100-mile record, was of a brown color and easily distinguished from the rest of the entries, and F. S. Howard feels that this scheme will be a great advantage to the spectators in keeping track of these speedy wagons. Indications are, from the trial spins already taken, that those viewing the race will have to look quick when the Buick whizzes by, as the Buicks are turning miles in record time.

COMING HERE.

C. S. Howard, president of the Howard Automobile Company, distributor of Buicks for the Pacific Coast, will arrive in Los Angeles Friday for the Santa Monica road race. Howard has the distinction of having delivered from the Buick factory more machines in a stated period than any other of the Buick distributors.

Commenting upon the race, Howard says: "I think my brother's idea of having the two Buicks entered in the race painted a distinctive brown is a good one. After once associating the Buick with this color, spectaters will have no difficulty in naming these cars as they go by the grand stand."

The Howard Automobile Company is displaying on the salesroom floor the two machines which will run in the Santa Monica road race. These cars are attracting considerable attention from automobile fans, and many visitors have called in the last few days to see the well-known speedsters.

IN THE SNOWS.

W. D. Burnham, Jr., of Los Angeles, accompanied by D. B. Dewey of Pasadena, had an experience in their Buick "20" bucking snow drifts, which seem almost incredible, considering that the difficulties they encountered were but a few hours from the heart of Los Angeles.

The trip was to Skyland, a resort a short distance from Arrowhead in the San Bernardino Mountains. Before starting on the trip, they made inquiries of the livery stable men in San Bernardino, and each and all refused to attempt to make the trip by horse. A heavy snow had fallen a short time before, which sealed two feet deep on the level. The wind had drifted this over the road in many places to a much greater depth. The road from Arrowhead to Skyland is a very heavy grade in the summer time, and tries the metal of many a car; with the additional handicap of the heavy snow, those hearing of the contemplated trip laughed at the project and said it was impossible to make the trip in a machine.

Undaunted by these pessimistic reports, Burnham and Dewey started on the trip. The wheels had to churn a way through a heavy carpet of snow before traction would be found on the road beneath, and it was necessary to put a chain on both front and rear wheels to make any headway. The clouds of snow were thrown to the rear as the little car valiantly shoved its way forward, dogzedly bucking its hood into the ever increasing pile of snow that collected in front of the machine. Because of its weight and heavy nature, the snow would pack in between the spokes of the wheels and under the front axle so tight that with difficulty it was forced out. At times the snow which accumulated in front of the car reached over the radiator cap, and it was necessary to get out and shovel the accumulation away, before the car could proceed further.

However, they broke a nice wide trial and arrived at Skyland in good time, much to the astonishment of the natives, who were warm in praise of the dauntless little car that had accomplished a feat deemed impossible.

TRUCKS REACH HIGH STANDARD.

COMMERCIAL CAR BUSINESS IS BOOSTED BY FULLER.

General Motor Truck Man Gives Some Sage Advice Regarding the Trade and Seems to Have Hit on a Way in Which to Solve Some of the Problems Which Confront Dealers.

"There are those who think that mechanically the motor truck has not reached a standard to insure satisfactory and lasting service, but the man who figures that way," says O. B. Fuller, manager of The Pioneer Commercial Auto Company, distributor for the General Motor Truck Company, "does not go into the question deeply enough. He does not stop to consider that the truck maker has been taught a whole lot by the pleasure car manufacturer, and that we are using to good advantage the fifteen years' experience back of the automobile industry.

"It is true that there is a nice distinction from an engineering standpoint, but the basic principles are the same. The truck maker has also learned the value of metals and is dealing with a certainty now when any particular kind of material is specified.

"It is, of course, natural that a buyer should be skeptical, for that is the position he is supposed to take until he is thoroughly convinced of the merits of the article to be sold, but when it comes to trucks (understanding that the purchase is being made from an established and responsible maker whose permanency is assured) no chances are being taken.

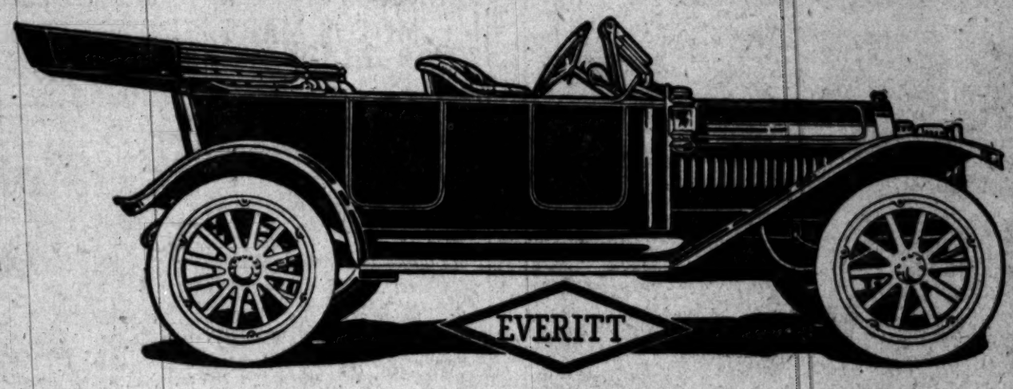
"It must be understood that after all a truck is only a piece of machinery, and, as such, is entitled to a certain amount of consideration. Where the owner has been careful in this respect it has been found that the truck would remain more uniform in service, providing, of course, that the driver handled his car with a certain amount of intelligence."

A tride less than 10 per cent. of all the fuel hauled in Greater New York is handled by automobile trucks. That proportion amounts to a little less than 1,000,000 tons. As there are fifty trucks used by the dealers, the average yearly haul of coal would total 20,000 tons per car.

The "Everitt Six-48"

It is big, roomy and impressive—designed in good taste, even luxuriously, and will meet the requirements of the most exacting in point of equipment.

The impression is that a chrome nickel steel car cannot be produced for $2000. We assert that it can, and we are doing it, and the reason is that the greater part of the tool and machine equipment for producing the Everitt 4-36 is utilized in making the six-cylinder car. Had it been necessary to provide special and expensive factory equipment to make a six-cylinder car separately, the present price of $2000 would be prohibitive.



Fully equipped means — Genuine Mohair Top, Dust Hood, Patent Top Supporting Irons, Standard Speedometer, Automatic Brass Bound Windshield, Prestolite Gas Tank, Disco Self-Starter, Magneto and Storage Battery, Robe and Foot Rail, Tools, Pump, Jack and Repair Kit, Tire Supporting Irons, 1 extra Rim, Black Enameled Lamps, Horn.

Wheelbase, 127 inches. Tires 36x4. Demountable Rims, instantly removable—the type used by racers. Double drop frame, genuine cellular honeycomb radiator, and the mono bloc, long stroke motor. Manufactured throughout of chrome nickel steel.

The Everitt 4-cylinder, 36-horse-power, sells for $1625, fully equipped. The manufacturers adhere to the same standard of integrity in the building of this car as in the 6-48.

FLANDERS TEAM MAY BE INCREASED TO THREE CARS

TWO Flanders "20" motor cars have been entered in the Santa Monica Road Race. The cars have been named in the event by the Studebaker Corporation's Los Angeles branch. They will be driven by Bob Evans and Jack Tower. The pilots are now in Los Angeles, engaged in tuning their cars for the event.

It is possible that these entries may be reinforced later by a third car driven by Frank Witt. This will enable the Studebaker forces to be represented by the same trio which established the world's record in the Tiedeman Trophy Race on the Grand Prize course at Savannah last fall, where their E.M.F. "30" cars finished first, second and third, making a clean sweep of the trophies and prize money, despite the classy nature of the large field of rival cars. Witt, however, is at present on important work with the Studebaker sales department and may not be able to get away for the race.

Evans and Tower are among the best known pilots of light cars and are both well represented in the table of world's records, compiled by the American Automobile Association.

Tower's campaign in 1911 was mostly on the eastern tracks, where he won a total of sixteen races out of twinty-one starts, his E.M.F. "30" being often raced out of its class, due to the lack of competition in the 161-230 division.

Evans, who will be remembered as the driver of a Flanders "20" in a successful assault on all-class records at the Indianapolis Speedway last fall, is undoubtedly the smallest race driver of all the army registered with the "Three A." In racing trim, with goggles on, "Fighting Bob" weighs in at exactly 126 pounds—one pound more than the legal limit required. This is directly contrary to all the canons of racing, as most of the drivers incline to the burly, broad shouldered type. At the wheel of his Flanders "20" in the Santa Monica, Evans will look like a high school boy. Despite his apparent lack of beef, however, little "Fighting Bob" has shown that he can handle the Studebaker car of either the E.M.F. "30" or Flanders "20" type with perfect ease—a condition greatly facilitated beyond doubt, by the scientific balance which the cars have been given.

As the Santa Monica contains no class for the Flanders "20," Evans and Tower will be forced to race against much larger cars. This does not daunt either of them in the least, however. Both cars are showing well over 70 miles an hour in their practice work.

Joe Ollier and the Flanders Racer—The Little Stock Midget of the Light Event.

This is the manager of the Studebaker Bros. branch who is sure a Flanders will flash under the wire first in the light event on Saturday. Joe has the winning smile all ready. Jack Tower is at the wheel.

Two-Passenger 6-Cylinder 48-h.p. Complete $1900

If the Price is Above $1500 It Must be a Six-Cylinder—That's So

[A 2]

This is not prophecy any more—it is a fact. It is as big a fact as was the four-cylinder transition about seven years ago and Mitchells were pioneers then, as they are today.

You cannot raise a single point wherein the Six is not superior to the Four. Speed, silence, comfort, quick response, constancy and economy for power exerted. Every requirement of a motor is eminently supplied in the Six.

You're certainly not going to invite the disappointment which is sure to follow buying a four cylinder, with the Six already proven and ready for you at $1900.

At least you are not going to invest more than $1500 in a "four" with the privilege of a "Six" at $1900.

Don't be defeated at the start.

[A 3]

In advocating six cylinders, we know what we are talking about. Mitchells have produced perfectly satisfactory six-cylinder cars for three years. The engineering problems of the "Six" at a moderate price have been solved so far as Mitchells are concerned.

That they have done so first, only substantiates their claim as leaders—to being properly equipped to serve faithfully—willingly and authoritatively.

This progressiveness means money in your pocket.

Talks Business.

ABBOTT-DETROIT MAN TELLS OF TREND IN MOTOR MART.

"THE firm financial condition and marvelous prosperity that have prevailed throughout the country since the commencement of the present season, and which not only has been sustained with surprising fidelity but shown a constant increase, have been important contributing factors to the growth and production of the automobile industry during the past seven months," said B. C. Spitsley, assistant general manager of the Abbott Motor Company. "Not for a single moment has there occurred the slightest fluctuation or uneasiness as to the security of the business or output for the year. The motor car has gained an enviable position among the great industries of the nation and the indications are that the business next season will show a marked increase over any previous year.

"There is an imperative demand for cars ranging to the extremes in price. From the great corporations down to the average farmer, the motor car is considered indispensable. Nothing is more absurd than the talk of petty theorists and economists one sometimes hears, about an overcrowded market. Old-time professors of economy used to tell us that the law of demand created the supply. The direct reverse is as oftimes true and works both ways when applied to our business.

"A great percentage of the inventions were never thought of but by the inventor and perhaps a few others. What demands were there for wireless telegraph? The majority of the most distinguished scientists pronounced Marconi's ambitions as the whims of a dreamer. Well, who would now care to cross the Atlantic without the protection of the wireless, knowing that it is available? When the gasoline stove made its advent the housewife looked upon it with suspicion, but with a little urging and training it was soon considered indispensable to every well-ordered kitchen. What demand existed for the phonograph, moving pictures, the telephone and countless other things for service and pleasure?

"The automobile is the answer to an urgent demand for better methods of transportation, but above this, it is the creator and developer of a world of things that people never thought of. The motor car makes possible a saving of from 30 to 75 per cent. over the horse in nearly every channel of business, and it is simply a matter of sense and economy that improved methods be adopted. Factories everywhere are far behind orders and we, like many others, have greatly increased our output for the coming season.

"The last shadow of doubt as to the security of investment that may have existed among a few conservative business men, passed with the preceding year, and there is no lacking of support and co-operation in banking relations, nor from any other important source. The business cannot be given a separate classification in financial matters, as it is thoroughly interwoven with every conceivable interest. Political situations forecast no trouble, and it is unreasonable to presume that the industry should be affected any more than a wheel foundry or a shoe factory."

BIG BATTERY FOR ELECTRICS.

MAY REVOLUTIONIZE THE NEW SERIES OF CARS.

Exide Battery, the Largest in the World, Has Been Installed and Much Is Expected from Tests to Be Made by This Lead-lined Tank, for Which Much Is Claimed.

According to C. H. Bristol, the responsibility for dependable service in electric cars is unquestionable. The power that is used to propel an electric car is derived from a storage battery. The battery used is the most responsible part of the car, but needs some attention, and when properly cared for will perform its functions in a satisfactory manner.

The purposes for which storage batteries are used and the absolute dependence that is placed upon them in many different ways, should give the electrical vehicle users some confidence in their cars. One of the best examples of the kind of work that is done by storage batteries and of the responsibility for absolute dependable service that is placed upon them, is that of emergency batteries, which are used by the electric lighting companies in our large cities.

An Exide battery, the largest in the world, has been manufactured and installed by the Consolidated Gas, Electric Light and Power Plant of Baltimore. It is composed of 152 lead-lined wooden tanks, each being six and one-half feet long, two feet wide and four feet deep. They contain 133 lead plates, making a total of 20,216 plates in the battery. This is equal to 7500 horse power. It required fifty-one cars to bring the material from Philadelphia to Baltimore, the weight being 1,000,000 pounds.

This large battery was made with the same style plates as are used in Exide electric vehicle batteries. Exide batteries have been improved from time to time, and each time give better service. The Hycap-Exide was introduced when there was a demand for more mileage or charge of battery than the Exide could give. Some time ago the Ironclad-Exide battery was put on the market, and while it is the latest and highest development of this make, its service has been so superior that it has been indorsed by the leading electric vehicle manufacturers of the country.

KILBANE ORDERS WHITE.

Johnny Kilbane, champion feather-weight pugilist of the world, placed his order last week for a White self-starting thirty-horse-power touring car. The car is to be painted emerald green, with silver striping. When he placed the order Kilbane said: "I want a White for two reasons—one that it is made in Cleveland, and that means that it is all right, and the other is [illegible] arm is entirely too [illegible] risk it cranking a [illegible] White starting system [illegible] to be by far the [illegible] of any that I have [illegible] any chances in having [illegible] out of commission."

NO JOY RIDERS.

The board of governors of the Bridgeport (Ct.) Automobile Club has passed a resolution asking the police officers to aid the club in putting a stop to joy riding by chauffeurs. The plan proposed is to have the police take the numbers of all cars seen on the streets after midnight and send them to the club. The motorists will then be notified and an owner will know whether or not his car is being used unlawfully and he can proceed accordingly. The police department has promised its co-operation

Jeckell, president of the Imperial Valley Good Roads' Association; Philo Jones and Father Francis Buerlbach. Many ladies were present, and the local speakers praised the work done by The Los Angeles Times in sending a motor car across the continent.

Father Buerlbach spoke of President Mitchell as a leader in the good roads work. He urged all present to use their influence toward the building of the State highway from Los Angeles via Beaumont, Mecca and Brawley, to El Centro. Convincing arguments showed this to be the shortest and easiest route, and the one to be the greatest help to the most extensive territory.

FIRST AID WORK.

The our of inspection and organization was continued by President Mitchell from Brawley to Westmoreland, and to Mecca, accompanied by Jerome Akin and George R. Wade in their automobiles. The route lies over the temporary sixty-seven-mile road. The drive was made in about eight hours. Much time was taken looking over the proposed line for the permanent road. Its construction was found to be absolutely feasible, being at least ten miles shorter than the road now in use, and having an abundance of good road-building material close at hand. A splendid road at moderate cost is assured. Surveys for the new work will be begun at once. Permanent work will not be done until September.

The drive north and west from Mecca revealed a surprising amount of good road work. The citizens of the Coachella Valley are active road builders, and Riverside County Supervisor Schaffer, is building a boulevard extending about ten miles beyond Mecca towards Brawley.

Organization meetings were held at Mecca, Durbrow, Thermal, Coachella and Indio. The officers at Mecca are, E. B. Harris, president; Frank Turner, vice-president; E. J. McIntosh, secretary; L. E. Hill, treasurer. At Durbrow, C. H. McFarland, president; C. L. Edmonds, vice-president; C. H. Barrett, secretary; John H. Leach, treasurer. At Thermal, George Beach, president; J. W. Newman, vice-president; Mrs. H. G. Wood, secretary; John C. Kennedy, treasurer. Five hundred members joined the Thermal division. At Coachella, C. B. Estle, president; Mrs. J. L. Smythe, vice-president; W. J. Martin, secretary; George A. Shope, treasurer, with 500 members to start.

At Indio, A. M. Hawkins, president; C. W. Burdick, vice-president; J. Winn Wilson, secretary; Mrs. H. E. Card, treasurer, and 500 members. A banquet was arranged by the Indio Board of Trade, for the visitors, and was a most enjoyable affair.

AT PALM SPRINGS.

At Palm Springs, where Dr. and Mrs. Coffman of the Desert Inn received The Times party, with refreshments, and sent them on to Whitewater Point, where President Mitchell was met by a party of two machines from Redlands, a delegation of members of the Redlands section of the Ocean-to-Ocean Highway Association, under the leadership of Mont P. Chubb, who took charge of the explorers and showed them the splendid new road recently blasted out of the rocky Whitewater Point.

THE TIMES FIRST.

The crossing of the new road over the Whitewater River was a triumph for The Times. The building of this stretch of desert highway was first agitated when The Times sent the Stoddard-Dayton over the Whitewater River with Charles H. Bigelow at the wheel. The building of a passable road over this turbulent stream was agitated and was finally built.

At Redlands, where Gen. Harrison Gray Otis promised to send his own car across the continent to organize divisions for the ocean-to-ocean highway, the plan for this new road was born. It was completed a few days ago, and The Times car was sent snorting over this stretch, which is to make travel from Banning to Palm Springs, a joy ride.

Fair Enough.

EL PASO ROUTE FOR HIGHWAY.

An Ocean-to-Ocean Turnpike Looks Good to Many.

Bukey Asks That The Times Car Be Sent South.

Advances Claims Which Sound Good to Motorists.

Enthusiastic members of the El Paso Automobile Club, led by J. D. Bukey, their secretary, are anxious to show the amount of work already done on the roads leading into and out of El Paso. They advocate this route for the proposed ocean-to-ocean highway, and offer some excellent arguments in favor of this course.

The matter has been placed before John S. Mitchell, president of the Ocean-to-Ocean Highway Association, who says he must follow the mandate of the Phoenix Good Roads convention, which routed the highway through Springerville. Mitchell is not averse, however, to listening to every argument which may be brought regarding the El Paso route.

In a communication from Secretary Bukey the matter is brought into prominence. He asks that The Times car be sent over the route to El Paso and says that Dr. H. C. Drumm is coming to this city to lay before the road boosters the advantages of the route proposed by the club. The letter from Bukey follows:

"In traveling this route you escape a large portion of the mountainous country in Arizona and New Mexico, as you have practically a water-level route all the way, following in a large measure the State highways of these two States, some 200 miles of which are already open and the work is being pushed on the balance. Within the next year there will be a solidly constructed road leading from the California State line through to the northern edge of New Mexico.

"Our understanding of the Ocean-to-Ocean Highway Association is: That last year at the Tri-State Good Roads meeting held in Phoenix there was only one representative from New Mexico, but this gentleman was largely interested in the northern part of the State. He made every effort and succeeded in having this route adopted. This, in our estimation, was a mistake, and will delay the construction of a trans-continental road, as that route is practically impassable and your association will be compelled eventually to adopt the one proposed by us.

"H. C. Drumm, chairman of the Transcontinental Touring Club of America, made this trip last fall and has written me that so far as he is concerned, if he has to go over the country again, he would prefer to walk.

"Henry B. Joy, president of the Packard factory, driving a specially-equipped car, made an unsuccessful effort to get through by the northern route this winter and was compelled to go back and come through El Paso.

HERRICK KICKS.

"Harvey Herrick, who is driving the Examiner car, wired Deming yesterday that he had just passed over fifty miles of the worst road he had ever seen and that he was stuck in San Antonio, N. M., and did not see how he could get any further unless he came back to Deming and traveled in over the El Paso route.

There is only one bad spot in the entire southern route, which is about two miles of exceptionally heavy sand just west of El Paso.

We have appropriated $3000 for the construction of a road over this place and the work will be started before your car arrives.

In the event you decide to route your car by the southern route, we make this suggestion:

Mr. Drum will be in El Paso about April 22 or 23, coming from Dodge City, Kan., en route to Los Angeles for the purpose of logging and erecting sign posts along the route. If your car leaves Yuma and comes south through Tucson and Douglas we could arrange to meet your party there, comparing notes and unite in an organization, as Mr. Drum's prpose is about the same as yours. If this meets with your approval, if you will wire or write me, I will gladly arrange for four pilots and relay cars if necessary.

We think, Mr. Smith, that it will be of great advantage to The Times as well as to this part of the country, if you would personally make the trip and verify the writer's statements.

Our club has sent automobiles all over West Texas, Arizona, New Mexico and Southern California in an endeavor to locate the most feasible route through to the Coast, and we know whereof we speak.

We trust that we may have the pleasure of entertaining you and your representatives and escort them over the borderland route when we will demonstrate to your entire satisfaction that this is no real estate agent's boosting proposition.

There is no selfish motive connected with our organization, and if you will show us that the northern route is the best, we will gladly devote all our energies to the furtherance of this route.

In fact, there exists now a splendid road all the way from Dodge City, Kan., through El Paso and Douglas to Phoenix.

There are good bridges now over all the big rivers. So there are no rivers to ford.

This borderland route follows closely the lines of the Rock Island and the El Paso and Southwestern Railroad, through from Chicago to Douglas, Ariz., and the Coast. Many miles, especially through Arizona and New Mexico, the automobile road is just outside of the railroad's right of way. From El Paso, through Douglas, to Tucson over 80 per cent. of the road is this way, a distance of 400 miles. Over this borderland route, there are no long jumps between towns and night stops are seldom over 100 miles apart.

Good hotels and garages are to be had all along the route. There is no need of remaining over night along the roadside, unless one wishes to camp out, in which case there are many beautiful canyons and springs, where a delightful camp can be made. There is over four times the population of Arizona and New Mexico that will be served by the borderland route than can be possibly reached by going over any other route. Maps are now being made of this route and copies of it can be had from the Douglas Chamber of Commerce and Mines, Douglas, Ariz.

NEW QUARTERS.

New quarters will be occupied by the Society for Automobile Engineers about May 1 in New York. The new rooms have a floor space of 1503 square feet. Members of the society who participated in the recent European visit have purchased a chronometer for presentation to Arthur Ludlow Clayden, a member of the society resident in London, who first suggested the idea of an official visit to England, and who entertained the party while there.

Director Bargar of the police department of Columbus, O., has issued strict orders to the patrolmen to arrest every automobilist who fails to keep his muffler closed.

MANY MARIONS SOLD.

Burkhard Crippen Company Makes Great Report for This Season and Is Still Hustling.

The Burkhard-Crippen Motor Car Company, agents for the Lexington and Marion cars, report recent sales of Lexington cars, a "40" touring car to George C. Paonessa, a five-passenger touring car to French & Myers, a "40" touring car to Joseph Schneider, "40" touring car to R. M. Campbell, five-passenger car to H. W. French and seven-passenger "50" to the Angelus Mesa Land Company. Also Marion "35" touring car to Stella L. Butler. They have received another shipment of Lexington "40" torpedos and roadsters. Shipment expected this week of "45" Demi-tonneaux and touring cars and "40" touring cars.

J. B. Sullivan, factory Coast man for the Marion, has returned to this city after an absence of several weeks during which time he established agencies at Vancouver, Tacoma, Portland and other cities. He states that business is flourishing in the north, particularly Vancouver and Tacoma.

The new advancel models of the Marion touring cars have just arrived and are attracting favorable comment here and all along the Coast. These cars are equipped with one of the best-known makes of foreign motors and are of attractive lines.

E. Jr. Bennett, Western manager for the Lexington factory, reports that the northern part of the Coast is showing an unlooked-for interest in his cars, which are little known to them, this section having bought all the Lexington cars that could be spared to the Coast for the past two years. Bennett leaves shortly to close several contracts in the north.

NOVEL GUIDE POST.

The Benson Automobile Club of Benson, Minn., is being commended on its latest enterprise, the $1 guide post. These posts have been ordered by the township boards which pay $1 each for them, and they are erected in almost every instance at the points desired by the club. In this way the main roads are being marked at practically no expense to the club except the labor, which is done by the officers of the club, the work preliminary to putting on the names of the cities and villages and mileage being hired.

STANFORD OARSMEN MAY ROW AT POUGHKEEPSIE.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, April 26.—That the Standford 'varsity eight, which cleaned up Washington and California, in the Coast regatta this year, will compete in the big annual meet against Cornell, Pennsylvania, Columbia and Wisconsin, on the Hudson, June 29, is more than likely. The idea, which was suggested several days ago and which was not taken seriously at first, probably will be carried out, as the men who are behind the scheme believe they will be able to raise the $2000 which will be necessary to defray the expenses of the trip. The student body has approved the plan and will contribute toward the expenses of the proposed journey.

Harry Seward, '12, of Los Angeles, crew captain, is strong for the trip and believes that the men who manned the Cardinal boat this year would be able to make a creditable showing in the fast eastern company. A Stanford crew has never competed in the East although the fondest ambition of Dan Murphy, the former Stanford coach, who died a year ago, was that he might enter an eight-oared shell in the great regatta.

Coach Conibear of Washington recently wrote to Capt. Seward to the effect that the Stanford crew this year is the only one that has ever beaten Washington fairly. In Conibear's opinion, the Wisconsin crew that took third in the Poughkeepsie regatta last year is not as good as this year's Stanford crew.

Should Stanford enter the regatta the crew probably would row in a boat borrowed from one of the eastern universities. A new shell is being built in England and that might be shipped direct to Poughkeepsie. In addition to having the advantage of a month's training here, the crew would put in at least two weeks on the Hudson. The regatta will occur a month after the school year at Stanford closes and the men would have everything in their favor in preparing for the race.

Coming Up.

COAST ATHLETES EXCEL EASTERN COLLEGE MEN.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, April 26.—The results of the Standford-California meet last week showed more "class" than will be shown by the summary of any other dual meet in the country, this year, is the opinion of men who have their fingers on the pulse of the college world.

On top of that, "Dad" Moulton and other track experts are of the opinion that the California track team would be able to wallop any team in the country, including Yale, Harvard or Princeton.

In every event the performances were of high order. In the century dash and half-mile run, the time was not startling—10 1-5s. and 2m., respectively—but in every other event the men did better than is ordinarily done in the Yale-Harvard meets and measured up well with the work in the big eastern conferences.

Allen of California, who broad-jumped 22 ft. 4 7-8 in.; Fletcher of Stanford, who trotted the mile in 4 m. 28 2-5 s.; Crabbe of California, who ran the two miles in 9m. 55s.; Shattuck of California, who threw the hammer 161 ft.; Horine of Stanford, who high-jumped 6 ft. 2 7-8 in. and has cleared 6 ft. 6 1-8 in., the world's record; Miller of Stanford and Valle of California, who vaulted 12 ft.; Macilse of California, who ran the high hurdles in 15 2-5s. and the low barriers in 25 2-5s.; Todd of California, who traveled the quarter in 50 3-5s.; Rice, who put the shot over 46 ft., and the Stanford relay team, which ran the mile in 3m. 22 2-5s., an average of 50 3-5s. a lap, would grab a big bunch of points against any university team in the country.

It is probable that the California team will compete in the western conference and probably with the eastern universities at Philadelphia this year. If the blue-and-gold squad makes the trip it surely should make things interesting. It is not likely that Stanford will send a team East this year, although in the Cardinal ranks are several men who would be sure point winners.

Harry Wood, '13, of Whittier, who ran second in the mile, has been elected captain of the California team for next year. Wood broke the intercollegiate record last year, setting the mark at 4m. 21s. Fletcher was too fast for him this season and the tradition that no man has won the event in two consecutive years is still unbroken. During the last ten years, at least, a different runner has won the mile run in the intercollegiate meet.

Wallace, who ran the last lap of the relay for Stanford, was clocked in 49 2-5s., the fastest quarter that has ever been run on the Coast. Of the Stanford team, Gard of Glendora was the only "S" man, Wallace, Richdale and Millsap of Pasadena winning their emblem for the first time.

Capt. Tom Coleman of Los Angeles was bitterly disappointed because his breakdown caused an unheaval in the "hope." He had been counting in better time than Stanton of California, who won both sprints, and if he had not pulled a muscle undoubtedly would have landed two first places for Stanford.

Woolley, the Stanford weight man, has been awarded four stars. For the last four years he has won points for Stanford in the hammer throw and shot put.

SELF-STARTER LOOKS GOOD.

Ever-Ready Man Tells Some of the Fine Points of His Popular Starter. Gives Greater Speed Than by Hand.

U. S. Johnson, local manager of the American Ever-Ready Company, in discussing the advantages of a self-starter, said:

"Cranking the motor, as practically everyone understands, is merely the method of revolving the mechanism so as to obtain an explosion and start the chain of operations which result in power.

"The gas must be compressed before it will explode and turn the train of pistons to the point where each in turn will receive an explosive force and thereafter continue automatically.

"The ordinary compression averages about seventy-five pounds to the square inch and naturally requires considerable strength to overcome, especially in the high-powered motors.

"If motors would always start on compression there would be no necessity for self-starters. Unfortunately, on account of the low grade of the commercial gasoline today, explosive gases do not readily form.

"As a result, drivers are obliged to spin their motors, especially in cool weather, and it is this spinning that is both difficult and dangerous. This is the great advantage claimed by the Ever-Ready self-starter, namely, that it spins the motor naturally and at a much greater speed than could be done by hand.

"The Ever-Ready starter turns the ordinary motor over from seven to ten complete revolutions at a rate of 360 per minute, thereby making it possible to at all times start direct on the magneto instead of being compelled to use batteries as an auxiliary for starting."

The secret of success in painting the radiator is to first roughen the surface of the metal with a sheet of fine sandpaper. The coats of paint applied to the radiators should be very thin. If these directions are followed any plumbing paint will give good service.

HUB FIRE-FIGHTERS.

The Boston fire department has accepted a motor ladder truck after giving it a try-out in climbing Parker Hill, one of the steepest grades in the city, where there is a lot of valuable property whose owners have been demanding better fire protection for several years. The big truck made the climb in 2 minutes 53 seconds. The best that horse-drawn apparatus could do was from 6 to 10 minutes and some of the apparatus could not get up there at all some days.

Waterbury, Ct. is the latest New England city to become addicted to the use of taxicabs.

SPACE FOR TRUCKS.

Little Giant Man Ready to Entertain Commercial Car Men at Santa Monica.

A new feature will be introduced at the Santa Monica road race by H. L. Miller, Pacific Coast distributor for the Little Giant commercial truck, by providing quarters along the race course for the convenience and comfort of the owners and users of the Little Giant trucks. A rest-room, seats, distilled water, lunch and refreshments will be provided and enough space for fifty trucks.

On May 15 Miller states, he will be located in his new quarters at Nos. 506 and 508 West Pico street. The building will be 50x150 feet, with white tile front, where every convenience will be installed to make a salesroom, machine shop and storage maintenance complete. The Little Giant truck is manufactured by the Chicago Pneumatic Tool Company of Chicago and New York. Charles M. Schwab is one of the principal stockholders.

JUDGE DESIRES SANE AUTO LAW.

KANSAS CITY JUSTICE VOICES DESIRE OF THE MOTORISTS.

Motor Cars Have Come to Stay and Man Who Knows Advocates Mandates that Will Not Be Irksome, but Will Be in Keeping With the Needs of the City Traffic.

That automobile laws should be sane and practical common sense should be used in the enforcement of the same is the opinion of a prominent judge of Kansas City. In order to mete out justice and make the punishment fit the crime Judge E. F. Halstead of Kansas City got a thorough working knowledge of an automobile. His idea is that liberality and sanity should be the basis for the framing of all laws.

"First, we must accept the automobile as a permanent and important part of our traffic," said Judge Halstead. "Then we must regulate its speed signal, lights and other things in the same wise, practical way that we regulate other traffic problems, with an eye to the rights of all concerned. In fixing fines no set rule can be followed. A decision should be based upon the peculiar circumstances involved.

"The limit fine in our city is $200 but I rarely fine a motorist more than $50. Nothing is gained by excessive fines. The idea is to make the offender feel that he cannot escape just punishment. We have an advantage here in that all appeals in these cases are heard within two weeks, which is so short a time that witnesses will not go away or forget.

"We have little trouble over the warning signal problem. Here again the magistrate must exercise good sense. A signal is meant to warn and it must have that power in every way. It stands to reason that it must be abrupt and harsh and loud enough to always be heard. If any one makes a nuisance of it by sounding it unnecessarily, the man is at fault, not the signal. No motorist need fear punishment here who uses his signal properly as the body of motorists do.

"And so with the muffler cut-out and the smoke nuisance. The use of the former is not necessary, so it is viewed as inexcusable. In starting a car a little smoke is unavoidable, but the continuous smoking is a nuisance that will not be tolerated. In my opinion we will never progress by drastic restriction, but wise regulation is the solution to these problems."

A road investigating agent has been appointed by the Decatur Automobile Club of Decatur, Ill. It will be his duty to read up on all Illinois statutes relating to road improvement and government of the highway and also to keep posted upon all methods of constructing and maintaining good roads.

The London and Western Motor Club, organized at London, Ont., organized only a month ago, already has a membership of over 225 motorists. There are practically 275 owners in London, and, including about twenty-five new owners, it is believed there will be 300 members of the new organization before the opening of the motor season there.

The management of the forthcoming international rubber exposition, which will be held at the Grand Central Palace, New York, from September 23 to October 5, has announced that three prizes, aggregating $7500, will be offered to inventors who can suggest the best methods of rendering rubber available as a non-slipping road material.

As a precaution against accidents, an ordinance has been passed at Kingston, Jamaica, prohibiting the operation of motor cars not provided with two brakes. The law specifies that the brakes must be powerful in action, must be entirely independent of each other and one of the brakes must be attached to the driving wheels.

Mayor Fitzgerald, Boston, has sent letters to the officials in charge of the Franklin Institute and the Wentworth Foundation, two of the manual training schools, connected with Boston's school system, urging that some arrangement be made whereby young men may learn how to drive and care for motor trucks.

CONCERN MAKES SECOND MOVE.

Empire People Need More Space for Rapidly Increasing Business in Ties and Supplies.

The Empire Tire & Rubber Company is making a second move to larger quarters in two years. Their trade has grown so rapidly that they have completely outgrown their present quarters and for some time have had to hire extra storage room for their excess stock. On May 1 the company will be in new quarters at No. 1108 South Main street with four times the floor space of the present location. The company will also have a large basement, which is essential to the good care of rubber goods, and a much handsomer store.

In addition to the large increase in the automobile line, both tires and sundries, it has been necessary for the concern to put on two salesmen in their mechanical line, as they carry a large stock of all kinds of hose both for water and steam, rubber beltings and rubber packings for steam plants. Mr. Bogle, president of the company, states that their sale of tire preservers which has become so popular, necessitates carrying a stock of over 2000 of the various sizes to take care of the demand. They can be found on the shelves of almost every dealer and jobber handling automobile supplies.

NEWERF IN THE FAR EAST.

Prominent Tire Man Plans to Enter Field Far Away—Has Eye For Business.

The W. D. Newerf Rubber Company is expanding. Business has been showing such a steady increase in the northern part of the State that it has been necessary to lease a four-story building on Mission street in San Francisco to be used as a wholesale distributing depot and warehouse for the Miller Rubber Company line in San Francisco and the territory north of there.

The coast for the Miller line is controlled by Newerf and the business for this tire has been growing with leaps and bounds, not only in the coast territory, but in Honolulu and the Phillipines. Large orders were received last week from Honolulu and Manila for Miller tires. These goods were shipped from San Francisco.

"We are beginning to look upon Honolulu and the Orient as an important factor in the rubber business," said Newerf yesterday.

"The number of motor cars has been steadily increasing and this territory will get better than ever. The Miller product has been given a good start there and I mean to take advantage of the present good standing of these goods. The Miller surgical goods have already secured a firm hold in the Orient and for that reason it is not hard for the tires to secure a footing.

"I am in receipt of advices from China and Japan which mean an opening up of that territory during the coming year. Manila and Honolulu have been good fields for several years."

MOON SHINES RIGHT.

Says Automobile Has Been Greatest Factor in Building Better Highways. Cause of Land Value Increase.

J. W. Moon of the Moon Motor Car Company of St. Louis, Mo., states that the automobile has been the greatest factor in improving the State highways that this country has ever had. While our annual auto bill of $150,000,000 looks like a large amount, the agitation for good roads coming from automobile owners has caused the States of Pennsylvania and New York each to spend this sum alone this year on their roads.

One of the striking developments brought about by the invention of the automobile, according to Moon, is the great change it has caused in land value. Long years ago, farms diminished in value with the miles they were away from town. Some fifteen years ago a farm located near town was worth much more than a farm twenty miles out. The automobile has changed this situation. Twenty miles is not so far as that automobile makes it seem no farther than five miles was fifteen years ago. A twenty-mile drive in the old days with a horse and buggy was a big proposition, while with the automobile now you can make the twenty miles in about thirty minutes.

WARNER AUTOMATIC TIMER.

Instrument to Be Tested Tomorrow by W. H. Halliwell for Santa Monica Road Race.

The Warner automatic timer, which will be used by the W. H. and C. E. Halliwell Company in timing the Santa Monica Road Race, arrived last week and will be tested out tomorrow by W. H. Halliwell.

The timer was shipped here from the East and is the same which has been used so successfully at other big racing events, including the Santa Monica last year.

W. H. Halliwell has been appointed chief timer and C. E. Halliwell will be chief scorer. These men are experts in their line and their appointment means that the race will be accurately timed by the best method known. The Warner automatic timer was invented by the head of the Warner Instrument Company and since it was first tried on the Indianapolis speedway, has been generally used and the rules of the A.A.A. require that all records be timed by this electrical timing device.

The Supremacy of Warren MOTOR CARS

The strongest tribute to the supremacy of "Warren" motor cars—is the marvelous degree of satisfaction they give their owners.

We venture the statement that there is not a car made in America today at the Warren's price that is giving such universal satisfaction as the "Warren."

The wonderful "Warren" motor—by its phenomenal feats—has commanded the admiration and comment of the entire automobile world.

The "Warren" holds to its credit more important records for stock car victories than any other car in the country. Within only the past few weeks, the Warren beat the world's non-motor stop record—covering 12,404 miles without a motor stop—and 17,896 miles with but one motor stop.

You've admired the "Warren" on the street—you'll admire it more when you drive one.

SCHIMPF STILL CHAIRMAN OF A.A.A. CONTEST BOARD

WILLIAM SCHIMPF, ex-president of the Long Island Automobile Club, has acceded to the request of President Robert P. Hooper of the American Automobile Association, supplemented by the same desire on the part of the Manufacturers' Contest Association, expressed through President Howard E. Coffin, that he continue as chairman of the A.A.A. Contest Board. Schimpf first accepted the position temporarily in November last, to fill the unexpired term of the late Samuel M. Butler. He is an amateur and having served on the board for over a year has a complete understanding of the position.

It is Chairman Schimpf's intention that the affairs of the Contest Board shall be given a business administration in keeping with the great importance of the work and the indications are that the control of the contest situation for 1912 will be absolute.

Recent conferences involving Messrs. Hooper, Speare and Joyce of the A.A.A., and Messrs. Coffin, Marmon, Hollander, Riker, Waggoner, Meigs and Emise of the M.C.A., have resulted in a renewal of the contest relations of the two organizations. Several slight but essential changes were made in the agreement, and this as a whole then met the concurrence of the C.A. Special Committee, the chairman of which was E. R. Hollander.

The Contest Board consists of twelve members who are chosen from various parts of the country, they are all members of the efforts of the Contest Board in connection with the M.C.A. have resulted in the most perfect system of management found in the world, and Chairman Schimpf and fellow members are well equipped to meet the needs of this department of the National Automobile organization.

GOOD AUTO COURSE.

A course in automobile engineering will be added to the curriculum of the Carnegie Technical Schools of Pittsburgh. The new course will be under the dean of the School of Applied Design and will be installed upon the completion of Margaret Morrison Hall, a building more than 200 feet square, which is now in course of construction.

Anna K. Gilson, Wisconsin, has been granted a patent on a windshield for automobiles.

BIG "TIMES" CAMP TRACK MEET, SATURDAY, JUNE 1ST.

Thirty-two Free Trips to Catalina.

The big Times Camp Field Meet to be held Saturday, June 1, will be the grand climax to the greatest series of school track meets that have ever been held in the West.

The meet will be divided into two great divisions, junior and senior—the junior division will include all boys five feet and under—the senior will include all boys over five feet.

The first and second-place winners in every event in both the senior and junior divisions and all four members of each winning relay team will be given a twelve-day free vacation (13 days) at The Times Camp—thirty-two vacation prizes in all. Besides these a large number of merchandise prizes will be given. The first and second-place winners in every event will be disqualified from further competition.

Official List of Events.

Senior division—50-yard dash, 100-yard dash, 352-yard dash, high jump, 16-pound shot put, one-half-mile relay race, each boy runs 220 yards.

Junior Division—50-yard dash, 100-yard dash, 302-yard dash, 100-yard low hurdles, two feet; five-pound shot put, one-half-mile relay race, each boy runs 220 yards.

Every grammar and intermediate school in Southern California will be allowed to send as many boys as they wish to compete in the big meet, in both the senior division and the junior division. This meet will call out over one thousand contestants. Ninth-grade intermediate pupils will be barred from competing.

There will be no charge for admission. There will be no entry fees. There will be no fees or charge of any kind.

Get together boys, make this meet the greatest gathering of boys ever assembled on an athletic field. Let the people know that the small boy is the athlete and the man of the future, and that his efforts deserve attention and mention.

Baseball.

The Custer-avenue seniors and intermediates clashed in a seven-inning game, which ended in defeat for the seniors. The score was 9 to 5, and a very hotly-contested game was witnessed. The batteries for the seniors were Karsten and Carpenter pitchers, with Cole caught for them; for the intermediates Riggs pitched and McCloud caught. The game was played at Echo Park.

Baseball.

The seniors of Berendo and the seniors of the Thirtieth-street school clashed at the Berendo grounds in a game which ended 9 to 2 in favor of Thirtieth street. Thirtieth street had no trouble at all in defeating their opponents, and made good their vow to capture the game.

Basketball at the Y. M. C. A.

The Alerts won over the Trojans in a fast game of basketball by a score of 11 to 10. Both teams fought hard and showed much rivalry throughout the entire game.

While the Alerts and Trojans were contesting the Spartans and Wasps were in a similar conflict, which ended in the downfall of the Wasps by a score of 14 to 13. These teams fought like tigers, and had a hard time to decide who would get the final basket, but the Spartans pushed their mighty phalanx towards the net, and took off with the plum.

Y. M. C. A. News.

The Arrow Athletic Club will hold its first annual celebration on April 30. This club opened one year ago with ten members, and has increased to twenty-four. This club won the championship in the basketball league of the Y.M.C.A., which just closed, and are now in the league of indoor baseball. They will try to repeat their work in this league and carry off the trophy. The first game of the series will be played next Saturday in the boys' gym at the Y.M.C.A.

Y. M. C. A. Baseball.

On April 20 last the Athletics and Cubs of the Y.M.C.A. met for the first game of a series that will be pulled off between them. The score was 16 to 5, and the Cubs looked pretty sore after their battle for victory.

While they were playing the Pirates and Tigers played the first game of their series, and, of course, the Pirates took to these fellows like cheese. The score was 17 to 6, and the Tigers crawled back to their dens with nothing to say.

Baseball.

Alonso Twenty-one and Curtis played a game of ball at Echo Park, which ended with a score of 9 to 5 in the favor of the latter. Good playing as well as nice hitting was done throughout the game.

Baseball.

The intermediates of the Fourteenth-street school and the same class from Thirtieth street played a nice ball game on the latter's grounds last Tuesday afternoon, which resulted in a final score of 14 to 11 in Thirtieth street's favor. Fourteenth street made a fine showing as did the winners, but a streak of luck was with the Thirtieth-street team, and made the plum without much hard work.

Sierra Madre "Home Meet."

The athletically inclined of the Sierra Madre Public School are very busy these days getting in shape for their big "Home Meet" of May 1. There will be ten events in each division, or twenty events in all at the meet, and there will be something doing for sure, as this meet tells who goes to Pasadena May 26.

Instead of prizes, it has been decided that the winners in the events will receive credit slips, good on any of the local merchants, and it is from these credit slips will come the food, etc., to be used in the camp to which the military end of the Sierra Madre Public School goes in early June.

No one boy can take his credit slips, however, and cash them, but must turn same into the "company fund," and in that way all the members of the company will have a good chance to go to camp. In the event a winner is not in the company, he will be permitted to cash his winnings at any of the local stores. The boys detailed to solicit subscriptions for the May 1st event have already reported good success so far, and it is hoped that they will have secured the full amount necessary for the meet, and camp in June, within a few days.

Only such members of the company as took part in the parade of the Flower Festival, which was held in Sierra Madre recently, will be permitted to go to camp. However, if any of the boys have friends outside the public school, they will be permitted to attend, but, of course, will have to pay their own way. These invited guests are subject to the same military discipline that the regular members of the company are.

The boys in the company made quite a good showing in the parade of April 20, and the instructor in charge of this work has been quite "puffed up" for days past on account of the compliments paid the boys.

At dress parade and inspection just a day or so before the parade, Robert Seeley won the honor of carrying the flag for this year, as he made the best showing of any member of the company. At a "knockout drill" the morning of the parade, Privates Paul Carter and Norman Jensen were selected as the guard to the colors.

The pikes used at drill now carry the yellow and black colors of the Sierra Madre Flower Festival, and these pennants add very much to the appearance of the company. The pikes are to be fixed so that they can be stacked (as with the guns in the army,) when the boys go to camp.

In a short time the camp site for this summer's camp will be picked out, and then it is drill, drill, drill until the close of school. Guard duty is to be taken up in a short time, and this, together with the regular drill, will keep the boys busy enough until the close of school.

Albert Hasemeir Wins.

Albert Hasemeir, No. 2325 Rodgers avenue (junior,) won the eight-day trip to the Times Camp by scoring twenty-two points in the home track meet of the Breed-street school Thursday afternoon. Albert won the 50 and 100-yard dashes, also the high jump, and shot put, but could only get into the third place in the broad and 220.

Ben Gross in the senior division scored fourteen points; Boren Benton, twelve, but neither was able to get enough points to beat the speedy juniors.

Baseball.

Boyle Heights and Echo Park met at Echo for a hot game of ball. Boyle Heights were the winners, defeating them by a score of 16 to 2. The line-up was as follows: Boyle Heights, D. Tally and McDonald, right field; Tunk, short stop; Murry, second base; Campbell, catcher; Pirrone, first base; D. Tally, pitcher; Lahey, third base; Holcomb, left field; Brush, center field. Echo Park, Gordon, first base; I. Kelly, pitcher; Maise, second base; Moriam, short stop; D. Kelly, catcher; Mays, left field; Margalis, center field; Rowe, third base; Steam, right field.

Pirrone featured for Boyle Heights in getting three hits out of four times up to bat; making a single, double and triple. These teams will play any team in their division.

Indoor Ball.

The B7's and B6's of the Main-street school clashed on the San Pedro sand lot diamond for a hotly-contested game of indoor ball, which ended in B6's downfall with a score of 12 to 10.

The losers fought hard for victory, but just lost on a rally in the eighth when B7's best batters came up to bat.

Baseball.

Tufts-Lyon and Downey played an interesting game at Downey last Saturday. The Tufts-Lyon fell to defeat by a score of 5 to 4. They were lined up as follows: Tufts-Lyon, Gerber, catcher; Cowan, pitcher; Williams, first base; Palmer, second base; Hillman, third base; Cowan, left field; Schiltz, center field; Imbist, right field. Downey, Schultz, capt., left field; Parode, catcher; Smith, pitcher; Hough, first base; Westhmyton, second base; Rogerson, third base; Bouett, short stop; Spinyelan, center field; Satal, right field; umpire, Kirnam from Watts. The good pitching and batting by both teams and also the fine fielding, made the game very interesting. Only two errors were witnessed throughout the game, and good records were established for attendance on the ball grounds.

Baseball.

Downey defeated Echo Park 2 to 1 in a good game of ball at Downey Wednesday, which ended a series of games between these two teams.

Today Downey plays Radium Springs at Downey. The game will start at 3 o'clock, and a good game, as well as a fast one, is expected from these two teams.

Baseball.

Slauson won over Recreation Center, 14 to 9, in a game of ball played Tuesday afternoon on the Downey grounds. This is the first game that Recreation Center boys have lost to Slauson, and the defeat was keenly felt. In a return game between these two teams, Recreation Center will try and take the berry without any difficulty.

Recreation Center, after going down to defeat under the power of the mighty Slauson team, again fell to the mercy of the Sister School of Sacred Hearts. The score resulted in a close 3 to 2 game, and the sister school had to fight for their honors.

Baseball.

The Main-street and Sixty-sixth-street schools clashed for a rival game which resulted in a triumph for the Main-street team. They were lined up as follows: Main street, Higgins, catcher; Burchfield, pitcher; Blenkling, first base; Rambo, second base; Schmidt, third base; Hart, short stop; Abr, right field; Delape, center field; Evans, left field. Sixty-sixth street, Webber, catcher; Schiert pitcher; Torbur, first base; Villalobos, second base; Adams, third base; Amey, short stop; Upedford, right field; Eldrige, left field; Dunham, catcher; umpire, Hitt. These teams will play another series of games soon, and then watch for a hot two-out-of-three game. For games with these ball tossers, converse with the captains of the school teams.

Baseball.

On Wednesday afternoon the seniors of the Fourteenth-street school and Avenue 21 intermediates, clashed on the diamond at Sixteenth and San Pedro streets for a game, which ended in a score of 6 to 0, in favor of Fourteenth street. Avenue 21 did not have a look-in and as a matter of fact, the winners just kept them guessing where the ball was, all the time.

VARIED SPORTING EVENTS FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

THE Clan Cameron Society, which is to hold an athletic festival on Memorial Day at Fiesta Park, is working hard to make its first meeting a big success. It is proposed to make these sports an annual affair and the committee in charge intends to spare no effort that will conduce to success. With such men as I. W. Sword, manager; George Forfar, secretary; Ed Crowe, assistant secretary, and E. B. Sword, treasurer, little doubt can be entertained that success will be attained, especially as they are loyally backed up by the members of the society.

Fiesta Park is being put into excellent condition for the sports, a squad of men during the past week having cleared, graded and generally renovated the ground. The programme of sports is a varied and interesting one and should certainly entertain the public.

A ten-mile marathon, which will, for the greater part, be run off in the park, is expected to be an excellent contest. Spectators will have an opportunity of seeing it almost throughout and as the running will be easy and level all the way the race should result in a real test of speed, coupled with a reasonable test of endurance, rather than wholly the latter, which is frequently the case in the full marathon. Lee Henry will be glad to receive your entry and give all desired information.

The ladies are becoming more and more prominent, and as they are entering the field of athletics three short races are scheduled for their benefit, 50, 75 and 100 yard dashes. Contestants will receive the best of care and attention and will be heartily welcomed to the grounds on the day of the sports. No entry fee is required for the ladies' races.

A five-a-side soccer football contest for grammar school boys should provide good sport. Many of the playground soccer teams have attained an excellent knowledge of the game and will surprise the public. Sprints and short dashes for grammar school and high school boys are expected to receive a heavy entry and some very good prizes will be awarded in these events.

Other events are the 100-yard dash; 880-yard race; one mile race, hammer throw and shot put, tug of war, sack race, obstacle race, Highland dancing, open to men, women and children; bagpipe competition; one-half mile relay race (open to all fraternal organizations.)

Programmes, entry blanks and tickets can be obtained at all the leading sporting goods houses. All entries must be made with Lee Henry, 442 South Spring street. Entries close on May 22.

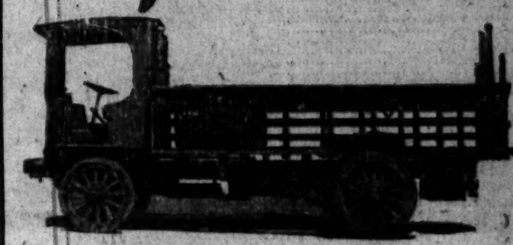
MANY MOTOR SALES.

Letting Down the Bars Stimulates Trade and Makes Hit with the Dealers.

It is estimated that the letting down of bars raised against New Jersey will result in increasing the sales of automobiles in New Jersey fully 25 per cent. a year. On the other hand, the fact that New Jersey has opened her doors, means that the 70,000 New England cars, the host of New York cars, Pennsylvania thousands and those of Maryland and Delaware are welcomed to spend fifteen days in New Jersey. The total is close to 200,000, and it is not unreasonable to suppose that fully half will take advantage of the invitation.

The number of touring cars will probably reach 110,000, according to estimates made by the automobile forces of the State. It has been discovered that the average tour is three days and a small fraction, and that the cars carry an average of three and one-half visitors during that period. If the proportion is carried out, New Jersey will enjoy a measure of prosperity. Long experience shows that an allowance of $5 a day for each person is a fair average for expense on tour. This would mean $17.50 a day or $52.50 for each visiting car. At 110,000 cars a year, this means a gross expenditure of $5,775,000.

Garford TRUCKS
Just Arrived



The Garford 5-Ton Motor Truck

Sliding Gear 4-speed Transmission.

Most accessible truck on the market.

Economy has been the watchword in the designing of this truck. It will consistently make 5 miles on one gallon of gasoline, and from 75 to 100 miles on one gallon cylinder oil.

It is the lightest 5-ton truck on the market and its tire equipment is as large as you will find on the heaviest 5-ton truck. It has compression grease cups everywhere there is the least possibility of wear.

The Driver has also been given consideration. The Garford truck has an all-metal cab with special features which will please the most exacting truck driver. It is a pleasure to drive a Garford Truck.

The Garford 5-Ton Truck will take 6 tons over Grand avenue hill with ease, will stop and start anywhere on the hill, and the foot-brake alone will control the entire load without any excessive effort on the part of the driver.

It is truly a wonderful truck, and we invite all persons interested in motor trucks to call and inspect it.

CASE CAR COMES TO NEW AGENTS FOR SOUTHLAND.

FOR several months past the J. I. Case Company have had two of their factory representatives investigating conditions in Southern California with a view towards establishing a factory branch or securing exclusive sale of the Case automobile. They have had many applications, but after a thorough canvas of the field the agency was placed with the Vance-Canavan Motor Company, and three 1912 40-h.p. touring cars are now on exhibition at their showroom at 1128 South Olive street.

The deal was consummated and contract signed Thursday afternoon, the factory being represented by E. S. Jones, Pacific Coast manager for the Case Company of San Francisco, and H. A. Boylan, their Southern California representative. Jones is a resident of San Francisco, but says Southern California is a much better market for Case automobiles than the northern end of the State. The J. I. Case Company believes this territory is the best market in the United State for its product and it is the intention to push the sale of their car and to assist the Vance-Canavan Company in every way.

Harvey Herrick, twice winner of the Los Angeles to Phoenix race, and winner of the last Santa Monica race and holder of the world's long distance record, is now associated with the Case Company, and left Los Angeles March 27 in a Case car, blazing the trial for the proposed national highway from Los Angeles to New York. The last report from Herrick was from Kansas City, where he attended the Trans-Mississippi Good Roads convention. Herrick wires that he will reach New York City in fast time, notwithstanding the floods and muddy roads which he is encountering.

The Case Company has entered two cars in the Santa Monica road race, with Joe Nikrent and Louis Disbrow driving. The Case racing team men have been giving exhibitions in the northern part of the State, and are now shipping cars to San Bernardino where they will appear next week.

The J. I. Case Company is one of the most successful manufacturing concerns in the United States and the name "Case" on a piece of machinery stands for quality, and their many years of experience in maufacturing machinery have firmly established their reputation and they assure the motor-buying public that the Case automobile is built of the same high-grade material that has always been used in other Case products.

"BROWN SURE STUTZ WILL MAKE GOOD ON SEVERE TEST

WALTER M. BROWN of the Brown-Symonds Company has a great deal to say of the safety of the Stutz car, of which he is agent. Brown says every feature in the Stutz carries out the idea of safety. After carefully calculating every stress and strain of the car, a big percentage is added. He declares no expense has been spared to build the car which would be equal to anything produced.

The frame used has a 4½-inch channel and is reinforced in the middle, although a four-inch channel could be used with ease. On account of the relatively light weight of the Stutz car, smaller spokes could be used, but the factory has specified 4-inch spokes in both front and rear wheels, with a nine-inch wheel hub. The axle used is the best that Timken produces, and the steering gear is what the factory considered the best, the "Gemmer" A grade gear.

"While most cars of the same size as the Stutz use four-inch tires, our cars have 4½-inch tires," says Brown. "We consider these most economical and satisfactory to the owner. The motor is rated as a fifty-horse-power, although it will develop sixty-five horsepower on a block test. The transmission and rear axle are Stutz design throughout, and will stand the strain of the maximum power the motor develops."

Manager Brown reports a great demand for these cars and says it keeps them hustling to supply their customers.

LOOK UNDER HOOD OF MOON.

Factory Shows Its Confidence in Handsome Car Which Is Becoming Popular.

From a statement made by J. W. Moon, head of the Moon Motor Car Company of St. Louis, one of the biggest factors in the success of their business is the fact that they always look on the prospective buyer looking under the hood and beneath the body of the car. Every car that goes out of the factory is personally inspected by Moon himself, who is constantly by his superintendents a stickler on motor quality. From his experience, ideas he believes that the more you give a man for his money the more business you will do, and acting on this has been the one policy of the Moon Motor Car Company.

"As a life-long manufacturer, I want every one to look at the self-starting Moon as a manufacturer would look at it," said the maker of the popular Moon car. "The actual power, the greatest evidence of quality, is under the hood and not in the fancy outside trimmings. Under the hood of the Moon "40" is the famous forty-five-horse-power T-head motor that is used so successfully in some of the higher-priced makes of cars. It took me five years to develop by motor, but I believe that I have a motor that is second to none. It is the long-stroke motor, 4½-inch bore, 5½-inch stroke and after putting over thirty years of manufacturing experience in it, I believe I have a motor that will please the most ex-

SILVERTOWN CORD.

Diamond Company Makes Novelty That Excites the Interest of Many Motor Men.

The newest thing in a tire line and the one big improvement of the past few years is the Silvertown cord tire being manufactured by the Diamond Rubber Company.

Manager F. O. Nelson has received his first shipment, which is somewhat limited in size.

The Diamond company has just put the Silvertown cord on the market. For the past six months it has been testing the tire with the different manufacturers, with the result that the demand far exceeds the supply. The new tire is built along entirely different lines than the usual fabric tire and has many advantages.

The Diamond company will make both types, the Silvertown being marketed for the highest-class trade.

In place of the wall of fabric there are two cords, which run diagonal in the base of the casing. The cords do not come in contact, but instead there are thin walls of rubber between each cord.

"The claims we make for this tire," said Manager Nelson, "may sound extravagant, but our tests in the big factories support our claims. We claim a saving of 25 to 30 per cent. in gasoline. The new tire is also immune from stone bruises, as there is no stiff wall to break. When a stone strikes the tire the wall gives instead of being bruised by the force of the shock.

"There is also an increase of from 15 to 20 per cent. in power, and the car rides much easier on account of the resiliency of the tire. These tires also do not generate so much heat as the fabric type.

"At present the electric companies are eating up a greater part of the Diamond output. The makers of electrics have been seeking for years a tire which would give not only battery mileage, but tire mileage as well. Never until the Silvertown cord was offered could this be secured.

"I consider this the greatest tire improvement in years, and the new type is certain to be popular."

NEWERF MAKES TEN STRIKE.

Flats, Stutz, Ford, Case, Buick, Flanders and Schacht to Wear Dorjan Rims at Santa Monica.

W. D. Newerf not only made a ten-strike when he equipped Tetzlaff's Flat with Miller tires, but he has made a sweep of the race and of the cars which start in the Santa Monica event. Thirteen will make the race on Dorian remountable rims.

Among the cars which will run on Dorians will be two Flats, driven by Tetzlaff and Oldfield, Stutz, Schact, Ford, Case, Buick and Flanders.

The Dorian rim has been gradually growing in popularity among racing drivers and will lead all others in equipment. The Dorian is a fast rim. It was used by Ray Harroun who won the five-hundred-mile race in Indianapolis. He made one change in 24 seconds, which shows the possibilities of the Dorian.

W. D. Newerf also created another sensation last week by announcing that the Miller Rubber Company would give $400 to the winning car if it used Miller tires, and $200 additional if the world's record was broken. The Miller Company is the first to put up prize money for the winners in the Santa Monica.

While the Miller Company is one of the oldest and most conservative of the rubber manufacturers of the country they recognized the importance of the Santa Monica race and have showed their sporting blood and enterprise.

GOODYEAR TIRES WIN

Showing Made for Season to Date and No Rim Cuts are in the Lead in Southern California.

While there is keen rivalry among the tire manufacturers of this country there is great interest taken in the records made of tire equipment of cars exhibited at the automobile shows. During the last show season, which is just ended, there have been sixty-four automobile shows held. At these shows there were 6597 cars shown, while there were in the tire equipment twenty-nine different makes.

Goodyear no-rim-cut tires were used on 2284 of these handsome new models. This is 34.6 per cent. of all the cars shown. The nearest competitor had 995½ sets of tires, or 15 per cent. of all cars shown. One hundred and twenty-seven of the leading manufacturers of American cars have contracted for Goodyear tires during the 1912 season. Goodyear men attribute the fact of their great number of orders this year and the showing on the show cars to the Goodyear no-rim-cut tire. A large majority of tires on cars in the different shows being this type.

HUDSON FOR THE MAHARAJAH.

State Equipage is An American Made Motor Car of Which the Indian Prince is Proud.

The State Equipage of the famous Indian, the Maharajah of Huthwa, India, has been displaced by the purchase of a Hudson motor car. The car of which His Highness has just become the owner is a new self-starting Hudson "33." The Maharajah is enthusiastic about his new possession, and while he has set aside the equipage which was used for numbers of years by his ancestors, he says the Hudson is the thing he gets most enjoyment from.

The Maharajah was one of the first of the native Indian Princes to take to the American automobile. The Hudson is used as a conveyance from his palace at Calcutta and his official palace at Huthwa, some 200 miles distant. The worth of the motor car to India is inestimable, as it is almost impossible to keep horses there. It is said that the simplicity and smooth running qualities of the Hudson "33," and the fact that it is the latest construction of Howard E. Coffin, induced the Prince to decide upon this make of car.

COVERS FOR SEARCHLIGHT.

Body Building Firm Plans Novel Innovation in Spite of the Rush of Business.

The body plant of the Coleman and Bentel Company has been working overtime during the past few weeks. The demand for truck bodies is increasing weekly. This company now has under construction a body for a five-ton Garford truck and another for a ton and a half Garford. The latter is for the Simank Furniture Company.

A body is also nearing completion for the Weber Baking Company. The demand for foredoors continues and many pleasure bodies are being changed over.

The Coleman and Bentel plant is of such magnitude that every piece of work on a body from its making and fitting to the final painting is done under the one roof.

The Searchlight Gas Tank Company occupies the front part of this building. The newest thing being offered by the Searchlight people is a black metal cover for the tanks. The covers add to the appearance of the car in that it corresponds to the color of the body.

MERCER FOR PACIFIC COAST.

George Bentel Closes Important Deal Which Means Much to Motor Trade.

George Bentel of the Coleman & Bentel company, closed an important automobile deal on his recent trip East. The announcement has just been made that Bentel now controls the entire Pacific Coast, with the exception of Southern California, for the Mercer line.

Bentel will handle the Mercer in connection with the Simplex in San Francisco, and will go north shortly to close with dealers in Portland, Seattle and other northwestern cities for this popular car.

Bentel spent a week at the Mercer factory and satisfied himself as to the merits of the car before he closed.

He is enthusiastic over the line and says this company is putting the very best material into these cars and the workmanship cannot be surpassed. Practically everything in the car down to the smallest nut and bolt, is made in the Mercer factory.

WHERE "INSIDE" GAMES FAILED.

THERE is an old story about an altercation which took place during a wedding ceremony in the backwoods of the Virginia mountains. The discussion started over the propriety of the best man holding the ring, and by the time that it had been finally settled, the bride gazed coldly on a dead bridegroom, a dead father, and a dead best man, not to mention three or four very dead ushers and a clergyman.

"Them new-fangled self-cockin' automatic guns has sure raised hell with my prospects," she sighed.

That's the way I felt when John Franklin Baker last October popped that home run into the right field stand in the ninth inning of the third game of the world's series with one man already out. For eight and one-half innings the Giants had played "inside" ball, and I carefully nursed along every batter who came to the plate, studying his weakness and pitching at it. It looked as if we were going to win the game and we sure were! And also zowie! The ball went into the stand on a line and I looked around at my fielders who had had the game almost within their grasp a minute before. Instantly, I decided that I had been pitching right out, expecting the end to come in nine innings. My arm felt like a mash lead hanging to my side after that hit. I wanted to go and get some crepe and hang it on my fancy whip. Then that old story about the wedding popped into my head, and I said to myself:

"He has sure raised hell with your prospects."

"Sam" Strang, the official pinch hitter of the Giants a few seasons ago, was one of the best in the business. McGraw sent him to the bat in the ninth inning of a game the Giants were playing in Brooklyn. We were two runs behind and two were already out, with one runner on the bases and he was only as far as second. "Doc" Scanlon was pitching for Brooklyn, and, evidently intimidated by Sam's pinch hitting reputation or something, suddenly became wild and gave the Giant batter three balls. With the count three and two, McGraw shouted from the bench:

"Wait it out, Sam!"

But Sam didn't hear him, and he took a nice masculine, virile, full-armed swing at the ball and fouled it out of the reach of all the local outfields of the soil.

"Are you deaf?" barked McGraw. "Wait it out, I tell you."

As a matter of fact, Strang was a little deaf and did not hear the carefully instructions the second time. But Scanlon was sensitive as to hearing and, feeling sure that even if he heard he would be taking no chances in putting the next ball over the center of the plate. It came up to be "groove," and Strang admired it as it approached. Then he took his swing, and the next place the ball landed was in the Italian district back over the right field fence. The Giants had the score.

McGraw met Strang at the plate, and instead of greeting him with shouts of approbation, exclaimed:

"I ought to fine you $25 and would except for those two runs and the one point difference the game will make in the percentage. Come on, boys, let's win this one." And they did in the eleventh inning.

CASE OF THE "INSIDE" GAME FAILING.

That was the case of the "inside" game failing. Any big league pitcher in baseball would have laid the ball over after hearing McGraw shout carrying out direct orders at the batter to "wait it out." Scanlon was playing to win, and Strang was not, but he waited for Sam. It was the first time in his life that he ever hit the ball over the right field fence in Brooklyn, and he has never done it since. If he hadn't been lucky in connecting with that ball and lifting it as he did the most good, his pay envelope would have been lighter by $25 at the end of the month, and he would have obtained an accurate idea of McGraw's opinion of his intellectual powers.

In the clubhouse after the victory McGraw said:

"Listen, Sam, why did you swing at that ball after I had told you not to?"

"I didn't hear you," replied Strang.

"Well, it's lucky you hit it where you did," answered McGraw, "because if any fielder had connected with the ball, there would have been a rousing greeting waiting for you on the bench. And as a tip, Sam, direct from me. You got away with it this time, but don't try it again. It was a 'inside ball.' The next straight one looked awful like it was coming up the 'groove.'"

Don't fall for all the good lookers, suggested McGraw, the philosopher.

Strang is now abroad having his mind cultivated, and he intends to attend the grand opera fields as soon as the frosts of the spring training season are over and get his throat into shape for the big league music circuit. But if he can't give any orchestra leader who reads this a tip. If he doesn't want the ball to come in strong where the batter has marked "rest," don't put one over the "groove," because Strang just positively can't help swinging at it. He's a good waiter.

The Boston club lost eighteen straight games in the season of 1910, and the team was leaving the Polo Grounds after having dropped four straight, making the eighteen, I said to myself:

"How does it seem, Fred, to be on a club that has lost eighteen straight?"

That's what Gen. Sherman said war was, Tenney, who seldom speaks. But for all around entertainment I would like to see John McGraw's team which had dropped "eighteen in a row."

That jinx had put the curse on the Giants hit a losing streak the next day that totalled six games straight. Everything that we tried went against us. McGraw would attempt the double steal, and both runners would be accurate, and the batter would connect at the plate. A hit and run sign would be given and the batter would run up against a pitchout.

Baseball was slowly going crazy. All baseball tricks were worthless. The whole gang of baseball clairvoyants couldn't guess right. It began to look to me as if Tenney would get his entertainment. After the sixth one had gone against us and McGraw had not spoken a friendly word to any one for a week, he called the players around him in the clubhouse.

"I ought to let you all out and get a gang of high school boys in here to defend the civic honor of this great and growing city whose municipal pride rests on your shoulders," he said. "But I'm not going to do it. Hereafter we will cut out all 'inside' stuff and play straight baseball. Every man will go up there and hit the ball just like you see it done on the lots."

Into this oration was mixed a judicious amount of sulphur. The Cubs had just taken the first three of a four-game series from us without any trouble at all. The next day we went out and resorted to the wallop, plain, unadorned slugging tactics, and beat Chicago 17 to 1. Later we returned to the hand raised, cultivated hothouse form of baseball, but for a week we played the old-fashioned game with a great deal of success. It changed our luck.

DOPING THE GROUNDS FOR THE VISITORS.

Another method which has upset the "inside" game of many visiting teams is "doping" the grounds.

The first time in my baseball career that I ever encountered this was in Brooklyn when Hanlon was the manager. Every time he thought I was going to pitch there, he would have the diamond doctored for me in the morning. The groundkeeper sank the pitcher's box down so that it was below the level of all the bases instead of slightly elevated as it should be.

Hanlon knew that I used a lot of speed when I first broke into the league, getting some of it from my elevation on the diamond. He had a team of fast men who depended largely on a bunting game and their speed in getting to first base to win. With me, fielding bunts out of the hollow, they had a better chance of making their goal. Then pitching from the lower level would naturally result in the batters getting low balls because I would be more apt to misjudge the elevation of the plate. Low ones were made to bunt. Finally, Hanlon always put into the box to work against me a little pitcher who was not affected as much as I by the topographical changes.

Why, I said to George Davis, the Giants' manager, the first time I pitched out of the cellar which in Brooklyn was regarded as the pitcher's box, "I'm throwing from a hollow instead of off a mound."

"Sure," replied Davis. "They 'doped' the grounds for you. But never mind. When we are entertaining, the box at the Polo Grounds will be built up the days you are going to pitch against Brooklyn, and you can burn them over and at their heads if you like."

The thing that worried the Athletics most before the last world's series was the reputation of the Giants as base stealers. When we went to Philadelphia for the first game, I was surprised at the heavy condition of the base lines.

"Did it rain here last night?" I inquired from a native.

"No," he answered.

Then I knew that the lines had been wet down to slow up our fast runners and make it harder for them to steal. As things developed, this precaution was unnecessary, but it was an effort to break up what was known to be our strongest "inside" play.

ACME OF DOCTORING GROUNDS.

Baseball men maintain that the acme of doctoring grounds was the work of the old Baltimore Orioles. The team was composed of fast men who were brilliant bunters and hard base runners. The soil of the infield was mixed with a form of clay which, when wet and then rolled, was almost as hard as concrete. The ground outside the first and third base lines was built up slightly to keep well placed bunts from rolling foul, while toward first base there was a distinct down grade to aid the runner in reaching that station with all possible expedition. Toward second there was a gentle slope and it was down hill to third. But coming home from third was up-hill work. A player had to be a mountain climber to make it. This all benefited fast men like Keeler, McGraw, Kelley and Jennings, whose most dangerous form of attack was the bunt.

The Orioles did not stop at doctoring the infield. The grass in the outfield was permitted to grow long and unkempt. Center and left fields were kept level, but in right field there was a sharp down grade to aid the fast Keeler. He had made an exhaustive study of all the possible angles at which the ball might bound and had certain paths that he followed, but which were not marked out by sign posts for visiting right fielders. He was sure death on hits to his territory, while usually wallops got past visiting right fielders. And so great was the grade that "Wee Willie" was barely visible from the batter's box. A hitting team coming to Baltimore would be forced to fall into the bunting game or be entirely outclassed. And the Orioles did not furnish their guests with topographical maps of the grounds either.

The habit of doctoring grounds is not so much in vogue now as it once was. For a long time it was considered fair to arrange the home field to the best advantage of the team which owned it, for otherwise what was the use in being home? It was on the same principle that a general builds his breastworks to best suit the fighting style of his army, for they are his breastworks.

But lately among the profession, sentiment and baseball legislation have prevailed against the doctoring of grounds, and it is done very little. Occasionally a pitching box is raised or lowered to meet the requirements of a certain man, but they are not altered every day to fit the pitcher, as they once were. Such tactics often hopelessly upset the plan of battle of the visiting club unless this exactly coincided with the habits of the home team. Many strategic plans have been wasted on carefully arranged grounds, and many "inside" plays have gone by the boards when the field was fixed so that a bunt was bound to roll foul if the ball followed the laws of gravitation, as it usually does, because the visiting team was known to have the bunting habit.

A good story of doctoring grounds gone wrong is told of the Philadelphia Athletics. The eccentric "Rube" Waddell had bundles of speed in his early days and from a slightly elevated pitcher's box the batter could scarcely identify "Rube's" delivery from that of a cannon. He was scheduled to pitch one day and showed around at morning practice looking unusually fit for George.

"How are you feeling today, George?" asked "Connie" Mack, his boss.

"Never better," replied the light-hearted "Rube."

"Well, you work this afternoon."

"All right," answered Waddell.

Then the groundkeeper got busy and built the pitcher's box up about two feet, so that Waddell would have a splendid opportunity to cut loose all his speed. At that time he happened to be the only tall man on the pitching staff of the Philadelphia club, and, as a rule, the box was kept very low. The scheme would probably have worked out as planned if it had not been that Waddell, in the course of his noonday wanderings, met several friends in whose society he became so deeply absorbed that he neglected to report at the ball park at all. He also forgot to send word, and here was the pitcher's box standing up out of the infield like one of the peaks of the Alps.

As the players gathered, and Waddell failed to show up, the manager nervously looked at his watch. At last he sent out scouts to the "Rube's" known haunts, but no trace of the temperamental artist could be found. The visitors were already on the field, and it was too late to lower the box. A short pitcher had to work in the game from this peak of progress, while the opposing team installed a skyscraper on the mound. The Philadelphia club was badly beaten and Waddell heavily fined for his carelessness in disrupting the "inside" play of his team.

SOAPING THE SOIL AROUND THE PITCHER'S BOX.

An old and favorite trick used to be to soap the soil around the pitcher's box so that when a man was searching for some place to dry his perspiring hands and grabbed up this soaped earth, it made his palm slippery and he was unable to control the ball.

Of course, the home talent knew where the good ground lay and used it or else carried some unadulterated earth in their trousers' pockets as a sort of private stock. But our old friend "Bugs" Raymond hit on a scheme to spoil this idea and make the trick useless. Arthur always perspired profusely whetn he pitched, and several managers perceiving this had made it a habit to soap the dirt liberally whenever it was his turn to work. While he was pitching for St. Louis he went into the box against the Pirates one day in Pittsburgh. His hands were naturally slippery, and several times he had complained that he could not dry them in the dirt, especially in Pittsburgh soil.

As Raymond worked in the game in question he was noticed, particularly by the Pittsburgh batters and spectators, to get better as he went along. Frequently his hand slipped into his back pocket, and then his control was wonderful. Sometimes he would reach down and apparently pick up a handful of earth, but it did no damage. After the game he walked over to Fred Clarke, and reached into his back pocket. His face broke into a grin.

"Ever see any of that stuff, Fred" he asked innocently, showing the Pittsburgh manager a handful of a dark-brown substance. "That's rosin. It's great stuff—lots better than soaped ground. Wish you'd keep a supply out there in the box for me when I'm going to work instead of that slippery stuff you've got out there now. Will you, as a favor to me?"

Thereafter all the pitchers got to carrying rosin or pumice stone in their pockets, for the story quickly went around the circuit, and it is useless to soap the soil in the box any more. There are many tricks by which the grounds or ball are "fixed," but for nearly all an aptidote has been discovered, and these questionable forms of the "inside" game have failed so often that they have largely been abandoned.

One big league manager used always to give his men licorice or some other dark and adhesive and juicy substance to chew on a dingy day. The purpose was to dirty the ball so that it was harder for the batters to see when the pitcher used his fast one. As soon as a new ball was thrown into the game it was quickly passed around among the fielders, and instead of being the lily-white thing that left the umpire's hands when it finally got to the pitcher's box, it was a very pronounced brunette. But some eagle-eyed arbiter detected this and kept pouring new balls into the game when the non-licorice chewers were at the bat, while he saved the discolored ones for the consumption of the masticators. It was another trick that failed.

Frequently backgrounds are tampered with if the home club is notably weak at the bat. The best background for a batter is a dull, solid green. Many clubs have painted backgrounds in several contrasting, broken colors so that the sunlight, shining on them, blinds the batter. The Chicago White Sox are said to have done this and for many years the figures showed that the batting of both the Chicago players and the visitors at their park was very light. The White Sox's hitting was weak anywhere, so that the poor background was an advantage to them.

HOW INJURIES UPSET THE "INSIDE" GAME.

Injuries have often upset the "inside" play of a club. Usually a team's style revolves around one or two men, and the taking of them out of the game destroys the whole machine. The substitute does not think as quickly; neither does he see and grasp the opportunities as readily. This was true of the Cubs last season. Chance and Evers used to be the "inside" game of the team. Evers was out of the game most of the summer and Chance was struck in the head with a pitched ball and had to quit. The playing of the Chicago team fell down greatly as a result.

Chance is the sort of athlete who is likely to get injured. When he was a catcher, he was always banged up because he never got out of the way of anything. He is that kind of player. If he has to choose between accepting a pair of spikes in a vital part

Speedometer adds immensely to the pleasure and safety of automobiling

The Stewart is the most efficient speed indicator manufactured. It never makes a mistake; never misses a second to the hour or an inch to the mile; others may cost more but they cannot do more.

Four out of every five speedometers in use are Stewarts.

The plants that make the other 20 per cent haven't the same facilities; haven't the same production; so they can't manufacture as well or as cheaply.

Stewart Speedometers are built the strongest and last the longest.

Magnetic principle, employed in 85 per cent of all speedometers, making possible the use of slow moving parts; no wear; ball and jewel bearings; beautiful workmanship; remarkably accurate; 100,000-mile season odometer; 100-mile trip register, can be set back to any tenth of a mile; positive drive; no springs; unbreakable flexible shaft; drop forge swivel joint that will outwear car; noiseless road wheel gears.

Serious Question.

MANNER OF ADDRESSING BALL IS UNDER DISPUTE.

THE question of the correct way of addressing the golf ball is attracting considerable attention in England. The non-golfer declares that the preliminary movement of the golfer is a gratuitous piece of folly. In a recent article, Mr. Hutchinson, the amateur expert, compared the amateurs and professionals, and stated that the professional was, as a rule, more skilled than the amateur in making this preliminary "waggle" of direct assistance to the rhythm and timing of the stroke. He added that the momentary pause when the club rests behind the ball after the "waggle" and before the stroke should be adapted to the nature of the shot to be played, the longer shot demanding the shorter pause. Spectators become the more firmly persuaded of the truth of these remarks in watching Toogood, the British player, in his recent blindfold match, when he struggled against his natural instincts in driving.

Most golfers have probably discovered at some time or other that they can, for the moment, at least materially affect their swing by slightly altering their waggle, even though it be an alteration, visible to no other eye; an alteration of which only they themselves are conscious. A discreet curbing of the "waggle" may be more effective than a deliberately slow swinging of the club, while, although this is much less likely, a little added ferocity and flourish of the wrists may restore to life a flaccid and impotent swing. Waggles may be seen on any day and on any course which are almost hopelessly inimical to any rhythm, in hitting. Chief among these, although not so often to be seen as formerly, is the style of address called in the Badminton Library the "disappointment," wherein the player aims by means of a series of full swings, stopping the club behind the ball with a vicious jerk just as the onlooker imagines that he is going to hit it. After that it is only natural that the clubhead should stop almost as it reaches the ball; that it should go smoothly through is unthinkable.

If, however, it is possible entirely to condemn some of the preliminary flourishes of bad players, it is almost impossible to reduce from those of the very best and fixed rule. Some have cut down the "waggle" to the irreducible minimum, appearing indeed as if they only indulged in it at all as a concession to orthodoxy. And of such is Massy and in a still more noticeable degree Duncan, and their brevity is prima facie a most commendable quality; but to imitate Duncan's address would certainly bring disaster to the less talented. It is so quick that with ordinary mortals a quick, jerky swing would inevitably follow; even Duncan himself, if he ever errs, almost always does so in the direction of "snatching" at the ball. At the opposite pole is Herd, who seems by his sequence of flourishes, growing more and more rapid, to be gradually lashing himself into a fury before finally hurling himself at the ball. The late F. G. Tait had something of the same appearance of working himself up for a final effort, although his was an indefinitely more gentle and leisurely manner of doing so.

This cumulative manner of wagging is rather fascinating in a great player, but apt to be both tedious and perilous with ordinary people. A far safer model would be either Braid or Harry Vardon. Both pass the club but once backward and forward over the ball, and in both cases the movement is comparatively leisurely, and is instinct with rhythm. Braid has, in addition, a little menacing shake of the clubhead in the middle of his "waggle," which conveys in some indescribable way a sense of timing. Both moreover, have this great virtue, that they never add to or subtract from their normal method so much as the fraction of a flourish.

Sadly Mixed.

IS OXYGEN THE REAL STIMULANT?

FAMOUS ATHLETES ARRAYED FOR AND AGAINST IT.

Trainer Robertson Strongly Favors It While Sheppard, Hillman and the Ellers Advise That It Is Bad. Members of the Olympic Committee Say They Will Oppose Its Use.

The open letter sent out by Sir Edward Lankester, the English chemist, asking the managers of the Olympic games to allow the athletes to use oxygen in their competitions, has caused much discussion among American chemists, as well as athletes. While all declare that oxygen is not a drug, stimulant or "dope," the opinion is practically unanimous that it is not a natural aid for athletes in competition. Most authorities here advise that the use of it be prohibited.

Among those who differ with the chemists and members of the Olympic committee who say that oxygen should not be allowed are a dozen or so of our prominent athletes. The latter claim they have used it during competitions and found it helped them in their efforts to win. Other athletes, however, say they have tried oxygen and found that it retarded rather than helped them in their efforts.

Lawson Robertson, trainer of the Irish-American Athletic Club, is an advocate of the use of oxygen. While an amateur he used it immediately before and during many competitions, and since he became a coach he has often given it to his charges.

Dr. Charles L. Atkinson of Brooklyn, who administered oxygen to Robertson and several members of his team, says that oxygen does not come under the head of anything that is prohibited in athletic competitions.

"It is more of a food than a drug or stimulant," said Dr. Atkinson last night. "Its immediate effect is upon the lungs and it cures fatigue poisoning, which is brought about by too much exercise, and enables an athlete to do better work on the track or field."

Melvin Sheppard, Harry Hillman, Abel Kiviat, Jack Eller and Bob Eller are some of the other champions who have used it. But they say they have had enough of it; that it made them ill and prevented rather than helped them in their contests.

Among the prominent chemists who say that oxygen is not a drug or stimulant is Prof. Charles Baskerville of the chemistry department of the City College of New York. But he agrees with the members of the Olympic committee and says that it is not a natural aid for athletes in competition.

James E. Sullivan, Bartow S. Weeks, Gustavus T. Kirby, A. H. Curtis and William Sloane, members of the Olympic committee, say they will vote against the use of oxygen at the Olympic games in Stockholm.

Ruling has been made by the State legal department on the Minnesota vehicle law that a chauffeur is a person who drives an automobile in public streets as the employee or another, whether his employment is incidental or occasional.

Cole Hebert,

And some of the prize trout brought down from Santiago Canyon.

CAUGHT HIS SHARE.

Pasadena Sportsman Brings String of Husky Trout to Friends in This City.

Cole Herbert returned from Santiago Canyon Friday afternoon with one of the choicest collections of trout caught this season. The prize fish measured 22 inches and there were a number of the silvery finned denizens which measured well up in the "teens."

Young Herbert corralled the attractive limit in a few hours, but it required three days to make the trip, and with a pack of 101 pounds on his back, the fellow of Izaak Walton earned the sport.

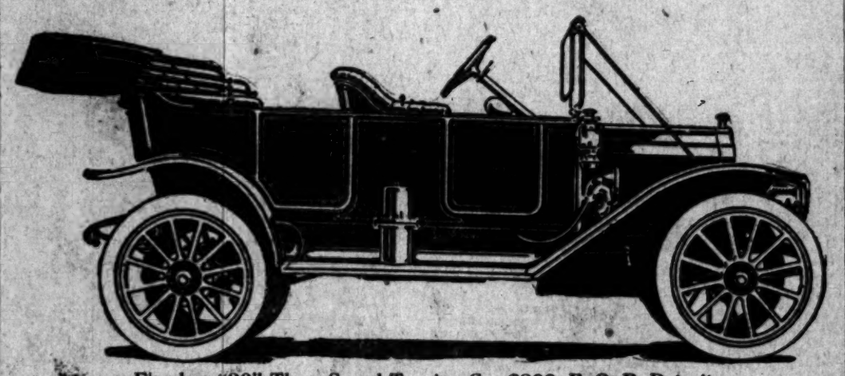
Santiago Canyon is twenty-five miles back of Pasadena and the only way to reach this fishing stream is by mountain trail. Any of the paths over Mt. Wilson or the trail up Santa Anita Canyon will take one to the desert slope and the good trout fishing, but according to Herbert it is impossible to make the trip in less than three days.

It is a difficult trip to say the least, but well worth the time to a fisherman who enjoys landing the game ones. The Santiago trout are larger than those caught in the other streams near here. They are thick, heavy and strong fighters.

The big ones in the Santiago rise to flies and it is an easy matter to catch the limit.

Flanders "20" Will Give You Satisfaction

We Know This Car and Will Prove What It Can Do for You



Flanders "20" Three-Speed Touring Car $800, F. O. B. Detroit

The purchase of an automobile today need be no gamble. You can be sure, absolutely. Sure of quality; sure of service; sure of square treatment after you buy.

Consider the Flanders "20." Thousands of men say it is the best buy on the market. Many of them are in this town. Their word means something. Then, why not give us a chance to tell you, too, why it is so good. We can interest you.

The big argument for any car doesn't lie in pictures or flowery words. No! You get the real test out on the country roads when a driver sends his car through mud and sand or up steep hills.

Automobiles are like men. Only a real test proves them. And, believe us, the man who sits behind a Flanders "20" motor is going to tell you: "There's a real car. It has the goods. I have driven it and I know."

Flanders "20" is a great car because the design is simple and strong and because the materials in it are what they ought to be.

During the past year stock Flanders "20's" have:

1st—Broken World's Speed Records 1-20 miles.

2nd—Won in record-breaking time the most important hill climbs in this country.

3rd—Proved by service in the hands of owners, by victories in numerous Reliability Runs, by the Glidden Tour Pathfinding and by 1280 miles pioneering between Seattle, Wash., and Hazelton, B. C., that the Flanders "20" has unequaled durability.

If you are determined to spend $1500 to $5000 for a car, go ahead; we wish you luck. But if you want a car of quality second to none at any price, of speed, handsome appearance and tireless endurance, get a Flanders "20."

It is a splendid car. You will be proud of it.

And if you buy a car, you will find it amply guaranteed and we personally will give you the best of treatment.

Let us talk this over with you.

Or, if you want to go slowly, send for "First to Hazelton" booklet or other of our interesting literature.

INDIANS ENLIST.

Athletes of Sherman Institute Will Again Be in the Running for Football Glory.

The Sherman Indians will be on the football map when the whistle blows for the opening for the season next September, according to Joe Shoulder, athletic director at the Indian school; but it will not be the old game at which the "Redmen" starred for so many seasons.

Rugby will be the brand of pigskin play staged by the boys of the Riverside school. This will be the first Indian team to play the English game; and they should attract much attention in this section, in the north and perhaps go up to Vancouver and Victoria where they would draw well and boost the game sky-high.

At the American game, Uncle Sam's wards were in a class by themselves when it came to games in this section; and the only expense-paying crowds were drawn when they met California and Stanford. So it was a hard blow to the Indians when the northern universities gave up the game.

For two or three seasons after the introduction of rugby, the Sherman lads played the old game with success; but with only two games in which to meet the expenses of the season the management of the school decided that it was impossible to continue the sport.

It was a hard blow to intercollegiate football when the braves dropped the Walter Camp stuff, but no amount of persuasion could induce them to readopt the strenuous game.

When U.S.C. took up rugby all hope of ever seeing the "purple and gold" on the gridiron again vanished and now the reports come in with the startling news that Shoulder's boys will also join the rugby ranks.

The athletes of the government school will meet Stanford and California in addition to U.S.C., the Olympic Club, Santa Clara and St. Mary's College.

It is supposed that the "Redmen" will take to the new game and develop a fast fifteen. Several coaches and boosters of rugby have stated that they would help Shoulder to get the men in trim.

Joe has never played the English pastime, but has seen a great deal of it and should be able to hold his own with any of the self-made rugby tutors in the State after a year or two.

MONEY NEEDED TO START TEAM.

League Magnates Called Upon to Expend.

Many Small Items Entered Up to Expense Account.

Players Forced to Buy Their Gloves and Shoes.

To equip a major league team of twenty-five players and provide the necessary paraphernalia a club owner must spend more than $2500 each spring. Strange to say, however, the players must purchase their own gloves and spiked shoes, which involves a total outlay of $225.

The most expensive item in the club owner's list is more than $1000 for balls, a team using at least sixty dozen during the playing season, according to the estimate of Secretary Thomas G. Davis of the Highlanders, who has supplied the following table:

Sixty dozen baseballs	$1080.00
Fifty uniforms	625.00
Twenty-five sweaters	175.00
Twenty-five sliding pads	62.50
Two movable batting cage	60.00
Two chest protectors	20.00
Three catchers' masks	15.00
Two pairs of shin guards	12.00
Six canvas bases	12.00
One home plate	7.50
One pitcher's box plate	5.00
Incidentals	100.00
Total	$2,304.00

The salaries of a ground keeper and assistants amount to $2000, while $50 is spent for sodding and loam. There was a time when ball players were compelled to buy their uniforms, as the charge was so small—$15 a suit—that the magnates soon decided to assume this expense. Each club must pay $1.50 for the official ball.

Seven years ago the major leagues provided a certain number of balls each, but in the new contract with the manufacturers this practice has been abolished. In addition to gloves and shoes the players have to pay for individual bathbags and the pitchers must buy their toe plates. Some of these days the magnates will relieve the players of this outlay, which is trivial, to say the least. Thirty years ago a big professional team was fitted out for $500, the men having the use of everything, but the equipment was comparatively crude.

BOXING NOTES.

Ad Weigist will weigh about 128 pounds when he enters the ring to meet Joe Rivers," says Tom Jones. He might exceed that, but I doubt it. From the first day that the Dutchman takes to the hills until he stops training for the July 4 contest he will have but one ambition in mind and that is to take on weight and become as rugged as of yore."

Manager Harry Burns has wired the matchmaker of the Coalinga Athletic Club asking him for an opponent for his charge, Kid Dalton, to appear before the Coalinga Club.

Frankie Conley took his first run yesterday as a conditioner for his forty-round contest with Jack White on May 10. Frankie will put in his first real boxing workout today.

Jack Herrick is training hard for his match with Billy Weeks, scheduled to take place in the Dreamland rink in San Francisco on May 3, over the short route. Herrick is trying to develop his infighting style.

Jack Tippetts, manager of Walter Ketchum, the Coalinga crack, who made a good impression in the East, and who is now back home, has accepted a bout with Bert Fagan for May 12 before the Coalinga Athletic Club.

Jack Graham, who put up a good fight against Jack Barry, is out with a challenge to any middleweight, who fights in the prelim class hereabouts. Callahan Graham, who manages his fighting career, is confident that Bob can meet those 158-pounders that are in the local game.

Tom Jones says Frankie Conley has a good chance to fight his way right up to the foremost rung in the ladder game and finally get a return match with Champion Johnny Kilbane.

CHESS NOTES.

The appended game, just finished in the final round of the second Southern California correspondence tournament, illustrates the difficulties encountered by a player essaying a new variation in correspondence play.

Pursall, defending Ruth's Evan's gambit, by 5... B-Q3, put himself in a position subject to instant pressure from the center without adequate counter-play, which is as much as an opponent of Ruth's vigorous style could ask. After his twenty-first move, Black's game was hopeless, and he resigned when the twenty-fourth found him a piece behind. The players will meet again in the fourth correspondence tourney.

Overland

The Choice of the Majority

¶ There are more Overland cars being bought to-day than any other similar type of car produced. We average five sales to the other makers' one. Have you ever stopped to figure this out? Has the full force of this significant fact been brought home to you? Do you imagine we are selling more merely because we are making more?

¶ We are marketing the greatest number of cars purely and simply because we can give more for a dollar than any other manufacturer in the business.

¶ The greatest number of people to-day who are buying high grade popular priced cars are chosing the Overland. Figures prove this. Does it not occur to your sense of reasoning that this vast majority of shrewd buyers cannot be wrong?

¶ The unparalleled value of this car has moved the motor buying public of every civilized country under the sun. The response is world wide. What better guide can you have as to how to get the best and most for the least amount of money?

¶ The exceptional worth of this car has been proven. Not in any one way, but in a thousand different and distinct ways. Yet there is but one big practical reason why you should buy an Overland. Its purchase gives you more actual car value for less actual money than you can get from any other manufacturer in the world.

¶ The only apparent and practical difference in popular priced cars to-day is the difference in price, and this is entirely due to the wide difference in the size of the plants that produce them. A comparison of current market prices places this evidence in your own hands. By that we mean just this: Take our magnificent, powerful Model 60—shown here. This car is priced at $1200. By actual comparison you will find this car the duplicate of any other $1500 car made. To be more specific—it has the power, the speed, the seating capacity, the wheel base, the construction, the bearings, the comfort and finish and on top of that it will give better and longer service.

¶ The value of a car can be justly judged by the demand for it. We are the largest producers of thirty, thirty-five and forty-five horse-power cars in the industry. The public have forced this condition. We never have been able to supply the demand. This year we will make 25,000 cars. Right now we are shipping 125 cars a day. We have over 2000 immediate orders on hand. It is not unusual for us to find three to four hundred shipping orders in one morning's mail. We export more cars each year than the entire annual output of any automobile plant in Europe. This gives you some idea of our tremendous capacity.

¶ Model 60 is a thirty-five horse-power, five-passenger touring car. It is big, handsome, powerful, comfortable and efficient. It will give you years of service. According to the run of market prices, it is a $1500 car for $1200. In order to get this much value for $1200 you must buy an Overland "60" or pay at least $1500 for some other make. Which shall it be? See our dealer below and decide early. Handsome catalog on request.

Vagaries of Fate.

KNOCKERS HURT BALL PLAYERS.

Vicious Criticism Has Sent Many on Their Way.

Others Are Ruined by Too Much Good Fellowship.

Tris Speaker Was Turned Down by Comiskey.

Doak Roberts of the Houston Club of the Texas League says the two great elements that contribute to the downfall of players are knockers and good fellows—those whose vicious criticism kills a player's spirit and those who in their enthusiasm lead him out of the straight and narrow path. "Baseball is a peculiar profession," said Roberts, in a recent interview in the Houston Chronicle. "It differs from any other in the world. Its men are actually employed in its pursuit for but two or three hours at most in the afternoon. They have nine hours of every day and the fathomless night in which no actual call is made on their services.

"In consequence, they are subjected to temptations which no other profession has to face. All the idle day time when they are really at a loss as to what to do, they are unemployed. And it is then that the 'good fellow' makes his appearance.

"This person has ruined many ball players—his wifes are the only living argument against the game. Yet he would be as successful in bringing to ruin the members of any other profession in the world if they had the same amount of idle time in which to be approached.

"We know that the 'good fellows' of a given town who seek to fill a visiting club with drinks, incapacitating them for active service, are bad enough. And the practice in this league has been an extended one. But bad as he is, that sort of 'good fellow' is not as destructive in influence as the well-wisher, whose love of reflected glory makes him the guiding influence in the downfall of a star.

"Some of these players who fall by the wayside get back on their feet. I sent a brilliant young catcher to the big leagues a few years ago who was a free liver. He fell from the big show, but he had a heart-to-heart talk with himself and reformed his manner of living and has since made good.

"There is the opposite influence that is constantly used to hurt the young ball player, the knocker in bleachers or grand stand. I will wager that the unfeeling cry of 'take him out!' has hurt more promising players than any cause other than the effects of bad habits.

"I have studied the grand stand and bleacher fan in Texas for eleven years. And I have come to the conclusion that the man who is the consistent knocker at a ball game is never a man who has made any pronounced success in life. It is the business failure or standstill who develops into the knocker.

"These men do not hurt the player by rapping his ability to scouts who may wish to purchase him. They force him to lose his confidence in himself. And that a ball player must have to make good. Let a squad of fans behind him begin to yell, 'Bonehead!' and 'Take him out!' and a few other pet phrases of the kind, and they sour a youngster's disposition and ruin him.

"Diverting from the fan who knocks a player in the game, I want to tell you a story of a force that endeavored to act against the rise of Speaker—a force that did not succeed, but which did cost me $700 in purchase money, and it was a knocking umpire.

"When Speaker was going at his best in his last year in this league, I had made arrangements with Charlie Comiskey to purchase Tris for $1500. The Sox scouts had looked him over and approved. The deal was almost closed.

"Near the end of the season and just preceding the draft, I had a talk with a league umpire in Austin. He wanted a commission for selling Speaker to Chicago, and told me so. I told him that I had never asked an umpire to sell one of my players and would not—that I would prefer that they would not recommend any of them. I even told him I had a sale prepared for Speaker.

"I must have angered him, for he knocked the greatest Lone Star player to Comiskey. Three days before the draft, I got a wire from the Old Roman: 'We can't use Speaker.'

"Leslie Huff, then scouting for Boston, was in town. He came around to see me and asked what I would take for Speaker. I told him $1500. He said that was too much for a class C player—that he would give me $500. He aded that he would get him for that amount by draft within three days, anyway.

"I refused to accept the offer and wired McAleer at St. Louis. I told him I would sell him Speaker under a positive guarantee that he would make good. I never heard from that score at all. I had to turn back to Huff, and finally made an agreement to sell the boy for $800 cash, guaranteeing to deliver at the close of our season. A knocking umpire had attempted to keep Speaker back and had kept us from getting the difference between Comiskey's price of $1500 and Boston's of $800. And the White Sox lost a great player.

"I still had difficulties in the case, though. I had agreed to deliver Speaker to Huff at the close of our season, but a week away. Tris was anxious to report to Boston, but he was under age, and his mother disapproved. Mrs. Speaker was a fine type of the woman of the old South. And she did not understand baseball—to her the buying and selling of players sounded like the barter of slaves.

"I saw that I had to overcome Mrs. Speaker's objections. So I made a trip to Corsicana, where a kinsman of hers and a good friend of mine was in business, and I explained the case to him. I told him that if Tris made good he would earn a salary of four or five thousand dollars. I told him that in his winter profession he could hope to earn but $40 or $50 a month and that he risked his life every time he climbed a telegraph pole. And I added that Speaker was expected to report at Boston at once. If he did so, traveling with the Red Sox, he would have an opportunity to see the big cities of the country—New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Washington—places that would be an education for him to see. And I added, 'Let him go on this fall trip. And then let Mrs. Speaker decide next year whether he is to go back or not. And then I will not say a word one way or the other to influence her.'

"Mrs. Speaker came over to Corsicana the next day and her relative put the case to her as I had explained it to him. So Tris got his fall tryout and next year there was no dissenting voice from Mrs. Speaker. And I am satisfied that she has never regretted our influence in gaining her first consent."

MATHEWSON'S STORY.

of his anatomy and getting a put-out, or dodging the spikes and losing the put-out, he always takes the put-out and usually the spikes. He never dodges away from a ball when at bat that may possibly break over the plate and cost him a strike. That is why he was hit in the head. He lingered too long to ascertain whether the ball was going to curve and found out that it wasn't, which put him out of the game, the Cubs practically out of the pennant race, and broke up their "inside" play.

Roger Bresnahan is the same kind of a man. He thinks quickly and is a brilliant player, but he never dodges anything. He is often hurt as a result. Once, when he was with the Giants, he was hit in the face with a pitched ball, and McGraw worried while he was laid up, for fear that it would make him bat shy. After he came back, he was just as friendly with the plate as ever. The injury of men like Chance and Bresnahan, whose services are of such vital importance to the "inside" play of a team, destroys the effectiveness of the club.

Once, in 1908, when we were fighting the Cubs for the pennant at every step, McGraw planned a bunting game against Overall, who is big and not very fast in covering the little rollers. Bresnahan and O'Day had been having a serial argument through two games, and Roger, whose nerves were worn to a frazzle, like those of the rest of us at that time, thought "Hank" had been shading his judgment slightly toward the Cubs. In another story I have pointed out that O'Day, the umpire, was stubborn and that nothing could be gained by continually picking on him. When the batteries were announced for that game, McGraw said as the team went to the field:

"We can beat this guy Overall by bunting."

Bresnahan went out to put on his chest protector and shin guards. O'Day happened to be adjusting his make-up near him. Roger couldn't resist the temptation.

"Why don't you put on a Chicago uniform, 'Hank,' instead of those duds?" he asked. "Is it true, if the Cubs win the pennant, they've promised to elect you an Alderman in Chicago?"

"Get out of the game and off the field," said O'Day.

Bresnahan had to obey the injunction, and Needham, the only other available catcher, went behind the mat. "Tom" Needham never beat out a bunt in his life, and he destroyed all McGraw's plans, because, with him in the game instead of Bresnahan, the style had to be switched. We lost. Bresnahan, a fast man and a good bunter, batted third and would have been valuable in the attack best adapted to beat Overall. But his sudden demise and the enforced substitution of the plodding Needham ruined the whole plan of campaign. Therefore, frequently umpires upset a team's "inside" game.

WHEN M'GRAW GOT THE WRONG TIP.

One of McGraw's schemes backfired on him when Luderus, the hard-hitting Philadelphia first baseman, broke into the league. Some one had tipped "Mac" off, and tipped him wrong, that this youngster could be disconcerted in a pinch by the catcher discussing signs and whatnot with him, thus distracting his attention.

"Chief," said McGraw before the game, "if this Luderus gets up in a tight place, slip him a little talk."

The situation came, and Meyers obeyed instructions. The game was in Philadelphia, and three men were on the bases with two out. Ames was pitching.

"What are you bringing the bat up with you for?" asked the "Chief" as Luderus arranged himself at the plate.

No answer.

Then Meyers gave Ames his sign. Next he fixed his fingers in a fake signal and addressed the young batter.

"The best hitters steal signs," said the "Chief." "Just look down in my glove and see the signals."

But Luderus was not caught and kept his eyes glued on Ames. He hit the next ball over the right field wall and won the game. As he crossed the plate, he said to the "Chief:"

"It's too easy. I don't need your signs. They pulled that one on me in the bushes long ago."

"After this, when that fellow bats," said McGraw to Meyers later, "do as exact an imitation of the sphinx as you know how. The tip was no good."

The trick of talking to the hitter is an old one. The idea is for the catcher to give a wrong sign, for his benefit, after having flashed the right one, induce the batter, usually a youngster, to look down at it, and then have the pitcher shoot one over the plate while he is staring in the glove.

"Steve" Evans, the St. Louis right fielder, tells a story of a fan who sat in the same box at the Cardinals' park every day and devoted most of his time to roasting him. S. Evans. His favorite expressions in connection with Evans were "bonehead," "wooden-head" and so on. He loudly claimed that "Steve" had no knowledge of the game and spoiled every play that Bresnahan tried to put through. One day, when the Giants were playing in St. Louis some one knocked up a high foul, which landed in this orator's box. He saw it coming, tried to dodge, used poor judgment, and, realizing that the ball was going to strike him, snatched his hat off, and took it full on an immodestly bald head. "Steve" Evans was waiting to go to the bat. He shifted his chew to his other cheek and exclaimed in a voice that could not have been heard more than two miles away:

"That's the 'gink' who has been calling me a 'bonehead.'"

"Steve" got a great laugh from the crowd, but right there the St. Louis club lost a patron, for the bald-headed one has never been seen at the grounds since, according to Evans, and his obituary has not been printed yet, either.

A GREAT "INSIDE" PLAYER.

"Al" Bridwell, formerly the Giants' shortstop, was one of the cleverest men at the "inside" game that ever broke into the big leagues, and it was this that made him valuable. Then suddenly his legs went bad, and he slowed up. It was his speed and his ability to bunt and his tireless waiting at the plate to make all tollers in the box pitch that had made him a great player. He seldom swung at a bad ball. As soon as he slowed up, McGraw knew he would have to go if the Giants were to win the pennant. He deeply regretted letting the gritty little shortstop, whose legs had grown stiff in his service, leave the club, but sentiment never won any pennants.

"Al," he said to Bridwell, "I'm going to let you go to Boston. Your legs will be all right eventually, but I've got to have a fast man now while you are getting back your old speed."

"That's all right, 'Mac,'" replied Bridwell. "It's all part of the game."

He did not rave and swear that he had been double-crossed, as many players do under the same circumstances. I never heard Bridwell swear, and I never found any one else who did. He had been playing for weeks, when every time he moved it pained him, because he thought he might have a share of the money that winning a pennant would mean. It was a staggering blow to him, this sending him from a pennant possibility to a hopeless tail-ender, but he took it gamely.

"I guess I was 'gumming' the inside stuff," he said.

And he did get some of the prize money. The boys voted him a share.

It will be seen that the "inside" game sometimes fails. Many a time I have passed a catcher or good batter to take a chance on a pitcher, and then have had him make a hit just when hits were not at all welcome. I walked a catcher once and had the pitcher shove the ball over first base for a single when he closed his eyes and dodged back in an effort to get his head out of the line he thought it was pursuing before it curved. In ducking, he got his bat in front of the ball, a result he had never obtained with his eyes open.

Once I started to pass "Hans" Wagner in a pinch, to take a chance on the next batter, and was a little careless in throwing the ball too close to the plate. He reached out and slapped it for a single. Again the "inside" game had failed.

Speaking pretty generally, most managers prefer to use this "inside" game, though, and there are few vacancies in this big leagues right now for the man who is liable to steal second with the bases full.

HUNTINGTON PARK HAS LARGE PLUNGE.

Huntington Park High School is the only school in Southern California that has a swimming plunge.

It is 50x50 feet in size and eight feet deep for sixteen feet and from there on slopes to four feet. The water is changed twice a week and used for irrigating purposes.

This pool is of great importance, as it gives the boys a chance to practice every day and train for the tournaments.

Huntington Park is to be represented at the interscholastic swimming meet at Redondo Beach, May 17.

During 1912 $1,250,000 will be expended for highway improvement in Wisconsin, according to the Highway Commission of that State.

BRITISH LIKE THE R.C.H.

This Type of Car Makes Great Hit in England—Stands Severe Tests.

In order to secure enough cars for their deliveries, Byron & Co., the English agents for the R.C.H. cars, are sending orders by telegraph over the Atlantic nearly every day. The messages are first sent by wireless to Glace Bay, Cape Breton Island, and then by telegraph to Detroit. The R.C.H. plant receives these messages almost daily asking that the cars might be sent immediately.

In a letter recently received by the factory in Detroit from the British dealers, they say that the R.C.H. has been popular there since the first day they received a shipment. It seems almost impossible to keep the orders placed. It is just the type of car suited to that country and has in it embodied the best American and European ideas, without going to extremes in either.

IT'S EASY TO SAY

"Only a Few Cars Left"

The Rauch & Lang Rides Easier Than Any Other Electric

A broad statement, perhaps—but it's TRUE.

And an Electric is bought primarily for luxury, so why sacrifice the greatest comfort of all—EASY RIDING.

What's the use of having all the style, the luxury of an Electric, and being jolted over every rut in the road?

A HEARSE has style, but it's mighty unpleasant to RIDE in.

Again we say:

No-Rim-Cut Tires 10% Oversize

Over 1,000,000 Used

Note this fact—you men who buy tires.

The amazing demand for Goodyear tires comes after a million have been used.

It comes after men have tried them on some 200,000 cars.

After those tests—after 13 years—this tire now outsells all others. Half your tire cost will be saved when you find out why.

Our Patent Tire

This new-type tire, as we make it, is controlled by the Goodyear patents.

It depends on six flat bands of 126 braided wires, vulcanized into the tire base.

These bands permit us a hookless tire—a tire that isn't hooked to the rim flange.

So your removable rim flanges may be curved outward. And the tire, when wholly or partly deflated, rests on a rounded flange.

No Other Way

No other way has yet been devised to make a safe tire of this type. Single wires or twisted wires won't do.

So the wide-spread demand for tires that can't rim-cut is centered on Goodyear No-Rim-Cut tires.

When you change to this type don't adopt an experiment. Get the tire of which one million have been tested out.

No Extra Price

No-Rim-Cut tires are made 10 per cent oversize, to give you an over-tired car.

That means 10 per cent more air—10 per cent added carrying capacity. And that, with the average car, adds 25 per cent to the tire mileage.

This added mileage, plus the saving of rim-cutting, cuts the bills in two. Yet these patented tires—these oversize tires—now cost no more than other standard tires.

Their sale in two years has increased 500 per cent.

THE JUMP-UPS

VERSES BY PAUL WEST. DRAWINGS BY WM. H. LOOMIS

1.—"Say, Gen," Jim Jump-Up said one day, "this loafing can't keep up!
I'm gettin' fat and lazy and as useless as a pup.
Although we're rich I can't hang 'round like all your stylish mob;
No matter what you say or think, I've got to get a job!"

2.—"Oh, Jim! How coarse!" cried Genevieve. "And still," she thought, "why not?
'Twould keep the poor boy happy, for he loathes his idle lot.
So "Very well," she said to him, "but do be careful, dear.
Select some high toned, smart pursuit." Jim answered, "Never fear!"

3.—From that hour on Jim seemed to change. His step grew light once more,
And Genevieve saw naught of him from nine till half-past four.
She told her fashionable friends she met on every side
"My husband's Wall Street interests keep him greatly occupied!"

4.—At last she thought she ought to ask just how his time was spent.
Jim smiled in a mysterious way and beamed with sweet content.
"It's—well—a secret," stammered he, "but, honest, it's all right!
I promise you a great surprise before another night!"

5.—It came. 'Twas Jimpson brought the shock. Next day to her he said:
"Hi gives you notice, Hi cawn't serve for persons—hem—in trade!"
"What do you mean?" cried Genevieve. For answer Jimpson held An evening paper out to her. She glanced! She gasped! She yelled!

6.—There stared at her a full page "ad," her portrait with it, too!
And underneath the legend: "I use Jump-Up's Liquid Glue.
Ten cents a bottle everywhere for half a dollar's worth.
The glue that real society buys. The stickiest stuff on earth."

7.—Just then poor Jim came bounding in. "What's this?" she stormed at him.
"It's just a start to please you, dear. There's more to come!" cried Jim.
"I've got it out on billboards, too, and say, besides, to-night
That ad's all over, everywhere, in bright electric light!"

8.—She made the poor chap stop the "ad," and drop the business, too.
"Oh, shame! Oh, shame! to use my name," she cried, "with Liquid Glue!
Why, we're disgraced forever!" But her woe was lost on him.
"I can't see why, 'twas first class glue!" exclaimed unlucky Jim.

WHAT FIVE DOLLARS AND YOU CAN DO

White for Afternoon

Wide Lace on Pink Linen

A Military Frock

From Two Remnants of Silk

Marquisette, Braid and Silk

Linen and Batiste

YOUR own cleverness in picking up material, a sewing machine, a good pattern and these ideas that have been gleaned from the accepted summer styles will give you a dress for $5 or less and a satisfaction in a task inexpensively and well done.

For any summer frock, eight yards of material that has no "up-and-down" pattern will be ample. For linen that is the same on both sides, six or seven will be found sufficient, if you know how to fit in the skirt gores. The best plan is to fold your material and lay the pattern on the goods before cutting. Find out just what is allowed for bodice and trimming, and then go ahead.

In the cotton marquisette model the material can range from 25 to 35 cents a yard. There will be required an extra yard of either silk or plain linen for the buttons and pipings, and two pieces of cotton soutache braid will trim the girdle, cuffs and plastrons at the side gores.

The buttons are used on each side of the plain blouse, heading two braid-trimmed straps. The girdle is high and pointed, with a serpentine pattern of braid. Buttons in groups are placed on the piped side seam, with a braided diamond form over the hip. Pointed cuffs edge the sleeves. A shallow collar finishes the bodice. This can be adjustable if you wish.

The military linen model is quite simple. A side opening gives a Russian blouse effect. Buttons and braid decorate the blouse and the side flap on the skirt. A pointed collar of allover embroidery is piped with linen. Small buttons complete the decorative idea.

For afternoon a white linen frock is used. A remnant of allover embroidery over a yard long affords the decoration. This is cut in bands and inserted above the hem, on the short apron tunic, in the small vest, and the rest is made up into cuffs and collar, combined with linen and lace. A linen belt and buckle hold in the fullness of the bodice that shows pleats over the shoulders.

From two short pieces of silk, figured and plain, the foulard model has been made. Nine yards, with two yards of dotted net, are used. Piecing is very easy in this model. Buttons of the plain silk are the trimming, while a chemisette and ruffles are made of the net. Prove to yourself that this frock can be made for a $5 bill.

Embroidered batiste is used for the pointed vest and the sleeves of the linen frock in another dress that comes decidedly below the $5 limit. Large armholes are evident, and white buttons trim the shoulder line, the front fastening and the applied linen cuffs. A slightly raised waist line is corded.

Very wide cotton lace is combined with heavy linen in the last of our practical group. It forms the lower part of each sleeve, the bodice and inset pieces at the side. A band of it is placed above the hem. Linen buttons on the lace and front line of the skirt trim the frock. A very small remnant of linen is needed for this model. The same idea can be carried out with cretonne or figured linen instead of lace.

When women realize that the cost of a summer dress has nothing to do with its modistic value, there will be more complete and inexpensive outfits, with a resultant becomingness for their wearers. For, after all, no one knows a woman's good and poor points better than she.

COMMON SENSE in the HOME
EDITED by MARION HARLAND

TRIALS OF MISTRESS AND MAID.

A WELL written, well expressed letter has just reached me. It is headed, "Mistress and Maid" and runs as follows:

"I'm afraid when I start to write on this subject I won't know when to stop, for there is so much to be written about it. I want to write this, hoping that some one may benefit by a kindly suggestion, as it is well meant. If ladies would listen to the intelligent, competent working class of girls there would be more harmony between the two factors.

"We have all been maids in our family and have dealt with all sorts of people. One of us remained at one place on and off for ten years, another five years, and we could still go back to either place. Now, we didn't hold those positions for that length of time because the people were especially kind or because we had a private sitting room, bath, etc., but merely because we always tried to do our duty.

"The places were just of the ordinary kind. We had the same bare, cheerless, sometimes cold room that one sees allotted to the maid the world over, the same dirty bath tub in the basement.

"That, I think, is the bone of contention between mistress and maid—this room business. If a girl likes to stay at home evenings where will she sit for the hour or two that she has?

* *

Overpaid a Frequent Complaint.

"First of all, a girl should not be so tired by night that she just wants to 'flop' into bed. She can't well maintain any degree of intelligence by always being too sleepy to read, or she can't do much toward her 'hopeful box' if her poor hands are too 'twitchy' to hold a needle. Well, then, we'll say this is a good place and the girl is full of ambition, so about 8:30 p. m. she is ready to sit down to sew.

"She goes up to her room and finds it an even temperature of about 80 degrees. In the front part of the house no doubt the windows are open. Mr. Puppy is standing at the open window, glad of the breath of air, that in the room is too stifling for even him.

"The only thing to do is to go down to the kitchen again—it is at least warm there. The gas is away up near the ceiling in the center of the room. She ought to stand under the one just in order to see what she is doing. She has been alone all day, save for a few minutes' chat with the milkman and grocery boy—now she is alone again—always she must be thinking and naturally the one thought uppermost in her mind is how to get out of this dreary life.

"Or we will say she is blessed with friends. Pretty soon she hears some one stumbling up the back stairs. This person has been prowling around the back door and through dark alleys like a robber. I am not saying that a maid should use the front door, but why not equalize the situation by providing some sort of a side entrance or letting the person enter the back door through the front yard? These are little things, but they are the ones that count.

"To answer your question I would say wages are not the first thing to be considered. The others I think I have answered. A READER."

* *

Letter Printed in Full.

say, it is well written and well expressed, say, it is well written and well expressed, and the writer evidently possesses an unusual degree of intelligence, not only for a working girl but for any young woman.

Let me take up the points on which she lays stress. In the first place, what she calls "this room business."

I agree with her in her indignation against the way in which some maids are housed by the combined efforts of the architect, builder, and housekeeper. I have a clear memory of a superb house put up in a country town where a few feet of land more or less was little object, and where the maids' rooms were in the attic under the roof, lighted and ventilated by tiny, high windows, freezing cold in winter, stiflingly hot in summer.

I never could comprehend, I cannot understand now how any woman with the feelings of common humanity could consent to housing her maids in such fashion. I have known of maids whose rooms were in the basement off the kitchen, in cubbies where no ray of sunlight ever penetrated, and have marveled that they were willing to remain in any establishment which provided no better accommodations.

On the other hand, let me remind "A Reader" that the "room business" is not always within the housekeeper's control. If she is the owner of the house she may be able to arrange a maid's room in a satisfactory way, and it is her blame if she fails to do so. If she rents her house she has to take what she can get, especially if her income is limited. I know families in which the sons and the daughters of the house sleep in fireless rooms—not from choice, but because the exigencies of space oblige the young people to take third story rooms which are not heated.

* *

Conditions Worse in "Flats."

Conditions are even worse in the case of apartment dwellers in a large city. The mistress is blamed for giving the maid a tiny room off the kitchen with hardly room for turning about, with a shelf fitted with hooks underneath for the only closet or wardrobe, with a window opening on a half-lighted court.

But how much better accommodations are enjoyed by members of the family? The maid in this case takes the best the housekeeper has to give her. If the mistress had her way she would have spacious, bright, well ventilated chambers for every one in the household, including the maid within her gates. But means are limited, good apartments are high priced, and with the best intentions in the world the housekeeper must take what she can afford and give the maid what she must.

I grant all that is said about the discomforts of small and chilly rooms. Let me say a word on the other side. The maid who works in our homes does not always offer encouragement to us to do better for her. While I am fortunate enough to have in my employ two maids who make the best of the limited quarters they share in common, who keep these in spendy order so that I can be sure of finding them spotless and well aired at any time, I also have recollections of other maids whose large, cheerful rooms were kept in a state of dirt and disorder that left me no choice between a constant struggle with them in order to secure bare decency or a forced indifference which strove to forget the unticliness which made a spot under my roof.

* *

Good Fortune Hard to Believe.

When a housekeeper has had a succession of maids of the latter sort it is not always easy for her to adapt herself to the change when one like my correspondent comes into her home. Missionary work is doubtless commendable and if a maid is careless about her chamber, leaving her garments strewn about it, never taking the pains to keep it clean even when time is allowed her for the purpose, the mistress should perhaps follow her up and insist upon order and cleanliness. But in nine cases out of ten the maid resents it and feels reason is on her side when she keeps her room as best pleases her.

To this day I have a sick recollection of the big front room I gave my maid of all work in a country town house years ago. The back room was a sort of overflow bedroom, used when the chambers on the second floor were overfull. Going up to put this back room in order in preparation for a guest I was met by a stifling odor from the closet which opened into the closet in the maid's room. Investigation disclosed unemptied and festering slops, unwashed clothing, and a veritable pesthole which might have been found in a low tenement among ignorant foreigners. This in a New England town and with a well recommended and apparently neat maid! It took fumigation, scrubbing, and airing for days to sweeten that room.

Another point to be made. My experience leads me to think that many maids prefer to sit in the kitchen. When they go into houses of their own it is quite likely that the kitchen will be the usual family sitting room as it has been in the homes from which they came. The mistress whom circumstances forbids giving her maid a pleasant bedroom should make up for it by rendering the kitchen as attractive as possible.

* *

Kitchen Pleasant Sitting Room.

To make another personal reference, I may say that the tiny kitchen which is all apartment life permits me to have is as pleasant a sitting room when the day's work is done as any housekeeper would wish to have. The floor is covered with linoleum with a couple of small rugs, the tubs, table, and shelves are protected with white oilcloth. Curtains hang over the shelves holding the pots and pans, rows of dishes are ranged on the open shelves, and there in comfortable chairs, under a low swung electric reading light, my maids sit with their sewing or reading or letter writing in the evening. None of these adjuncts is expensive and there is no reason why any maid should not have them. The mistress is to blame is she does not supply them.

As to the matter of the guests coming through the back alley and up the dark steps, I agree with my correspondent in thinking that there should be a side entrance, when this is possible—but it cannot always be attained. I do not see what objection any mistress could make to the visitors entering by the front yard on their way to the back door, and I am inclined to think she is a rather unreasonable person when she does it.

For my own part I feel I wish to do all in my power to make a home so comfortable that it will encourage girls to enter domestic service. I grant all that can be said of its drawbacks, the long hours, the Sunday work, the absence of a certain degree of freedom, the foolish prejudice against "service."

* *

Decided Advantages in Its Favor.

On the other hand, it possesses decided advantages, which should be as strongly emphasized as the pleas against it. The lack of freedom is in a certain degree a protection. The long hours may be offset by the fact that the maid at work lives in a home where she would be cared for if she were ill, considered if she were in trouble, where a day's indisposition does not mean a docking of wages.

She is paid better than any other class of untrained laborers. The fluctuations of food prices, the cost of coal, the rise of rents do no affect her. Her wages are clear profit in this way, since the only absolutely inevitable expense to her is her clothing—and in many households part of this is provided by the housekeeper. Her aprons and her working frocks are almost always paid for by the mistress.

More than that, since the natural goal of nearly every girl's ambition is a home of her own the maid in domestic service is fitting herself for this, realization of her hopes as she could in no other employment. When she goes to housekeeping from the factory or the department shop or the office, she goes into conditions for which she is totally untrained.

Not so the "living out girl." If she has made the most of her opportunities she is able not only to keep house but to make a home such as has been her dream. The thought of this should sustain her in the midst of a good many inconveniences and drawbacks and always she should bear in mind that the way to better the conditions under which she and her class live is to raise the standards of the class itself. A few more girls like our correspondent and the mistresses would feel themselves encouraged to do anything in their power to promote the comfort and well-being of maids.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

BECAUSE of the enormous number of letters sent to the Department I must ask contributors to limit their communications to 100 words, except in cases of formulas or recipes which require greater space. I must all my correspondents to Have a showing in The Corner, and if my request in this regard is complied with it will be possible to print many more letters.

Attention is called to the fact that Marion Harland cannot receive money for patterns, as she has no connection with any department that sells them.

Marion Harland.

"YOU may like to have our recipe for cracklings, which every one has on hand now.

"May I ask you how to clean broad tailed velvet?

"GERMAN CRACKLINGS.—Two cupfuls of fresh pork cracklings, 666 medium sized onion sliced thin; two small apples, pared, cored, and sliced thin. Add pepper and salt to taste.

"Mix the cracklings and onions and fry slowly; add the apples and seasoning and simmer slowly.

"Serve with dry toast. FRANCES M."

I do not know if broad tailed velvet may be freshened as other velvet may be renovated. I have described the process so often I hesitate to repeat it here. Therefore I refer your query.

The recipe is new to me and attractive. But do you mean by "German cracklings" the bits called by that name by those who "try out" lard? To wit, the crisp remains of skin and meat that float to the surface of the lard kettle? I recollect that we children begged the cook to mix them in cornmeal "pones," which then became "crackling bread." What are German cracklings?

How to Make Johnnycake.

The member who gave us valuable information respecting Johnny cake last week has more to say upon the same head today.

"RYE JOHNNY CAKE.—Use equal parts of rye and Indian meal. Scald the Indian meal well with water that is actually boiling. Stir in about a tablespoonful of molasses to four of the mixed meal. Then wet to right consistency with cold water. Turn into hot greased pans upon the top of the stove. The pans may be large or small, as you wish, but the cooking must be done upon the heated top of the stove.

"BAKED JOHNNY CAKE.—Stir six tablespoonfuls (heaping) of Indian meal into a quart of milk. Salt to taste. Fill small pans with this batter, having first heated and greased the pans. Bake in a hot oven. Beat the batter hard, and upon putting it into the pans stir each up from the bottom. Do not touch them afterward until they are done. Turn out carefully and eat at once, splitting with the fingers and buttering instantly. Do not cut it.

"A. J. C."

While we are discussing Johnny cake, better known to our forbears than to us, and well beloved by old and young, I slip in the venerable recipe, wrung from an old colored cook, who "ran in" daily to criticise her daughter, who presided over my kitchen during the first crucial year of my practical housewifery. I do not like to say how much more trying my novitiate would have been had I not hearkened diligently unto and profited by "Aunt Jenny's" admonitions to her slow witted child. Em'ly "might not heed what was as steady a pour as the patter of the rain upon the roof "in the long season in May." I heard and pondered upon what I heard. She never gave me the formula for her far famed Johnny cake:

"Go 'long, Chile! What you want to know how to make it when you can holler obe de fence any time o' day for me to come and do it fur you? I ain't got no use for dem receipts you young ladies is crazy about. All my rules is pack away in de back o' my head. Reckon when I die you'll fin' 'em dar all right!"

The inimitable laugh of the negro—imported by his ancestors from Ethiopia or Congo—was the invariable sequel to the conversation.

Reopening "the Lists."

Contrary to my expressed intention I reopen the lists to "Nora" and her advisers today. I had meant to say nothing more at present upon the vexed question of comfortable living upon narrow means, particularly upon the feasibility of bringing the weekly table expenses of two people within the compass of a $5 bill.

My change of purpose is wrought by the receipt at the eleventh hour of two letters which seem to me of unusual interest to the practical housemother. Neither of these epistles is from a married woman. Each writer has wrought out for herself the problem submitted to us and discussed by wives and husbands in former issues. These correspondents are, then, women of independent thought so far as the disposition of the allowance goes, and one of them makes the money she spends.

It is but fair that the class they represent should be heard. We are fortunate in the fact that the speakers in the present instance are fitted to see both sides of the subject and to relate their experiences intelligently. Both are residents of the great middle west.

Housekeeping Made a Science.

"I was deeply interested in the articles published in the Helping Hand upon 'Low Cost of Living.'

"I am a young, unmarried woman, but I have kept house long enough to have brought expenses down (or up) to a science. For most of the year my father and myself compose the family I have to cater for. Our income never exceeds $10 a week. We own our house and I do my own baking. Otherwise we could not possibly bring expenses down to this sum. We live in a small town where prices are not so high as in the city.

"Out of this $5 a week we must pay for telephone, laundry (I do no washing or ironing), gasoline and kerosene, besides what is provided for the table. We have plenty to eat and a fair variety. We even 'entertain' company occasionally.

"We seldom allow our weekly meat bill to exceed 70 cents, and frequently it is less than that. We use from one to two dozen eggs a week—strictly fresh country eggs—and at least two pounds of butter. We have fruit once a day, and twice if we have no other dessert. We have both fresh and canned fruits, and quite often fresh radishes, lettuce, and onions. I do not undertake to enumerate everything. It would take up too much of your valuable space.

"I do not enjoy living upon $5 a week! There is little or nothing left for outside things which I should love to have. We have proven, time and time again, that it may be done for a short time at least. Of course fuel and clothes could not be bought out of this amount, but we find that upon $10 a week we not only live, but we save a little.

"I forgot to say that we have a big, fat cat who comes in for his share of good things to eat. DOROTHY ELEANOR."

Condensing this cheery, unaffected statement, we deduce the fact that two adults supply their table with nourishing food and enough of it to satisfy healthy appetites for a fraction more than 70 cents a day. For less than that, when we consider that laundry work, gasoline, kerosene and telephone must also be provided for. At a rough estimate we may conclude that father and daughter sustain healthy existence upon 50 cents a day the year round.

The start of horror with which the announcement will be received by those who sit at a well supplied table may be lessened by the reflection that after all it takes little to meet the wants of one elderly man and a young woman. Furthermore, that what will feed one leaves something over for two.

Experience of Business Woman.

The second correspondent goes into particulars that are worth the study. She is a level headed, long headed business woman, who is cheating some worthy man out of a canny wife.

"May I submit the menu for this week in reply to your request for suggestions on what $5 a week can be made to do for two ordinary eaters? I made those out some time ago in response to 'Nora,' but hesitated to send it in for fear that I might be disbarred for cause from the contest. In the first place I am not a really truly housewife. I am simply a successful business woman, who became tired of boarding and set up my own establishment found it lonesome and expensive, and then took boarders to share both the home and the expenses.

"I do not have to set a table on $5 a week unless I choose as I could spend twice that if I so wished, but I look upon home keeping in the light of a real profession, and like to pursue it along as scientific lines as I do my business. Again, I have a bit of artistic temperament in that it seems a sin to see the smallest particle go to waste, and I find a great source of economy in making use of everything. I take more pride in making a 'perfectly delicious' dish out of a leftover than in serving a seven course dinner that costs $10, and I can do both.

"In the second place I have an advantage over the housewife who must buy each day as she goes. I have ample means to buy in quantities, eggs by the case from the country, hams and bacon by the whole piece, and canned goods by the dozen when they are advertised at a low price, so in this way I save from 30 to 50 per cent on average cost. In this way it might not be a fair competition with those who cannot do it.

"Fearing that you might think me 'near' by getting along on little when I could spend more, will say that our own menu is considerably better than the one herewith submitted, for the reason that during the spring and summer I utilize my Saturday afternoons and evenings and leisure hours in putting up fruit, and have hundreds of quarts of all kinds of jams, jellies sweet pickles, preserves, and canned fruits, and from one to three of these appear on the table at every meal, our desserts being made almost wholly from them. Then too, I am an expert confectionery maker, and candies, salted nuts, and raisins stuffed dates, etc., are nearly always on our table.

Southern Johnnycake.

But I watched her deft, swift manipulations until I mastered the Johnny cake. Here it is:

AUNT JENNY'S JOHNNY CAKE (Age unknown).—A cupful of sweet milk, a cupful and a half of buttermilk; a teaspoonful each of salt and of soda—the latter sifted three times in a cupful of meal; one tablespoonful of melted butter. Enough meal to enable you to roll the dough into a sheet half an inch thick. Begin with two cupfuls and add at discretion.

Knead the dough briskly before rolling it out. Have ready a clean, sweet board of oak, hickory, or hemlock (never of rosinous wood), buttered and heated. Set before the red coals under the grate at an angle that will not let the cake slip down, and prop it in place. Spread the dough upon it, patting it gently to make the surface even, and bake. As soon as it is hard enough to keep its place, set the board upright. Begin then to baste it with butter, lightly going all over the sheet. Do this three times. The cake should be nicely browned and crisped.

Cut with a sharp knife, held perpendicularly, into squares.

Virginia water ground meal should be used for this delicious cake. The northern cornmeal will not do. Nor does the southern cook put sugar into corn bread. She holds that the meal should be sweet enough without it.

"Joints and rib roasts are expensive as every economical housemother can testify who tries to make both ends of the income meet in this day. Cold meats are not popular with working men and growing boys. We fall back upon soups and stews, and find them palatable and cheap.

"I think one reason of the prejudice against stews in the minds of some is that they are seldom cooked properly. The gravy is too fat or too thin, and the meat tough. I am inclosing a recipe that gives general satisfaction in my family. If you have room, please print it.

* *

Real Housewife at Advantage.

"On the other hand, the real housewife has an advantage over me in that as I do all my own work and keep regular office hours as well, I have no time to bake, and must therefore depend upon the 'home made' products of the bakeshop for breads, cakes, etc., which makes it a bit more expensive. Of course, to live on $5 a week one must be willing to have the same thing more than once a week, as I find that a can of soup or of vegetables makes as many dishes, which means three meals for two people, and one has to plan to make them different and not to tire of them. I have been surprised at what delicious combinations could be made from their odds and ends, thus using up every scrap.

"I find that such dessert articles as prunes, apple sauce, carrots, etc., can be made delicious by proper cooking, as well as many kinds of cheaper meats. If they would be welcome I will be glad to give some of the simpler recipes that others have said were exceedingly good that I make. The greatest feature, though, is to utilize everything; nothing free to waste in our house, even the bones are scraped, the bits from the plates cut up, and the crusts broken and all put out for the birds that congregate by the dozen for their breakfast every morning on my back porch in winter.

How to Make Almond Rice.

"Kindly publish a recipe for almond rings. Also let us know if, in making these, better results are gained by the use of yeast or without it.

"I am ashamed to confess myself ignorant of what is meant by almond rings if they are ever made with yeast. If this is not what you refer to, I must appeal to our ever kind and always intelligent correspondents for help in satisfying you.

ALMOND R. ICE.—Beat the yolks of six eggs light and smooth. Cream together one and a half cups of sugar and three-quarters of a cupful of butter. Stir into the creamed sugar and butter a cupful of minced almonds (pressed fine) and a teaspoonful of ground cinnamon. Now beat in the whipped eggs alternately with three even cupfuls of dried flour, into which has been sifted three times a teaspoonful of baking powder.

Line your pan with well buttered paper and with a spoon drop upon this ring of the soft dough, forming neatly and quickly.

A little practice is required to enable one to make the rings. Once learned the "trick" is easy.

* *

Typographical Error.

"In a late number of The Helping Hand 'F. E. M.' speaks of 'cold water sauce' in a recipe for meat pie. How is 'cold water sauce' made?

"How do we obtain 'pineapple juice' mentioned in another recipe in the same issue?

"I hope soon to be able to make a bow in your wonderful work. MRS. E. S. T."

"Cold water sauce" is a palpable typographical error. It should be simply "a quart of cold water." How the "sauce" slipped in is one of the mysteries of the composing room. I thank you for giving me the chance to correct this one of many.

"Pineapple juice" is obtained by mincing fresh pineapple and squeezing out the juice through a cheesecloth bag.

Your contributions will be gladly received.

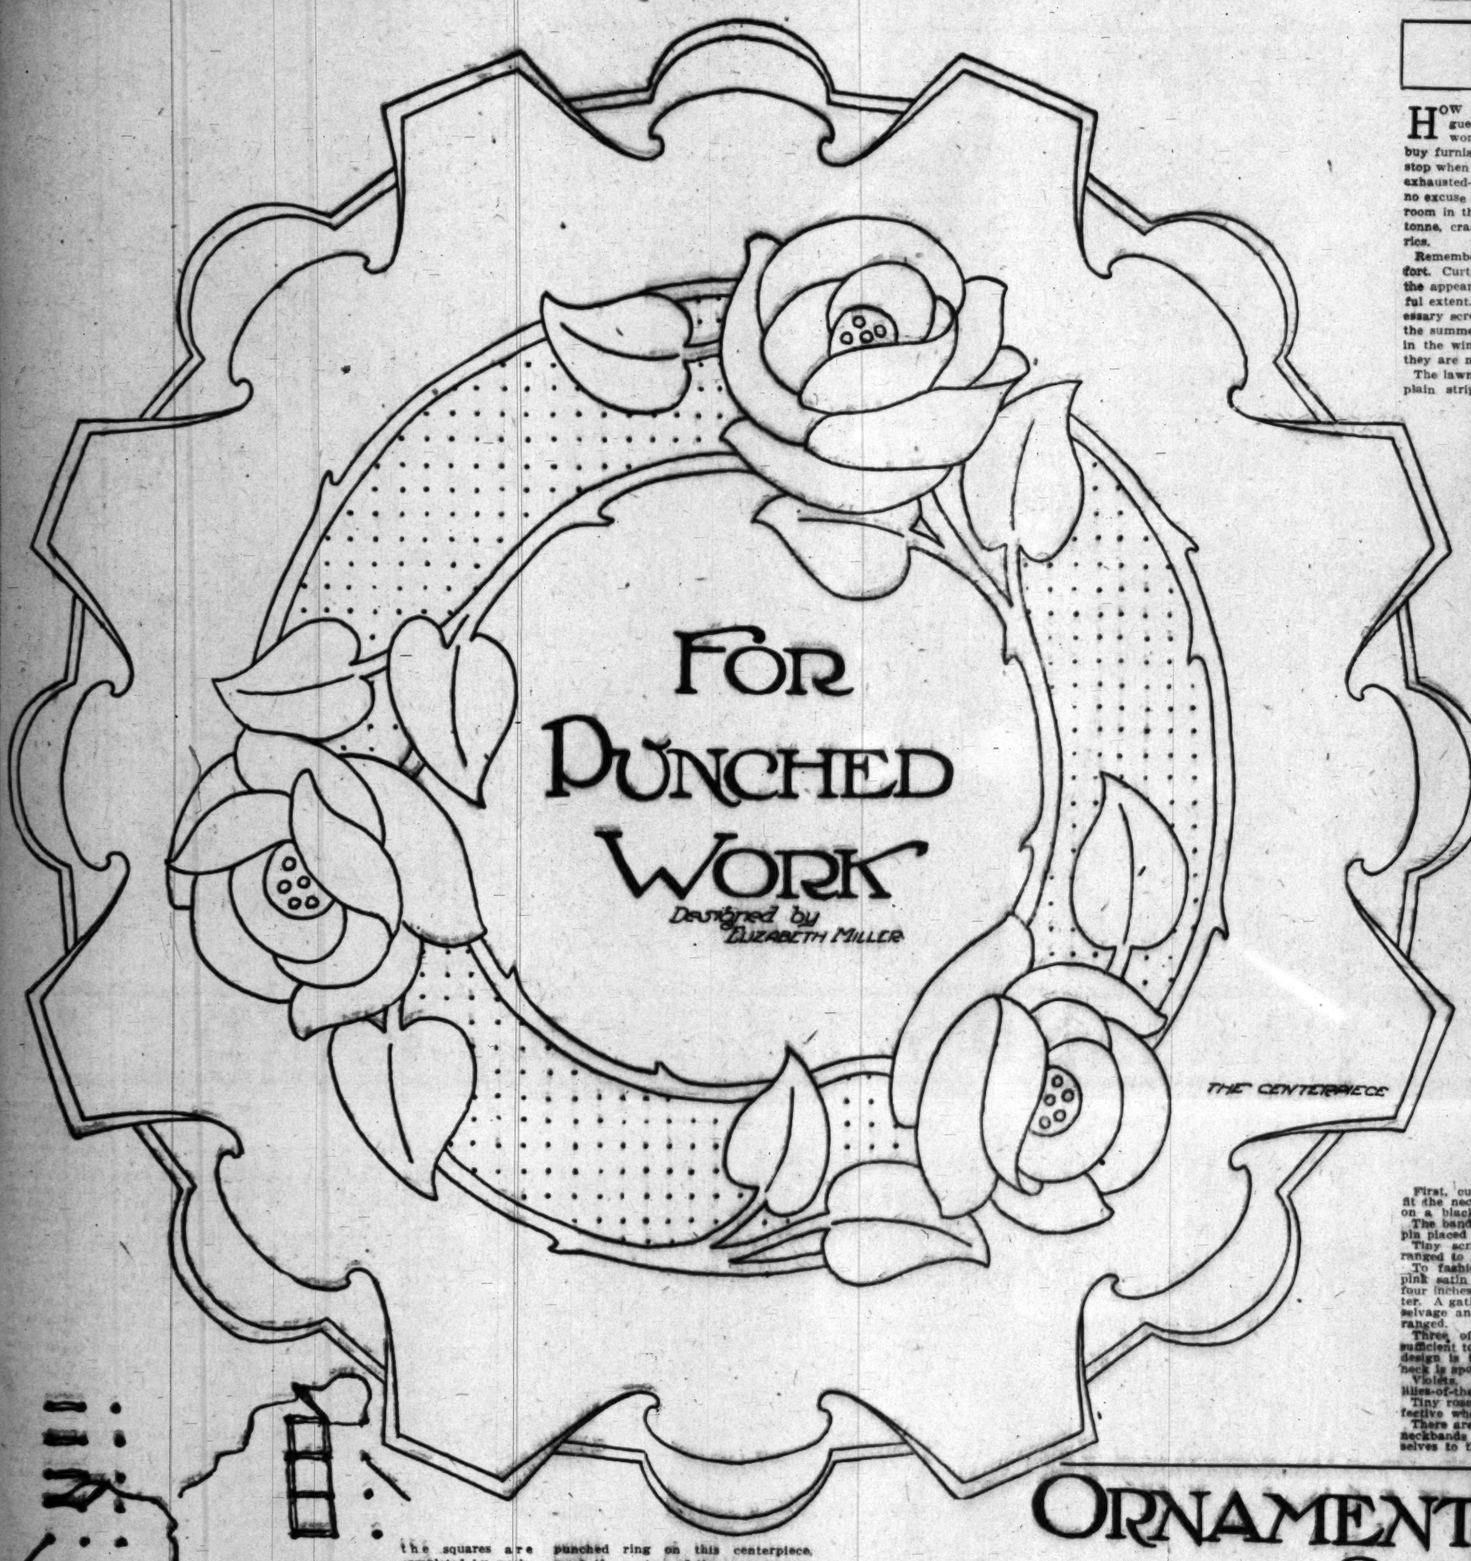
For the INDUSTRIOUS NEEDLEWOMAN

By ADELAIDE BYRD



HAVE you seed the crowds of our embroidering friends punching away at the stretched linen spread with large, coarse meshes? And have you seen the beautiful work on centerpieces, dresses, scarfs and draperies? It is so effective and requires such little work or experience that the drawnwork effect produced is too good to miss. I have had this pretty rose design made for my embroidery, and it is a lovely centerpiece, requiring little work, and suitable for plain embroidering if you do not care to punch. But try this new work. Every new stitch will add to your embroidery wealth.

Most successful workers consider it advisable to work the design first. The rose design may be done in outline stitch, using coarse thread or silk. This can be worked in solid also, if you prefer. If you use the solid, make every other petal point, so that a contrast with the outline will result. This cuts the amount of work in two. With the solid work, the stems that encircle the center should be solid. With outline work, use the outline stitch.

Linen for punched work should be of a coarse, loose weave. The very nature of the stitch suggests this, for the threads between the holes pull the goods away from the dots, thus making the holes.

Regular needles for punched work are procurable at the art needlework department of any large store. These resemble a darning needle, some being round, some three-sided. If you cannot get them, use an ordinary darning needle. Fine linen thread will be needed for the punched work and embroidery floss or silk for the rest of the design.

Look at the detail of stitches represented. You will see that the stitches are worked between two holes first all in one direction. Then the squares are completed by working in the vertical direction. When crossing down to a lower hole, cross diagonally on the under side. Two stitches should be used between each hole. Work up close to the design. If there is room for another hole nearer the outline, make it, for it will bring out the design more clearly.

Do not pull the goods too tightly. By the time the needle has been punched through a hole eight times you will find that there is a decidedly open-work effect. Remember that the whole open mesh is a result of punching. No threads are drawn or broken.

When you have completed your punched ring on this centerpiece, work the centers of the roses in eyelet work or large French knots and then proceed to the edge.

Pad the scallops with darning cotton. Work in buttonhole stitches and do the lines on the inner design in heavy outline. If you wish, you can fill in the border between the scallops with French knots.

Punched work is very effective in colors. Pink or yellow used on the rose design can be carried out in the work if the cotton be sufficiently strong to take the place of linen thread.

The punched work is not only applicable on fancy work. It is beautiful and practical on linen dresses. You will become a devotee to the art. Any one can punch through a dot and follow simple directions. This stitch is deserving of the enthusiasm that is bestowed on it by industrious needlewomen.

When Making Guimpes

THE guimpe is the test of the professional or the mark of the amateur. By it any experienced eye can detect the little faults that come from inexperience or ignorance. There are some points that it were well to remember when making guimpes.

First, there must be allowed sufficient material at the back for any possible shrinkage that almost always follows in lace, net or fine wash fabrics. Then again, there must be no gape at the hem on shoulder line or at the back. By placing buttons and loops, or hooks and eyes, one inch or less apart there will be a perfect line of fastening. It pays to take extra time at this part of your dressmaking.

Do not cut the collar line too low. This gives a very unattractive line at the neck and affects the fitting of the stock. Supports, either transparent or of wire, should be first basted in and added with a generous hand at the back, for a well-made collar fits closely and in a high snug line at the back of a guimpe.

All guimpes should be made on lawn bodices. This insures a firm line, for the waistband of a bodice can be pinned securely to the corset, giving an unwrinkled surface. If possible, make short sleeves in the lawn guimpe. In these you can sew shields, which must not be forgotten in summer dresses. Nothing is so unattractive as marks of perspiration on lawn or linen sleeves.

The materials? Shadow nets and laces are in the first ranks. These are purchasable in our large stores for as little as 35 cents a yard. It requires about one yard for a shallow yoke and sub-cuffs. Net, dotted, figured and embroidered, is also good, while exquisite allover valenciennes is in high favor for fine guimpes.

Allover embroidery will be used for guimpes of heavy linen frocks. Usually a narrow cording or piping of linen finishes the edges of the collar and the cuffs.

Black net placed over white chiffon or mousseline is practical for dark silks or voiles. It can be washed in gasoline and is decidedly new and becoming.

When making a guimpe of insertion, it pays to whip the edges together by hand. Cut a tissue paper pattern out and pin the lace in its proper lengths either lengthwise or crosswise. Whip together and then sew on the shoulder seams. Baste on the lawn foundation, fit to the body and then sew the lace in place. Washable crocheted buttons with buttonholed loops are an appropriate fastening for fine lace guimpes.

Remember that it is not extravagant to use fine lace for a guimpe. It makes a gown, or mars it, as the case might be. Keep this fact in mind, and if a bargain of a dress is particularly cheap at the guimpe, cut it out and add a fine one of your own making.

GUESTROOM IDEAS

HOW much can be done for the guestroom by the clever needlewoman! Yet how many of us buy furnishings for our extra room and stop when our allowance for it has been exhausted—all too soon. There is really no excuse for a bare, unattractive guestroom in these days of remnants of cretonne, crash, linen and thin wash fabrics.

Remember one fact about cozy comfort. Curtains, clean, of course, add to the appearance of a room to a wonderful extent. They also give a very necessary screen from outside eyes, and in the summer should be used as much as in the winter. The materials of which they are made are different.

The lawn can be made up in perfectly plain strips and hung in the "Dolly Varden" style. This is merely a central ruffle or valance about 15 inches wide, with long side curtains in straight lines extending a few inches below the window ledge.

Barred or striped muslin, scrim or dimity is most attractive in this hanging.

Bordered scrim, from 10 to 35 cents a yard, makes up well for the guestroom. Try to carry out the color and design of the wallpaper when using the figured fabrics.

Cretonne, especially if the cushions and other furnishings be of this goods, is delightfully cool and "summery" for the extra room. Strips of it can be added to plain white curtains and on the scarfs for bureau and dressing table. The cut-out flower design applied to unbleached muslin gives a beautiful effect.

I know of one attractive guestroom the curtains of which are made of cheesecloth stenciled in a running vine of pale green. It is almost as if a shadow of some spring morning-glory vine had been cast on the curtains. How easy and dainty the whole thing is!

Bureau scarfs should be a continuation of the curtain idea. Plain fabric with bordered ends is very good looking. Insertion of filet lace or colored bands is effective.

Then the pincushion, laundry bag, sewing basket, calendar and very necessary wastebasket must not be neglected.

These should be made from the odds and ends and require so little time that it is surprising that the delightful work of furnishing is so often neglected.

Pillows are a chapter in themselves. You need not spend hours in embroidering them. Combining fabrics is an art exploited in any of our stores these days. Long, square and round pillows can be made with buttoned ends and washed when the least bit soiled.

The guestroom is no longer the last resort. It is a room with its own specific demands, requiring planning and breathing the very essence of good taste, care and complete comfort. It is not furnished from the left-overs of other rooms, yet it does not require the purse of Fortunatus or the art of a magician to make it attractive. A sensible working out of practical, artistic ideas will make it a joy to every visitor.

Neckbands

WITH the spring fashions which were borrowed from the modes of the second empire and directoire periods comes the neckband of black velvet.

These narrow collars, worn just below the chin, give a certain coquettish charm to the face not to be denied.

The fair dames of those other years wore these bands perfectly plain. Those worn at present have jeweled slides or are adorned with tiny flowers fashioned of ribbon.

There is a great art in deftly fashioning these flowers, and the clever girl who does them well should congratulate herself.

First, cut a band of black velvet to fit the neck of the wearer. Next, sew on a black clasp-fastener.

The band is then folded in half and a pin placed to mark the center.

Tiny scraps of green satin are arranged to form leaves.

To fashion a rose, take a piece of pink satin or ribbon an inch wide and four inches long. Fold through the center. A gathering thread is run along the selvage and the petals of the rose arranged.

Three of these miniature roses are sufficient to trim a neckband. When the design is too large the contour of the neck is spoiled.

Violets, daisies, forget-me-nots and lilies-of-the-valley are easily fashioned.

Tiny rosettes of scarlet ribbon are effective when combined with foliage.

There are many other ideas for pretty neckbands which will suggest themselves to the clever girl.

New Neckwear

PLEATED collars and ruffs are very fashionable at present. These are exceedingly expensive when purchased at the shops, but if made at home they are inexpensive.

The Medici collar of pleated net is very effective when worn with any dress.

The pleating may be had by the yard. One frill stands up about the neck and the other falls down, forming a collar.

Through the center a narrow strip of ribbon velvet forms a neat finish and ties in a small flat bow at the side.

Other collar-ruffs are made of sheerest linen, finely pleated.

A stunning collarette may be made of black velvet and lace.

A band of three-inch wide ribbon velvet the size of the neck is used for the collar. A turn-down edging of lace finishes this at the top.

Below sew a pleating of lace. This is an attractive addition to the blouse.

How to Transfer

HERE are suggestions for transferring the pattern before you to any material before working.

Perhaps the easiest way is the "window-pane" method. This is successful when the material is thin, like linen, batiste, etc. Pin the sheet of paper and the material together and hold them up against the glass of a window. With a sharp pencil draw on the material the design, which can be easily seen through the goods. If one-half of the design only be given, unpin the paper and turn the other side to the fabric. The strong light behind will make it plain.

If you have carbon paper, you should place the sheet between your fabric and the newspaper. This latter is on top. With a sharp pencil go over the outline of the design. The impression will be left in fine lines and will last until worked. This method is successful on heavy material.

ORNAMENTS for SUMMER HATS

A FEATURE emphasized in the new hats for summer wear is the small amount of trimming used.

The smartest models are adorned only with an ornament of some variety, catching up the brim or fastened at the side.

It is an easy matter to duplicate the greater number of these hat ornaments. Any woman who is at all clever at fashioning accessories for her wardrobe will experience very little difficulty.

These ornaments are rather expensive if purchased in the shops. If made at home, they cost but few pence.

The few designs shown here were selected with care and forethought as to their simplicity of construction.

For the first design cut the buckram foundation the desired size. Cover that with taffeta harmonizing with any color scheme you care to introduce.

Over this sew a loosely-woven braid and dot with colored beads of wood or crystal. The fringe is made of beads covered with silk, which may be had in all sizes and shapes.

The round ornament somewhat resembles a dahlia and is fashioned of fiber braid. This is pliable and readily conforms to any shape.

The loops are formed similar to the ribbon rose petals used so much last season.

A triangle of beads is formed of a solid mass of bugle beads, outlined with a row of round jet beads.

Very smart is the quill of braid, which is to be exceedingly popular this season.

First make a foundation of wire and carefully fit the wide braid over this. Fasten the wire firmly to the edges with two rows of stitching.

The three quills are graduated in size and are finished at the base with a twisted knot of braid.

Quill points may be used to cover the ends of the wire, adding a pretty finish. Wide braid woven of raffia is another material used to fashion these stylish quills.

The mercury wings are always good style. The pair shown here are made of strands of raffia and beads braided together and sewn upon a buckram form. Tiny buttons of raffia dotted the ornament.

An ornament imported from Paris was fashioned entirely of covered moulds. Cretonne and plain-colored silk were used. In the center was a large mould surrounded by a row of smaller buttons. The extreme edge is formed of a row of larger moulds, the cretonne alternating with the plain silk.

This usually finishes a standing ornament of pleated ribbon, aigrettes or ostrich plumes.

Other ornaments may be made by embroidering linen in an Arabian design with vivid coloring. Bands for the hat embroidered in this manner are most effective.

The Smartest Fashions of Well-Dressed Folk

THE AFTERNOON TEA

MY DEAR ELEANOR:

I must tell you about the afternoon tea that Maud Coleman gave a few days ago. Oh! so many styles were exploited and such delightful renewal of old friendships and such delicious tea were ours that we stayed very much longer than our allotted time, and some of us forgot to leave cards.

Two decided features of the new styles came in and held our attention for quite a few minutes. I sat in my comfortable corner talking with Elizabeth Manton, and we took a few notes on the well-dressed women who exemplified the new durbar and the revived directoire fashions.

Let me begin at the top of the eastern princess. Around her head was an oriental turban of folded blue silk, with a fantasie of feathers at the top and sides. Her gown had a heavy lace yoke that extended over the shoulder. From the edge a gathered bodice of green chiffon fell down to a wide girdle of blue silk, caught with a huge pink rose. The green tunic was gathered into a band of shirring, under which fell the blue silk underskirt. Long chiffon sleeves had puffed upper portions ending in ruffles at the elbows.

The jaunty directoire lady had a deep purple hat of satin, with a huge purple aigrette caught under a jet ornament. Her suit was of purple cotton ratine, with a cutaway jacket trimmed with black satin revers, a folded belt and deep cuffs.

The skirt showed the drapery which is surely making itself felt in our costumes. A side, trimmed with a row of satin-covered buttons. The front width of the skirt was draped narrow strip of material extended down the left and caught under this band. A suggestion of a black satin underskirt showed under the purple skirt. Her snowy frill of shadow lace and her high parasol completed the "chic" of the costume.

How different are the modes from the scanty lines of last year. And how philosophically we accept changes in fashions! But aren't we attractive anyhow?

Yours, MADGE.
